When Pasteur in 1864 discovered the source of alcohol, isolating that "little bug with a big name,"—mycoderma cerevisiae,—he started a series of discoveries which have entirely changed our knowledge of the effect of beverage alcohol on the individual. Rose Weston Bull in "What's It All About,"—that little booklet which every teacher in the state should have,—tells us what happened in these words:—"All sensible people know, in a vague way, that too much alcohol is bad for the human being, and that drunkenness is and always has been a curse. But few people know of the years and years of study and research, of the scientific experimentation and the laboratory tests that were made to determine the exact nature and effects of this parasite on the human system. When the average person can form a picture in his mind of scientists taking this little parasite—this same mycoderma cerevisiae—into the laboratory, subjecting its product to years of experimentation and close study after which they branded this product "dangerous" and labelled it a "narcotic drug," then the subject takes on another aspect. This picture of scientists, putting alcohol through lengthy, painstaking tests; measuring it in carefully weighed doses to human beings; accurately noting their reactions with delicate instruments and then embodying their findings in dispassionate reports, throws an entirely new light on this controversial subject. It lifts the matter from the low level of rabid political discussion into which it has fallen, and places it where it belongs, among the absorbing and vital chapters in the story of modern scientific research."

"Some of us here can remember when the two words whiskey and stimulant were used synonymously. Now we know beyond a doubt that alcohol in any form is a habit-making narcotic drug, not a stimulant but always a depressant and that even in very moderate quantities, it decreases a man's working efficiency. This is the basis of our belief in total abstinence for the individual and the reason why the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been working for many years "to educate public sentiment up to the standard of total abstinence." We have been called "fanatical drys" but the prophecy of Sir Thomas Barlow, who was physician to King Edward more then twenty-five years ago, is being fulfilled: "It will be a long, slow process but our children's children will come to know that total abstinence is not fanaticism or asceticism but rational self control in regard to something the use of which is fraught with untold danger." We "came to know" the facts concerning the nature and effects of alcoholic liquor just at the time when the development of high-powered machinery made it necessary for every one to be 100 per cent efficient. This combination of circumstance resulted in the outlaw of the legal sale of beverage alcohol in this country.

"Yes, prohibition rests on a solid basis. It is not a mushroom growth, as many think, due to the war. Most of its successes were achieved before the war. It rests on cold-blooded calculations of the scientist, the statistician, the economist, the public health officer, the industrial manager. Liquor is as doomed and doomed for good as slavery. Prohibition rests on the truth that the way to control anything is to control its source. The way to keep a river from going on a rampage each spring is to build dams up in the hills and impound the freshets before they get started on their work of destruction. A dollar spent in this way may save many dollars that might otherwise have to be expended on relief and rehabilitation. Twenty-five years ago there were hundreds of cases of typhoid fever in every city of any size in this country. Typhoid fever has been almost entirely wiped out of the water before people drink it, and there is no need of making them well after they have contracted the disease. Temperance was an attempt to apply the principles of treatment to a sick patient. Prohibition is an attempt against evil itself. "Lte's rescue as against evil itself. "Let's resuce as many as we can" was the slogan a generation ago. "Let's destroy the traffic that makes rescue necessary," says the hard-headed modern. The plea for temperance instead of prohibition is the plea that we return to nineteenth century methods in the handling of a twentieth century problem. Do not apologize for prohibition. Do not let any one persuade you that it is contrary to the best tradition of our country. It is one of the best examples in our national life of the sensible way the modern American has of settling practical problems.

"But, we hear it said, prohibition is a police regulation that has no place in the constitution of the United States. Constitution of states and nations usually contain a "bill of rights" or its equivalent on matters of fundamental importance which could be embodied in statutory provisions; but which, if secured only by laws, might easily be upset by corrupt influences or extraneous pressure. A law can be changed in a week, but a constitution in years; a law may be reversed by a few politicians but a constitution only by the people. The third amendment to the constitution pertained to quartering soldiers The thirteenth and fourteenth amend- The thirteenth and fourteenth emendments relate to emancipation and enfranchisement of the colored race but the 18th amendment provides for the emancipation of our entire nation from the disease, death, poverty, accident perils, risks and costs caused by the traffic in intoxicating beverages. We have stabilized our anti-liquor policy in the constitution as "a framework of government" it is also the palladium of our "bill of rights" to life, liberty and happiness, which have no greater enemy or more cruel master than the drunk traffic.

"Louis J. Taber, master of the national grange, says: "The 18th amendment does not conflict with the spirit of the constitution and does not restrict the rights or liberties of any American citizen any more than do the provisions against slavery, against immorality, or any other of the requirements of organized government and civilized society."

"Health, wealth and happiness, such as the world has never seen, have followed the adoption of this protective amendment, written into the constitution by the greatest expression of popular approval in the history of the race. Our high school enrollment has grown, since 1920, from two million to more than five million students, —an achievement unparalleled in any country or in all history. Many of the three million additional students who have sought a high school education within the decade, have come from poorer homes where in former times drinking was a heavy burden on the family income. In 1920 there were barely eight million automobiles in the country. Today the number is well over twenty-four million. Ten years ago the automobile was the luxury of the well-to-do; today it has become the privilege of every fifth American to own an automobile. Prohibition has registered its greatest nation-wide service in life insurance, which guarantees protection for widows and orphans and financial security for old age. It took seventy-nine years for the life insurance business in the United States to reach the fifty billion dollar mark under the legalized liquor traffic, but it took only six and a half years under prohibition to accomplish a like result and place the total life insurance in the nation well beyond the hundred billion mark. No more eloquent testimony of the service of prohibition and its relation to national prosperity could be mentioned. Home owning has increased and the standards of home life improved. Since 1920 there has been an increase not only in the earning capacity but in the efficiency of the American workmen amounting to more than three million dollars annually.

"Think of these advantages and then think of the utterly selfish plan of the Association Against the 18th Amendment. Workingmen and others, they say would willingly pay a tax of three cents per glass for mild, wholesome beer and that amount (based on consumption) would enable the federal government to get rid of the burdensome corporation and income taxes. Irenee duPont made the statement that one of his companies would save ten million dollars in corporation taxes if we should have this tax on beer. The poor man's throat is to pay the rich man's taxes plus the brewer's profits which in the old days were enormous. Evangeline Booth says, "It is to me unthinkable that the American woman, having achieved her emancipation from this curse, will ever return to the bondage of beer and the humiliation of the old Saturday night."

"So called prohibition reformers are neither believers in prohibition nor reformers. Advocating the return of the "freedom of choice" to individuals, they do not give credence to the statement of our motor vehicle commissioner that it is the moderate drinker who is the real menace on our highways or give concern to the habit-making effect of alcoholic liquor. By reform they mean destroy. Prohibition will need constant reforming and improving of course. Everything does. The law enforcement program of President Hoover is a reform measure. So is the Jones Act. A wet is not a reformer; he is a destroyer. There is not one evil which the wets charge to prohibition that would not totally vanish if they would themselves obey the law. Not one! They make no complaint except of conditions which they themselves have created, nor have they a single constructive suggestion of a method by which those evils may be removed. No system of government control would solve the drink problem in the United States. Any such system would put each state which adopted the plan in the liquor business. It would place the administration of this business into the hands of politicians. Furthermore, a permit system, where each man or woman would be subject to official investigation before securing the permit, would be distasteful to the very classes who are now loudest in their opposition to prohibition because it interferes with their personal liberty. State control has been suggested but good roads, automobiles, railroads and airplanes have so wiped out state boundaries that a return to state or local option would be extremely impractical. Commenting on this suggestion, Prof. Fisher says, "Those who advocate state control have left out any explanation of how they are going to protect the dry glossed over how it would be possible without using custom houses between states, without any federal control present, to add thousands of miles to the frontiers to be guarded against bootleggers. What would actually happen, unless that problem can be solved, would be to bring us back exactly where we were before we had prohibition, when it was impossible to protect dry states against the wet. It was because of that impossibility that we went on to national prohibition. In other words this proposal looks to me like a step backward, not forward."

"Why go backward? Why not give prohibition its chance? Prohibition enforcement is now in the hands of its friends. Patriotic citizens can help through personal observance of the law and by supporting law enforcement agencies. Thus will prohibition prove itself the best method of deal'ng with the liquor traffic."

Over 200 Attending

Over 200 delegates from the 82 unions in the state and 16 new local presidents were welcomed at the meeting by Mrs. Anna K. Smith, president of the Meriden union and by Mrs. May B. Tuttle of Waterbury, state vice president. Mrs. George L. Ellsworth of the Hartford union responded to the words of welcome.

The meeting sent greetings to the Massachmusetts and New Jersey state conventions which are being held at the same time as the Connecticut convention, the former at Lynn and the latter at Hackettstown.

G. H. Bockman of the Connecticut Temperance society spoke during the afternoon.

The contest for the banner for meeting the efficiency standard was a tie between Meriden, New London, Willimantic and Yalesville and each union will have the banner for three months in the order named.

The afternoon's program included reports of the year's work given by Mrs. Sarah A. Hull of Bristol, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nellie R. Arnold of Meriden, treasurer, and Miss Eileen Lewis of New London, state president of the young people's branch.

Exceptionally fine public meetings have been held in Norwich, Meriden, Waterbury and Danielson, and good programs put on at Plainville, Willimantic and Tylerville camp grounds. Three national W. C. T. U. workers have given time to Connecticut, well covering the state and reaching thousands of people.

A pearl pin was awarded to Mrs. Anna K. Smith of Meriden who gained the largest number of new members during the year, and books were given to Mrs. George W. Post of Hartford, Mrs. Arthur L. Smith of Meriden, Mrs. George Cramer of New London, Mrs. Sarah P. Logue of Watertown and Mrs. Ida M. Mathews of Willington for securing the largest number of new members in their respective counties.

A delightful informal reception, arranged by Mrs. David A. Pitt, chairman of the reception committee, followed the afternoon program.

At the banquet, which takes place at the inn at 6 o'clock this evening, Mrs. Mabel P. Preusser of Waterbury will act as toastmistress and Mrs. May Bell Harper of New Haven, national director of international relations, will speak on "Gowns and Warships."

Banquet In the Evening

The banquet was held in the evening at the inn at 6:15, with covers laid for 200, and the blessing was asked by Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd of Park Congregational church.

Seated at the head table were state officers, who included Mrs. Mary E. Welles, Hartford, president; Mrs. May B. Tuttle, Waterbury, vice president at large; Mrs. Sarah A. Hull, Bristol, corresponding secretary; Miss Ethel D. Barrows, New London, recording secretary; Mrs. Nellie Rule Arnold, Meriden, treasurer; Mrs. Mabel P. Preusser, Waterbury, New Haven county president, toastmastress; Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, Meriden, and Mrs. Hattie M. Newton, Durham, two former state presidents; Mrs. Dora E. W. Soratt, Clinton, state director; Rev. Dr. Shipherd and Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt; Dr. James F. Barton, Hartford, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, president of the Woman's City club; and C. Edward Smith of this city.

Wednesday Sessions

There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions of the convention today (Wednesday) at Trinity M. E. church. The morning session will open at 9 o'clock, at 1:30 p. m. there will be department conferences, the afternoon session will be held at 2:30 o'clock and the evening session at 7:45 o'clock.

TWO ENLISTMENTS FOR NAVY ARE ACCEPTED

George E. Whitford, 29 Grove street, Willimantic, and Joseph Struzynski of Gales Ferry are two recent navy enlistments accepted at the recruiting office in New London.

Whitford is a graduate of Windham High school, class of 1929. He was sent to the training station at Newport, R. I., for nine weeks military training and if found qualified for a course of instructions at the machinist's school at Hampton Roads, Va.

Struzynski reenlisted. He has served four years and holds the rating of seaman 1st class, having served on the U. S. S. Utah. He was sent to the submarine school for a course of instructions for duty on submarine boats. This is the second time that this recruiting officer has enlisted him, he enlisted the first time Sept. 28, 1926, and prior to his first enlistment he was employed as messenger boy in a telegraph office.

The quota for the month of Oct. 15 to Nov. 15th, was ten men and has been filled. Applications applying for enlistment will be placed on the waiting list.

EXPECT BEST BUSINESS WEEK IN NORWICH

After the splendid meeting of the merchants, business men and their employees Monday morning at the Wauregan hotel, there is no doubt but that this will be one of the best business weeks that Norwich has ever had, says a statement issued Tuesday afternoon by James F. Fleming, president of the Norwich Retail Merchants' bureau. The merchants bureau, he continued, in cooperating with the international conference week programme, is going to sponsor Norwich Progress days, to be held on Friday and Saturday of this week. Further announcement of the plans of the merchants for these two days will be made later.

STATE D. OF A. OFFICERS TO VISIT IN WESTERLY

Lillian J. Pearson, state councilor of the Daughters of America, of Rhode Island, and her board of state officers will pay an official visit to Matilda C. Morgan Council, No. 13, of Westerly, on Friday evening, Oct. 24. The officers are hoping for large delegations from visiting councils. Through the press an invitation has been extended to Noank, Stonington, New London councils and in this way the council invites the members of Lady Buckingham council who care to attend.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting and a dance and social hour enoyed.

EMBARGO ON SHIPMENTS OF ARMS TO REBELS IN BRAZIL

President Hoover Takes Action Upon Plea of the Brazilian Government—First Time in American Diplomatic History That Such An Embargo Has Been Placed On Exportation of Arms to a South American Republic—Airplane Manufacturers Are Given Permission to Release to the Brazilian Government Planes For Which the Navy Had Contracted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. — (AP) — Acting upon a plea of the Brazilian government, President Hoover imposed today an embargo on shipments of arms and munitions to Brazil — the first time in American diplomatic history such a limitation has been placed on exportations of arms to a South American republic.

The embargo was contained in a proclamation signed by President Hoover and countersigned and sealed by Secretary Stimson.

It carried the proviso that shipments could be made to Brazil under licenses granted by the secretary of state, which, in effect, would prevent shipments to any Brazilians other than those representing the administration of President Washington Luis, the only government in Brazil recognized by the United States.

Brazil's request for imposition of the embargo was contained in a note dated today and delivered by Ambassador Do Amaral of Brazil to Secretary Stimson.

Closely following the issuance of the embargo proclamation at the state department, the navy department announced it had again granted private airplane manufacturers the right to deliver to the Brazilian government airplanes for which the navy had contracted. The navy's latest accession was to the request of the Glenn L. Martin company of Baltimore to release to the Brazilian government three patrol planes being completed for the navy. Twelve other planes have been released to Brazil on permission of the navy by the Curtiss-Wright company.

The president's proclamation was in line with Secretary Stimson's pronouncement of policy last week that the American government would allow the shipment of arms and munitions to the Brazilian government.

Violation by American citizens of the embargo, issued under the authority of an act of congress of 1922 carries a penalty of two years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000 or both. The penalty was cited in the proclamation.

The note of the Brazilian government asserted "the conditions of domestic violence" prescribed in the act under which an embargo could be placed, existed in Brazil and persons in the United States sympathetic with the revolutionists were endeavoring to purchase arms in America. To preclude such purchases, it was requested that the embargo be placed on all arms and munitions except those permitted by the state department to be shipped.

Only two other embargoes exist in Latin America, both in Central America. These are on arms to Nicaragua and Honduras. A similar embargo is in effect on shipments to China. State department officials said, however, that no embargo has ever before been placed on arms shipments to a republic on the continent of South America.

BRAZILIAN FEDERALS TO LAUNCH A NEW OFFENSIVE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 22. — (AP)— With the Brazilian federal battle lines declared to be holding in the hotly-contested Sao Baulo-Parana sector, the government today announced that a new offensive was being planned against the rebels in southern Minas Geraes.

The rebels now are struggling to cut off all railway communications between Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo, with engagements fought in the last two days at Cruzeiro and Passa Quatro.

To halt this invasion federal troops from several points converged today at Itajuba, in the lower projection of Minas Geraes, near Cruzeiro and Passa Quatro, and are preparing to move in defense of the region.

All government communiques stress that the loyal forces of President Washington Luis are successfully opposing the revolution which began in southern states because of dissatisfaction with the spring elections.

The strongly fortified battle line in the Sao Paulo-Parana area, running through the cities of Ribeira, Itarare and Ourinhos, is declared to be holding in good fashion, while two attempts of rebel troops to cross the Sengues bridges near Itarare were repulsed.

Airplanes are credited with much of the government's success. They are flying constantly over interior Parana and other rebel areas, mapping the terrain and observing military preparations, while others aid in battles by bombing and machine gun strafing.

REBELS REPORT STEADY ADVANCE ON ALL FRONTS

CURITYBA, Parana, Brazil, Oct. 22.—(AP) —Steady advances on all fronts, especially in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector and in the region of the railway connecting the two federal strongholds—Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo—were described here today at Brazilian revolutionary headquarters.

Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the rebel campaign, today telegraphed the president of the rebel state Minas Geraes that revolutionary forces had broken the federal lines in Sao Paulo-Parana at Itarare, and other points.

(Communiques from Rio De Janeiro assert the strongly fortified federal lines running through Itarare, Riberia and Ourinhos is resisting all attacks.)

PRESIDENT OF SAN SALVADOR TO LIBERATE PRISONERS

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Romeo Bosque of San Salvador will pardon ten prisoners of the federal penitentiary this year, in commemoration of the centenary of the death of Simon Bolivar, liberator of four Spanish American republics and founder of another.

On December 17, it will be one hundred years since the death of the picturesque soldier and statesman who, at the head of half famished soldiers, succeeded in wresting from Spain the independence of Venezuela, Colombia, Peru and Ecuador and culminated his life work by founding the republic of Bolivia in the heart of the Andes.

Unlike other revolutionary heroes Simon Bolivar, who was born to wealth and distinction, died poor in Santa Marta, Colombia, December 17, 1830, in complete isolation.

PINCHOT TO FIGHT PHILA. REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22. — (AP) — Announcement was made tonight that court action is to be taken by Gifford Pinchot, republican candidate for governor, in an effort to wrest control of campaign machinery and funds from the Philadelphia republican organization.

S. Davis Wilson, city campaign manager for Pinchot, who made the announcement, said 47 of the 48 members of the republican city committee, the board of county commissioners and members of city council would be named as defendants.

Wilson said a bill in equity would be filed "within the next 48 hours, charging "treachery" to the republican electors of Philadelphia and demanding their eviction from control of the party machinery. The bill also will charge coercion in the collection of campaign funds from city employes and others.

TWO YOUNG MEN WERE FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN BRUSH FIRE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 22.— (AP) — Lonely swamp lands on the Arkansas bank of Mississippi river today gave up two young men, unconscious and burning alive in a brush fire. One of them died later of a crushed skull.

The dead youth, about 19 years old, was tentatively identified as Burton Hensley, Bald Creek, N. C., and the other, who may recover, as Woodrow Wilson, of Bald Cheek.

Two wood choppers found them, and removed them from the flames. Physicians at a Memphis hospital said both seemed to have been beaten. Neither had any money.

Physicians said the youths apparently had been in the fire six or eight hours before they were found at 2 p. m. Neither was bound, and only their injured heads gave indication of an attack.

ASKS PROBE OF TREATMENT OF PRISONERS AT WETHERSFIELD

HARTFORD, Oct. 22.—(AP) — The state board of prison directors today requested Gov. Trumbull to institute an investigation of the treatment of prisoners at Wethersfield.

This action was taken at a special meeting of the board convened after the executive committee of the Hartford council of churches had voted yesterday to ask the state legislature to appoint a non-partisan committee, including an expert penologist, to inquire into allegations that prisoners in solitary confinement have been punished brutally.

The board invited an investigation last week, following publication of a newspaper article by Rev. Dr. William H. Smith, former chaplain, in which he charged that men had been shackled to the bars of their cells, and, with their hands held high over their heads, forced to stand on tiptoe.

HELD FOR DEFRAUDING HARTFORD WOMAN $110,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Charged with defrauding Miss Mary Hotchkiss, of Hartford, Conn., of $110,000, partly by selling her at $1 a share stock which recently changed hands at six cents, Harry Miller, alias Ball, was held in $50,000 bail in magistrates court today.

Officials at the attorney general's office said George H. Brice, selling agent for Bingham Orphir Mines and Kearsarge Mines stock, identified shares purchased by Miss Hotchkiss at $1 as the actual paper he had sold to men he did not know at from six to ten cents.

THREE BANDITS ESCAPED FROM LA. STATE PENAL FARM

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 22.—(AP)— Three New Orleans bandits serving long terms at the Angola state penal farm near here, administered a sleeping potion to a guard and a patient in the prison hospital last night and escaped, authorities disclosed today.

The fugitives are William Woolforth and William Dupont, bank robbers, and Andrew Sanchez, who had served more than a year on a 20 to 34-year term for assault and robbery in a filling station holdup.

$15,000,000 DOCK EXPANSION PLAN AT SOUTHAMPTON, ENG.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A dock expansion program to cost $15,000,000 over five years was announced today by the Southern railway, owners of the Southampton docks. The project involves reclamation of 200 acres of land, construction of 3,500 feet of piers for vessels of 40-foot draft with sheds and cranes. The government will assist in the work which will start before the end of this year.

8,000 Chinese Men, Women Massacred

Communists Ruthlessly Sac[illegible]ed the City of Kian, Pr[illegible]ince of Kiangsi

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22.— (AP)— Eight thousand Chinese men and women have been massacred at Kian, province of Kiangsi, by communists in an orgy of slaying, looting and burning, said dispatches received today.

The reds swarmed into Kian October 6, ransacked the city and ruthlessly killed 2,000 inhabitants in one day. Thousands of others were slain as depredations continued.

First news of the massacre was brought by Bishop Migniani of the Italian Lazarist mission at Kian, who with a Chinese Lazarist priest arrived at Kiukiang today. He had been released by reds to attempt to raise about $3,500,000 in gold as ransom for fourteen missionaries held at Kian.

Bishop Migniani said he and the Chinese priest, after being severely beaten and paraded through streets of Kian, left on foot October 14 to obtain aid for their fellow missionaries. These included four Italian priests, four Italians, one French and five Chinese nuns held at communist headquarters.

When they left, no mission buildings had been fired, but buckets of gasoline had been distributed through church properties, for use should ransom not be forthcoming.

Reporting deaths at Kian had reached Chinese press dispatches which said that immediately after capturing the city, communists massacred residents and started disastrous fires. Flames and smoke were seen many miles for three days.

"So many persons were murdered," said the dispatches, "that virtually a constant stream of bodies was seen floating in the Kan river toward Nachang. Scenes not describable were enacted."

DEATH TOLL OF GERMAN MINE EXPLOSICN NOW 233

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 22.—(AP)— Seven miners were rescued alive tonight from galleries of the Anna II mine, but there was practically no hope for 25 others still unaccounted for and believed entombed by the explosion which destroyed the shaft at dawn yesterday.

The death toll stood tonight at 233, not including the 25 men still missing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.— (AP)— Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford returned from a European trip today. The automobile manufacturer would make no statement nor submit to any interview concerning conditions abroad or any other subject on the ground that he had been misquoted in the press since he left this country.

Five B[illegible]dits Put To [illegible]ght In Chicago

[illegible]er a Gun Battle With Express Company Guards—$17,000 Payroll Saved

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP) —An attempted robbery of the American Colortype company was frustrated today after a gun battle between express company guards and the would-be holdup men. The battle took place in the company's main office just as the express guards were bringing in the $17,000 payroll.

About 50 employes, most of them women, hid under tables and behind chairs while bullets shattered glass partitions and spattered the walls.

The three men who participated in the losing gun fight and two accomplices, who stayed below escaped, but one of them was believed wounded. None of the guards or employes was wounded.

FOUR LIVES LOST IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

SALISBURY, Conn., Oct. 22.—(AP)— Four lives were lost today in an automobile accident, a tragic climax to a dance.

The victims, passengers in a sedan which was returning them to Lakeville from a dance in Canaan, were either instantly killed or fatally injured as their speeding machine failed to make a turn on Smith's hill and burst into flames after shattering itself against a tree.

Two women, Miss Helen Adams and Miss Julia Regalis, 30, both of New Britain, but employed as waitresses in Lakeville, and two East Canaan youths, Alfred Casey and Robert Condon, 20, were the four victims. The driver of the car, William Mosely, also of New Canaan, suffered minor injuries and was held by state police at the Canaan barracks in $2,000 bonds on a charge of reckless driving. Police charge that he was driving at an excessive rate of speed.

Miss Adams, who with her companions were hurled out of the machine as it crashed into the tree, was instantly killed, while Casey died a few minutes later. Condon and Miss Regalis died several hours later after being admitted to the Fairview hospital, Great Barrington, Mass., and Sharon hospital, respectively.

CONFESSED STRANGLING OF HER FOUR MONTHS OLD BABY

REDDING, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Catherine Mortensen, 42, having calmly confessed that she strangled to death her four months old baby and then changed her mind about killing her older two children and herself, is held in Fairfield county jail in Bridgeport, pending hearing of her case November 5. She has also, in a quiet voice, expressed the hope that she will be hanged.

IMMEDIATE STEPS TO MEET UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

Matter Discussed By President Hover and Colonel Woods At the White House Yesterday—Plans Are to Be Adapted to the Varying Needs of Different Sections of the Country—Describing the Problem As a "Race Against Human Misery," Colonel Woods Said the Government "Must and Will Win"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The renewed efforts of the government to aid the nation's unemployed took more definite form tonight as President Hoover and the man he has named to direct the activities— Colonel Arthur Woods of New York — conferred at the white house.

Colonel Woods arrived late in the day and went directly to the executive mansion where the president awaited him in his office. Later he called upon Secretary Lamont at the latter's home.

Describing the situation as a "race against human misery," the new administrator said the government "must and will win."

He asserted that the problem would be met with all the information and vigor that can be summoned and that he and the president's cabinet committee of seven would try to take immediately the steps needed to meet the situation.

He had accepted the post, in which he will serve without pay, only yesterday and declined to discuss particulars of the organization to be set up until he confers with associations tomorrow.

An organiation similar to that which he directed in 1921 at the instance of President Harding is to be established, Colonel Woods indicated, with changes to meet new conditions.

He said most of the work of the government probably would be in the coordination of local activities, and that the plans would be adapted to the varying needs of different sections of the country. The organizations already set up throughout the country had made the task easier, he said.

While the cabinet committee awaited the coming of Colonel Woods to press the relief operations, Secretary Davis at the labor department greeted a group, gathering to assist in the statistical study of employment and economic matters which the government conducts.

He warned them, that they would be asked to lay down some method of determining to what degree the displacing of human labor by advanced machine designs or improved processes had contributed to unemployment.

Only a detailed study as compared with an enumeration would furnish a sufficiently good picture of this contribution to the total of the jobless, it was suggested, and help was asked in the application of methods to aid the government in gathering data.

TRIAL OF CAMPBELL FOR MURDER OF MARY BAKER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.— (AP) — Preliminaries over, the government today began the presentation of witnesses in an effort to convict Herbert M. Campbell of the murder of Mary Baker.

Grim testimony regarding the wounds which caused the girl's death was given by three physicians who examined the body after it was found in a culvert near Arlington National cemetery.

B. H. Swain, veteran Arlington county, Virginia, coroner, described the three bullet wounds and the evidences of strangulation on Miss Baker's neck and throat. He said he believed the girl, a clerk in the navy department, was almost dead at the time she was shot. Under cross-examination he explained the bullet wounds would have bled more freely if the girl's heart had not been beating very feebly at the time she was shot.

YOUTHFUL BANDIT SHOT BY POLICEMAN IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL, Oct. 22.— (AP)—A youthful bandit, engaged in holding up a drug store here tonight, was shot and probably fatally wounded by a policeman. The youth was identified by papers as Edmund Richard Theriault, 22, of this city.

Theriault was shot as he fled from the store after an exchange of gun fire with Patrolman Edward O'Connor who happened to be in a telephone booth when the youth held up John Rock, the proprietor, and took $17 from a cash register.

He dropped to the pavement as he gained the street with five bullet wounds in his body. At a hospital it was said that he had little chance of surviving.

Theriault fired twice at the patrolman but did not hit him.

YACHT SHAMROCK BATTERED ON TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Battered by terrific seas encountered on her way across the Atlantic, the Shamrock arrived today minus her original steering wheel which was washed away when she was 24 hours out of Bristol, Rhode Island.

Captain William Greenock, who brought the America's cup challenger home, said that the yacht ran into bad weather practically all the way over. At times the boat was held to a standstill.

"It was no pleasure cruise," he said, "I don't think the weather could have been more unkind for we struck a bad patch just after leaving America."

The Shamrock will be taken to a shipyard for the winter.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGES IN CONNECTION WITH ELOPEMENT

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 22.—(AP)— A jury today acquitted Harry Dickenson, filling station attendant, of felony charges in connection with his elopement on July 1 with Mary Frances McClenny, attractive daughter of a prominent Richmond family.

Dickenson was accused of "taking and secreting" Miss McClenny, then under 21 years old. The girl's disappearance from her home on July 1 resulted in a widespread search until the couple were located twelve days later at Waynesboro, Va.

Miss McClenny collapsed on the witness stand today while testifying as a defense witness and was carried away crying and hysterical.

MRS. A. H. BAMBERGER WINS DIVORCE SUIT AT RENO, NEV.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 22.—(AP) — Mrs Alliene Hoffheimer Bamberger, amateur aviatrix and artist, today was granted a divorce from L. Richard Bamberger, New York stock broker. The divoce action was filed this afternoon and tried shortly afterward, Mrs. Bamberger charging her husband with mental cruelty. She said he cursed and swore at her, found fault and belittled all her ambitions. They married in New York, Feb. 22, 1928, and have no children.

AWARDED $15,000 DAMAGES FOR AUTOMOBILE INJURIES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—(AP)— Mrs. Elsie Wiegold, of Torrington, Conn., today was awarded $15,000 damages by a jury in city court in a suit against the People's Rapid Transit company for injuries suffered in an automobile accident August 26, 1929, on Washington boulevard.

TO REJECT THE BRITISH POLICY FOR PALESTINE

JERUSALEM. Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Jewish National council voted unanimously tonight to reject the British statement of policy for Palestine and decreed against participation in the proposed legislative council.

The British proposal, the council declared after an eight-hour session, is calculated "to end the building up of the Jewish national home."

Another resolution voted for participation in the protest of Dr. Chaim Weizmann against what he charges is the British government's breach of promise to the Jews.

While two revisionist members and M. M. Ushishkin, head of the Jewish national fund, abstained from voting on the resolution not to participate in the legislative council, the revisionists concurred in the resolution rejecting the government's statement.

TO HOLD PUBLIC INQUIRY INTO LOSS OF AIRSHIP R-101

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Sir John Simon, British jurist, will begin on Tuesday next the holding of a public inquiry into the loss of Britain's giant airship R-101, destroyed Oct. 5 in France with the loss of 48 lives.

With him will sit two assessors, Lieutenant-Colonel J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon and Professor Charles E. Inglis, the one a pioneer motorist and first Englishman actually to leave the ground in an airplane, the other foremost expert in all problems relating to mechanics in Britain.

The central and all-important point before the court will be simply, "Why did the R-101 crash?"

SHARK NEED NOT TURN ON SIDE TO ATTACK A MAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A shark when enraged by blood lust will attack a man and need not turn on its side to do it, either, J. E. Williamson undersea photographer, said today on his return from the Bahamas.

He took motion pictures of sharks from a steel chamber equipped with glass windows two inches thick suspended 100 feet below the surface.

When animal blood was poured into the sea beside his chamber the taste of it enraged the sharks, and seeing Williamson inside his five-foot window, they tried to break through the glass to reach him.

SHERIFF CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL AFFILIATIONS

GALLUP, N. M., Oct. 22.— (AP) — Charges that Sheriff R. L. Roberts has been conducting a terrorist regime in McKinley county were contained in ouster proceedings filed today by District Attorney Jack Kenney.

The complaint alleged the sheriff "has built around himself an organization of bootleggers and thugs which have terrorized the city of Gallup."

Included in the charges are allegations that Sheriff Roberts has worked in "close harmony" with bootleggers and gamblers, that he has been "drunk and intoxicated in public places," and has fought with citizens on the streets.

TO COMMEMORATE FIRING OF FIRST SHOT IN WORLD WAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.— (AP) — Commemorating the firing of the first shot in the World war by an American military contingent, a shot will be fired at Fort Myer, Va., at 6:05 a. m. tomorrow, marking the opening of the 12th annual reunion of the Society of the First Division of the American Expeditionary forces.

Official records of the division showed that the first shot of the American army in France was fired by Battery C, Sixth Field artillery. The same battery will fire the explosive in opening the reunion.

UNION BAN ON RADIO MUSIC AT CHICAGO SHOW REMOVED

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The union ban that had stopped broadcasting of music from the Chicago Radio show was removed today.

The Chicago Federation of Musicians had withdrawn its members from the show on complaint that a union pianist had been dismissed after signing a contract with the show sponsors. The radio show denied having employed the pianist and refused to hire him, but an agreement was reached today by which two pianists were employed by exhibitors at the radio show and the union ban was dropped.

MONDEVILLE IS AWARDED $1,016 FROM WHEELER ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22. — Fred Mondeville of Middletown, formerly of this city, was awarded damages of $1,016 against the estate of the late George L. Wheeler, by a jury of the Windham county superior court here this forenoon. The jury deliberated one-half hour. The case had started Tuesday and testimony was completed late in the afternoon. Rebuttal witnesses for the appellee included Otto B. Robinson, judge of the probate court at the time the Wheeler estate was administered; Ernest P. Chesbro, Sr., William J. Miller, Mrs. Gertrude L. Crane and William H. Henken, who testified that as far as they knew Mr. Wheeler was of sound mind. Today arguments were given by Attorney Samuel B. Harve,y representing Mondeville, and Attorney E. C. Richards of Worcester, for Mrs. Farnum. The probate commissioners had previously awarded Mondeville $1,440 for services rendered the deceased, but the award was appealed by the administratrix, Mrs. Jennie L. Farnum, of Worcester, Mass.

Upon the conclusion of the case this noon, Judge Newell S. Jennings adjourned court until Friday morning at 10 o'clock when a short calendar session will be held.

OBITUARY

Franklin P. Beckwith

Franklin P. Beckwith, 77, a long-time resident of South Windham, died at his home there Tuesday night after an extended illness. He was born in Franklin, the son of Chester H. and Minerva Billings Beckwith. The deceased leaves his wife, Mrs. Amy Simons Beckwith; four sons, Ernest, Frank, Arthur and Alfred, all of South Windham; one daughter, Mrs. Alice McClure of Norwich; a brother, John P. Beckwith of Windham; a sister, Mrs. Anna Cooney of Pawtucket, R. I., and several grandchildren.

The case of Charles Natello of Philadelphia, Pa., driver of a car that struck and injured Onerine Gamache, aged 7, on lower Main street Tuesday noon, was continued until Nov. 24 in police court this morning. Judge Frank H. Foss continued the bond of $500. The child, who has a fractured skull, is expected to recover at St. Joseph's hospital. Natello, who wrecked his car in an effort to avoid striking the little girl, is a boxer. During his amateur days he fought Bat Battalino in Hartford when the Philadelphia team appeared there.

The adjourned town meeting to take action on the town annual budget as drawn by the board of selectmen, is scheduled to be held next Friday evening in the town hall. There is some possibility that action will again be deferred, it having been the original intention to await adoption of a budget until a final report of the auditors working on the town books is available after Nov. 15. The new board of selectmen is not prepared as yet to give definite information as to possible reductions or increases of the proposed budget.

W. P. Jordan to be Vice-Chairman

William P. Jordan has been secured to act as vice-chairman of the corporations committee, which is an important unit of the campaign organization to raise the $500,000 new hospital fund. Don H. Curtis is chairman of this committee, whose duty it will be to obtain subscriptions from corporations. This group will present the hospital appeal to the executive bodies of the various corporations.

Avoiding a collision with a truck driven by Alfred Saba at the driveway of the Bousa Motor Sales Co. on West Main street, H. N. Bullard, also of this city, drove his machine into a stone post, damaging the car to some extent. Saba assumed responsibility for the accident.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Florence C. Lewis

Services for Mrs. Florence Culpin Lewis were held at the home, 155 South Park street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton officiated and burial was in the Windham Center cemetery. The bearers were George Bowen, William Champlin, Charles Smith and George Anthony. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Arrangements were by Avery and VanZandt.

Next Thursday a Halloween party will be held at the Y. M. C. A., with prizes for the best costumes worn by men and women. There will be dancing and refreshments. The affair is in charge of the social committee with Charles W. Hill chairman. Harold Higgins is chairman of decorations, Dow Ahern of refreshments and Ralph H. Gibson of the music.

A rise of 12 inches is noted in the water at the supply reservoir in Mansfield, bringing the water level to but 18 inches below the capstones of the dam. The water previously has been as low as 30 inches below normal and the sudden rise is surprising to Superintendent Willard N. Bowen, inasmuch as the two recent rain storms were not deemed sufficient to bring about the increase.

The Windham National bank has instituted foreclosure proceedings against Carmela Spadaro of Mamaroneck, N. Y. George M. Flint, who holds a second mortgage on the property located on West Main street here, has also been named a defendant. The case is returnable in the Windham county superior court next month. Papers have been served by Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Blish.

Effective redecoration work is being done in the auditorium of the First Methodist church, the first work of its kind for 21 years. The church, built of stone, was built in 1850. In keeping with its construction, the auditorium will be finished in a patterned surface, giving the appearance of early-period stone.

Former Chief Richard E. Wright is chairman of the mortgage-burning celebration of the North Windham fire department, to be held in the presence of a number of guests next Saturday evening.

The appearance of McEnelly's orchestra at the Al-Pierre Tabarin Tuesday night drew an attendance of about 200 couples.

First Selectman Albert L. French expects to have repairs to the bridge over the Shetucket river in South Windham completed by the week-end, weather permitting. The planking is being replaced and other work done to bring the bridge into good condition. The structure is 224 feet long and 20 feet wide.

Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton, one of the democratic candidates for justice of the peace, has resigned the nomination and the town committee has filled the vacancy with the name of Albert J. Piche.

Miss Mary Rose Blanchette, director of the Euterpean orchestra, a community organization, anticipates a growth in the number of musicians, which was 26 last year. The orchestra, which gives free training, will begin rehearsals Thursday.

Matters of adopting a constitution and acting on election of a board of governors named by a meeting Monday, are among items of business to come up at a meeting of the Windham Taxpayers' Protective association which will be held Thursday evening on call of President (Dr.) George E. Wilcox.

In view of the annual convention of the Connecticut Special Education association to be held in various cities Friday, all the public schools of the city and town will be closed Friday. Most of the local teachers are members of the association and several will attend the session at Hartford.

About one-fourth, or a little over 1,000 property owners on the grand list of 1930 have filed lists with the town board of assessors now in session. The time limit for filing lists and thereby avoiding a 10 per cent penalty, is Nov. 1.

George Shapiro has been named chairman of a committee to sponsor the candidacy of Benjamin Eisenberg for state senator from this district.

Mrs. Minnie Flynn and Mrs. Nora McCarthy were in Hartford Tuesday evening to attend the inspection of the auxiliary to Charles Burdette camp, U. S. W. V., at the state armory.

Joseph B. Riordan of the H. C. Murray Co., is on a business trip in New York city.

Miss Elizabeth Seckerson, daughter of Prof. Howard A. Seckerson of the Connecticut Agricultural college, was recently pledged to Phi Mu sorority at Middlebury college, Vt., where she is a member of the freshman class and one of five young women pledged by Phi Mu.

An appropriate program of services has been arranged for the observance of the 220th year of the founding of the Mansfield Center Congregational church. The event will be designated as an Old Home Week-End on Saturday and Sunday, and several former ministers and members of the church will be present. The pastors of the church, Rev. Florence and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, are issuing invitations for the commemoration.

Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips have just returned to North Windham from visits in New York city and Hempstead, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderton of Washington, D. C., left for their home today, after a visit with the former's sister, Mrs. Wells S. Wilcox, of West Main street.

China has 233 motion picture theatres.

Stafford Springs

A meeting of the executive committee of Tolland County Y. M. C. A. was held at the Stafford Springs house Tuesday evening at six o'clock. Ira C. Machney, new associate secretary of the Y. M. C. A. was the principal speaker. County Secretary Rev. William Tyler of Vernon was present at the meeting.

Leonard and James Meurisse, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Meurisse, are on a several weeks' motor trip to California. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fahey and daughter Lena are accompanying them.

The sophomore class of Stafford high school has elected the following class officers: President, Edwin Colburn; vice president, Less Furness; secretary, Frank Placek; treasurer, June Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. John Christensen of Hartford were recent visitors with relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tobin of Prospect street have returned to their home, after spending a few days with Holliston, Mass., relatives.

Irving and William Rhodes have been spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rhodes in Stafford Hollow.

Mrs. Catherine I. Croft of Port Chester, N. Y., has returned, after spending a few days on business in Stafford Springs.

William Galvin of Providence was a recent visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Forrest V. Adams.

Miss Inza Goodell left recently for Lynn, Mass., where she will be employed.

Miss Alice Lewis, employed in Hartford, has been spending a few days with her parents.

Marriage intentions of Fred F. Seigfried of Waterloo, N. Y., and Sarah A. Donaldson of Center street, Stafford Springs, have been filed in the office of the town clerk.

Domenico Bellante has returned to Passaic, N. J., after spending a week with borough relatives.

TRENOR A. RICE FILES $25,000 SUIT AGAINST HARTFORD PAPER FOR LIBEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22.—A suit for $25,000 damages for alleged libel has been filed by Trenor A. Rice of this city against the Hartford Courant Co. of Hartford, claiming false and malicious words and statements of and concerning the plaintiff in a news item carried in the Courant on Feb. 4, 1929. The case is returnable in the superior court of Windham county in November and papers were served on the newspaper company Tuesday.

The news item is alleged by the defendant to have stated that he had confessed to the murder of County Detective William E. Jackson of Windham, who was found shot to death in his home on the night of Jan. 29, 1929. The writ sets forth that Rice has been a resident of Windham many years and formerly was a special deputy sheriff. It further recites that "Jackson was found shot to death and the cause or person responsible therefor were unknown; and said homicide was then under investigation as to the circumstances thereof and as to the perpetrating the same."

The complaint in paragraph four states: "On or about Feb. 4, 1929, the defendant, in its issue of said Hartford Courant dated Feb. 4, 1929, in large type on the front page thereof, published the following false and malicious words and statements of and concerning the plaintiff:

"Trenor Rice Confesses Murder of County Detective Jackson. Quizz Breaks Story of Deputy Sheriff. No Other Arrests Expected, Says State's Attorney Bradford—Suspect Questioned for 25 Hours by Detective Hickey and Policemen Hurley and Wheeler—Grand Jury to be Called as Soon as Possible after Hearing Today."

Samuel B. Harvey, local attorney, who was associated with William A. King, former attorney-general, as Rice's counsel at the time of the murder investigation, appears for the plaintiff in the present action. The murder charge against Rice was nolled by State's Attorney Bradford a few weeks after a grand jury had returned an indictment.

DANIELSON

CASES OF SILVER ROBBERS CONTINUED AGAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22.—There is to be another delay of approximately a month before hearings are proceeded with in the cases of Mario Ferraioli, 25, Anthony Peters, 25, and Joseph Cardoza, 28, Providence young men held here in connection with the robbery of upwards of half a ton of silver bullion and silver plate from a ByRolly truck held up at South Killingly two weeks ago last Monday morning.

Peters and Cardoza were brought over here from Brooklyn jail this morning and put to plea on a robbery charge before Judge W. Fenner Woodward. Both pleaded not guilty. Attorney A. G. Perrelli of Providence, representing Peters, was in court. Cardoza was without counsel. Upon the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill the cases were continued to Saturday, Nov. 1. Attorney Perrelli inquired if there would be a trial at that time, Mr. Bill responding that he hoped to have one if the state were ready.

Ferraioli's case has been continued to Nov. 17. His bond has been reduced from $10,000 to $500, and he has been released in custody of his counsel, Attorney Anthony V. Pettine of Providence. In default of bonds, Peters and Cardoza were returned to the county jail after this morning's court proceedings.

The mother and a sister of Peters were in court this morning. The mother shed tears as she kissed her son farewell after the continuance of his case, but the sister bore up a bit better, bidding her manacled brother adieu with less show of emotion.

Held for High Court

When Walter Warren of East Killingly was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to face a statutory charge growing out of his alleged relations with a minor female resident near where he lives, probable cause was found for holding him for trial at the next term of the superior court having criminal jurisdiction. His bond was fixed at $500, which was furnished by his father, Sidney Warren. The charges filed against the girl concerned in the case were continued until next week.

Special Pomona Meeting

Subordinate granges throughout this section will be represented at Ekonk Saturday evening when a special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is held. The degree is to be conferred in full form. From 5:30 to 7, supper is to be served by Ekonk grange. The degree work will follow the supper period. The lecturer's program provides for music during the evening by the Killingly High school orchestra. Talks are to be given by Mrs. Louise Rodman, lecturer of the Rhode Island State grange, and by Mrs. Sarah Curtis, lecturer of the Connecticut State grange. A reading by George Ingalls of Brooklyn grange will be another feature.

When asked about the matter while he was here this morning, County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield said that wild game birds are plentiful hereabouts this fall. There is an abundance of pheasants and many partridges, he said. Hunters have been having good luck as a general rule since last Monday, when the season's shooting of these protected birds opened.

P. J. Sheridan, owner and manager of Wildwood park, announced today that the regular dance season at this popular resort has ended for this year. There are some advance engagements for the big pavilion, nevertheless, but not for dances personally sponsored by Mr. Sheridan, who has had a very successful season.

Even a hardened newspaperman was lacking the courage to tell him how wrong he was this morning when a pleasant enough stranger inquired what time the next trolley left for Putnam, after casually remarking "there hasn't been any change in Danielson in the past ten years." He was advised that a comfortable bus would be leaving the railroad station for Putnam in a few minutes, and hurried over to get it, apparently forgetting all about the trolley.

A report received today was of a negative nature, as to a dog that was shot at South Killingly the past week-end having rabies. The animal was a police dog kept at the Donald Stone place. It is now presumed that it was suffering from sort of a fit just prior to its being killed as a protective measure.

Louis Martel and Frank Mercier are not making their headquarters in a tent near Wauregan any longer. After an appearance before Justice Laura Pike, at a court held in Brooklyn this noon, Martel was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail and Mercier fined $10 and costs. They were arrested by State Officer George Martin on charges of breach of the peace. They had been spending much of their time in a tent for a considerable period past.

The annual leaf burning festival is getting underway in Danielson. It's an unofficial sort of proceeding that about everyone seems to get at around the same time of the year.

Funeral services for Miss Harriet Eliza Perkins will be held at St. Alban's church this Thursday at 2 p. m. —adv.

Joseph Lapelle, Spanish-American war veteran, whose home is here, remains seriously ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

There will be considerable of an exodus from this town for New Haven on Saturday to attend the Yale-Army game.

Tax lists come dribbling into the assessors of the town, but a great many more remain to be filed within the next week.

James R. Walsh, who recently completed an enumeration of children of school age in this district of the town, is now engaged in listing within the same territory persons liable to pay a personal tax later in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stott of Mystic are spending the week here with Mrs. Stott's parents, Chief and Mrs. John McFarland, of Prospect street.

There will be a detail of state officers from the Danielson barracks assigned to special duty in the central part of the state next Saturday, on highway patrols controlling the traffic in and out of New Haven for the Yale-Army football game.

For the fourth successive morning the temperature dropped below the freezing point in Danielson today.

Charles F. Alexander, who has been in Los Angeles for several months establishing an additional curtain factory for Powdrell & Alexander, this to supply the Pacific coast trade, is en route east and expected to arrive at his home here within a few days.

Numbers of local football fans have picked the Brown-Holy Cross game at Providence Saturday as the one they figure will give them plenty of excitement and a chance to watch two fine teams in action.

Albert L. James, who has been resident in California for upwards of a score of years, has disposed of his business interests at Santa Monica and is en route to Danielson, where Mrs. James and their daughter Katherine are visiting. Mr. James is the son of R. R. James of Oak street.

AUTOPSY REVEALS HOLE IN STOMACH OF FRANCIS SOCQUET WHO DIED SUDDENLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22.—A hole as large as the end of one's finger through the stomach of Francis Socquet has been disclosed by the autopsy performed by Dr. J. A. LaPalme of North Grosvenordale and Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner for the town of Putnam. This was revealed this morning by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who was present at the autopsy, as was State Officer Elton Nolan, who has been investigating as to the Socquet youth's activities from the time he left here last Saturday night with a friend, Arthur Rainville, of the borough farm, to visit with friends in New Bedford.

Rainville has admitted in response to questions asked him by officials here that Socquet and himself had some drinks while on their trip. In their car after their return here a half pint bottle still half filled with what smells like whiskey was found. It is understood that this was purchased in New Bedford. Socquet's stomach has been removed for further inspection and an analysis is to be made of the pinkish fluid that was part of the dead youth's stomach content during the course of his brief, but virulent, illness. The contents of the liquor bottle also is to be analyzed.

Coroner Bill said today that at the point where Socquet's stomach had been perforated there was an ulcer that evidently had been developing for some time past. This ulcer is regarded as having been responsible in some degree for whatever sort of poison that may have found lodgement in the dead youth's stomach getting in its deadly work so quickly and causing the stomach to break through.

Up to early this afternoon, Coroner Bill had fixed no definite time for beginning his inquest, which will be a searching one. He indicated that he will request the presence here as witnesses at the inquest the young persons, residents of New Bedford, who were about with Socquet and Rainville during the Danielson youths' visit to that city the past week-end. It may be several days, Mr. Bill said, before the laboratory reports on the pinkish fluid from Socquet's stomach and the contents of the bottle are received.

JEWETT CITY

FIRE IN A LODGER'S BED GETS OUT CHEMICAL CO.

Fire, which originated in a bed in the room occupied by Ferris Arremony on the top floor of the Finn block, was the cause for the bell alarm from station 14 in mid-afternoon. Wednesday. Mr. Arremony had been absent from the room about a half hour when other occupants of the block found the corridors filled with stifling smoke and turned in the alarm. When Engine No. 1 responded, the smoke-eaters had their job picked out in that line and, the door being forced, the bed was found blazing. The chemical tank proved effective in stopping the flames sufficiently to allow the firemen to throw the bed from the window into Fanning court. The damage inside the room was mostly by smoke and chemical.

Church With a History

The weekly calendar of the First Congregational church of Griswold has an attractive cover design which displays a fine picture of this meeting house, which was built in 1836. Until this fall the only means of lighting this place of worship, with a history that dates back to 1720, has been with kerosene lamps. The current issue of the calendar tells that electricity has now been installed and that Wayland Stetson, to whom thanks is given, performed the necessary labor without charge. In the calendar, the regular announcement pages are typewritten, which is done each week by the pastor, Rev. Harold L. Arnold. For a long time during the periods of Griswold's earlier history, this place of worship was the leading church in the town. At one time three pastorates filled a period of 108 years of the church's history. Mr. Phillips' history tells that the present building is the third to be erected on this site, and says of the old bell, hung in 1838, a gift from two wealthy parishioners, that it was stipulated by the donors that the bell should be rung for all church services and at 12 o'clock noon, and at 9 o'clock in the evening of each day. On the death of a parishioner the sexton rang the bell to call the attention of the parish, then after a short interval, one stroke of the bell told the listeners that the deceased was a male and two strokes a female. After another interval the age of the departed was tolled, one stroke for each year.

The list of voters having been completed for both districts of the town of Griswold, there are found to be 1,365 eligible to cast their ballots at the November elections.

A large assemblage at the Entered Apprentice degree work of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., Tuesday evening, listened with much interest to the second and third lectures of this degree, which were given from memory by Worshipful Harold R. Field. Twenty-seven minutes were consumed in their delivery, which was accomplished without hesitation or error.

Many Jewett City people are expressing regret that girl friend, Susie, has seen fit to retire as a writer on The Bulletin's popular sport page. One man said today: "I am sorry that I can't read Susie's wise cracks any more! She was a good girl, and sure knew her sport stuff along with a whole lot of other present-day dope," adding, "I only hope that she hasn't taken leave of her senses and gone off and got married! I don't hardly believe she has; she knows too much to make a break like that!"

Hunters all through this section are in from the woods and covers after two days afield. The weather man sure must have laid in with the local upland gunners, for just as the notice was to be given that the woods and fields were too dry, didn't he up and send two days' rain. The woods were reported as pretty well wet down, with no menace of forest fires remaining. A few grouse and a pheasant or two have been reported.

Getting Keyed Up for Sunday Record

The borough people are responding finely to the idea of the new eastern Connecticut Sunday paper, which is to be issued by The Norwich Evening Record. Harold Frink, the local Record boy, will probably handle and deliver a large per cent of the circulation in Jewett City. The lad already has a number who desire The Norwich Sunday Record, which in case of increase to warrantable numbers, he will deliver from door to door by automobile early in the morning. The blanks which may be filled out and given to those who cover the regular Bulletin routes, which are under the supervision of the correspondents, will be later given to the regular Record newsboy, and insure the paper's delivery.

PUTNAM

MRS. MACDONALD IS NAMED SCHOOL BOARD SECRETARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22.—The annual reorganization of the town school board took place Tuesday evening at a meeting of the board held in the law chambers of Torrey and Geissler on Main street. The board was unanimous in its choice of Mrs. Minnie G. Macdonald, to succeed Mrs. Elvira Barber as committee secretary. Mrs. Barber, who has served as secretary of the school board since the death in 1928 of Attorney Charles L. Torrey, was defeated for re-election this year by John M. Hogan, the youthful candidate, carried into office in the sweeping democratic victory on election day.

Attorney Eric H. Johnson was reelected chairman of the board and Committeemen John H. Bulger, J. Dyer Potter and Edward W. Mullan were re-appointed chairmen of the committees on buildings, supplies and transportation, respectively. By a vote of the board the committee on teachers was abolished and the responsibilities were invested in the office of superintendent of schools, within whose jurisdiction they properly fall, according to the views of the majority of board members.

In former years before the office of school superintendent was created, it was necessary for the school board to make its own choice of teaching staffs for the various schools. To discharge these matters a sub-committee was appointed. For several years after a superintendent was appointed to supervise the educational system, the teachers' committee was maintained and consulted in the matter of recommending the appointment of new teachers, but at this time the school board believes the superintendent is in a position to make the necessary investigations and recommendations formerly entrusted to the members of the teachers' committee.

The entire complement of members of the school board consisting of Chairman Johnson, Mrs. Macdonald, secretary, and Messrs. Bulger, Potter, Mullan and Hogan, Joseph A. P. Gagne, Mrs. Dorothy Jones Bartlett, Silas M. Wheelock, was present at last night's meeting.

The only motion of general interest passed was the granting of permission to the Belding Bulldogs, a local semi-pro football team, for the use of the Putnam high school athletic field on Sunday afternoons.

Mrs. Macdonald, the new secretary of the board, is now entering upon the final year of her term of office to which she was elected in 1928. Her experience as head of the commercial department of Putnam high school for a number of years, during which she was in close and constant contact with the educational system makes her especially well fitted to assume the responsibilities of this office. Mrs. Macdonald, besides being a graduate of Putnam high school, was graduated from the Bay Path Teachers Business Training school at Springfield, Mass. She is the wife of Archibald Macdonald, Jr., prominent Putnam attorney and is the mother of two children.

Members appointed to the standing committees for the ensuing year were: Building, John M. Hogan and Silas M. Wheelock; supplies, Joseph A. B. Gagne and Edward W. Mullan; transportation, J. Dyer Potter and Mrs. Macdonald. School Attendance Officer Peter A. Gardner was reappointed and Judge M. H. Geissler was re-named as clerk of the board.

At a meeting of the Albert J. Breault post, V. F. W., held last week, Robert Allard was elected commander to succeed Commander Albert J. Day of Pomfret, whose term expires next month. Other officers elected at this meeting were Eugene Alvord, senior vice commander; Alfred Roy, junior vice commander; Arthur F. Hughes, chaplain and John Simonzi, quartermaster. Mr. Allard, the commander-elect, is a well known resident of Putnam and during the war served overseas with the American expeditionary forces. Plans are being made for the installation of post officers on Thursday evening, November 6.

The annual Halloween party and dance of the members of the Cosmos club was held Tuesday evening in the Eagles' hall on Providence street. There was a large number of the membership in attendance, many of whom appeared attired in costumes becoming the season. Proceeds of the affair will be added to the charity milk fund being sponsored by the club, the membership of which is comprised of local women.

Mrs. Lulu F. E. Morrisey, widow of William A. Morrisey, died Tuesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Card of Frank street. She was in her 56th year and had been ill for nearly two years. Mrs. Morrisey was born in Thompson and made her home there for a number of years. Since the death of her husband, about three years ago, she has lived in Putnam.

Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the state republican central committee and national committee member from Connecticut, presided over the big republican women's rally held yesterday in Hartford, at which state party and ticket leaders were principal speakers. Throughout the speeches of the candidates and the talk of Governor John H. Trumbull, tribute was paid Miss Byrne for her able leadership of the women's division of Connecticut republicanism. Aside from her political interests, Miss Byrne is head of one of the city's largest business houses.

ENGLISH FOX HUNT AT CUSHMAN ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22.—Charles Van Brunt Cushman of the Eastland farms in Pomfret, announced today that a tentative date of November 8 has been set for the holding of an English fox hunt that will be run off on courses covering practically all of the territory of the northeastern tip of Windham county. Mr. Cushman said that definite plans for the hunt will be announced early next week.

The real English fox hunt as planned by Mr. Cushman is certain to arouse widespread interest, since the event will introduce the favorite English sport to this part of the state for the first time. Colonel Guy Cushman, uncle of the well known sportsman and a retired army officer, is assisting with the arrangements, which, to date, include the appearance of Benjamin Ladd, M. F. H., of Providence. Mr. Ladd will bring several pairs of hounds which will be kept in kennels at the Eastlands, where the horses will also be stabled. A unique feature of the affair will be a hunt ball, plans for which Mr. Cushman is making on an elaborate scale.

Anyone capable of riding a horse to hounds will be eligible to participate in the hunt, which, according to Colonel Cushman, is one of the most democratic sports there is.

KELLEY DENIES CANDIDACY FOR FIRE DEPT. CHIEF

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22.—Former Deputy Fire Chief Ellsworth L. Kelley of Seward street, today emphatically denied persistent rumors to the effect that he is a candidate for the office of chief of the Putnam fire department, which was made vacant by the death of Chief Ralph E. Thurston. Mr. Kelley, who served as deputy chief during the incumbency of the late Chief Cortland D. Arnold, in denying the rumors said that he "has not even given the matter a thought."

Mr. Kelley's denial of the rumors quoting him as seeking the position of fire chief, as far as could be learned today, leaves Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas as the only candidate seeking appointment to the post as head of the department. Chief Dumas expressed today that he would make no effort to obtain the appointment other than the submitting for consideration of the common council, his service record of 24 years as a member of the department, eight of which were spent in the capacity of deputy chief.

No official comment relative to the filling of the departmental vacancy has been made since Chief Thurston's death, although it is generally accepted that Mayor C. A. Richard and members of the council will act on the matter at the November session which is scheduled to be held on Tuesday, November 4.

Captain John J. McGarry, commanding the headquarters company of the 43rd Div., C. N. G., the city's military unit, said this morning that notification of a physical inspection and property inventory of the company to be made on next Monday evening by a federal officer, has been received. Captain McGarry extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these exercises which will be held at the state armory on Harris street.

ARTIFICIAL QUAKES EVEN PULL UP NAILS

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Earthquakes are good nail pullers.

On the shaking-table where artificial earthquakes are produced at Leland Stanford university, the nails pull loose irrespective of the types of board sheathing which they fasten.

The resistance of the sheathing varies with type notwithstanding the universal loosening of nails.

DAYVILLE

Miss Annie Stomski was pleasantly surprised Monday night when fifty-four friends invaded her home and showered her with kitchen requisites of the newest designs and colors.

Rev. J. Rees Jones, of Danielson, was the speaker before the Men's club Monday night. Mr. Jones spoke of his experiences as rector in northwestern Canada and was listened to with great interest.

Miss Helen M. Kelley has returned, after several weeks spent with her sister, Mrs. John Wright, of Merrimac, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig were in Hartford Sunday afternoon attending the opening performance of the Kellogg concert season.

A party in honor of Joseph Gingras was held Saturday night at the Lathrop camp on Old Killingly pond. About twenty-five young men were present including guests from Danielson, Putnam, Providence and Grosvenordale.

Percy Greig of Plainfield, Vt., is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig.

Mrs. Howard Pierce of Putnam was in town Tuesday on business relating to her property.

Mrs. John Parkin was hostess to the Tuesday Night bridge club this week. Prizes were won by Miss Helen M. Kelley and Mrs. William Douglas.

A public whist sponsored by the Catholic Welfare society was held Tuesday night.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, of Shelbourne, Vt., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird the past week. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mrs. Kinnaird.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spafford, of Glastonbury, visited the former's sister, Mrs. Horace Foote and family, Saturday.

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Gurley's, Monday, were the latter's daughter, Mrs. James C. Phillips and daughter, Miss Hortense, from Lisbon.

Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, motored to Hartford and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kinnaird.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bryer with their daughter, and the former's father, Mr. Bryer, of New Haven, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stiles over the week.

J. George Clark, who has been confined to the house the past three weeks, is gaining slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Kennedy and two children, from Monson, Mass., visited Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Edna Stiles, recently.

Mrs. Robert C. White, of Willimantic, was a caller at Calmere, Friday afternoon.

W. D. Cleland, W. D. Jr., Milton Winsor and Lawrence Krouse, spent Monday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird.

NORTH STERLING

WILD DRIVING

Roads of steel are laid out at such grades and with such curves that trains running at high speed are protected. Provisions are made for keeping the locomotive and cars on the rails and even then there has to be a careful lookout maintained to see that all is clear ahead.

Although there is just as great need for protective measures for the users of the highways, it is common knowledge that such does not exist. Cars travel all over the highways, cut corners, take curves at top speed, pay little or no attention to warnings or regulations and negotiate the safe and the dangerous points quite as if they were all the same.

The crash at Salisbury, where four people were killed, "while trying to take a curve in a car traveling 70 miles an hour," is an instance in point. There was no justifiable excuse for that accident. It wasn't possible for the driver to get his car around the curve at the rate he was going. There was a tree on the side of the road and he crashed into it. What was previously an automobile was at once a wreck and those who had been in the care of the driver were soon in the care of undertakers.

The driver, who escaped serious injury, was arrested for reckless driving. Someone may urge that the tree which the car struck ought to be removed in the interest of greater safety, as if the tree was to blame, but there is no reason to suppose but what such accidents, or those of a similar character and caused by the same careless conditions, will continue to feature the news of the future.

No one will claim that it was the intention of the driver to send his car into a tree when going 70 miles an hour, but he should have known without killing his four companions that there was no excuse for such speed, and especially at such a point. He should have sensed the danger involved in what he was undertaking, slowed down his car or had it under such control that he could meet whatever conditions developed in taking a curve or a corner. If there had been another auto intersecting his wild course at the time there could easily have been twice the number of needless fatalities.

METCALF FOR REPEAL

That Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island should declare for the repeal of the 18th amendment seems a logical development. He is the representative of the people in a state which has never ratified the amendment, Rhode Island and Connecticut being the only two to withhold their approval.

From the persistent refusal of ratification it is proper to infer that Rhode Island, where his constituents are located, is opposed to the amendment. Further than that, Senator Metcalf has been able to note the conditions which have existed under prohibition and to reach the conviction "that temperance may be best promoted, that the moral tone of the American community may be lifted to a higher plane and that respect for law and reverence for government may be best preserved by a repeal of the 18th amendment."

Rhode Island is getting ready to declare itself upon the wet and dry question in a direct manner. It will have a referendum at the coming election which should disclose without question what the sentiment of the state actually is, but the senator has become convinced through such a study as he has made of the matter and the observations which he probably could not escape that a definite course should be shaped for the ending of the conditions which he believes should be changed.

His views are in sympathy with many others. He has not come to his decision without due consideration. His declaration doesn't represent a snap judgment and it is not improbable that it will be found when the referendum vote is counted that the people of his state give support to the position he has taken. The impression is gained that he expresses the majority view of the Rhode Island people.

ELECTRICS ARE PASSING

The handwriting on the wall grows blacker relative to the replacement of trolley lines by busses. The change has been underway for a number of years. It created a disturbed feeling at first but it has come to be recognized that relief is inevitable and where service is being abandoned or changed it is in accord with recognized conditions.

Thus, when the public utilities commission hears petitions for the substitution of busses for trolleys in Waterbury and Norwalk and asks to abandon a portion of its line in Norwalk, it is only what has been done elsewhere.

There were the days when the suburban trolley lines were being replaced by the bus lines. Then came the time when bus service was being substituted for trains on the railroads, and now it is becoming necessary for the trolley companies to get rid of those lines where there is not sufficient patronage to make ends meet and to put on busses where it is found necessary in order to properly serve the patrons and keep down expenditures.

In the maintenance of bus lines there may be plenty of upkeep but there is not the heavy overhead which accompanies the operation of trolley lines. Present-day conditions disclose that the maintenance of roadbeds, rails and wires by the trolley companies is not what it used to be. For any group of workmen to be seen reconstructing, leveling or bettering trolley roadbeds these days is most unusual. Cars wobble and twist like the Toonerville line. This is because patronage will not make anything else possible.

Busses do not involve the expense that is connected with the running of trolleys and, while it was thought that city demands would be such as to insure the continuance of this cheap method of transportation, it is becoming apparent that the trolleys are headed the same way the horsecars went. When cities have seen the entire trolley system eliminated it is not surprising that there is a demand for the abandonment of certain runs which do not pay or for the substitution of busses for electrics. It predicts the day when more cities are going to experience similar conditions and when busses will be the succeeding method of transportation for meeting public convenience.

Those who urged the establishment of bus lines a few years ago, instead of the building of new trolley lines or the reconstruction of old, were ahead of their time.

PINCHOT'S CLAIM

Either Secretary Davis of the department of labor was misquoted in relation to statements attributed to him concerning the president's support of the Pennsylvania ticket or else a clever political dodge is being used to create the impression in the Keystone state that the president has departed from his practice and has actually endorsed candidates.

Although it has never been considered that Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania was an enthusiastic supporter of the president, he has declared in a radio address that the president has come out in support of Pinchot. In view of all the circumstances and statements, there is good reason for doubting the correctness of such declaration.

There is the hottest kind of a fight for the governorship in Pennsylvania. Mr. Pinchot has antagonized and lost the support of prominent state republican leaders. He will get no assistance from Philadelphia, but his democratic-liberal opponent is getting the endorsement and support of those who under ordinary circumstances would be working for the republican nominee. They are, in fact, supporting the ticket but not the republican candidate for governor. If Mr. Pinchot can create the impression that the president has endorsed him and wants to see him elected it will give him much needed prestige.

It is possible that he has misunderstood what Secretary Davis said, though the latter's explanation seems perfectly clear and in accord with recognized conditions. It is possible that Mr. Pinchot thinks he can get the president into the political battle by claiming his support. Having taken the position that he cannot give his support to any candidate, such a declaration as Mr. Pinchot made places the president in an embarrassing position. Inasmuch as his policy is not to participate in any political contest, he can do little but keep mum, without having his words used as supporting or opposing the candidates in the fight, although from all indications he has been placed in a false position. The fact that there has been no change in the policy long since established by the president seems to cover the situation, while Mr. Davis' denial that he proclaimed the president to be backing Mr. Pinchot clears it from another angle.

CONNECTICUT'S EXAMPLE

A few days ago the Connecticut highway system and the manner in which it is constructed was highly praised by a group of engineers from other countries who were attending the international road congress and who were touring eastern states to see how roads are built in this country and how highway problems are solved.

President Pack of the American Nature association recently spoke at Princeton about the steps that were being taken to eliminate the automobile junk heaps along the highways, and while he recognized that New Jersey was endeavoring to meet the situation under its new law he complimented and commended the manner in which Connecticut has gone about dealing with this problem. He pointed out the effectiveness of the licensing system and the excellence of the control which that permits.

These are not the first instances where recognition has been given to the wisdom and excellence of Connecticut's method of handling highway problems or the foresight displayed in dealing with conditions which can be seen developing. This state, through its commissioner, has long been endeavoring to get closer cooperation among states and increased uniformity in motor vehicle regulations and laws. It has accomplished much through methods initiated and through joining hands with other commonwealths. It has demonstrated that it is alert to the conditions and it cannot fail to be gratifying to the people of the state, as well as the officials directly involved, when leaders in similar undertakings and those seeking the solution of problems give endorsement to its action.

It is through the study of results gained in the various states that invaluable aid is given to those which are undertaking new legislation and seeking improvements.

MILDRED'S BILL

I declare, the temperature of Mildred Tylor's friendship is as March weather. She was positively sweet to me yesterday, even invited me out to her house for supper last evening.

"I want to tell you about the perfectly marvelous fellow I met last Saturday," she explained.

I never tire of eating at Mildred's house and I never tire of hearing about marvelous young men, and so, of course, I accepted her invitation.

"It's such a thrilling story, I hardly know where to begin," she fluttered on the way home. "You know, daddy's letting me drive the car now, and Saturday afternoon I took it into the country for a little spin."

"It's not so exciting to drive a car," I interrupted. "Everybody drives a car. I'm going to drive ours when we get one."

"Yes, but I went farther than I had intended to go," insisted Mildred, "and, besides, it stopped on a lonely stretch of road. There wasn't a house in view, and I was simply petrified with fright. Finally another machine came along and stopped right behind mine, and a handsome young fellow that looked like a movie hero climbed out of it and asked me if I was having trouble. He wasn't dressed up and his car showed marks of age, but he did not require any trimmings to make one realize that he was genuine, if you know what I mean.

"I knew instantly that he was the kind of fellow that daddy and mother are always talking about, one who possesses intelligence and isn't afraid to use his hands. I think he's probably the son of some wealthy landowner. Anyway, he looked as though he'd just finished chopping down a young forest or doing something vigorous and powerful in the great outdoors, and the minute he spoke to me my last remnant of fear vanished. I told him I was having trouble.

"'I'll see what I can do for you,' he replied. And, what do you think? He got right down on his back in the middle of the road and scooted underneath my car. He certainly didn't mince matters. I imagine he's the sort of fellow who, if he'd fall in love with a girl, would ask her to marry him about the second time he'd see her. Well, anyway, I stood there, dumfounded with admiration and the longer I watched him the more worried I grew for fear the car would start.

"Presently it occurred to me how stupid I must appear saying nothing at all in return for this stranger's chivalry, so I called down to him 'The brake's on. Shall I release it?' But evidently he did not hear me, and so I called again, 'Shall I release the brake, Mr.—Mr.——'

"'Sure,' he called back, 'and my name's Bill. Oh, say,' he shouted a moment later, 'try the starter, will you—Miss—Miss——'

"'My name's Mildred, I answered. I stepped on the starter, the engine took hold, and do you know I felt like weeping because I could fancy my life as suddenly as he had slipped into it, but fate decreed differently. After he crawled out from his slowly place in the dust I endeavored to thank him, but he said not to mention it, that his name was William Hartman, and then he asked my full name and address and wrote it down in a little book he carried in his pocket. No doubt he'll call me up one of these days and ask me for a date.

"Of course he's a stranger, but then there are all sorts of ways of tracing people's antecedents and connections, and I feel sure that mother and daddy will adore him. He's such an up and doing person, and it will be a relief to have a substantial creature like him hanging around the house. I'm getting awfully bored with Jimmy Scott. He seems so ineffectual in comparison with Bill."

"If you're going to discard Jimmy you might give him to me," I suggested.

"You may have him, darling," laughed Mildred gayly.

We were going up the steps to her house then, and her customarily meek little mother met us at the door with fire in her eyes. She thrust an envelope at Mildred, on the outside of which was stamped "Hartman Garage" in enormous letters, and on the inside of which was a bill for $10 accounted to road service.

"So your Bill's a garage bill," I said, and a fit of laughter seized me which nearly rolled me off the porch, but Mildred did not seem to see the joke at all.—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Industrial Fatigue

By J. R. Garner, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Measured from a strictly economical standpoint—a matter of dollars and cents—the most costly human factor entering into the operative maintenance of American industries is found to exist in the presence of fatigue.

A survey of all reported accidents during the past ten years reveals the fact that more injuries are inflicted upon employees in connection with their work just before the noon hour than at any other time during the morning and that just before the closing hour in the afternoon more such injuries arise than at any other period during the entire day. Fatigue is the element properly chargeable with the responsibility for these conditions. This also suggested to the writer the possibilities of clerical errors occuring with a like ratio as regards the time of day at which they are made, and a three-year study of the situation confirms this opinion. If, therefore, fatigue is responsible for such accidental occurences, it may also logically be charged with the responsibility for these errors. Both injuries and errors are costly to industry.

A large manufacturing plant located in a mid-western city and employing more than 1,000 persons, mostly girls, was visited. The management having in mind both the welfare of his employees and the deleterious effect of fatigue upon the matter of production, had instituted ten-minute rest periods during both fore and after noon sessions while in a few departments, where the nature of the work is exceptionally fatiguing, two such rest periods are observed both morning and afternoon.

Finding this employer so vitally interested in the matter of eliminating fatigue, it was surprising to note that he had entirely overlooked the matter of posture—so productive of fatigue and responsible for many human ailments—and the workers occupied chairs and stools of varied types of construction but having absolutely no relativity or conformity to or with the worker's anatomy.

In its last analysis, with reference the worker whose duties are performed while seated, the efficiency of the worker depends upon how he sits, upon the relationship of his stool or chair to his anatomical structure, and lastly, but by no means least, upon whether his stool or chair admits of and is adjusted to him with the same degree of accurateness that is required in the fitting of his clothing or his shoes.

When no consideration is given to the matter of anatomical relationship and adjustment; organic conditions exist that speedily produce fatigue as well as they become etiological factors in the production of permanent disease.

A worker occupying a properly constructed chair which has been thoroughly and competently adjusted will be productive of the greatest efficiency of which he or she is capable, fatigue will be reduced to an absolute minimum, personal injuries and clerical errors will be largely eliminated, while at the close of the day the worker will lay aside his duties without that feeling of complete exhaustion so frequently noted.

The employee will not only find his work less irksome but will note a marked improvement in his physical feelings and the general condition of his health. The employer will find a grateful employee, producing the greatest efficiency of which he is capable and thus representing a distinct financial gain in industrial production.

The matter of posture has been neglected entirely too long and its actual cost to industry is just now beginning to be appreciated. This is one of the leaks which is costing millions of dollars per year but which can be readily eliminated as soon as the industrial heads are brought to realize its importance upon the health of his employees, its ability to increase efficiency and the gains naturally occurring to industry as the result of better seating.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada is an adaptable man. When a political campaign meeting out in the sage brush state in which he was the leading figure ran foul of a circus, he very gracefully gave up politics and led his corps of party spell binders to the circus lot.

Before they were through with it, Oddie was perched on the head of an elephant, riding in the grand parade and neatly combining pleasure and politics.

What better mount could a G. O. P. senator like Oddie wish for than an elephant?

Prospector

Probably this one-time Nebraska cowboy and later trooper of a New Jersey national guard crack cavalry outfit felt completely at home, even on an elephant.

Oddie still is a long-legged, tall, rather slender man at 60, retaining great physical vigor and a liking for out-o'-door exercise. He still looks the western cow waddy type and does a lot of riding while in Washington.

And the Bystander, who served a newspaper apprenticeship in Nevada quite some years ago, can remember the senator as a hustling prospector of the gasoline age, when motor cars began displacing burros for prowling the sage brush deserts in search of gold.

The Oddie brothers were favorites of fortune back when the Tonopah-Goldfield mining boom in southern Nevada was making things hum out there.

By a curious chance both Nevada's senators, Oddie, republican, and Key Pittman, democrat, got their Nevada start in life in the Tonopah boom, only Pittman was a lawyer while Oddie was a miner.

Ticklish Ribs

Oddie's 1930 elephant ride recalls a Fourth of July celebration the Bystander witnessed in Tonopah long ago.

The late John Sparks, Texas reared and last of the cattle baron governors of Nevada, was then in office. He was guest of honor of the bustling mining camp. Also, he was an ex-cowboy and despite his advanced age, insisted on having a horse to ride.

The only suitably dignified mount to be found for him was a big and docile black, one of a pair used to haul the town hearse out to "boot hill."

Governor Sparks, very tall and dignified in long black frock coat, shining silk hat, etc., mounted up to lead the parade down the dusty, hilly street. He wore spurs, unfortunately, and inadvertently tickled the ribs of his horse with them.

The big black blew up. As chief assistant to the town undertaker, he had forgotten all about spurs, if he ever knew. His dignified bearing vanished in a cloud of dust. So did the governor, to land like a ton of bricks.

It was an awful blow to the pride of the old cattle king. He never forgave the cartoonist on a Tonopah paper for poking fun at him.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tribute To Dr. S. H. Howe.

Mr. Editor: While stopping off here for a few weeks on my way from my summer home in northern Michigan to southern Florida I have just learned of the death of Dr. Howe. The grateful memories I have ever since school days in Norwich cherished of the delight it was to me to listen to his preaching impel me now to add my humble testimony and tribute to many others which must have been called forth and sent to you for printing in recent days.

When I first came to dear old New England's "Rose," Dr. Giesy was at Christ church, Dr. Seymour at Trinity, Dr. Chamberlain at Broadway, Dr. Palmer at Second and Dr. Bacon at Park; Senator Foster, Dr. Bond, Dr. Coit, were still living, Mr. Wait, although nearing 80, was just entering on a ten years' creditable career in congress, Mr. Slater was the leading financial giant of the city, Colonel Perkins was still youthful and vigorous at 90 and Dr. Howe was a westerner undreamed of as one destined to become the grand old man of the city. I think it was when attending the funeral of Mr. Slater (out of boyish curiosity) that I first heard Dr. Howe speak and was very much awed by his hushed voice and solemn demeanor, and by the fact that he was conducting the funeral of a millionaire who had given a million dollars away for the education of the Negroes in the south. A millionaire was a rare sight in those days and still rarer was any such rich man who had given to philanthrophy such a vast sum.

While a student at the Academy I attended the funeral in Park church of my dear teacher, Miss Marion Blackmon, when I again listened to the wonderful words that Dr. Howe knew so well how to offer on such occasions. I again heard him in his church when he officiated at the funeral of my neighbor across the street, Frank Johnson—that prince of noblemen, when, in spite of the tremendous rain storm the chruch was unable to accommodate the throng of friends that man had, and no minister could have been found anywhere who was more equal to the difficult requirements of adequately eulogizing such a saintly citizen. Though belonging to the Episcopal church and brought up with the impression in those days that it was not exactly proper to attend a service in a Congregational church or in any other Protestant denomination, I was permitted by my parents to slip up to Park church for their late afternoon vesper service for my own church (Trinity), had no afternoon worship, and so on many Sunday afternoons from 1885 to the time I went away to Amherst, five years later, and when back home for the holiday vacations I improved any opportunity presented of listening to his preaching.

I greatly enjoyed the music by the choir under Mr. Learned's direction, and the playing by that gifted master of the organ, Mr. Kies, but it was the sermons that I heard which were my chief delight. Could one in harking back to those days of from 40 to 50 years ago ever forget boyhood impressions? I recall that tall, slender form of the pastor, his wonderful head of hair not yet turning gray, his modest, almost shy manner on the pulpit platform, his gentle and reverential voice and the impressive solemnity with which he always brought his sermons to the proper conclusion, sermons never sensational, never too long, never undignified or unworthy of his innate refinement, profound scholarship and undoubted spirituality. I have listened to Phillips Brooks, Henry Drummond, William M. Taylor, John Hall, Richard Salter Storrs, George A. Gordon, Dr. Munger, De Witt Talmadge, Dr. Behrends and numerous other eminent preachers of the Gospel, but not one of these great ministers could excell Dr. Howe in superb diction and command of English with which to suitably clothe his thoughts. He was a past master of homeletics and well worth imitating by many a would-be preacher of today, who imagines it obligatory to talk as best he can without notes and work himself into a frenzy of shouting and screaming in order to convince his hearers of his almost unfathomable religious fervor.

In Dr. Howe's departure from the scenes of his phenomenally long and beautiful career as a minister and citizen, I join with the Norwich of today in proud and grateful reflections that such a man lived there and that he could leave behind such sweet and inspiring memories.

America First.

Mr. Editor: The Letter to the Editor in Wednesday's issue of The Bulletin was a catalogue of abusive slang, a display of sarcasm, bigotry and ignorance. The previous one on the same topic, signed by Justice, was not much different. I do not know what it is all about, for I have not paid any attention to the letter to which these writers seem to refer and for which they are anxious to censure you, but I presume that some individual, probably of the same caliber, was airing his private views in this column and aroused the ire of these "champions" and "guardians" of our country's freedom and safety, who at once jumped at the throat of a whole race, stirred up all kind of old political dirt, wrapped it in offensive language and abusive invectives and hurled it in the face of a multitude of decent and peace loving citizens. I question and challenge the right of such self-appointed defenders of foreign opinion and diplomacy to criticize the American government, whether on its war policy or otherwise; or to slander and abuse a nation that has always entertained a friendly feeling towards our country; or abuse a race that has not only given us a great reformed church, but also great men like Schiller and Goethe, a Ranke, a Kirchof, a Koch, a Zahn, a Muhlenberg, a Steuben, and a great number of leaders in the professions and science, not to mention Schumann Heink and other well known masters and creators of good music of recent, as well as of classic days. These and many others were members of a race that has contributed not a little to the greatness of America and that was an innocent bystander during the world conflict of a former decade and gallantly sent its sons into battle against their own flesh and blood, because America called for them.

Now such a race deserves a little consideration, at least in peace time, for it did not receive it in wartime. America is composed of many races, and there is no reason why they should be in conflict with each other—if they all adopt the slogan: America First!

Thank God that the destinies of America do not rest in the hands of cranks and fanatics or there wolud be endless war and internal strife; and we hope, Mr. Editor, that the writers of "recent fame" will not so soon again feel the urge of fighting it out here and use this otherwise so helpful column as a free battle ground for their own political opinions and thereby not only insult a peace loving people, but also abuse your generosity.

Not caring for publicity, neither wishing to be drawn into the controversy, I sign myself as usual,

A READER.

Refighting The War—Praise For Banks

Mr. Editor: "For the love o'Mike," are we going to fight the World war all over again? If so I am enlisting, pronto, I am of English, German and French decent. Can you beat that for a "mixturem getherem"? Any way I feel qualified to speak up in meeting.

Sometimes my French says to my German, "Now, see here Dutchy, it's my turn to have a bite of that apple," then again Johnny Bull comes along and says, "Hey, you two I'm in on this." Well, between them they manage to eat the apple. Then along comes Uncle Sam, bless his old whiskers, and the belligerents (Gee, that nearly stuck in my throat,) look at him scornfully and hand him the core.

Well, any way, I don't go around looking pious and say "Gott mit uns," for I know that in the end right will win. Each nation and the individuals who compose it have many admirable traits that it would do us all good to copy, so why go around with a magnifying glass looking for all the bad traits?

Now I want to speak of a subject that has been in my mind for some time. It is about banks and bankers. I have heard so many rail against them both and I want to say from personal experience, in modern vernacular, (gulp and swallow that one), "You are all wet." One bank in Norwich has been a loyal friend to me several times when I have been in a tight place. Naturally I meet them half way by being prompt in my payments when they are due. Of course one must have property or other good security to do business with the bank otherwise the banks would have to go out of business and that would mean a worse panic than we have had yet.

I have found the bank very fair in all dealings. What little business the bank gets from me doesn't amount to a drop of water in the ocean, but I have been given just as courteous treatment as if I were a millionaire or banker. Make a friend of your bank or banker. You will find them very human. When you have money to invest instead of investing it in some wildcat scheme that promises big dividends (but seldom keeps the promise) consult your banker and be guided by his advice. He knows more about investments than you could ever learn unless you made it a lifetime business. If you want to borrow money and have good security, don't go to a loan shark or a friend. Go to the bank. In speaking of loan sharks I am not referring to the different loan societies for I know nothing about any of them.

I should never think of doing any real business without consulting my lawyer or banker.

Of course you must select a lawyer whom you know is honest. (Oh, yes there are lots of honest lawyers. Norwich is especially blessed with that class of lawyers and bankers.) If I were in Norway or Argentine and had any business to do, and it were possible, I should want my Norwich lawyer or banker to do it for me.

LIKE MAGIC PIMPLES DISAPPEAR

Pittsburgh Man Grateful

One of the many wonderful things about Peterson's Ointment—you don't have to wait long before it accomplishes results.

If you are troubled with pimples on your face and back—just rub on Peterson's Ointment before going to bed—rub it in good—wake up in the morning with your skin already starting to clear.

The mighty healing power of Peterson's rapidly banishes those ugly blemishes and makes you the proud possessor of charming skin beauty.

Mr. Ed. W. King, of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I had pimples all over my face for over a year. I had used other Ointments but they did no good. It was not until I tried Peterson's that I found the way to end pimples."

Pimples have disappeard in 24 hrs. when Peterson's Ointment was rubbed well into the skin—one 35 cent box will prove it—all drugstores.

CEREMONY IN GREECE AT THURBER PAVILION DEDICATION

A detailed account of the dedication of Thurber Memorial Pavilion in Athens, Greece, has just been received from overseas by Miss Katherine Reynolds, Connecticut representative of Near East foundation. Miss Reynolds is organizing a Connecticut "Thurber fund" to continue the work so admirably built up by Christopher Carson Thurber, a native of Norwich, who died in Athens last June.

According to the cabled dispatch, the event was impressive and testified to the gratitude of the Greek government and people for the heroic personal work of Mr. Thurber as the director of Near East foundation's activities.

"A remarkable ceremony took place in the Zappeon," the dispatch read. "Among those present were the American minister, Robert Skinner; five cabinet ministers, the Archbishop of Athens, and many others socially and politically prominent. The Thurber Memorial Pavilion was accepted by Premier Venizelos for the Greek ministry of health. The presentation was made by Dr. James L. Barton, vice-president of Near East foundation. In his address, Dr. Barton declared that the opening of the Thurber Memorial Pavilion for the tuberculous children of Greece marked the end of American orphanage relief and the beginning of Near East foundation's new constructive projects among rural peoples in the Near East. A message of thanks was sent to the American people by Premier Venizelos.

"The Zappeon, where the ceremony took place, was for many years one of the orphanage centers. When the children first began to pour into Athens from Asia Minor, the government turned over the Zappeon, a famous exposition hall, to the Americans, with other public buildings. It is one of the most beautiful examples of Greek architecture. It was Mr. Thurber's headquarters when he first began his work among the orphans.

"This work grew with the needs of the children. At the time of his death, several working boys' homes were filled to capacity, night schools for boys and girls were operating with crowded classes; a deaf-mute school, the first in Greece, was taking care of a group of these handicapped orphans; the old people, destitute refugees whose sons were sacrificed to war, were established in little homes. This last achievement was one of Mr. Thurber's pet projects. The tragedy of life for the old and infirm who had none to care for them, had always moved him deeply. Through his own efforts, he secured a special fund and had little houses of one or two rooms put up here and there in the refugee camps. Each house was named after the person whose gifts built it. As soon as a dwelling was completed Mr. Thurber installed one of his neediest old people in it and either through subsidy or occasional work, helped to provide for daily needs. There are now 20 of these little homes. Many more are needed to keep needy and lonely old people from starving in the streets."

A large and generous offering was raised for this "Thurber fund" at the memorial service held in Christ church on Wednesday evening, Oct. 8. Further contributions may be sent to Miss Katherine Reynolds, Near East foundation, 161 Fifth avenue, New York city.

One patient, Martha Piasczyr, of 280 Mt. Pleasant street, was discharged at the Backus hospital on Wednesday.

BUILDING NEEDS AT STATE HOSPITAL SHOWN IN SUPT. BURDSALL'S REPORT

The need of $1,762,384 for maintenance for 2,600 patients for two years and various needs in buildings at Norwich State hospital are pointed out in the bi-ennial report of Supt. E. S. Burdsall, which was submitted to the quarterly meeting of the trustees at the hospital on Tuesday.

Among the building needs mentioned are the following: ward for 150 tuberculosis patients, ward and equipment for 150 patients, home and equipment for 75 male employes, buildings to replace inebriate farm buildings, and two cottages for assistant physicians.

In part Supt. Burdsall's report is as follows:

The admission rate at the Norwich state hospital approximates 70 to 90 patients a month. The relative frequency of the various types of psychoses is as follow: 1929, senile dementia 10 per cent, general paralysis 7.8 per cent, toxic psychoses 14 per cent, manic depressive psychoses 11.6 per cent, dementia pareco. 14.7 per cent, other psychoses including melancholia, epilepsy with psychosis, paranoid condition and psychoneurosis 27 per cent, without psychosis 5.4 per cent; 1930, senile dementia 10.6 per cent, general paralysis 7.3 per cent, toxic psychoses 12 per cent, manic depressive 13.2 per cent, dementia praecox 25 per cent, other psychoses including melancholia, epilepsy with psychosis, paranoid condition and psychoneurosis 26.5 per cent, without psychoses 5.4 per cent.

Recovery rate in most of the state hospitals today with our modern methods of treatment has risen to a much more promising percentage and I feel there is still a greater future for the state hospital in bringing about recovery than ever before and certainly with the mental hygiene movement enforced and the cooperation received from lay people mental abnormality can be reduced very decidedly. Ten years ago the recovery rate in the state hospitals amounted to about 25 per cent. Today it is estimated at 30 to 35 per cent. In some institutions an even greater percentage rate is claimed. I would say, conservatively, that approximately 31 per cent of our cases recover and as many as 40 per cent improve sufficiently to again return to their homes.

The number of inmates in 1929 was 2393, 1215 male and 1178 female. In 1930 2511, 1275 male, 1236 female.

Of the inebriate department the report says:

At least $150,000 should be appropriated to replace the buildings at the inebriate farm. The present buildings are dilapidated, unsanitary and overcrowded and are not fire-resistive. It is almost impossible to keep the inebriate class in these buildings. I find it becomes necessary to receive all the inebriates suffering acutely at our psychopathic ward and administer treatment there before sending them to the inebriate farm. Because of the overcrowded condition many of the inebriates never reach the inebriate farm and must necessarily be treated and given custodial care in the main group of buildings. Inmates in 1929 numbered 121 and in 1930, 1,927.

Overcrowded Condition

Overcrowding is a matter that we must consider seriously and remedy if possible. One building to accommodate 150 patients will relieve this condition to some extent. The S. A. building is occupied by male employees. The male side of center hospital is reserved for isolation cases and class room work. The total inmate capacity on the male side before S. A. building and center hospital were taken over by employees and for isolation of acute contagious cases, was 1280. The total capacity of S. A. and the male side of center hospital —1280 less 65, leaves a capacity of 1215 for male patients.

N. A. building 3 and 4 with an accommodation of 25 persons, is now occupied by female employees. N. A. 1

SCOUTLEADERS HEAR ADDRESS OF RURAL SCOUTING CHIEF

At the second session Wednesday evening of a training course for scoutmasters and assistants, O. H. Benson, director of rural scouting of the Boy Scouts of America, gave a talk on the educational objectives of scouting and answered the questions of the scoutleaders concerning the problems of boys.

Mr. Benson pointed out that there were four ages in a boy's life worthy of noting carefully: The "knee" age, the "me" age, the "we" age, and the "she" age. With many apt illustrations taken from a life filled with experience in every state in the union, Mr. Benson gave the men present a very clear picture of some of the objectives to strive for in dealing with boys. Some of the things he stressed were: Helping the boy find his life work, filling the boy's leisure with something worth while, and encouraging him not to live above his income.

He told how he had observed Charles Lindberg as a boy in Washington totally engrossed in the workings of machinery. He told of his experiences in interviewing 318 men sentenced to the electric chair or to be hung or to life imprisonment and of how every one of these men declared that they would have no boy ever follow in their footsteps if they could prevent it. He showed how most of the crime in this country starts during the adolescent age.

Mr. Benson placed the challenge before the men of finding boys in the rural districts around Norwich and of encouraging them to become Lone Scouts and to organize farm and home patrols.

Following the talk refreshments were served and a round table discussion was held. Among those present were: A. L. Peale, Jean Keiffer, Walter Weidman, John Boldrighini, Lloyd Rathbun, Bob Burke, Art Collins, H. Downer Johnson, Charles Gilbert, Herman Stelzner, A. W. Silverberg, Simon Mullins, William M. Wyman and John Sellman.

The next meeting of the course will be held on November 5, with Harold Williams, one of the best known scout men in the United States present. Mr. Williams will go into the methods of carrying on a Boy Scout troop. Men interested in enrolling in the course should apply at the Boy Scout headquarters at room 304, Thayer building.

SHOULD LOOK OUT FOR YOUTHS' LEISURE TIME

Speaking before the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel, O. H. Benson, national director of rural Boy Scout work, called special attention to the increase of leisure time, which has an important bearing upon the future of our youth and creates a problem which adults should seriously consider.

The problem of unemployment, said Mr. Benson, is one for local and national attention and it is the duty of the wealthy to co-operate with the government to create possible productive employment. And while we have the problem of unemployment for adults we must not forget that our young people have more leisure time and we must find ways to turn that into character building and the right sort of training in preparation for life.

THRIFT CLUB SUES DAIRY CO. PRESIDENT

Samuel Zarbarsky, president of the New London and Mohegan Dairies, is made a defendant in a suit being brought by the United Thrift club of that city, according to notice of an attachment on property in Montauk avenue filed for record at the city hall in New London Wednesday. The suit is for $2,500 damages and the property has been attached for $4,000.

The Thrift club claims that Nov. 20, 1929, Zarbarsky gave his note to the plaintiff for $3,000, and agreed to pay $60 a week and that the note was endorsed by Philip Koss and Harry Koss of East Lyme, who are named as co-defendants. A balance of $2,376 is claimed to be due.

Attended Lutheran Convention

Rev. Carl Storek has returned from Cambridge, Mass., where he attended a convention of the Lutheran New England conference which was in session Monday and Tuesday. The sessions were at Brattle hall at Harvard which is being used for public worship and social activities for the students by the Lutheran University church of Cambridge, affiliated with the New England conference and the United Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York.

An inspection tour of Harvard and adjacent college buildings was made after the sessions closed. The sessions were presided over by the conference president Rev. B. Mehrtens of New Haven.

WOODLOTS OFFER MEANS TO HELP UNEMPLOYMENT

In a statement made by J. A. Gibbs extension forester of Storrs Agricultural college, he says:

"The solution of the unemployment problem is at present one of the major issues in many of our industrial centers. A great many ways and means are being attempted and a great many more suggested for the solution of the problem. Not only forestry organizations but also private foresters, particularly farm foresters, are doing their bit in assisting unemployed mill workers and others in getting a chance to work. The Connecticut Forest and Park association and state forestry department conducted a forest work camp during August and September where quite a number of men were employed in cutting out fire lines, cleaning out woods roads, and in doing other forestry work.

"And now the farmers are giving men out of work a chance to go into their woodlots and cut wood. David Y. Clark of Bristol has had several men working in his woodlots cutting wood on shares. Their cutting includes thinning out young hardwood stands, clearing out patches of grey birch and other wood trees, and in cutting out dead chestnut for fence posts. Thus an opportunity was afforded these unemployed men of securing a winter supply of wood for practically no money outlay and it was affording Mr. Clark an opportunity of getting his woodlands improved at no cost whatsoever. It requires very little time for Mr. Clark to designate the trees that he wants cut and to supervise the work.

"Here is an example of a depressing economic condition bringing about a fine case of mutual helpfulness. It is hoped that many farmers and other woodland owners will in this manner afford the fellows who are out of a job a chance to chop during the coming winter months."

TESSONE IS SURRENDERED TO NORWICH POLICE

Andrew Tessone, 21, of Westerly, wanted in this city in connection with the theft of an auto, was surrendered Wednesday to the local authorities by the New London police. He was brought here by State Police Officer Clarence Hoxie and held for trial in the city court this (Thursday) morning.

Tessone was arrested in New London several nights ago when his suspicious actions there on Water St. attracted the attention of a police officer. When a long paper knife was found on his person he was booked on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. This charge, however, was nolled in the New London police court Wednesday morning so that the youth could be turned over to the Norwich police.

Suspicion that he might have been implicated in recent New London burglaries was aroused when, following his arrest, it was learned that he had been arrested in Westerly for automobile theft and on suspicion of having perpetrated several burglaries. In checking up on the youth, Detective Sergeant Nelson S. Smith and Patrolman Murphy of New London learned that the car he was driving at the time he was arrested by the later, had been stolen from a Norwich garage Sept. 20. Tessone admitted, it is said, under questioning, that he knew the car had been stolen but insisted that he was not the one who took it.

GROTON TO HAVE NEW STATE POLICE BARRACKS

A new state police barracks is to be constructed at Groton at a cost of $37,000. An item to cover this appropriation has been included in the state budget, according to a statement made by Finance Commissioner Edward F. Hall, following a meeting of the budget committee of the state board of finance and control at the state capitol in Hartford. The money was asked by the state police department and the legislature, which convenes in January, will be asked to make the appropriation.

If the money is forthcoming the present barracks on Thames street, Groton, near the state highway bridge approach will be razed and replaced by the new building. The Spicer property was purchased by the state a year ago when it was found necessary to transfer the detail of troopers from the old barracks on the Eastern Point road.

Slight improvements were made to teh old Spicer homestead and the troopers have been using the house as a temporary barracks. The building, however, is wholly inadequate to their needs, and inasmuch as the department officials have not been able to find a place that would meet all of the demands it has now been decided to build a new barracks.

WITHDRAWAL OF TWO DAMAGE SUITS HALTS COURT TRIAL

Having been settled out of court, two suits for $30,000 brought by Edwin W. Staplins of Waterford against his son, Theodore R. Staplins of West Haven have been withdrawn from the docket of the superior court. The case was partially tried Oct. 14 in New London and was continued until Wednesday. The jury impaneled to hear the suit was discharged when court convened Wednesday morning. Court then adjourned until Friday morning.

The plaintiff sought $15,000 damages for injuries he received and $15,000 damages for the death of his wife as the result of an automobile accident near Burlington, Vt., a year ago last September when the car, operated by the defendant, left the road and went down an embankment.

THIRD EXTRA DIVIDEND BY C. F. NOYES COMPANY

Charles F. Noyes Co., Inc., of New York city, has declared the third consecutive extra dividend to its common stockholders, payable on Nov. 1. Col. M. S. Keene, treasurer of the company, issued the following statement: "Our directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum on the $1,000,000 of preferred stock and the regular 45c per share dividend on the 120,000 shares of outstanding common stock, plus an extra dividend of 5c a share on the common stock, all payable on Nov. 1. The preferred stock dividend is the 18th consecutive dividend paid by the company. The extra dividend on the common stock is the third consecutive extra dividend that has been paid. Common stock dividends were inaugurated by the company on Aug. 1, 1929, after the organization had redeemed and retired $1,400,000 of preferred stock, reducing outstanding preferred stock from $2,400,000 to $1,000,000. The fiscal year of the company is from May 1 to April 30 and the last six months of the year are always the best. Irrespective of this condition, the company has earned in the first five months of its present fiscal year, after allowance for federal and state taxes, group insurance and cooperative fund, its dividend plus extras on the ratio of 150 per cent."

MAYOR ROBBINS COMMENDS NORWICH SUNDAY PAPER PLAN

Cordial commendation of the announcement of the coming publication of the Norwich Sunday Record by The Bulletin company, commencing Sunday, Nov. 2, is given by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in a statement made Wednesday.

The Norwich mayor said:

"What better evidence that Norwich is progressing could one desire than the announcement by the Bulletin company of a Sunday newspaper?

"How many places our size can brag of this, a Sunday paper, all their own? The confidence in this community shown by these enterprising newspapermen, that Norwich has attained a growth sufficiently large to support a Sunday edition, is thrilling to say the least. It makes one conscious of size not heretofore felt. It is metropolitan, reassuring, invigorating, a challenge to be accepted."

Promptly upon the recent announcement that Norwich was to have a Sunday paper, Rev. Thomas F. Lynch, pastor of St. John's church at Montville, telephoned in an order to put him down as a subscriber, thus being the first out of town subscriber for The Norwich Sunday Record, which will be eastern Connecticut's first Sunday newspaper.

CORMIER IN JAIL TO AWAIT FURTHER HEARING

Held for trial on Nov. 5, on a charge of manslaughter, Edward J. Cormier, 38, of Hartford, was taken to jail Wednesday to await the hearing, as he was unable to post bonds of $2,500. He is charged with being the driver of an Essex automobile which turned over on Washington street, after hitting a pole near Harland's corner, killing Philip Cormier, 41, of Framingham, Mass. The accident occurred about 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning when the men were on the way to attend the funeral of Richard L. Cormier, 15, who was killed last Saturday in an automobile accident at Northfield, Vt. The dead man, Philip Cormier, was an uncle of the Cormier boy and the accused is a cousin of the boy.

Both men were taken to the W. W. Backus hospital where Philip Cormier died at 3:25 o'clock in the afternoon. Edward J. Cormier, who escaped with cuts, was arrested at the hospital on a charge of drunken driving. After Philip Cormier's death, the manslaughter charge was placed against him.

It is said there was a third man, a New Britain man, in the machine at the time of the accident.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE AGAINST DANIELSON MAN

At the Wednesday morning session of the city court, Lucien Comtois of No. 38 1-2 Water street, Danielson, was presented on a charge of manslaughter. Pending the finding of Coroner Edward G. McKay in the case, the hearing was continued until Nov. 12, this being the second continuance. Accused is at liberty under bonds of $2,500.

Mr. Comtois was the driver of a machine which was involved in a fatal accident at Taftville, Sept. 25. As the result of the accident, Lucien E. Comtois of No. 122 Main street, Danielson, was instantly killed and Leon Comtois of No. 45 Morin avenue, Danielson, died the following day. Mrs. Yvonne Sylvester of No. 34 Merchants avenue was badly injured and is still a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital.

WEST SIDE PINOCHLE'S SECOND NIGHT OF PLAY

As the result of play Wednesday evening in the West Side Pinochle club tournament, Dr. N. B. Lewis retained first place in the tourney standing. Schuler moved up from third place to second place, J. Jordan dropping back to fourth position from second place. The scores Wednesday evening:

Bailey, 7,345; Boynton, 7,200; Parker, 7,185; Schuler, 6,960; Lewis, 6,855; McNaught, 6,775; Ellsworth, 6,770; A. Jordan, 5,350.

The standing to date:

Lewis, 21,940; Schuler, 20,660; Parker, 20,390; J. Jordan, 20,120; Peckham, 19,905; McNaught, 19,510; A. Jordan, 19,455; Bailey, 19,270; Pettis, 18,720; Ellsworth, 18,590; Boynton, 18,520; Underwood, 18,395.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY WORKERS DISCUSS THEIR PROSPECTS

A get-together meeting of democratic party workers was held Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel. It was one of a series of county meetings held under the auspices of the state central committee. Similar meetings had previously been held in Litchfield, Tolland, Windham and Middlesex counties. The gathering of over 40 men and women included members of the state central committee in this section, town committees, registrars of voters and other prominent party workers.

Joseph Tone of New Haven, secretary of the democratic state central committee, presided at the gathering, and the evening's programme was preceded by a chicken dinner. Reports on the party activities throughout the county were heard and campaign literature, posters, etc., were distributed.

Among those present were Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, chairman of the local town committee; A. T. Miner of New London, candidate for congress William T. Fox of New London, candidate for secretary of state; Albert F. Hewitt of Groton, candidate for state senator, and William J. Fitzgerald of this city, candidate for election as state senator from this district.

FOOD SCIENTISTS RECOMMEND EATING IN MID-AFTERNOON

Experiments Show That Sugar in Food or Beverages Overcomes Fatigue

Modern business invariably makes its greatest demands on workers during the latter part of the afternoon. Yet that is just the time of the working day when vitality is the lowest.

Recent scientific investigations have proved that this mid-afternoon fatigue can be quickly overcome by eating sweet cakes, a few pieces of candy, a dish of ice cream or the drinking of a sweet beverage. A glass of water sweetened with sugar will revive one in an amazing way.

The reason for this lies in the quick digestibility of refined sugar. There are few food products that nourish the body so speedily. And when the system is nourished, fatigue is noticeably decreased.

With practically no loss of time, and very little expense, a mid-afternoon snack can be enjoyed. Dispensers of sweet drinks and confectionery are within the reach of all. As a matter of fact, a few pieces of candy or sugar can be conveniently kept in one's desk and eaten when tired. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

OLD FEUD BETWEEN VIC DARR AND AL KOZIOL TO BE SETTLED FRIDAY

Not since the Al Koziol-Johnny Kop bout of several years ago has interest mounted to such a pitch in boxing circles as it has at the present time over the Al Koziol-Vic Darr bout which is to be staged as the final of an all-star card at Parish hall in Taftville on Friday evening. And in fact, the feud between Darr and Koziol dates from that very night.

It will be remembered that several years ago when Koziol, Johnny Kop and Vic Darr were just coming into prominence as amateur boxers there was a great bally-hoo about the relative merits of Koziol and Kop. Finally these two youngsters were brought together in the main attraction at Duwell field and the bout lasted less than a minute. Koziol popped out of his corner, sidled over to Kop's corner and before Kop knew what it was all about Koziol had knocked him flatter than a postage stamp. Kop never had a chance. The quick knockout of Kop so enraged Darr, who was a pal of Kop's that Darr went to Koziol's dressing room and was going to take a poke at him but those in the dressing room prevented.

Since that day there has been bad blood between Darr and Koziol although it has not been manifest of late. Frequent attempts were made to get Koziol and Darr together but until now there has been a decided difference in weights. Darr has been boxing at 142 pounds and Koziol at 133 but since his layoff Koziol has graduated to the heavier division and the bout was promptly made.

Just what the outcome of the bout will be is uncertain, but it can be depended upon that it will be a grudge fight if there ever was one. Darr has waited long for this opportunity and swears he's going to make the most of it. Koziol, on the other hand, is silent, saying that he will decide the issue in the ring and not on the street corners.

The city is divided into two factions on this bout. The Darr supporters point with pride to their favorite's one round knockout over Julio Rossi and his excellent showing against Ero Peterson. They also claim that Darr is fighting at his accustomed weight while Koziol is experimenting in a heavier class and may be much slower than when he weighed 135. The Koziol backers are countering with the argument that if Koziol could knock out the best of them at 135 pounds he certainly will be more dangerous with seven or eight more pounds of weight. They also combat the showing of Darr against Peterson with the claim that Koziol showed just as well against Peterson as Darr, if not better. Both were beaten to a decision by the Worcester boy.

Both Koziol and Darr have been training hard for their tilt on Friday evening and will taper off today with only light work. Both look fast and both hit terrifically hard, Darr using a straight left and right while Koziol is perfecting the chop that piled up his knockout record.

DOLE MAKES CHANGES IN HIS AGGIE SQUAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 22—The Connecticut Aggie football team has undergone a considerable shake-up this week because of injured players. The vacancy which was left by Kolb who was injured last Saturday is being filled by John Sternberg, a sophomore tackle. Sternberg was a regular on last year's freshman team and has been used to a large extent this season.

Pinky McCombe, star halfback, has been on the sidelines so far this week because of a knee injury he received in the Trinity game. His position has been filled by Franklin Pierce of West Hartford. The frist-string backfield now consists of Pierce, and Captain Murphy as halfback, French as quarterback, and Harger as fullback. Dr. Riordan of Willimantic will make an examination of McCombe's knee tonight to determine how soon he can rejoin the team.

Although Ken Juringuis played well at end last Saturday, he will be supplanted in the game with Tufts here this Saturday by John Eddy because of the latter's passing ability.

This afternoon's practice consisted of a long dummy scrimmage followed by a short scrimmage between teams B and C.

TWO PROMISING YEARLINGS WIN THEIR FIRST RACES

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Graduating from maiden ranks on separate tracks but on the same day, Mrs. Charles Amory's War and Mrs. Mary L. Crawford's Follow Thru, most expensive of yearlings to go on the 1929 Saratoga auction block, today gave first evidence of at least partially living up to the faith placed in them as untried sons of great sires.

War, a son of the famous Man o' War, went to Mrs. Amory for $45,000 while Follow Thru, get of the almost as equally famous Epinard cost $36,000. Today's victory netted each owner only $1,000 but the two promising colts made the best showing they have displayed in their short and disappointing careers on the turf.

Mrs. Amory had sent War to the post three times before today's race at Laurel but two seconds and a fourth was the best he could do. Follow Thru, named after the Broadway stage success, faced the barrier four times before his winning effort at Jamaica, finishing out of the money once and third on the three other occasions.

Despite their frequent reverses both of the highly bred colts were the favorites. War paid $5.30 for a $2 mutuel ticket while Follow Thru was held at the prohibitive odds of 2 to 5 by the Jamaica oralists.

SHYMA TEAM TO HAVE FAST PASKETBALL TEAM

The Shyma club of Taftville has announced that it will put one of the fastest basketball teams on the floor this season that has ever represented Taftville. Pat Sullivan has been appointed manager again this season and he reports that he will have in his array of basket tossers Rabbit Gauthier, Mondi Normandin, Lefty Dugas, Tommy Lynch, Les Pingree and Pete Finn and possibly a number of other well known players. The Shymas expect to open the season about the middle of November with some fast club in the state.

SPORT WIRES BANNED AT CLEMSON-SO. CAROLINA TILT

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 22—(AP)—With a storm of newspaper protests against a ban on running accounts of the game drawing almost as much interest at the contest itself, Clemson and South Carolina were ready tonight for their annual fair grounds engagement at Columbia, S. C., tomorrow.

Athletic officials from the two schools announced today that no running accounts of the game could be sent from the field tomorrow. The ban, first covering radio broadcasts only, was extended to press association and commercial wires. It drew immediate protest from newspapers of the state. The officials said the ban was ordered because the play by play report might hurt attendance at future games. A capacity crowd is already assured for tomorrow's game.

Palmetto state fans look upon this game—one of the oldest in the south and the 27th between Clemson and South Carolina since 1896—as the season's climax. A victory means a successful year for either team.

Dr. Ralph K. Foster, director of student affairs at the University, informed the Associated Press of the changed decision, after numerous protests had been filed with Governor Richards, officials of the institutions and the respective athletic organizations.

The athletic committee said this morning radio broadcasting would not be permitted. Later, W. D. Barnett, a member, informed the Associated Press only one telegraph wire would be allowed to enter the field, and it would be limited to the transmission of scores by periods until after the end of the game.

Closely following these announcements came protests from newspaper publishers. T. R. Waring, publisher of the Charleston Evening Post and the Charleston News and Courier asked the governor to intervene.

Governor Richards immediately said he favored news reporting and broadcasting the game and conferred with Dr. D. M. Douglas, president of the University of South Carolina. Dr. Douglas, in agreement with the governor and characterizing the action of the committee as "unwise", said he would advise a change in decision.

The committee had based its ban on the contention news play-by-play and broadcast accounts of the game might cause a reduction in attendance at the contest. All seats have been sold.

URUGUAY TO SEND SOCCER TEAM TO U. S.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 22—(AP)—Uruguay, champion nation of the world in soccer football, will send a team to the United States this winter.

Peru also will be included in the itinerary of the Bellavista football club which is to leave here Dec. 3 for Lima, and play several games there and then go to the United States to meet leading American aggregations. The tour was authorized today by the Uruguayan Football association.

Among the Bellavista players is Nassazzi, captain of the Uruguayan team that won the world championship tournament here this summer and a veteran of Uruguay's Olympic championship combinations. Other Olympic stars on the team are Scarone, Andrade, Iriarte, Castro, Ballesteros, Mascheroni and Riolfo.

When a Uruguayan national soccer team toured the United States in 1927 thetrip was marred by free-for-all fights and rioting. A police riot squad was needed to end a melee on March 27, 1927, at Newark, N. J., after the hot-headed Scarone struck a Newark player and the fight became general.

Two women and two Boston players were hurt in a riot at a game between Uruguay and Boston at Malden, Mass., April 19, 1927. Officials said the trouble started when Scarone struck an opponent and 2,000 bleacherites rushed onto the field.

Andrade and Castro also were members of the invading team of three years ago.

HARVARD TEAM WORKS WELL AGAINST GREEN PLAYS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Harvard varsity football team had its first taste of Dartmouth's kind of game today with Captain Ben Ticknor looking on. The Crimson leader, nursing a minor injury, stood on the sidelines and watched his Crimson varsity teammates enjoy fair success against Dartmouth formations in a dummy scrimmage with the second varsity.

Head Coach Arnold Horween, with the sole exception of Ticknor, was able to put his regulars together for the first time since the opening week of practice. Ticknor, however, will be able to practice tomorrow.

Barry Wood ran the Crimson varsity at quarterback and the rest of the backfield comprised Mays and Crickard, alternating at left half, Devens at right half and White at fullback. All of the Crimson's first string forwards, with Gildea playing at center, were in action.

After beating back the Dartmouth formation, Horween sent the varsity, through a long signal drill to perfect new running plays for the undefeated Green team, which will pay its annual visit to the stadium this week end.

BROMBERG MAY NOT BE ABLE TO PLAY SATURDAY

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Dartmouth varsity football game suffered a heavy loss today when Guy Bromberg, star guard was sent to the college hospital suffering from a heavy cold. Head Coach Jackson Cannell was uncertain whether Bromberg, who has been one of the bulwarks of the Indians' defense for the past two seasons, would be in condition to play against Harvard on Saturday.

Though the game with the Crimson is but two days away few of Cannell's players could practice today because of examinations. Cannell's work with his depleted varsity squad was confined to such fundamentals as blocking, catching, punts and kicking.

With Sonny Foley and Red Porter on the injured list, Cannell devoted much time on Bob Sumner and Jack Whitcomb, fourth and fifth team backs, who will probably have to act as substitutes for right halfback, Ward Donner, in the Crimson game.

CANADIAN BETTING SHOWS $7,000,000 DECREASE IN 1930

OTTAWA, Oct. 22—(AP)—Betting at Canadian race tracks in 1930 fell far below the level of 1929 according to figures released today. During the 332 days of racing this year, the total amount wagered was only $38,007,146 compared with $45,580,845 during 335 days of racing in 1929. The decrease was $7,573,699 or 17 per cent.

"COW COLLEGE" WINS NATIONA GRID FAME

ELMER SCHWARTZ
MELVIN HEIN
CARL ELLINGSEN

Washington State college has pulled the most startling upset of the football season by licking California university and University of Southern California on successive Saturdays. Much of the team's power is supplied by Elmer "The Great" Schwartz, fullback; Carl "Tuffy" Ellingsen, triple threat back, and Melvin Hein, center.

PULLMAN, Wash.—(AP)—A little "cow college" out on the Palouse wheat fields of eastern Washington has risen to national football fame overnight.

Coached by a man who never attended college nor played big time football, the Washington State college Cougars threw a bombshell into the 1930 Pacific coast conference grid race when they conquered the University of California eleven and the highly touted Southern California team on successive Saturdays.

O. E. "Babe" Hollingbery, a San Francisco gasoline dealer during the summer months and a football mentor in winter, led his little band of warriors into Berkeley, Calif., October 4 and trounced the California Bears in a big upset, 16 to 0.

Then the Cougers rushed back home to Pullman to protect a unique record of not having lost a single grid game on their own field in five years.

The margin was close but it was victory and it sent 20,000 eastern Washington fans home in a dizzy whirl wondering how it all happened. The score was 7 to 6 with the now famous one-point jinx still haunting Coach Howard Jones of the Trojans.

And the Cougar victory knocks the Sons of Troy clear out of the Pacific coast conference and national championship picture for this year.

In conquering U. S. C., Hollingbery just about assured his school of at least one All-American this year.

Melvin Hein, crafty center, is the man most apt to get the call for the coveted honor. Hollingbery considered his center an All-American last year and rates him even still greater this season.

Hein is a deadly passer, a most powerful man on defense and an all-around star on the line. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds.

It was Hein who caused the Trojans to miss the all-important try-for-point. He worried the Trojan center, Williamson, so much that the latter made a bad pass.

Then Hein led a burst through the U. S. C. line that smothered the play before Baker, place-kicking guard, had time to boot the ball.

Two other mighty players on the Cougar eleven are Carl "Tuffy" Ellingsen, halfback, and Elmer "The Great" Schwartz, fullback. It was Ellingsen's long spiral punts and wicked passing and Schwartz's terrific line plunges that sent the "Thundering Herd" down to defeat.

Schwartz was All-Pacific coast fullback and leading scorer of the Pacific coast conference last season.

One of the remarkable features of the game was the fact that Hollingbery used only 14 men against the great southern California squad. He substituted two ends and a halfback.

The University of Washington, coached by Jimmy Phelan, winner of the Big Ten championship at Purdue last year, is virtually the only obstacle now to stand in the Cougars' way for the coast championship.

YALE MAY HAVE NEW BACKFIELD AGAINST ARMY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22—(AP)—Coach Mal Stevens scrambled his Yale backfield today, leading the casual observer to believe that an entirely new combination may take the field against Army Saturday.

Crowley and Dunn, who started against Brown with Albie Booth last week, were placed in a backfield with Ted Parker, a fullback converted into a halfback, and Pat Sullivan, quarterback on last year's freshmen team, called signals.

Booth had Austen, Taylor and Muhlfeld in his group.

McLennan and Heim, quarterbacks, it developed today are not in as good condition as had been hoped and it is doubtful if either will see service against the cadets. And that's the reason, it is believed, that Parker, who shone last year as a freshman fullback, was made over into a halfback and Sullivan was given a trial.

The practice today consisted entirely of dummy scrimmage with Stevens using a makeshift line. Substitutes were frequent, but Captain Vincent and a few other regulars, who have been hurt, were not used. Stevens devoted a good portion of his time to giving quarterbacks lessons in strategy.

The Army team will arrive at Choate school, Wallingford, tomorrow night and will practice in the bowl Friday.

GLENDALE $2,500 OPEN HAS BEEN CALLED OFF

GLENDALE, Cal., Oct. 22—(AP)—The Junior Chamber of Commerce $2,500 open golf tournament was cancelled today because of the requests of the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Bureau in Chicago for ten per cent of the prize money.

The action followed the cancelling of the Long Beach Junior Chamber of commerce $3,500 annual tournament several days ago and the refusal of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce to comply with the tournament bureau request that $1,000 of the annual $10,000 open championship purse be paid to it.

Fearing that the bureau would attempt to dictate who would appear at their tournaments was expressed by both Long Beach and Glendale. Those handling the Catalina $7,500 tournament, said it would operate as last year, paying the winners in full and leaving it optional with them if they wanted to return ten per cent over to the P. G. A. Possibility that the Pasadena $4,000 tourney would be dropped because of the developments also loomed.

Daniels-Risko Tonight

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Dick Daniels, promising St. Paul heavyweight, will be thoroughly tested here tomorrow night when he swaps blows with old Jawn Risko, the Cleveland trial horse of the heavyweight division, in the Boston Garden's ten round feature bout.

Eastern Football Briefs

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22—(AP)—Pitt's football team went against a drill that lasted until after dark today, scrimmaging against a freshman team equipped with Notre Dame plays. Coach Jock Sutherland was not pleased with the results and ordered another long session tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Chick Meehan sprang a surprise today as he prepared the New York University team for the Fordham game. He sent Al Gudet, veteran back who has not seen service as a regular this year, into the varsity backfield in place of Bill McNamara and left him there through 40 minutes of a long scrimmage.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 22—(AP)—Two more injuries cropped up on the Lafayette team today as the Leopards prepared for their game with Washington and Jefferson at Atlantic City Saturday night. Pivorotti, end and Tellier, quarterback, were forced to the sidelines by hurts received in the Penn State game.

WEST POINT N. Y., Oct. 22—(AP)—Defensive work marked Army's preparations for the Yale game today with a team of scrubs and plebes attacking in the brief scrimmage. Machine work and kicking drill took up most of the time. It was learned today that Hillsinger will not be able to play at right guard, leaving a bad hole to be filled in the line.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 22—(AP)—Navy's hopes for a victory over Princeton rose today as a revamped team scored five touchdowns against the plebes. Bauer, Kirn, Tschirgi and Hagberg formed the backfield while Steffanides and Greathouse were at the ends.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 22—(AP)—The playing of George Bogar at quarterback in today's scrimmage against Rider college practically assured him to start against Navy Saturday. Bogar ran back a punt 60 yards for the longest run of the day.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 22—(AP)—The air route to victory over Penn State was indicated by today's practice for the Colgate team. Long forward passes received a large share of the attention.

STRIBLING-CHRISTNER BOUT AT NEWARK TONIGHT

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 22—(AP)—Young Bill Stribling, heavyweight ace of the southland, will swing back into action here tomorrow night for the first time since his spectacular knockouts over Otto Von Porat in Chicago and Phil Scott in London. The Macon youth is scheduled to go ten rounds with K. O. Christner, iron puddler from Akron, Ohio.

Christner has slipped backward since he flared into fame a couple of years ago and fought Jack Sharkey to a standstill in Madison Square Garden. Recently he was listed among the knockout victims of Primo Carnera but he still retains considerable walloping powers in his right hand and ability to stand up under punishment.

Stribling, considered by many experts the outstanding American challenger for the heavyweight title, is in fine condition and is expected to have little trouble with the former iron worker. Stribling is a prohibitive favorite with an early knockout expected.

If Madison Square Garden plans materialize, Stribling's bout with Christner will be one of his last until the curtain rises on another heavyweight spectacle in Miami, Fla., this winter. The Garden hopes to stage a match between Stribling and Jack Sharkey in the south if business conditions improve.

Y Seniors Practice Tonight.

The Y Seniors' basketball team will hold their first practice of the season this evening at the Y gym, at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement Wednesday by Coach J. Howard Demarest. The Seniors are starting out with much new material this year and it is desired that all prospective candidates put in an appearance so as to get away on the right foot.

The Seniors' plan to open their season about the third week of next month.

"BIG ED" WALSH GUEST OF WILLIMANTIC ELKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22.—"Big Ed" Walsh, former Chicago White Sox star pitcher and present coach, delivered an address on baseball and the things that make for a successful baseball career, at the annual supper tendered by the athletic committee of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, to its Boys Baseball team at the Blue Lantern inn, South Coventry, this evening. Big Ed, who is a member of the Meriden lodge of Elks and proved to be a tremendous attraction, was accompanied on his visit here by his son, Ed Walsh, Jr., now a pitcher on the White Sox team. Thirteen members of the Boy's team were entertained tonight the team being proud of its season's success with 12 games won and five lost. Exalted Ruler George W. Hickey welcomed the former baseball iron man, his son and the team and the steak supper was served. Members of the athletic committee who were heard in remarks were George B. Parker, chairman, Thomas A. Callaghan, coach at Windham high, Roy W. Downer. Other members of the committee are Frank Gelinas, Thomas Murray and Joseph Bergeron. At the conclusion of his talk Big Ed autographed a baseball which was drawn by Frank E. Fay, of the team. Awards of five passes to the Capitol theatre given through the courtesy of Manager John R. Pickett, were made to the following: Malcolm Southerlin, most home runs; William Monreau, most base steals; William Anthony, most hits. The $5 gold award offered by Exalted Ruler Hickey for the outstanding player of the team was awarded to Joseph Makara, third baseman, on a vote of his fellow teamsmen. In addition to these awards each player received a mounted photograph of the team and will also receive a sweater, the latter not having been given tonight owing to delay in transit.

MRS. HURD WINS MEDAL IN PEBBLE BEACH TOURNEY

DEL MONTE, Cal., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Haverford, Pa., who won her first golf championship in 1909, scored an 81 at Pebble Beach today to win medal honors in the first day's play of a three-day series of invitational tournaments on the Monterey peninsula.

Miss Glenna Collett, United States women's champion, putted less brilliantly than usual and finished with 40-42—82 to tie for second with Miss Helen Hicks, Inwood, N. Y.

Tomorrow the Dunes links at Monterey Peninsula Country club will be the scene of action. Cypress Point will be played Friday. Then the feminine stars will leave for Stanford university and San Francisco.

Other scores included:

Miss Hermine Wocker, Burlingame, Cal., 86.
Miss Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., 88.
Mrs. Harley Higbie, Detroit, 88.

Oswald Takes Lead

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Harry Oswald of Pittsburgh defeated George Kelly of Philadelphia tonight to lead in the third block of the six-match round robin series of the southern division in the eastern section of the world's pocket billiard championship.

Oswald will meet Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia tomorrow night in what is expected to be the feature contest of the tourney.

ONLY TWO STYLES OF FOOTBALL NOW PLAYED, SAYS CHICK MEEHAN

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The great game of intercollegiate football has dwindled down to two styles of play, two sets of strategy, and there it is going to stay until the last pigskin is booted and the final whistle blown. You can take this on the word of John (Chick) Meehan, head coach of the New York University Violets.

Chick—short, powerful and dynamic—is a forceful leader. He was a grand quarterback at Syracuse, coached there with success, and hit his real stride when he took over the blushing Violets in 1925. Since then Meehan's Violets have turned into snap dragons, winning 39 games, losing 9 and tying 3.

"Football," remarked Chick on the authority of this background, "has come down to the Notre Dame system on one side—The balanced line, shifting backs—and the Warner system on the other—unbalanced line, wing backs. With but three exceptions, every offense in the country is based on one of these two plans.

"Knute Rockne has put deception, lateral passes, thrusts, speed into his attack. Warner into the unbalanced line has moulded power, fakes, guile, double and triple passes. Now show me any system and I'll prove to you it's derivative of one or the other," he challenged.

Yale was suggested.

"Yale is Warner," said Chick, "Unbalanced line, haven't they? Backs in 'Z' formation? Nothing to it."

"The Rockne system," Chick continued, "requires acrobats for players. They must be clever, have poise. Warner builds on power and drive. Those are the fundamentals of the two systems. For myself I'm following Warner. Army is doing it this season. Last year they were Rockne.

"Strangely enough," Chick went on, "the west coast as a whole runs to the Notre Dame system, the east coast goes for Warner, the south to Rockne. The midwest jealous of Knute probably won't copy Rockne so they follow Warner. However, Winsconsin, Northwestern and Purdue in the big ten are playing Rockne football."

Bob Zuppke, at Illinois, Amos Alonzo Stagg, at Chicago, and Fielding Yost, athletic director at Michigan are the three men whose football styles defy classification in either the Rockne or the Warner lists in Meehan's opinion.

"Zuppke uses all styles and says he starts where the others leave off," Chick announced with a grin. "Stagg is beginning to talk about 'flank movements' and is losing plenty of games. Yost goes back to the kick formation, old as football itself."

BOB SEYMOUR NOSES OUT FIELD IN OVERCOAT EVENT

HARTFORD, Oct. 22—(AP)—Darkey Grattan and Allied Pluto, outclassed their fields in the 1930 "overcoat" meeting races at Sage Park in Windsor today, the former easily outpacing seven rivals in the 2:14 class event and the latter three times leading the bunch to the wire for easy triumphs in the 2:12 class trot. Bob Seymour, after finishing fourth in each of the first and second trials of the 2:08 pacing event, came back to win the third by a head over Mordkin and outstepped Neil Brooke and Hunter Hedgewood in a hot brush in the home stretch to take the extra heat and the race. The "overcoat" program concluded with the races today.

BROWN AND GIRONES FIGHT TO A DRAW

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 22—(AP)—"Panama" Al Brown, lanky negro who is recognized in parts of America as world's featherweight champion, and Jose Girones, Spanish featherweight title holder, fought ten rounds to a draw in the bull ring tonight. No title was at stake.

Thirty thousand cheering fans witnessed the bout and booed Referee Breinstenn's decision, believing Girones had won by a slight margin. The Spaniard was by far more effective at close-in fighting and the fans believed this was enough to gain him the victory. Brown's long range offense and his weaving tactics made him a difficult target, Girones often missing his blows.

In the second round, Brown opened a gash over the Spaniard's right eye, bringing a flow of blood that almost blinded Girones. In the eighth Girones drove the Negro to the ropes with a savage body attack that had the fans shouting for a knockout but Brown danced out of danger. There were no knockdowns.

STRIBBLING TO BOX AT BOSTON THIS MONTH

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Young Stribling, Atlanta heavyweight, will clash with either Al Friedman or Con O'Kelley, here on October 1, according to Eddie Mack, Boston boxing promoter. The latter has had the southern battler under contract for the past week and intended to pit him against Jack Gagnon, of Boston, until the French Canadian injured his hand here last night during his vigorous battle with O'Kelley. Mack said that he had offered O'Kelley a bout with Stribling but would award it to Friedman if the Irishman failed to come to an agreement within 24 hours.

Army Harriers Win

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 22—(AP)—Army opened its cross country running season today by defeating Alfred by the close margin of 27 to 28. Hughes of Alfred, was individual winner, covering the new five-mile course in the fast time of 25:50 1-5.

ROSENBLOOM STOPS BAIN IN THE ELEVENTH ROUND

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, champion of all the light-heavyweights, cuffed an unqualified young man from Newark, N. J., named Abie Bain, into a technical knockout tonight in the 11th round of one of the poorest title matches ever staged here.

Although the battle was scheduled for 15 rounds, many of the 4,400 customers who contributed at the gate had gone elsewhere by the time Maxie cut the left eye of the outclassed youngster so badly that Referee Lou Magnolia was forced to halt the bout. There had been no knockdowns. The 11th round lasted one minute 47 seconds.

In all the 11 rounds, Bain, hitherto a middleweight who has done most of his gladiating in New Jersey, managed to win only one, the second, when he hurt the champion with body clouts. The remainder of the time Abie was a target for Maxie's unorthodox slapping, poking and cuffing. The attack of the titleholder baffled him and he held and wrestled as often as he could.

Rosenbloom, in none too good condition and apparently lacking his usual ambition, toyed with Bain, riddling his face with left jabs, swinging an overhand right slap to the face, and generally making life miserable for a youngster who had an almost total lack of idea as to what to do under the circumstances. Early in the third round Maxie started a trickle of blood from Abie's left eye and though he did not concentrate unduly on the optic, the cut gradually widened.

In the 11th round, with Bain a sorry figure staggering around the ring, bleeding from the mouth and nose as well as the eyelid, Maxie tossed an overhand right that tore open the wound and started a stream down Abie's face. Referee Lou Magnolia took one look at the gash and called a halt while what was left of the $12,000 worth of customers sent up a feeble cheer.

Bain protested vigorously that he could continue and attempted to get away from his handlers and carry on the one-sided fracas in private if necessary. He received his chance to fight for the crown due to the shifting of dates at the Garden and the lack of any other men to oppose Rosenbloom for the championship.

Only in the third round, when Maxie Rosenbloom bumped into a couple of lefts and rights to the body that stung did the New Jersey youngster appear to have any right in the same ring with the titleholder. Rosenbloom slashed him almost at will thereafter cutting him about the face until the only element of doubt left was Bain's ability to stand up for the full 11 rounds.

Rosenbloom, rather plump around the middle, weighed 174 1-2 pounds Bain scaled 171 1-2.

The Preliminaries

Bob Olin, New York light-heavyweight, spoiled the eastern debut of Willard Dix, of Bellingham, Wash., tonight, winning the decision after ten rough and tumble rounds of hard fighting. Dix was floored for nine counts in the fourth and ninth rounds Olin was knocked down for nine in the fourth. Olin weighed 174, Dix 173.

Pete Sanstol, blonde Norwegian bantamweight, and Joe Scalfaro, of New York, fought ten fast rounds to a draw in another ten-round preliminary to the Rosenbloom-Bain light-heavyweight title bout. There were no knockdowns. Sanstol weighed 116 1-2, Scalfaro 120.

Petey Hayes, 119, New York, won the decision over Mauro De Los Reyes, Philippine Islands, in the opening four-rounder.

THREE CLOSELY BUNCHED FOR TRAP SHOOTING HONORS

D. T. Walden of Guilford, E. H. Raymond of Danbury and F. O. Williams of New Haven are running a neck and neck race for the high average trapshooting title of Connecticut for the year 1930, according to a preliminary report just issued from the permanent home of the Amateur Trapshooting Association at Vandalia, Ohio.

Present indications are that the title will not be settled by these three shooters until the official averages are completed in December. Only those shooters who have shot at 1,000 or more registered targets are eligible for the title.

At the present time Walden is in the lead with .9622 on 1650 targets. This is quite an improvement in his shooting as last year he had .9440 on 750 clays.

E. H. Raymond, who is in second place with an average of .9592 on 1250 targets won the state singles title with 194 out of 200 and has been shooting consistently throughout the year. Raymond won the high average title last year and may come through for a repeat if he can continue his present stride.

F. O. (Fred) Williams, runner-up last year, can't be counted out of the race at present. He has an average of 9520 on 2025 targets. He won the handicap title at the state meeting and shot well at the recent Grand American Handicap tournament.

The following shooters can't be counted out of the race and many of them may improve their averages before December:

	Shot At	Broke	Aver

FIRE LOSS ABOUT $6,000 AT BERBA DAIRY FARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Oct. 22.— Fire of undetermined origin did an estimated damage of six thousand dollars when the large house and dairy barn on the Williams' pond road, owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Berba, burned to the ground about 3:15 Wednesday morning. The furniture in the house was a total loss. Mr. Berba succeeded in removing his large herd of cows from the blazing barn, but his two horses, over fifteen tons of hay, a quantity of grain and various farm implements were destroyed by the flames.

The fire started in the barn and had spread to the rear of the house nearby when Mr. Berba was awakened by the house filling with smoke. He at once hastened to the home of Julius Sultan, about a half mile distant, to get help. Mr. Sultan notified Chief Harold Brown of the local fire department, who responded with the engine and squad of men and although they reached the scene in record time, the buildings were practically burned down when the help arrived. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered and Mr. Berba, who was alone in the house, consumed considerable time in running for help to the nearest telephone at the Sultan home. Mrs. Berba and her children were visiting relatives in New Haven. District Forest Fire Warden John M. Riley and Deputy Warden Elmer H. Foote, with a gang of helpers, were on duty for several hours to make sure that the flying sparks would not set fire to the dry leaves in the nearby woods.

The place is known to older residents as the George Kramer farm. The house, said to have been in good condition, was built over thirty years ago and the large barn was erected a few years later. It is understood the loss is only partially covered by insurance.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE HEARS MISS S. F. GLEATON

The Colchester league of Women voters held a largely attended open meeting at Day hall, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker. Miss Abby G. Willard submitted some interesting committee reports after which Miss Sally Fannie Gleaton of Middletown, field secretary of the Connecticut league addressed the gathering. She spoke in a forceful and interesting way regarding the aims of the league, gave many helpful suggestions for the benefit of the local organization and complimented Colchester members on the fine work accomplished the past year. Mrs. Albert T. Van Cleve played a pleasing piano solo, after which Mrs. Joseph Dember sang accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Van Cleve. W. B. Gerhardt played a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. William O. Seyms. Cake, doughnuts and soda were served. The efficient committee in charge of the program included Miss Abby G. Villard, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch, Misses Rachel Slopak, Nettie Cohen, Dora Levine, Sarah Berman and Rose Strick.

Oliver Woodhouse lodge, No. 51, Knights of Pythias, held a well attended meeting in Pythian hall Tuesday evening.

William Tynan and Harold Gray, of Hebron, and J. A. Hall of Marlborough, visited friends here Wednesday.

Await Sunday Bulletin

Much interest is manifested by local people in the news that commencing November 2 there is to be a Sunday edition of The Bulletin.

State Policeman Clarence R. Hoxie of Groton barracks visited Tuesday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Swan Rathbun.

More Cider Than Water

Local farmers report an unusually big crop of apples. One enterprising farmer, a short distance south of the village, is selling hand-picked Baldwins at thirty-five cents a bushel. The several cider mills about the town report a brisk business. Cider is more plentiful than water in this vicinity since the prolonged dry spell.

Joseph Weinstein was in Hartford Monday.

Colchester evening school opened Monday evening at Bacon academy, with Misses Rachel Slopak and Rachel Himmelstein in charge. Twenty-two pupils were in attendance and more are expected to enroll during the next few days. Sessions commence at 7 p. m. and are held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings of each week. All who wish to learn to read, write and speak the English language are privileged to enroll. There is no charge.

The Gardige family at 38 Pleasant street is quarantined for chicken pox.

The J. J. O'Connor residence on the Norwich road is being renovated and painted.

Miss Kate Kissel has returned after several weeks' visit with New York relatives.

E. W. Raymond and Clarkson F. Bailey of Hebron, and Harold Darling of Salem visited friends here Tuesday.

Mercury readings as low as eighteen degrees were reported at several points about the village early Tuesday morning.

Bacon academy track team is to meet the fast Bulkeley high school harriers of New London on the local course, this (Thursday) afternoon.

Schools are to close Friday that the teachers can attend the state teachers' convention.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Charles Natsch has gone to Brooklyn to visit her new grandchild, son of Mr. and Mrs. Halsey Natsch.

Mrs. Dwight Lyman and Miss Lillian Lyman are spending a few days in Elizabeth, N. J., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lyman.

Miss Harriet Fuller left Wednesday for Attleboro Falls, Mass., where she will be the guest of Miss Helen Porter.

Miss Bertha Buell is recovering from a severe attack of intestinal grip. There have been several cases in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman and two children of West Somerville, Mass., are guests of Mrs. Sherman's sister, Mrs. Mellinger, at the parsonage.

Won Prize For Club

Word has been received that Misses Adella Badge and Eleanor LaBonte, who represented the local 4-H club in a sewing contest at Stafford fair, have received the prize, which is a Singer sewing machine, for the use of the club which they represented.

There were eleven present at the missionary meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Florence Badge. The subject for discussion was Africa, and Mrs. Badge gave a talk on the recent golden jubilee at Angola, which is of special interest to Columbia residents as it is the station where the Wains are stationed. Mr. Wain was a much loved pastor here for two years. Extracts from recent letters from Mrs. Wain were read. It was voted to hold a meeting and pack a missionary barrel next Wednesday at the chapel, to be sent to some school in the south serving the mountain whites.

SOMERS

The Ladies' Aid society served a chicken pie supper to 260 persons at Piedmont hall, last Thursday evening. The profit was approximately $185.

The Connecticut Federation of Churches is asking all pastors of churches to preach on the subject, "The Enforcement of Law—a Moral Issue," November second.

The Ladies' Aid society is to send a missionary barrel to Pleasant Hill academy next week.

Miss E. Louise Patten, who has spent the past summer with Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Gager, is now in Enfield, the guest of Mrs. Norman Allen.

Schools in town were closed Wednesday as there was an all-day teachers' institute at the Kibbe Fuller school.

Mrs. George Purdy of Willimantic was a recent guest of Miss Mabelle B. Avery.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wiers have moved to a cottage of B. C. Fuller's o.. the Ellington Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Bassett have move from Ellington Road to a house of Misses Davis, on Main street.

Mrs. Edwin T. Jones and children have returned to the parsonage, after a visit with Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. Katherine Leonard in Old Tappan, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Leigh Herr's young daughter, Marjory, is recovering from a severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Valerous Kibbe and family were entertained recently at the home of Mr. Kibbe's sister in Springfield.

HEBRON

Rev. John W. Deeter, pastor of the Congregational church, Hebron and Gilead, preached Sunday on the Value and Virtue of Christ in Christian Living. The children's story was The Legend of the Dipper. The scripture lesson read was Luke IX 43-62.

Eight members of Hebron C. E. society met in the chapel of the Congregational church. The leader, H. Clinton Porter, was unable to be present. The topic was Christians and Sunday. The society voted to take the Christian Endeavor World and another paper for the year.

October 26, the Tri-County C. E. Union will meet in Marlborough, this being the October meeting of Columbia, Colchester, Hebron, Westchester, Gilead and Marlborough C. E. societies. A pageant will be given.

The subject discussed Sunday in Miss Mildred Hough's Sunday school class was The Wisdom of God's Plan. The pupils who knew their lesson the best and were most attentive in class were: Sherwood and Lillian Griffing, Dorothy Gray, William Robinson. Mrs. Della P. Hills played the organ for the church services and Mary E. Cummings for Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Horton and children, John, Robert, and Elizabeth were dinner guests, Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Linde and family of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Bosly of New Britain and Edward A. Raymond and daughter, Miss Ruth Raymond, were dinner guests Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kibbe.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kibbe attended Stafford fair.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kibbe were in Hartford, Manchester and Willimantic on business Thursday.

Edward A. Raymond is having his house wired for electricity.

Miss Florence Bogue and a friend, Harry G. Drummund from Hartford were callers of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wight, Thursday.

Miss Helen E. Gilbert of Bridgeport was home over the week end.

Miss Clarissa Lord, of Storrs college, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett G. Lord.

Miss Victoria Hilding and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert W. Hilding, were in Willimantic, Monday, to attend the Capitol theatre.

BUILDING NEEDS AT STATE HOSPITAL

and 2, with a capacity of 25, will undoubtedly have to be occupied by employees if a building for help is not erected. The female side of center hospital, with a capacity of 15, now used by isolation cases, and the central portion for class room work by nurses and attendants, totals space for 65 patients, less capacity of 65, gives us an inmate capacity on the female side of 1130.

You will observe that our B buildings for male and female patients are over-crowded; and our D buildings for male and female patients are crowded to twice their capacity, and some of the other wards contain more patients than was originally intended.

Requirements

Among some of the requirements listed from July 1, 1931 to June 30, 1933 are:

Maintenance—2600 patients at $6.50 per weeks; 2 years—$1,762,384.00.

At the present rate of admission of approximately 108 patients per month, I feel quite sure that we will have 2700 patients before the expiration of 1938 and I may be obliged to ask for additional money to cover maintenance.

Ward building for 150 TB. patients to replace present TB. building—$190,000.000.

"Every precaution seems to be taken by the people in charge against fire; but this number of people, mentally and physically ill and of a highly excitable disposition, being confined in a building of this type is accompanied by considerable risk. This is the opinion of your committee and we suggest that the state authorities be informed and a request made for a new fire-proof building."

Ward building and equipment to accommodate 150 male patients to prevent overcrowding, basement to be excavated and equipped for occupational therapy, $25,000—$200,000.00.

Home and equipment for 75 male employees—$150,000.00.

At present our help is scattered: some are roomin- in the laundry building, on the wards, in the attics and other places that are not homelike. My object in asking for this building is to give employees better quarters and to obtain a better ratio of employees to patients. In order to give the patients better treatment and compete with present day standards, it is necessary that we have more attendant help on our wards.

To replace buildings at the inebriate farm—$150,000.00.

Present buildings are dilapidated, unsanitary, overcrowded and are not fire-resistive.

Cottages (2) for assistant physicians who are married and likely to have families—$40,000.00.

Two houses, one for the construction engineer and one for the purchasing agent, should be built some time in the near future. The construction engineer lives away from the plant and the purchasing agent lives in quarters that could be used as a hospital for sick employees.

Surgery

Major and minor surgery has been performed by local physicians as well as by the physicians on the staff. Dr. John A. Callahan has been in charge of the sterilization work, assisted by a local physician and the physicians on the staff. Dr. James J. Donohue has been called in consultation for major surgery and has given his services on numerous occasions free of charge. He has also assisted Dr. Callahan with the sterilization operations when it was necessary for Dr. Callahan to call for assistance.

Social Service Department

The social service work for the past two years has been in charge of Mrs. Catherine C. Williams and Grace E. Church who resigned March 16, 1929. Her place was filled by Marion Socket on May 29, 1929, who r[illegible]ned July 15, 1929. The vacancy caused by the resignation of this last person will be filled.

Two social service workers seem to be able to take care of our work quite satisfactorily. The mails, as well as the social workers, being relied on as a medium of communication between the hospital and the relatives of the patients. Questionnaires are sent out by mail and the data is obtained shortly after, this method aiding materially in working up the case within a reasonable length of time after the patient is admitted. When a patient is paroled, relatives keep the superintendent advised of the progress of the patient by letter and through our social service system.

The social supervision and adjustment of the paroled and clinic patients is becoming more effective each year. This department acting in the capacity of a confidant, tends to develop an understanding and appreciation of the efforts of the hospital to rehabilitate its patients not only in a physical and mental way, but social as well.

A human understanding of conditions, conveyed to the patient, tends to develop a confidence in our hospital and a desire to utilize its many beneficial agencies in his or her fight for permanent improvement.

Careful supervision and personal contact permits the recommendation of medical, financial, social and moral aid as necessity arises.

Discussion of psychiatric problems with relatives or friends of the patient results in a closer cooperation between them and the hospital and develops an understanding and interest in the patient of material benefit to him.

Report of Chef

The main kitchen personnel consists of the chef, second cooks, one night cook, one relief cook, five assistant cooks, and two bakers. It is quite important that we have a general renovation in the main kitchen, scullery, pasteurizing and vegetable rooms, and the butcher shop in order to do good [illegible] and keep clean. The efforts of the superintendent to make this department sanitary and attractive are much appreciated. During the biennial period the following was prepared, pickled and served to employes and patients: 54 barrels (12,600 pounds) sauerkraut; 22 barrels (5,760 pounds) sour pickles; 2,800 tins tomatoes (No 10 size); 180 gallons spiced peppers; 2 barrels spiced green tomatoes; 5 barrels tomato relish; 7 barrels piccalilli; 2,000 tins string beans (No. 10 size); 800 tins green peas (No. 10 size); 3 barrels pickled onions. Deserts, from time to time, have consisted of bananas, apples, oranges and watermelon. In addition, relatives make a deposit and fruit, candy and ice cream is purchased and served with the meals at different times.

Trustees' Report

During the biennial period Henry H Gallup passed away and his loss is greatly regretted. His membership was of decided advantage to the institution. We regret to say that Mr. Charles B. Pinney has resigned. Mr. William G. Park of Norwich was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Gallup and Mr. James Sheppard, Jr., was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Pinney.

The trustees have been advised that the hospital will require $1,762,384 for maintenance for the 2600 patients for the next two years. This is based on a per capita cost of $6.50 per week for 2600 patients.

A fireproof building for 150 tubercular patients should be built to replace the present pavilion. The request has been made at the suggestion of the visiting committee for the month of May, 1930. "Every precaution seems to be taken by the people in charge against fire; but this number of people, mentally and physically ill and of a highly excitable disposition, being confined in a building of this type is accompanied by considerable risk. This is the opinion of your committee and we suggest that the state authorities be informed and a request made for a new fireproof building."

We should have another ward building similar to our South K to accommodate 150 patients and to some extent prevent overcrowding, the basement to be excavated and equipped for occupational therapy. present our help is scattered: some are rooming in the laundry building on the wards, in the attics and other

It will be necessary for us to have a home for 75 male attendants. At places that are not homelike. The object in asking for this building is to give the employes better quarters and to obtain a better ratio of employes to patients. In order to give the patients better treatment and complete with present day standards it is necessary that we have more attendant help on our wards.

The congregate dining hall has been equipped with metal tables and chairs and will now seat 700 patients.

At the tubercular pavilion a four-inch main has been replaced by a six-inch main, a sprinkling system has been installed throughout the building, lightning rods have been erected and three fire escapes built, two from the second story and one from the first floor, underbrush about the premises has been cut down, the building painted outside, and everything has been done to make it modern and less of a fire hazard an desirable for patients, although it is still believed to be a fire menace.

The coal handling machinery has been installed, a Babcock and Wilcox boiler and stoker added to our power house and a new sidetrack laid.

The psychopathic ward, tubercular pavilion and staff house have been equipped with electric ranges.

Guards have been placed on the windows of the psychopathic ward, South C, North C, South K, North H and the tubercular pavilion at a cost of $5,880.

One wing has been added to the old cow barn and the two original wings have been renovated and modernized The barn is now ventilated by electric fans and automatic drinking cups have been installed for the cows. A new herd of 112 Holstein cows has been purchased. We are raising 30 calves and expect to have a dairy of 120 cows giving approximately 1400 to 1600 quarts of milk daily. The former herd has been disposed of through the commissioner of domestic animals

There has been built a new hog house of concrete blocks, modern in every respect, to accommodate 100 hogs. The old hog pen has been renovated and made sanitary for raising pigs. Two good breeds, the Berkshire and the Duroc Red, will undoubtedly give us a creditable stock of hogs within a very short time so far as breed and numbers are concerned.

Two incubators have been added to the poultry plant and a creditable showing made.

Most of the buildings in the institution have been completely renovated to the extent of sanding and varnishing the floors, painting the walls, varnishing window sash, window casings and doors inside, and windows and door casings exposed to the weather outside painted.

The ice boxes under the main kitchen adjoining the butcher shop and opposite the store room have been renovated, and are now in a sanitary condition.

Bituminous roads containing 6,581,063 ft. were built through the grounds during the summer of 1929. A concrete walk 1829 feet long by 4 feet, 5 inches wide and containing 5980.5 square feet, has been built along the Military highway in front of the buildings from the entrance to the psychopathic ward to the assistant superintendent's house near the cemetery, and a concrete walk 297 feet by 6 inches constructed from the Military highway to the administration building. This walk contains 1782 square feet.

The sewage disposal plant and retaining wall have been built. The sewage plant is now in operation and Mr. Warren Scott reports as follows: "Plant is in good condition and has been receiving excellent supervision. The buildings are clean and well ventilated, machinery is well painted and greased. Sedimentation tank has been functioning fine, grounds around the plant are being continually improved, grass has been planted around the main buildings and on top of the sedimentation tank."

About thirty dry wells have been built about the grounds in the lower places to assist in the drainage of excessive water. The wells, which are approximately six feet deep, have been encircled by stone and covered by a concrete slab which contains an 18-inch square opening, protected by a bar-grating.

The laundry building, carpenter shop and machine shop and elevators have been inspected and the recommendations requested for safety appliances have been complied with.

A grandstand has been built this spring to acommodate 350 persons.

Many of our lawns have been graded and seeded and we have planted 16 Scotch pine trees, 24 Japanese Red pine trees and 21 European Larch, and four full grown red cedars.

The requirements for the years 1931 to 1933 will be found in tabulated form in the superintendent's report. We hope sincerely that the legislature will grant our request.

WATERFOWL HATCH REDUCED 50 PER CENT BY DROUGHT

The waterfowl of the country this year find themselves figuratively between the devil and the deep sea—only most sportsmen are not devils and the birds have been hard pressed to find enough water to meet their requirements.

Game protectors of the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture have made careful observations in some of the states worst hit by this year's drought and their reports, together with others that have come from Canadian provinces to Paul G. Redington, chief of the bureau, are to the effect that many of the sloughs, ponds, small lakes, and even larger bodies of water are at the lowest level known for years, and that some of the best waterfowl lakes are dry.

Shortage of water and other conditions have cut the hatch of the gamefowl species 50 per cent below that of last year, according to estimates made by certain Canadian observers, and last year's hatch in Canada was far below normal. As a result, the waterfowl of both Canada and the United States are facing a serious situation.

It has been reported to the biological survey that many of the large duck clubs are pumping or preparing to pump water into their lakes from larger bodies of water, and that state game departments are transferring fish from one point to another or pumping water into the smaller streams.

Furthermore, the government has reduced the bag limit on waterfowl for the individual hunter to 15 ducks and 4 geese a day and has prescribed a possession limit of two days' bag. This should help—but there is still cause for apprehension. For example, local observers who see plenty of wild fowl in their localities may think that there are plenty in all other localities. This conclusion, according to officials of the biological survey, would very likely be wrong. They point out that reduced water in many states may concentrate the birds in places where there is water. Most hunters are interested in maintaining the game-bird supply, and Mr. Redington has made an urgent appeal to the sportsmen of the country to recognize the situation now menacing the waterfowl and to be governed thereby in taking ducks and geese during the present season.

TIME OF HARVEST BIG FACTOR IN PEACH CANNING QUALITY

Peach canners in the east are faced with the problem of getting the fruits ripened on the tree but harvested before they are too soft to hold their texture, scientists of the U. S. department of agriculture have observed.

Charles W. Culpepper and Dr. Joseph S. Caldwell, who conducted the department's studies, found that varieties of peaches grown in the east soften so rapidly in ripening that individual peaches remain in ideal canning condition for not more than 24 to 72 hours. Prior to this they are lacking in flavor and color; later they are so soft that they break down in the canning process. Peaches should be canned on the day picked unless cold storage is available, the scientists found. If picked at the proper canning stage some varieties can be kept at 32 degrees for from two weeks to a month in fairly good condition, but this is not advised because the flavor deteriorates.

When a peach is removed from the tree before it is soft-ripe, it never attains the rich flavor characteristic of the variety at its best. Flavor improves during the ripening process, the scientists found, partly as the result of a progressive increase in sugars and a decerase in acidity and astringency, partly by progressive formation of flavoring substances, and partly by the solution of the middle layer of the cell wall so that the contents of the cells come in closer contact with the tongue.

The J. H. Hale is the best of the several varieties studied in respect to size, shape, color, texture of flesh, rate of softening during ripening, and retention of form during processing. Elberta ranks second. But both are somewhat deficient in flavor. Yellow Hiley makes a product of distinctive flavor, but is too irregular in shape and too soft. Early Rose makes an attractive product of good dessert quality but is too small. Belle is generally superior to the other white-fleshed varieties in flavor, but its tendency to soften in processing—although not worse than some other in this respect—makes it necessary to pack the fruits carefully. Hiley is somewhat deficient in flavor and is small and soft. These same deficiencies are so pronounced in the Arp that it has no canning possibilities. Carman is the least satisfactory of all the varieties studied by reason of its habit of ripening unevenly on the two sides and its excessive softening in processing.

SAYS NEW ENGLAND FARMS PRODUCE MORE THAN EVER

That New England is not losing her agriculture to the west, as might be inferred from the announcement on decrease of farms by the 1930 census bureau, was declared by W. L. Slate, director of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station.

A loss of 19.7 per cent of New England farms in the last decade was shown in an enumeration of the bureau. This is the largest decrease for any section of the United States. Connecticut herself has 5,174 fewer farms than she had in 1920, or 22.8 per cent less.

"This might seem to indicate the decadence of farming in this state," Mr. Slate said, "but it does not. As a matter of fact, the value of Connecticut farm products today is about $60,000,000 yearly, as compared with $18,000,000 in 1880, when the old extensive type of agriculture in this state was at its greatest development. If the value of the dollar is corrected to that of 50 years ago the present production is still twice what it was then."

Mr. Slate pointed out that before the Revolutionary war the abandonment of Connecticut farms began. Settlers cleared land, only to find it forest soil or otherwise unprofitable for crops, and deserted it for more fertile fields elsewhere.

"This change in the number of fields cultivated is a good thing," Mr. Slate said. "It demands fewer and better farms and farmers. Land abandonment is an economic adjustment to soil and topographic conditions, not a step backward. If men could make a good living on the farms that are now being deserted, the land would never be used for anything else. Intensive agriculture is practiced on the fields that are left and it makes more money than was ever made in the 'good old days.' Not only do we produce more to the acre; it is of better quality.

"How does it happen that the Connecticut farming output grows larger as the number of farms decreases? First, because better soils have been selected, and second because agricultural science has brought new methods and new materials to the farmer. He knows more about applying fertilizer. He breeds improved livestock and poultry and he can choose between strains of corn, vegetables and fruit that produce more at less labor than those of 50 years ago. Plant diseases and insect pests don't take the toll they used to take for the farmer has better weapons with which to fight them."

FEED VALUE OF ALFALFA HAY SHOWN BY U. S. STANDARDS

The value of standards in marketing alfalfa hay is in proportion to their correlation with the feeding value and their adaptability as a common language for handlers of hay. The U. S. alfalfa standards provide practical specifications for the fundamental characteristics of leafiness, color, foreign material and soundness, which denote the approximate feed value and the consumer's idea of quality as reflected in market prices.

The offical U. S. standards reflect the feeding value of alfalfa according to results of research at agricultural experiment stations in important alfalfa producing states. These studies idicate that late cutting, improper curing and careless preparation of hay for market are the most common causes of low-grade hay and of the relatively low prices received for it.

The most essential characteristics of high-grade alfalfa are a high percentage of clinging leaves, green color, freedom from foreign material and soundness. Alfalfa hay possessing these characteristics is always in demand and commands premium prices. Low grade alfalfa hay is subject to sharp price discounts and is usually a drug on the market because of a limited demand.

The grading factors of the U. S. standards, in the order of their importance, are leafiness, color, and foreign material. Leafiness is the most important grading factor as two-thirds to three-fourths of the protein of the plant is in the leaves, which contain only two-elevenths of the crude fiber. A low percentage of leaves indicates a low percentage of protein and is usually associated with a poor type of hay. Color is an important grading factor because undamaged color is usually associated with palatability, laxative properties and vitamins and other delicate food nutrients. Foreign material such as weeds, stubble and decayed rakings does not have recognized feeding value and is waste.

The U. S. standards for alfalfa hay consist of numerical grades, U. S. No. 1, U. S. No. 2, and U. S. No. 3, based on definite leafiness, color and foreign material requirements. U. S. No. 1 Alfalfa must contain not less than 40 per cent of leaves by weight, not less than 60 per cent of the green color of field-cured hay, and not to exceed 5 per cent of foreign material, or waste. Hay must also be sound and sweet to meet the requirements of the numerical grades. Hay which is unsound, or which otherwise fails to meet the requirements of the numerical grades, is graded U. S. sample.

In addition to the three numerical grades and sample grade, the U. S. standards for alfalfa are also described in numerous terms called "special grades for use in grading occasional lots of hay which possess unusual qualities, such as a high percentage of clinging leaves or of green color. Hay that is superior as to leafiness is designated as "extra leafy," and hay that is superior as to color is designated as "extra green." Hay that has the leaf requirements of U. S. No. 1 alfalfa and the color of U. S. No. 2 or U. S. No. 3 is included in a special grade called "leafy." A special grade called "green" is provided for hay which has the color requirement of U. S. No. 1 alfalfa and the leaf requirements of U. S. No. 2 or U. S. No. 3.

The feed value of alfalfa hay, and consequently the grade, is determined largely by production practices. Agricultural experiment stations in many alfalfa producing states have investigated the relationship between methods of production and the feeding value of alfalfa hay. Some of the results are as follows:

The Kansas Experiment station reported crude protein variations in the entire alfalfa plant, according to time of cutting, as follows: Bud stage, 20.2 per cent; tenth bloom, 15.4 per cent; full bloom, 15.9 per cent; and seed stage, 13.1 per cent. In a feeding test, the feed required to produce 100 pounds of gain with beef animals was: Bud stage, 1,628 pounds; tenth bloom, 2,086 pounds; full bloom, 2,183 pounds, and seed stage, 3,910 pounds.

SHADING TOMATOES BEST WAY TO CONTROL YELLOWS

Shading tomato plants in the field, either through the use of muslin or by growing tall plants such as sunflowers between the rows, has proven the best control measure for tomato yellows, a destructive disease in the western United States, according to the U. S. department of agriculture. Department plant pathologists, have studied this disease for a number of years and now report their findings in a new publication of the department, Technical bulletin 189-T, Experiments on the Control of Tomato Yellows.

Shading the plants in the field has a doubly beneficial effect, say the authors of the bulletin. It enables some plants to overcome the infection and also tends to repel beet leaf-hoppers, the insects which carry the disease, thus reducing the amount of infection. Muslin tents provide the most satisfactory shade, but because of their expense are not generally recommended. In experiments conducted in California, sunflowers planted between tomato rows reduced the infection by 50 per cent, but also checked the growth of the tomatoes by competing with them for food and water.

Although a number of sprays and dusts were tried, none proved of sufficient benefit to warrant its recommendation. The ultimate solution of the problem, say the authors, may lie in the development of highly resistant varieties. There appears to be a definite, though not very strong, resistance in certain varieties. Further work is being done in the hope of developing varieties entirely resistant to the disease.

STORRS COLLEGE WILL PLAN FOR ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Dr. Charles C. McCracken, president of the Connecticut Agricultural college, announces he will appoint a committee within the next week or so to lay plans for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the college, to be held next year.

June has been selected as the time for the celebration. The inauguration of President McCracken, who assumed charge of the college early last month, and the commencement exercises of the class of 1931 will be held at the same time, according to present plans.

Walter Stemmons, college editor, is at work on the college history, with the aid of Andre Schenker, instructor in history at the college, who is doing the historical research, and it is expected to have the book ready in time for the celebration.

What form the anniversary celebration will take will be left to the committee to decide. The legislative act making possible the institution was signed April 21, 1881, but it was decided that the weather in April might not be suitable. The agricultural school from which the college developed was started in September, 1881. Commencement time was decided upon because at that time of the year the quarters at the college would not be crowded, thus enabling the college to entertain the great number of visitors who are expected.

The celebration and inauguration exercises are expected to attract the presidents and other representatives of a great many colleges and other institutions of learning, hundreds of graduates, many of whom are living in distant places and state officials and residents. It is not unlikely that the gathering will be the largest ever assembled at Storrs since the college was started.

The founders of the college were Charles and Augustus Storrs, both of whom were born in the town of Mansfield, in which the institution is located. They amassed wealth as commission merchants in Brooklyn, N. Y. Charles Storrs was an intimate of Horace Greeley, famous editor of the New York Tribune, and of Henry Ward Beecher.

The brothers owned a 170 acre farm in that part of the town of Mansfield known as Storrs, on which Augustus Storrs spent the summers. Both were interested in agriculture and its furtherance and offered to give the state the 170 acres and a sum of money on condition that an agricultural school be founded on the premises. For many years there had been a boys' school there which was attended by the orphan sons of Civil war veterans and which was abandoned in 1875.

The state of Connecticut decided to accept the offer of the Storrs brothers and a bill accepting the deed was passed in 1881 and signed on April 21 of the same year by the governor.

The school was started the following September under the name of the Storrs Agricultural school. Yale had been receiving for many years the benefit of the federal land grant act, amounting to more than $31,000 a year. Due to the agitation of Connecticut farmers, who claimed Yale was not fully discharging its obligation to teach farming, the land grant benefit was taken away from Yale by the legislature in 1893 and given to the Storrs Agricultural school, which in that year became known as the Storrs Agricultural college. This name later changed to the Connecticut Agricultural college.

THE NUTMEGS ABROAD— BLACK HILL TOURISTS

Headed toward Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Brown, of Black Hill, Plainfield, write:

At last we are off! The good ship Henry Ford drew up anchor Friday, the 17th, about 11 a. m., and "merrily we rolled along, o'er the dark blue sea" of adventure—Bright skies and a favorable wind and all hands on deck. We had a few errands at our state capital, then drove out Farmington avenue, a beautiful drive at times, but this time the worst congestion of traffic I ever saw on what might be classed as a country road. We stopped the first night at Hillcrest, in Middlebury, at a fine place, after an 80-mile drive. They said there was a thunderstorm but I slept through it.

Saturday we went on via Danbury, down the charming Jefferson valley with its many attractive summer homes, over Bear Mountain bridge and to West Point, with its many interesting sights. The Storm King highway is a marvelous piece of engineering; but to know anything of it you must see it. I can't describe it. This country looks as if when they built this part of the earth the contractor had a big lot of material left over and had to pile it high to store it, for want of room. Then, later, had tons of surplus of vivid colors of paint to dispose of and this was poured over it. All the colors of the rainbow—and today we drove over 186 miles of its entrancing beauty. I couldn't help wondering if we were to see anything in Shenandoah valley, when we get there, that would outdo this. Well! we'll see what we see! After the rugged beauty of Storm King we went north to Newburgh, N. Y.

Leaving here, south and west there was a startling contrast in travel. Beautiful cement roads stretching for miles and miles in straight lines with easy grades when not level and much of the way, too, looking across level valley fields, we could still see the mountains on either side. We had lunch at Port Jervis, almost on the state line between New York and New Jersey. For several miles a new feature came in the cement highway hugged closely under the east side of the mountain, while to the east across the fertile valley could be seen the mountains near the Hudson river. Each way from Stroudsburg the country grew more rolling.

Source of Northern Lights?

PASADENA, Calif. —(AP)—Changes of electrical conductivity of the air are suggested in a Carnegie Institution report as a possible source of northern lights.

ONE TRANSFER OF REAL ESTATE TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 22—Recorded in the office of the Westerly Town Clerk appears the following transfer:

Oct. 21. Edward B. Langworthy to Anna Elizabeth Langworthy an undivided, one-half interest in a certain tract or parcel of land together with a dwelling house and improvements on the westerly side of the highway leading from Langworthy's Corners to Weekapaug; bounded easterly by the Weekapaug road, and northerly and westerly by other lands of the Albert Langworthy estate.

The second October session of the Westerly probate court, held Tuesday afternoon with Probate Judge Edward M. Burke on the bench was one of the shortest regular sessions in many months. Probate maters were disposed of as follows: Estate of Emma J. Doust. Petition received on administrator's and continued nisi. The first and final account of the guardian, Mrs. Martha D. Wilson, was also continued nisi.

Deborah Chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star on Tuesday evening in Masonic hall held its regular October meeting with Mrs. Jennie A. Mitchell, worthy matron and Gustave P. Brucker, worthy patron. Following the business session degree work was exemplified by the chapter officers, following which the "obligation ceremony" was rendered by the chapter officers and members. There was special music during the evening and at the close refreshments with Halloween favors were served in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., by a committee headed by Mrs. Fannie Stott, other members being Mrs. Nina Davis, Mrs. Gertrude Cooke, Mrs. Irene Robinson.

In the improvements being made to the Union street approach to the Westerly police station the cement sidewalk has already been taken up and the steps removed as well as the top courses of stone which formerly held the iron railing which guarded the approach.

Among the improvements being made about the Dixon street state armory, the large Armstrong rifle, set on a cement block on the front lawn has received a coat of battleship gray.

The Pawcatuck Fire Co. No. 1 of the Pawcatuck Fire Department were called out at 3:10 p. m. Wednesday to respond to whistle alarm No. 42, Mechanic street, near oil tanks. A brush and grass fire was put out by the firemen who returned to the Liberty street fire station about 3:30 p. m.

Much activity is manifest at the Westerly democratic headquarters in the vacant store at the corner of Broad and Union streets. The paper which has covered the windows has been removed and a young lady clerk is present at all times.

Official visitation will be made to Matilda C. Morgan council, No. 13, of Westerly, Daughters of America of Rhode Island, by Lillian J. Pearson, state councilor, on Friday evening, Oct. 24th. The Councils of Stonington and Noank have been invited to attend the meeting to be held in Mechanics Hall on Broad street.

Turk was presented before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church, Wednesday, was found guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs.

REV. FR. O'MEARA'S CHURCH ADDS 150 TO H. N. SOCIETY

That a former devoted and hard-working pastor of St. John's Catholic parish, Uncasville, is continuing his activities in his new location, Waterbury, is evidenced by the notices in the papers of that city. On Sunday evening, in St. Patrick's church there, a crowded auditory indicated the interest in the solemn ceremonial, when 150 new members were received into the parish Holy Name society. Under directions of their chaplain, Rev. Thomas O'Connell, one of Father O'Meara's curates, the 150 new members marched from the lower chapel to the church. For the first time two new beautiful standards of light flashed their 1500-watt power upon the facade of the church bringing it out to the brightness of noon-day splendor and the illuminated cross high on the spire was also aglow. The service after the solemn procession, opened with congregational singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," followed by the recitation of Our Blessed Mother's Chaplet, the blessing of the 150 insignia of the society, sermon by pastor, Rev. Father O'Meara. Solemn benediction of the Blessed sacrament, and the singing of the church's hymn of Thanksgiving—"Te, Deum."

The other assistant in the parish, Rev. Bernard Foster, took part in the services also. Since going to Waterbury, Rev. Father O'Meara has had many noteworthy changes and improvements made in the church, also has renovated and greatly improved the rectory.

Miss Pauline Mayo of New York, considered one of the best impersonators of charactor on the public platform, gave a very interesting programme in the Methodist church at Uncasville, Tuesday evening, before a large and appreciative audience. Miss Mayo also has the ability of introducing each character of a play and keeping it intact all through the action of the drama.

Miss Josephine Tisky, of Pequot, who was accompanied by Mrs. Stanley Wypyek of New Bedford, Mass., motored to Willimantic and Hartford where they visited relatives over the weekend.

Maple Camp, Royal Neighbors of America will hold a meeting this (Thursday) evening in their lodge rooms.

Rev. Thomas F. Lynch, of Montville, pastor of St. John's R. C. church, Uncasville, has the honor of being the first Norwich Sunday Record subscriber from out of town. His order for eastern Connecticut's first Sunday paper was received Tuesday morning by telephone shortly after the Bulletin office opened for business.

LEDYARD

Ledyard grange held its meeting in Grange hall Friday evening, Carl H. Holdridge, master, in the chair. The Lecturer's hour was as follows: Song, by grange; a paper, "The Original Customs of Halloween," Lester Barbara Holdridge; little Shirley Nylen of Norwich Town, three selections on the accordion—Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Chams, The Guilty Party, and America. Sister Virginia Tubbs had charge of the stunts. The loudest yell was won by Joseph A. Clark and the horse race was won by Carl Nylen, "The Robins' Return," a piano solo, was played by Sister Florence Norcross; a topsy-turvy chorus, consisting of Rose Norcross, Bernice Percival, Bradford Gregory, Paul Holdridge and Elmer Tubbs; song, My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean. Games were played under direction of Joseph A. Clark. The executive committee announced at this meeting that Ray Holdridge was the lowest bidder to paint the Grange hall. It was also announced that at the next meeting, the first meeting of November, there will be election of officers. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

Twenty-one young people, members of the local C. E. union, went to Mystic Congregational church Sunday evening as guests of that society.

Rev. Edward P. Kelly, Billings T. Avery, S. E. Holdridge and Paul Holdridge attended the brotherhood meeting at Park church, Norwich, Monday evening and heard Dr. Fred B. Smith deliver his address.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Holdridge and daughter, Ora Belle of Farmingdale, N. Y., were week end visitors of Mr. Holdridge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Holdridge.

Fourteen from this place attended the annual meeting of Congregational women of Connecticut, eastern division, at the United church, Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin S. Lamb have been taking a vacation motoring through New England.

VIRGINIA HAS EDUCATION "CO-OP" IN 1,600 TOWNS

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The "co-op" idea extends to education in Virginia.

Thirty-five miles of men, women and children are equivalent to the membership of the Co-operative Education association of Virginia. In all, 62,000 persons belong to the 1,642 organizations which are units of the member agency of the Richmond community fund.

Last year 937 of these units improved school conditions in their communities; 857 provided for more wholesome social and recreational facilities. Health and sanitary conditions were improved by 848 units and welfare work was done by 761 organizations.

HONEY TASTES OF VINEGAR, LEMON AND STING OF ANTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — In good honey, part of its flavoring bears slight traces of the taste of vinegar, lemon juice and the sting of ant bites.

This is shown in a report to the American Chemical society by E. K. Nelson and H. H. Mottern of the bureau of chemistry and soils. They examined 15 samples of honey from different flowers.

When bees make honey mostly from tulip nectar, it contains formic acid, the sting of ant bites. Sage honey has acetic acid, which gives vinegar its sour taste. In all samples they found citric acid, the taste of lemon juice.

Cement Lining Bars Rust.

NEW YORK (AP)—E. L. Chappell of the National Tube company reports to the American Chemical society that cement linings are particularly effective against waters which tend to rust pipes.

Private A. E. Daily, U. S. A., is a one-man garrison. He is commandant of the army post on the dunes facing Grays Harbor, Wash. Each morning for the five months private Daily has blown his own reveille, issued his own orders and then carried them out. Every day he polishes the two disappearing guns built too late for the last way and never fired since. The guns and Daily's quarters are all that is left of the post, built to form a link in the chain of coast defenses and abandoned with the signing of the armistice.

POETRY

In School Days

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow,
And blackberry vines are running.

Within, the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by raps official;
The warping floor, the battered seats,
The jack-knife's carved initial;

The charcoal frescoes on its wall;
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school,
Went storming out to playing!

Long years ago a winter sun
Shone over it at setting;
Lit up its western window-panes,
And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes full of grieving,
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving.

For near her stood the little boy
Her childish favor singled;
His cap pulled low upon a face
Where pride and shame were mingled.

Pushing with restless feet the snow
To right and left, he lingered—
As restlessly her tiny hands
The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
The soft hand's light caressing,
And heard the tremble of her voice,
As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word:
I hate to go above you,
Because"—the brown eyes lower fell,
"Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man
That sweet child-face is showing.
Dear girl! the grasses on her grave
Have forty years been growing!

He lives to learn, in life's hard school,
How few who pass above him
Lament their triumph and his loss,
Like her—because they love him.

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

A Dream

'Twas summer, and the spot a cool retreat—
Where curious eyes came not, nor footstep rude
Disturbed the lovers' chosen solitude;
Beneath an oak there was a mossy seat,
Where we reclined, while birds above us wooed
Their mates in songs voluptuously sweet.
A limpid brook went murmuring by our feet
And all conspired to urge the tender mood.
Methought I touched the streamlet with a flower,
When from its bosom sprang a fountain clear,
Falling again in the translucent shower
Which made more green each blade of grass appear:
"This stream's thy heart," I said;
"Love's touch alone
Can change it to the fount which maketh green my own."

—Elizabeth Clementine Kinney.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Early to bed and early to rise and you can have the Pullman washroom all to yourself.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Friend of Returned Motor Tourists—Hello, you people! Back again. Had a good time?

Returned Tourists — Topping, thanks! Such quaint little hospitals!—London Opinion.

"You look very ill."

"I can't sleep. I have a bill due tomorrow."

"Why didn't you tell me that before?"

"Can you lend me the money?"

"No, but I can give you a sleeping draught."—Ulk.

Beggar Woman—Spare me a copper or my children will have nothing to eat today.

Young Housewife—But it is only Monday. Have you spent your housekeeping money already? — Lustige Kolner Zeitung.

Teacher: "James, what is the opposite of misery?"

James: "Happiness."

"And what is the opposite of sadness?"

"Gladness."

"Fine. Now give the opposite of woe."

"Giddap."—G. N. Goat.

Debtor (to his tailor)—What about making me a nice double-breasted lounge suit before you take me to court? Be reasonable, my dear fellow. Surely I'd disgrace you by appearing in these rags.—Passing Show.

"Times certainly have changed," sighed Smith.

"How so?" asked Robinson.

"Why, at a little family party last night the women talked politics while the men got off in a corner and exchanged recipes."—New York Times.

The neighbor of a man noted for his extreme thrift saw him coming down the road on a week day dressed in his Sunday clothes.

"What's up, Cy?" he called out. "Why the glad rags?"

"Haven't you heard the news?"

"News! What news?"

"Triplets!"

"Oh, and you're celebrating—?"

"No, but what the heck's the use tryin' to be economical now?"—Tenney Service.

The United States government is by far the largest land holder in the state of Colorado, according to the state immigration bureau. While precise figures are impossible to compile because of conflicts of reserves, withdrawals and classifications, the bureau estimates that the government owns or controls 37 per cent. of the entire surface area of the state.

BREAK IN MARKET IN FORENOON WAS FOLLOWED BY RALLY AND ANOTHER DROP

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The stock market had difficulty in making up its mind today and the result was the most confusing session in some time.

A break to new lows in the forenoon was followed by complete recovery. Then came another reaction and on its heels another rally, so that net losses were reduced to fractions in most of the leading shares. Few stocks lost more than two points net, and there were small advances. Sales totaled 1,742,240 shares, regarded as a normal turnover.

The morning drop of 2 to 3 points pierced the previous lows of U. S. Steel, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Westinghouse Electric. Selling was lively for about half an hour and the ticker dropped three minutes behind the market, but bears utilized the decline for covering and the list crept slowly back until some stocks were quoted 1 to 5 points net higher. The later selling started in the electrical equipments, which closed heavy, General Electric losing 1 5-8 and Westinghouse 4½ points.

The market paid little attention to outside developments, although short selling was doubtless encouraged by the decline in Steel operations. Wheat and corn were strong. The former rallied about a cent and a half when it was reported that the surplus was being reduced, more extensively than had been expected, through increased feeding to livestock. Corn gained as much as 2 1-4 on unfavorable weather forecasts as well as disappointing husking returns from Kansas. Cotton recovered from early easiness, which had been based on a favorable weather map, and closed 1 to 11 points higher.

Domestic bonds softened, but foreign issues continued to point higher. Time money rates held steady and day accomodations were available in large amounts at 1½ per cent, although the stock exchange made no concession from 2 per cent.

Points of interest in the steel reviews included reports of larger inquiries for rails and the sustained demand for structural material. The surveys pointed out, however, that general demand was very quiet and would probably remain so until business sentiment improved. "Iron Age," estimated that ingot production has advanced to 53 per cent, a 2 per cent decrease, steel scrap was reduced 25 cents at Chicago.

Previous indications of improvement in the textile industry, were supported by the census bureau's report on spinning activity, which rose to 76.4 per cent of capacity last month against 85.4 in August. However, in September 1929, the ratio was 104. Less comforting was the decrease in freight car loadings, amounting to 17,618 cars from the previous week and to 224,666 from the same period last year.

The heads of two large corporations were added to the list of executives who have made reassuring statements regarding dividends. General Harbord, chairman of Radio, said he believed earnings should cover payments on both the preferred and class B stocks and expressed satisfaction with the present outlook. The president of Texas corporation indicated that no change in the rate was being contemplated.

New lows carry comparatively little significance at this time, when small declines are sufficient to send the leaders to minimum prices, although such moves may have some psychological effect and do show that so-called supporting levels are thinly held lines. U. S. Steel's low today was 143 1-4, but it rallied thereafter to 146 and closed at 145, off ⅛. Standard Oil of New Jersey dropped to 52, only 2 points above the level at which the famous 1,000,000 share buying order was placed last fall. It rallied 3-4 and was 7-8 net lower. General Electric weakened to 48 5-8, Westinghouse to 101 1-8, and Radio to 20.

American Can and American Telephone yielded grudgingly and closed 1-4 lower and 1-4 higher, respectively. International Harvester, Johns Manville and Public Service of New Jersey were up less than a point net. Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Electric Power and Light, Anaconda,

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Curb shares were again largely on the downgrade today, but developed considerable resistance to selling pressure, and net losses were moderate. Trading was the most active of the week, however, with sales aggregating 706,700 shares.

Oils were still depressed, reflecting continued weakness in gasoline prices, although the weekly petroleum statistics were a little more favorable, showing a substantial reduction in gasoline stocks. Gulf dropped 2⅝ points to a new low, and Humble, the Indian Territory shares, and Standard of Indiana sagged moderately into new low ground. Cities Service lost a fraction. Selling of Standards of Kentucky and Ohio was checked, however, and these issues closed steady.

Electric Bond and Share remained the active feature of the utilities, and sold off a point to 50, the minimum price recorded in the decline of last November. It was strongly supported at that level, however, and closed at 50 3-4. Associated Gas A, American and Foreign Power warrants, and Middle West Utilities lost about a point each, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, more than 3. Niagara Hudson and Brazilian Traction, however, closed fractionally higher, and Standard Power and Light gained 1½ in a small turnover.

In the industrials, Aluminum Company of America, dropped 7 points to a new low for the year at 150. Moore Drop Forging A, and Savannah Sugar tumbled more than 10 points, but both issues are thinly traded, and the declines seemed to reflect primarily a lack of bids. Crocker Wheeler and New Haven Clock also reached new lows. Deere, however, rallied 2 points, McCord Radiator B, 4 points, and Mead Johnson, more than one. United Stores also rallied a point.

In the investment trusts, the Prince and Whitely shares turned downward on the auditors' report, which indicated that the asset value behind the shares was not clearly ascertainable. The common lost 1 and the preferred 2 points. Continental Shares convertible preferred, which broke sharply yesterday, rallied. Corporation Securities sagged more than a point to a new low.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Wall street hears that Richfield Oil company has reduced its inventories through the sales of fuel oil to the Shell Oil company, which netted Richfield $1,500,000 cash.

S. W. Straus and company announced that the first semi-annual distribution to holders of Super-Corporations of America trust shares will be made November 1. The distribution on series A, will be slightly more than 40 cents a share, and on series B, slightly more than 19 cents.

In connection with the installation of new automatic equipment in central stations and the acquisition of new telephone company holdings, Telephone Bond and Share company will issue next week 15,000 additional shares of 7 per cent preferred stock through Telephone Securities company at $105 and accrued interest to yield 6.67 per cent. The company, formerly Diversified Investments, Inc., controls telephone companies operated by the Theodore Gary organization, chiefly in the central west and south.

Love, Reinholdt and Gardner have withdrawn as members of the New York Stock exchange clearing corporation.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—Quoted values of domestic bonds sagged in expanded activity today, while the main trend of foreign issues continued upward.

Liquidation was particularly heavy in all classes of railroad obligations. In contrast with the small losses in the best rated issues, second and third grade liens dropped a point or more, several to new lows for the year.

As a whole the foreign list showed its independence from the heavy tone dominating domestics. British 5½s advanced ½ point in an unusually large turnover, and closed 1-8 under the year's high. The principal interest in German bonds was on the selling side and declines in some instances were more than a point.

Latin Americans were mixed. Brazilian 8s held steady, but the 6½s eased fractionally. Chilian governments and mortgage bank bonds were under moderate pressure. The governments 6s of 1961 and 1963, reacted 2 points. Argentines and Colombians were generally firm. Santa Fe Argentine 7s advanced nearly 2 points.

Some drastic declines featured the activity in railroad bonds. International Railways of Central America 6s, reacted 15 points in one sale, and Allegheny corporation 5s of 1944 and Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s dipped 4 each. Rails establishing new 1930 minimums included Chicago and Northwestern 4¾s, Erie 5s of 1967, Illinois Central refunding 4s, New York, Chicago and St. Louis 4½s C and Peoria and Eastern Illinois 4.

Utility bonds moved both ways. Brooklyn Union Gas 5s of 1950 were up 1 5-8. Good gains were made by Columbia River Power and Light 4½s, Metropolitan Edison 5s, New York Edison 6½s, Pacific Gas and Electric 5s, and Postal Telegraph 5s. American Telephone issues, Consolidated Gas 5½s, Federal Light and Traction 5s, and Metropolitan Edison 4½s, yielded large fractions. Utility Power and Light 5s reached a 1930 low.

Speculative industrials and stock privilege bonds were generally lower. In one or two instances convertibles rallied above the previous close. Shubert Theatre 6s, Trumbull Steel 6s, McKesson and Robbins 5½s, Hoe 6½s, Kendall 5½s, were miscellaneous issues at new bottom prices for the year.

U. S. governments were quiet. Liberty 4 1-4s were the most active and, with the rest, worked a shade lower.

New financing expected to be publicly offered soon includes $7,500,000 in bonds for the Nippon Electric company, of Japan, $9,000,000 State of Minnesota 4 1-4s, and $1,050,000 5s for the Western New York Water company, subsidiary of the Federal Water Service corporation. The long awaited $100,000,000 issue of the Pennsylvania Power and Light company may be marketed soon, it was reported in financial circles today, following announcement that the corporation has purchased the power properties of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company.

New York Central, General Motors and Radio closed barely steady. Consolidated Gas and Fox lost a point, Du Pont and Case 2 and Auburn Auto 4 3-4. The last named sold as low as 68 against its year's high of 263 3-4.

Foreign currencies lost their vigor and reacted slightly. The German mark, with the American demand apparently satisfied, sagged more than 2 points. The Japanese yen, on the other hand, made its nearest approach to parity since the World war on the announcement of a gold shipment from Tokio.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP)—With buying active and carrying the market briskly upward, wheat attained the highest close today in several weeks. Simultaneously the wheat market gave notable evidence of a disposition to ignore weakness in stocks, and much of the buying of wheat appeared to be based on recent refusal of grain values to follow downturns in securities. Another strengthening factor as to wheat was the announcement that a Canadian crop authority had almost doubled his estimate of the quantity of wheat unthreshed in Canada and now being subjected to damage.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1a1 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-8a2 3-8c up, oats 5-8a7-8c advanced, and Provisions averaged higher, sympaprovisions unchanged to a rise of 12c. thizing with the upturn of grain values and of hogs.

The grange whist was held in Grange hall Thursday evening. Eleven tables were in play, prizes were won by Mrs. E. P. Abel, Mrs. Carl Hallen and Mrs. Frank Rockwood, and J. E. Burgess, Alfred Williams and George Reynolds.

Today, Oct. 23, at 2.45 p. m., from Station WTIC, Hartford, there is to be a talk on the Sarah Whitman Hooker house in West Hartford, written by Mrs. Ralph Gerth for the Conn. D. A. R. radio program.

Came From Vermont

At the parsonage of the First Congregational church one day last week, two of Rev. Walter Vey's parishioners from Vermont, came to Lebanon for Mr. Vey to perform their marriage ceremony.

Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Littlefield and Mrs. Henry Aspinall attended the Baptist convention in New London.

Mrs. E. J. Graham was in New London, Thursday, to attend the Red Cross meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Betts, from Summit, N. J., spent from Friday until Monday with Mrs Betts' aunts, Mrs. Mary A. Williams and Mrs. Ida M. Abel.

Elmer Pultz has gone to Sherbourne, N. Y., to visit relatives.

Miss Edia Williams and Chauncey Williams spent a few days recently with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Spaulding in Norwalk. Mr. Spaulding returned home with them for a brief visit.

Miss Florence Campbell, a student nurse at Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, spent Sunday at the home of her father, Claude Campbell.

There was an all-day meeting of the Ladies' Aid held in the parlors of the First Congregational church on Tuesday.

Exchanged Pulpits

Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the Baptist church, Jewett City, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church, Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor, Rev. A. G. Littlefield. He preached a very interesting sermon from John 19:18, "When they crucified him, and two others with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst." There was a duet by Mrs. Henry Aspinall and Miss Beatrice Littlefield. Miss Littlefield also sang a solo. The C. E. meeting was led by Mrs. G. L. Chappell, twenty-four being in attendance. There was a solo by Miss Beatrice Littlefield.

George Goodwin of Wethersfield and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Goodwin, of New Britain, spent Sunday with Mr. Goodwin's brother, C. E. Goodwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Lathrop took a week end trip over the Mohawk Trail.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manning motored to Bloomfield, Sunday, to take the former's sister, Miss Cora Manning, home.

READY TO HANDLE FOOTBALL GAMES TRAFFIC

Co-operative efforts will be made by four state departments, the police of many towns, the New Haven Automobile club and Yale university authorities to insure safety for the thousands who will travel over Connecticut highways to attend the big football games at Yale bowl this year. Arrangements have been completed for handling the traffic in the manner experience has shown most expeditious and best to gain a steady flow of vehicles to and from the games.

The state highway department announces that all main highways will be free of construction work and clear for heavy traffic. There is one short detour at Milldale, necessary to avoid bridge construction.

Sixty-five state policemen will patrol the main highways on which the major part of the traffic is expected.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Today and Friday, just two days all together, the Palace presents what is expected to be acknowledged as the finest double feature bill yet shown at this popular local playhouse.

The program includes that smashing spectacle of the old South, "Dixiana," and "The Way of All Men," a fiery drama of human emotions. Each picture is a splendid show by itself. Together they are unbeatable.

In "Dixiana" the son of an old southern family falls in love with a circus performer. She is a beauty, but just as soon as the boy's parents learn of her background, they throw her out indignantly. A notorious gambler soon gets her in his clutches and together, by a strange quirk, of fate, they plot to ruin the career of the boy who loves her.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Dorothy Revier and Noah Beery are the stars of "The Way of All Men," and here is a knockout picture. Consider the situation. Men and women from every station of life are brought together under circumstances that mean that they all face death within a matter of hours. How do they react these people? The beggar, the financier, the society leader, the scum of the underworld, the boy struggling against his own wild desires: What do they do in this mad crisis? Which proves himself to be the better human being? All these thrilling questions are answered in this huge drama of emotions. It is a picture which other cities have gone wild about, and the Palace is pleased to have the privilege of offering it along with such an equally fine film as "Dixiana."

Hillcrest Theatre

A "rubber check" really bounces during one scene of "Animal Crackers," the Four Marx Brothers' comedy, which has been recorded as their second Paramount talking feature, and which bows in at the Hillcrest theatre, Thursday, for a 2-day run. Harpo Marx, who has delighted audiences all over the country with his stage and screen sleight-of-hand tricks, is able with the use of an invisible thread to make a "not-sufficient funds" check bounce about the stage in a truly remarkable manner and finally fly back into the hands of the man who wrote it. While executing this complicated trick with one hand Harpo manages to filch two neckties and a gold watch from fellow players with the other.

As special added attractions, Mr. Schwartz has booked a special all-talking comedy and some exceptionally fine screen vaudeville.

During the two-day run, "Animal Crackers," will be shown twice each night and also at a special matinee on Friday afternoon.

For Sunday, Mr. Schwartz has booked one of the most delightfully intimate boudoir comedy dramas yet brought to the screen, "Monte Carlo," with Jeanette MacDonald and Jack MacDonald and Jack Buchanan.

Both "Animal Crackers" and "Monte Carlo" are new show world Paramount pictures and neither have played in Norwich as yet.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Connecticut Power Company, New London.

The Connecticut Power company was incorporated on May 23, 1899 as The Marine Power company, later changing the name to The Connecticut Power company on June 8, 1905. Shortly after the incorporation of this company in 1899 a water power site was acquired in Falls Village, Conn., known as Little Falls. However, this company did not develop its water power site or become an operating company until April 1, 1913, at which time The New London Gas and Electric company, The Middletown Electric Light company, The Berkshire Power company, The Norfolk Electric Light company, The Sharon Electric Light company and The Eastern Connecticut Electric Power company were consolidated with and became part of The Connecticut Power company. Also in 1913 The Connecticut Power company leased The Thomaston Electric Light company for a period of 999 years.

In 1920, The Hartford Electric Light company became affiliated with the Connecticut Power company through the ownership of this company's stock. In recent years, this company has acquired all of the outstanding stock of The Manchester Electric company, The Union Electric Light and Bower company and practically all of the outstanding stock of The Stamford Gas and Electric company.

During the early years of this company's operation, under Stone & Webster, Inc., management, and since 1920, under the able leadership of Samuel Ferguson, this company has grown and expanded so that now we not only serve numerous towns in the state of Connecticut with gas and electric service, but our transmission lines in Connecticut are interconnected with the important power plants of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, northeastern New York, New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania.

Gas has been served continuously in the city of New London by The Connecticut Power company, or one of it's underlying subsidiaries, for over 75 years, the first gas service having been rendered in 1853.

The corporate office of the company is located at 266 Pearl street, Hartford, and the executive office is located at 31 Union street, New London, with divisional headquarters in New London, Middletown and Canaan, as well as corporate and executive offices in Manchester for The Manchester Electric company, in Unionville for The Union Electric Light and Power company and in Stamford for The Stamford Gas and Electric company.

The present officers of The Connecticut Power company are: Samuel Ferguson, president, Hartford; Viggo E. Bird, assistant to president, Hartford; Allan D. Colvin, executive vice president, New London; Townsend H. Soren, vice president, Hartford; Clifford Trull, treasurer, New London; Richard B. Curran, secretary, New London.

La SALLE
V-Eight
$2195
AND UP, F. O. B.

THE NEW La Salle V-Eight offers a remarkable array of advantages that make it an exceedingly pleasant car to own and drive—and surprisingly economical as well.

The bodies are new expressions of Fisher and Fleetwood coachcraft—fresh in authentic beauty. Built to provide the utmost quiet and restfulness, the quality in design, construction and materials is so high that the resale value of this long-lived car is assured.

It is an exhilarating experience to drive so spirited a car. The eight-cylinder power plant is larger, and still more power is at the command of the driver.

The new La Salle profits heavily by its membership in the Cadillac family of distinguished fine cars—the new Cadillac V-8, the new V-12 and the V-16—because Cadillac brings to motoring this year a newness of performance never before experienced even in Cadillac or La Salle cars.

Nowhere is this more delightfully stressed than in the car's simplicity of control, driving ease and greater safety, assured by such characteristic features as Cadillac's harmonized steering system, clashless Syncro-Mesh Transmission, remarkably effective braking system, and non-shatterable Security Plate Glass throughout.

Best of all, you can enjoy the La Salle without undue strain on your pocketbook, for it sells as low as $2195 f.o.b. Purchase is made easy by the G.M.A.C. Deferred Payment Plan. Perhaps the value of your present car is sufficient to take care of the down payment. Let us appraise it. There will be no obligation.

The Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild for boys offers 984 awards for craftsmanship, valued at $50,000, including four University scholarships of four years each, and each valued at $5,000—trips to Detroit—and thousands of dollars in gold. Membership is open to every boy in the U. S. between the ages of 12 and 19, inclusive. To enroll and obtain details, see your nearest Cadillac-La Salle dealer

TAX NOTICE

To the Taxpayers of the Town of Sprague:

All persons liable to pay Taxes in the Town of Sprague, State of Connecticut, are hereby notified that I have a warrant to levy and collect a Tax of Ten (10) Mills on the list as made by the Board of Assessors and perfected by the Board of Relief of said Town, for the Year 1929, due and payable November 1, 1930. All persons neglecting this notice will be proceeded against as directed by the Laws of this State.

For the purpose of collecting this Tax, I shall be in my place of business, known as Caron's News Store, every day during November, from 1:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M., and at the Parish House in Hanover, in the village of Hanover, from 4:00 P. M. to 7:00 P. M., November 21st; also, at Versailles Post Office, November 28th, from 4:00 to 7:00 P. M.

After December 1, 1930, interest at the rate of 9 per cent. will be added from the time these Taxes became due. All Taxes must be paid direct to the Tax Collector and all bills receipted by him. If sent by mail enclose postage if you wish a receipt.

Dated at Sprague, Conn., this 10th day of October, 1930.
E. J. CARON, Collector.

NOTICE

I will not be responsible for any bills made by any one except myself.
ERNEST SHERMAN.
Oct. 21, 1930.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

All persons liable to pay taxes in the town of Norwich, Conn., are hereby notified to report to the Assessors, on or before the First day of Nov. 1930, a written or printed list, properly signed and sworn to of all taxable property owned by them on the first day of Oct. 1930. Those failing to make a list will be charged a penalty of ten per cent additional, according to law.

Blanks may be obtained at the Assessors' Office in the City Hall or will be sent by mail upon application.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Lutheran church is completing arrangements for the annual harvest supper. An entertainment at which the Community Glee club will sing is being prepared. The committee in charge of the supper includes Mrs. Carl Anderson, Miss Doga Freudenthal, Mrs. George Carlson, Mrs. Oscar L. Johnson, Mrs. Carl E. Anderson, Mrs. Edward Swanson and Mrs. Emil Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Erland Johnson and daughter, Helen, have returned from Worcester where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. Lundquist.

Rev. John C. Mathieu and Rev. Leo Lavallee, pastor and curate, respectively, of St. Joseph's church, spent Monday in Waterbury.

Mrs. Baul Boehm has returned to Pawtucket, after being the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Emil Johnson.

The Grosvenordale baseball club plans a benefit dance for which Polly and her Pals have been engaged to furnish music by Leo Bernard, chairman of the committee. The sum of $150 is the goal of the club whose members have suffered injuries this past season. Principal among these is "Metz" Mandeville, catcher, who sustained an injured jaw when a ball struck him on the mouth.

The auxiliary to the American Legion has elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. William Prince, who has been president for the past six years, was unanimously elected to serve another year. Miss Yvonne Dion was chosen vice president; Miss Martha McKeon, secretary; Miss Anna Barrette, treasurer; Mrs. Philip Croteau was named chairman of the activities committee; Miss Bertha Paradis, chaplain, and Miss Louise Barrette, sergeant at arms.

IMPLICATED IN MURDER, BLAND TAKEN TO NEW YORK FROM NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—Freddie Bland, colored, about 27, a resident of New York, was arrested here today as a fugitive from justice, but in reality the Negro is wanted in New York on a charge of murder. With Bland, when he was taken into custody, was Josephine Scipio, also colored, and she is being detained as a material witness. Bland and the woman have waived extradition and officers will come to New London within a day or two and take them back to New York. The arrest of the man and woman was due to their refraining from going on the street until after nightfall, which fact interested other lodgers at the rooming house, 88 Bank street, who tipped the police that Bland and the woman were living as man and wife, but that they refused to leave the house during the day. The local police had not been acquainted with the fact that Bland was wanted, neither was his identity known for the couple was occupying a room under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Holloway Robinson.

Sept. 28, Bland and the Scipio woman, together with Bland's uncle, James Edwards and Sam Preston, also a Negro, attended a party at the house, 540 East 117th street, New York. During the night, Bland objected to the attentions being paid the Scipio woman by Preston and partially caused by jealousy, a fight between the Negroes resulted. Edwards took a hand in the battle and Preston was brutally beaten, lapsing into unconsciousness. While in that condition Bland and Edwards carried Preston to the roof of the building and tossed his body to the ground. Whether Preston was dead when carried to the roof is not known, but he was dead when found. Edwards was arrested and is still being held. Bland fled from the city and came to New London, went to the Bank street house and obtained lodging. Bland lost no time in communicating with the Scipio woman and she arrived in New London Oct. 5, going to Bland's room where they have since resided as man and wife.

Because of the house having obtained the reputation of being a disorderly house and a resort where liquor, if not women could be obtained, the police recently received several complaints against the alleged nature of the business being countenanced there. As a result Patrolmen Clyde Murphy and Albert Iverson, on whose beats the house is located, were requested to maintain a watch of the place. The officers in time obtained the acquaintances of occupants of the house and about 7 o'clock this morning, during their conversation with one of the Negroes, the latter referred to Bland and the woman refusing to leave the house during the day, always going out after darkness set in. Even when Bland's funds were gradually being depleted he would not take work because the work had to be done during the day. The officers reported their information at police headquarters and were given instructions to arrest the couple on suspicion. The patrolmen, accompanied by Sergeant Patrick Murphy, went to the rooming house and arrested Bland and his paramour. They were escorted to headquarters and Bland became highly nervous. He was accused of being a fugitive from justice, but this he denied, but not for long, for within 10 minutes after he had been brought to headquarters Bland admitted that he fled from New York because of the murder of Preston. Bland, however, declared that Preston was not thrown from the roof, but that he fell from the building.

The New York police were informed that Bland and his sweetheart were under arrest. The homicide bureau informed local authorities that Bland and the Scipio woman were wanted badly and that no delay would be made in sending officers here to take them back to New York. Edwards' trial had not been started, they said, because of Bland not having been arrested.

This evening Detective Sergeants Pollack and Gilleic, of the New York department, came to New London and escorted Bland and the woman back to New York. Bland made a partial confession as to the part he played in the slaying of Preston.

William Lorber, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Lansdale, was in the police court today, charged with breach of the peace and he was fined $25 and costs. He paid. Lorber was at Ocean Beach Sunday night and had been drinking, although he was not intoxicated. He boarded the trolley car that was scheduled to arrive at the State street terminal at 11:45 and while on the car made his presence a menace to the other passengers, using vile and obscene language, besides threatening the motorman, William Jones. When the trolley car arrived at the corner of State and Bank streets, Lorber alighted. An effort was made by Jones to find a patrolman, but none was at hand. However, Sergeant William Babcock, who had been on duty at Ocean Beach, ordered the sailor from the dance hall and when the officer recognized Lorber on Bank street at 8 o'clock this morning the bluejacket was arrested.

Robert Price, Negro, and employed as a trucker on the pier of the New London line steamers, was charged with breach of the peace. He was fined $10, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Price was arrested last night upon complaint of his wife. In court Mrs. Price testified that her husband was not intoxicated when he assaulted her and that it was seldom that he hit her. She also said that Price worked steady and always turned over his earnings to the woman. It was the latter fact that brought Price a suspended sentence.

Kenneth B. Wood, U. S. coast guard, was charged with driving without a license and was given suspension of judgment.

A man employed in the Pequot colony as a gardener, was charged with intoxication and was fined $10 and costs.

RUM-RUNNING CRAFT SEIZED OFF MONTAUK PT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—A 56-foot trawler and a rum-runner was seized together with the crew of four men and 300 cases of liquor off Montauk Point early today by one of the patrol boats of the U. S. coast guard stationed at the state pier. The captured boat, crew and liquor were brought into port and this evening were taken to New York, where the men will be given a hearing, as the capture was made in New York waters.

GIRL FRIENDS SHED TEARS AS SAILOR LADS DEPART

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—Eleven boats of the United States navy, nine of which have been ordered decommissioned, sailed from port during the day. The first of the craft, which are submarines and are the S-3, 6, 7, 8 and 9, were the first to depart, accompanied by the tender Bushnell and rescue boat Chewink. Later the S-1, 18, 14 and 21 cleared. At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the convoy Camden departed and will overtake the other boats en route to their respective destinations. The first group of submarines will go to Mare Island, Philadelphia, and the others will proceed to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu. Arriving at Pearl Harbor the Camden and Chewink will return with 20 R-type submarines, nine of which will be convoyed to the submarine base here. The Chewink will then go to Coco Solo and base and the Camden will be decommissioned at this port. The Bushnell will become the flagship of the control force and will come to this port only on occasions. The S-22, 23 and 48, boats of the mine force, the mine layers Ogiala, Luce and Lansdale and the mine sweepers Quail and Lark, also stationed at this port, but which are being overhauled at Portsmouth navy yard, will be based at Pearl Harbor and Coco Solo. The departure of the fleet reduced the personnel at the base close to 2,000 officers and men.

Throughout the day the Thames river highway bridge was lined with sailors' sweethearts and as the boats passed through the bridge many of the women were in tears as they waved adieu to their boy friends.

Arrested in Colchester

William Procout, a soldier stationed at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, was arrested in Colchester yesterday by State Police Officer Hoxie, charged with driving without a license. When presented in the Colchester justice court, Procout was fined $10 and costs. Officer Hoxie also arrested William Wheeler, 21 Carroll court, in Colchester, charged with driving without a license.

ATWOOD DEED OF 1907 TO PARK LOT RECORDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—A deed was received for record at the office of the city clerk today transferring title in a building lot in Neptune Park, Ocean Beach, from the Post Hill Improvement Co. to John W. Atwood, Plainfield. The deed was drawn Aug. 15, 1907, but was not filed until today.

Silas Maxson and wife have sold a house and lot on Maxson place to Harris K. and Ruth T. Dunning.

John and Samuel Turella have leased the garage, corner of Jefferson avenue and McDonald street, to Charles B. Tinker. The lease is for one year, dating from Jan. 1, 1931, and the rental will be $2,400.

Mrs. Patsy Damico and infant son, of 349 Ocean avenue; Mrs. William Londregan and infant son, 48 Benham road, Groton; Miss Gertrude Collins, 12 Morse avenue, Groton; Benjamin Phillips, 46 North Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Bert Strong

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Strong, wife of Bert Strong, of Noank, was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the parish house of the First Church of Christ and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were C. G. Newbury, Roy Cranker, Harry Keeney, Forrest Cutler, Alonso Green and Joseph Blake. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Frank Haynes

The funeral of Frank Haynes, of Quaker Hill, Waterford, was held this morning at 10 o'clock from 62 Washington street, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Peter Williams

Mrs. Mary Williams, 60, widow of Peter Williams, died last night at her residence, 4 Fourth street, following a lingering illness. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Enos and Mrs. Manuel Nunes, both of this city. Mrs. Williams was born at the Azore Islands, but had resided in New London for many years.

Rent Depends on Gas Sales

Emilio, Carmella, and Constantine Raccine have leased the premises, corner of Bank and Squire streets, to the Texas Co., of 17 Battery place, New York. The lease is for five years and dates from March 1, 1930. The annual rental of the premises, upon which a gasoline filling station has been erected, is to be determined by the amount of fuel disposed of, for the owners will be paid one cent per gallon monthly for all gasoline sold.

NORWICH DRIVER DOZING CRASHES INTO A HOUSE

Alex Goldberg, 89 Mechanic street, Norwich, was in the police court today, charged with reckless driving, and he was fined $25 and costs. The arraignment of Goldberg was the result of the truck he was driving on the New Haven turnpike last night, running into a house and overturning, causing injuries to an occupant of the truck, Israel Mandell, 29, of 333 West Main street, Norwich. Mandell sustained lacerations of the forehead and left hand. He is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The truck was traveling in an easterly direction and when in front of the residence of Harry J. Kennedy, 903 Bank street, Goldberg lost control of the steering wheel, for the truck climbed the curbing and continuing across the sidewalk entered the yard of the Kennedy family and crashed against the house, causing the truck to overturn. The accident was investigated by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh and after Mandell had been taken to the hospital Goldberg was arrested. It is understood that he fell asleep at the wheel.

BENEDICT COTTAGE RAIDED—PROPRIETOR UNDER BOND

Thomas W. Benedict, Ridgewood park, Waterford, former service man, was arrested last night, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. He will be in Waterford town court Monday next. In the meantime he is at liberty for he provided a surety on his bond of $1,000. William Hammerstein, Brooklyn, N. Y., and George Gray, Kenneth Fox, J. Johnson, Joseph Garlo, Leo Monti, Walter Brown and William Warner, all of this city, who were in the cottage when it was raided, were arrested on a charge of breach of the peace. They were released upon each of the young men furnishing a surety on his bond of $25. The state police had received several complaints that Benedict had started dispensing liquor at the Ridgewood park cottage and that he was having a liberal patronage. It was also reported that the ex-service man had boasted that he would not be molested, but would be allowed to sell to his clientele. However, during the night, Officers John Smith, William E. MacKenzie and Arthur Kathe went to the cottage and besides arresting Benedict and his customers, seized a large quantity of various brands of liquor.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Mother Brown's Great Surprise

The obstinate will always find
It difficult to change his mind.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy suspected Flip the Terrier of stealing Black Pussy's dinner each night. Mother Brown was sure that Flip had nothing to do with it. In spite of the fact that Black Pussy had grown more and more thin, Mother Brown was certain that she got her big dinner every night just the same. She insisted that Flip had no chance to get it. However, Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't satisfied and decided to keep an eye on Flip.

"I have it!" said Farmer Brown's Boy to himself. "I'll take Flip for a walk about the time that Black Pussy's dinner is put out in the shed for her."

So that evening Farmer Brown's Boy whistled to Bowser the Hound and Flip the Terrier and they took a long walk down on the Green Meadows. When they returned Farmer Brown's Boy saw at once that Black Pussy's dishes were empty. Black Pussy herself, however, was nowhere about. Presently, she came from the barn. She rubbed up against one of Farmer Brown's Boy's legs, arching her back and purring and saying "Meow!" It was the way she had always done when she was hungry and was teasing for something to eat. She acted exactly as if she hadn't had a mouthful. Farmer Brown's Boy went into the house and got her a saucer of milk. It seemed as if Black Pussy couldn't lap it up fast enough. Her master watched her and he was doing some hard thinking.

"Black Pussy certainly didn't get that dinner tonight," said he. "Neither did Flip nor Bowser the Hound. But somebody got it. It was somebody of whom Black Pussy is afraid. It must be somebody from outside. It must be somebody that goes in through that round doorway that we made for Black Pussy. I think I'll have a look at that doorway. Perhaps I'll learn something."

"Nothing but a hair," said he, "but it tells the whole story

He went over to the little round hole, by which Black Pussy could enter and leave the shed, and carefully examined the edge all around. In a moment or two he picked up something. Rather, he picked it from the edge. It was a hair. It was a much longer hair than one of Black Pussy's. Furthermore, it was black-and-white. Black Pussy's hair is, you know, all black. Farmer Brown's Boy grinned.

"Nothing but a hair," said he, "but it tells the whole story. Tonight Black Pussy shall have her supper. I'm going to put out another supper and just close this little doorway."

So Farmer Brown's Boy took Black Pussy into the house; then he went out into the shed and closed a little sliding door over the doorway that Black Pussy used. After this, he went to the pantry and began to prepare a good meal for Black Pussy.

"What are you doing?" demanded Mother Brown as she came into the kitchen.

"I am getting this half-starved Cat something to eat," replied Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Something to eat!" exclaimed Mother Brown. "Why, that Cat has cleaned up a plateful of food and a saucer of milk already."

Farmer Brown's Boy merely smiled. Then he took the food he had prepared out to the shed and called Black Pussy. Black Pussy came as far as the kitchen door and there she hesitated. She acted as if she were afraid. It took a lot of coaxing on the part of Farmer Brown's Boy to get Black Pussy down to those dishes of food. But when she did come, she ate as only a half-starved Cat can eat. Mother Brown stood in the doorway looking on and she was surprised—there was no doubt about it. Black Pussy ate everything and then teased for more. Mother Brown looked at her in amazement. You see, she was sure that this was the second supper that Black Pussy had had and she was too surprised for words when Black Pussy began teasing for more.

Eczema on Hand Caused Eruptions. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema started on the first finger of my left hand, and was in a rash, and after a while I noticed that it was spreading over my other fingers and the palm of my hand. It itched and burned so that I had to scratch. This caused eruptions that prevented me from putting my hand in water or doing my daily housework. The irritation prevented me from sleeping.

"I noticed Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised so sent for a free sample. I purchased more and within two months was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Anne N. Trainovich, 613 Main St., Cambridge, Mass.

Broadway Theater

The secret of the remarkable success enjoyed by George Arliss for thirty years on the American stage and screen is undoubtedly due to the long period of training he received as a struggling young actor, touring the English provinces.

The Arliss genius developed slowly. The master artist, whose crowning achievement in the minds of many is his Vitaphone version of "Old English" for Warner Bros., the current attraction at Warner's Broadway theater, spent many long and weary years learning the business of character acting.

After a moderate success in England and several successful seasons with a supporting cast in London, Arliss came to America with Mrs. Patrick Campbell to play four months.

"Old English" was the greatest stage success in which Arliss appeared. The Galsworthy drama has been faithfully and beautifully transferred to the screen with an impressive supporting cast under the able direction of Alfred E. Green.

Can your set meet this tone test?

Is the tone of your set merely pleasant, or gloriously true! Does it enable you to distinguish between instruments of similar tone quality—to hear vocal music reproduced without distortion over the entire tonal range? For example: Do the kettledrums have a distinct pitch, or do they just sound like thuds? Does a man's voice give the impression his head is in a barrel? Can you distinguish the letter "S" in speech? In an orchestra, do you find several or only one violin playing the same part? Does the violin radiate brilliancy, or does it always sound muted?

Investigate the lifelike tone of the new Grebe before you buy. The famous 7-check test enables you to compare directly with any other set. Get a test list from your nearest Grebe dealer.

GREENEVILLE

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

A very successful vaudeville show was held in St. Andrew's parish hall Tuesday evening, under the management of James Lockhart, the hall being filled to capacity.

The programme was as follows:

Selection, by Mrs. J. Olson at the piano; Jack and Jim with their banjos; dance, The Tin Soldier and the Rag Doll, by Misses Edith Blackburn and Helen Taft, Mrs. Harry Stebbins at the piano; songs, by Mrs. Beckwith; sketch entitled Dumb as a Door Knob, by Mrs. W. Walker and Mrs. S Lillibridge; two solos, by Mr. Lockhart and Miss Cole; banjo selection, by Jack and Jim; sketch, Special Sale, by W. Walker and Leonard Staubly; If I Had a Boy Like You, and Give Yourself a Pat on the Back, Mrs. Russell; sketch, by Mr. Walker and Mr. Staubly entitled Return of Barnacle Bill, the Sailor; sketch, by C. Lillibridge, and his girls, the cast being as follows: Bachelor, Mr. Lillibridge; school girl, Marion Buckley; high school girl, Inez Smith; college girl, Isabel Kennedy; summer girl, Rose Breckenridge; winter girl, Dorothy Waterman; dancer, Edith Woodmansee; widow, Mrs. Dorothy Rogers; bride, Anita Armstrong; solo, Memories, by Miss Amy Cole; Let Me Call You Sweetheart, by Mrs. Cole, Mr. Lillibridge and his girls, Mrs. Harry Stebbins at the piano.

The stage was beautifully decorated, scenery being loaned through the courtesy of E. Coit and Mr. Banfield.

Mrs. H. Sullivan, Miss Anna Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. John Connors, John Connors, Jr., and Miss Helen Connors have returned to their home at Cambridge, Mass., after spending a few days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Casey, on Prospect street.

Edward Riordan spent Tuesday in New Haven.

David Campbell Comfortable

The many friends of David Campbell, of Central avenue, will be pleased to learn that he is resting as comfortably as can be expected after undergoing an operation at the W. W. Backus hospital recently.

The Greeneville H club met Monday evening in their clubrooms. Regular business was transacted with President Wallace Atterbury presiding.

TAFTVILLE

Joseph Martin of Norwich avenue lost a valuable hound while hunting in Preston Monday. The dog picked up a piece of poisoned meat and died within three minutes.

With a large attendance the regular meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street.

Unclaimed letters at the local postoffice this week are for T. Stanley Krough and James Siedlicki.

The coon hunting season opened Monday, and the first trophy was brought in by John Ely of Newent road who bagged a small raccoon.

Local dealers are featuring Halloween novelties at this time. With the approach of this "dread" holiday, residents have begun to move their porch and lawn furniture indoors.

"Some Present Day Aspects of Prohibition in Connecticut" will be the topic of Rev. H. E. Olcott, a representative of the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon league, when he speaks Sunday at the Taftville Congregational church.

About 50 members of the Overseers' and Foremen's club sat down to a delicious oyster supper Tuesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building. After the supper there was a social hour and smoker in the clubrooms on the first floor of the building.

When the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor met Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, some of the members gave a musical program. There was a large attendance.

Many of those living in the outskirts of the village, whose water supply is from a well on their premises, are suffering from a shortage of water and are obliged to go long distances to obtain any. Some of the wells have been dry for almost a month. It is believed that unless there are some hard rains before the ground freezes that the shortage will exist all winter.

A number of local bird hunters reported kills on Monday, the opening of the game bird season in Connecticut. No pheasants were reported but there appears to be a good supply of grouse and woodcock. Quail are very plentiful but the state law prohibits the shooting of this variety of game bird. George W. Weller, Jr., of Blissville, brought in two grouse and a woodcock after a short expedition into the woods Monday.

W.C.T.U. STATE CONVENTION RE-ELECTS ITS OFFICERS AND ADOPTS PLATFORM

Officers were all re-elected as follows at the Wednesday afternoon session at 2:30 of the Women's Christian Temperance Union state convention at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church;

President, Mrs. Mary E. Welles, Hartford; vice president at large, Mrs. May B. Tuttle, Waterbury; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Sarah A. Hull, Bristol; recording secretary, Miss Ethel D. Barrows, New London; treasurer, Mrs. Nellie R. Arnold, Meriden. As each officer was elected she came to the platform and was given the White Ribbon cheer.

Platform Report

The report of the platform committee was given by Mrs. Tuttle and was accepted. It expressed thanks on behalf of the convention to the Norwich union, the church officers, the managers and employes of the Norwich Inn, the musicians and others and to The Bulletin and the Record for complimentary copies of the papers and for the press space given.

The platform said further;

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Connecticut sets its face toward a definite goal, the extermination of the beverage alcohol traffic.

We have had nearly eleven increasingly effective years of national, constitutional prohibition. However, now is not the time to relax our efforts. Instead of doing less work we must do more. As loyal citizens we recognize that personal obedience of the 18th amendment is essential to law enforcement.

Prohibition in Connecticut is made possible only through our state enforcement code. All efforts must bend toward the retention of that code. Our greatest task is to get the truth to the people. We are especially concerned with reaching those of the oncoming generations who never knew at first hand the beverage liquor traffic of pre-prohibition days. Our educational program must continue to the end that the men and women of tomorrow may know the truth which will insure continued freedom from the slavery of alcohol. We urge upon all temperance forces of the state the imperative necessity for teaching of scientific temperance in our public schools.

Education of all the people must be carried on. Debates, medal contest, exhibits and pageants, literature and posters, radio, the press and the platform are all ways by which we should give the vital facts to the people of Connecticut.

We must inform ourselves so we can meet sophistry with logic, falsehoods with facts, insidious suggestions with constructive arguments, and error with truth. To these ends may our determination be strengthened and our numbers increased.

Letters From Leaders

Letters to the convention were read from Mrs. Ella Boole, national president, and from Mrs. Anna A. Gordon of Evanston, Ill., world president of the W. C. T. U., and to both of these the convention voted to have letters of love and affection written in return. The letter of Mrs. Gordon mentioned the world convention to be held in Toronto in June, 1931.

Credentials Committee Reports

The report of the credentials committee by Mrs. Hull showed 117 voting delegates present.

Visiting Speakers

Visiting speakers during the afternoon included Chaplain Lewis of the submarine base at Groton, Andrew P. Solandt, field secretary of the Lord's Day league, Rev. W. B. Prettyman, superintendent of the Connecticut Temperance and Anti-Saloon league, and his assistant, W. D. Pardee. Rev. Mr. Prettyman told the convention that the anti-prohibition interests were out to spend money in this campaign, and he advised the W. C. T. U. members to vote for the man whom the wets don't want to see elected. He also advised that pressure be exercised upon the legislatures to secure the enforcement of state laws and to find out where the representatives stand on that subject.

There was a pleasing violin solo by Earl Swan and Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Ayer responded to the convention request that they sing one of their duets.

The afternoon programme closed with an interesting playlet entitled, "The New Y. P. B.," which was given by four members of the New London Young Peoples' Branch.

Medal Speaking Contest

At the evening session of the convention which was held at Trinity Methodist church at 7:45 with Mrs. May B. Tuttle presiding, the programme contained two features, the Light Line Pageant, which was given under the direction of Mrs. Addie M. Slate, and a diamond medal speaking contest under the direction of Mrs. Elva B. Castaldine of Bristol, state director of medal contests.

The service opened with the organ prelude by Waldo Newbury, Scripture reading and prayer, by Rev. Myron E. Genter, and an anthem, My Faith Looks Up To Thee, by the quartet of the Central Baptist church. These preceded the pageant, which was followed by a soprano solo by Miss Jessie Guthrie.

In the diamond medal contest there were six participants, who gave their selections in the following order:

Frances Minson, New London, Shall America Go Back; Phyllis Hamlin, East Hartford, Dolled-Up Booze; Lillian Larson, Newington, How We Beat The Wowsers; Everton Haines, Newington, Bill Jones' Neighbors; Allison Haines, Newington, Aki Captures a Great Army; Josephine Boublik, Durham, Mother's Song.

The judges, who were Mrs. Mabel P. Preusser, Waterbury; Mrs. Mary L. Marshall, Bridgeport, and Mrs. Anna K. Smith, Meriden, awarded the diamond medal to Josephine Boublik, the last speaker. She has already won three other medals in contests.

While the judges were deliberating, Miss Eileen Lewis of New London, who was the diamond medal winner at the Connecticut Chautauqua, gave her prize winning recitation which was entitled The Prohibition Question, of which Harry Emerson Fosdick was the author.

A number of awards were made by Mrs. Castaldine to county directors on the basis of the number of medal contests held.

The singing of "America The Beautiful" and the benediction by Rev. P. A. Kilmister brought the meeting to a close.

Morning Session

For the morning session the convention was called to order at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church by the president, Mrs. Mary E. Welles of Hartford, at 9 o'clock and a devotional service was conducted by Miss Ellen Coit.

Board Recommendations

The recommendations by the official board were offered as follows:

Looking forward to the work of our new year, the official board appointed a committee to prepare a revision of the efficiency standard to be acted upon at our convention. We thought it advisable to enlarge the possible number of points. In order that all may have time to consider the standard well before the time for action, we present it here.

State Standard of Excellence—10—Dues for all last year's living members sent state treasurer before March 1 or 5 points for half sent before March first. 10—All of state fund paid before May first. 20—Ten per cent net increase in active membership or five points for five per cent net increase. 10—Y. P. B. counsellor and Y. P. B. 10—L. T. L. secretary and L. T. L. 5—Honorary members equal to one-tenth active membership. 5—Union Signal subscriptions equal to one-sixth membership (including three officers). 5—Young Crusader subscriptions equal to one-sixth membership. 5—One yard or more publicity. 5—Requirements of Light Line union fulfilled. 5—S. T. I. essay contest. 5—Poster contest. 5—Two-session institute arranged by local union. 3—Three members attending state convention. 3—Three members attending county convention. 3—Three members attending state or county institute. 2—Each medal contest. 2—Each book placed in a public or school library. 1—Each foreign or Negro family actively neighbored. 15—Active work done and reported in three departments other than those represented in the above points of excellence. 5—Annual report mailed to state corresponding secretary by October 5.

The proposed awards are one dollar's worth of literature for reaching 80 points and two dollars' worth for reaching 100 points. As in the past seven years the loving cup goes to the union standing highest of all.

The basis of membership upon which these points are to be figured is the official report of the state treasurer as printed in the December White Ribbon Banner following the convention.

Reports of Department Directors

The recommendations were accepted as read and the reports of department directors were next heard. Those to report were: Mrs. Charlotte Jeice, Mrs. Hattie M. Newton of Durham, state institutions; Mrs. Elva B. Castaldine of Bristol, medal contests; Mrs. E. Slade of Bridgeport, Americanization; Miss Clara Martin of Bristol, scientific temperance; Mrs. Margaret Hood of South Manchester, foreign mission department; Mrs. Mary B. McKinnon of Galesville, medical temperance; general officers, legislation; Mrs. Ella F. Burr of Hartford, parliamentary usage; Mrs. Doris Spratt of Benton, promoter of literature; Miss Ethel D. Barrows of New London, soldiers and sailors; Mrs. Mary A. Gordon of Plymouth, Sunday school; Mrs. Addie M. Slate of South Manchester, temperance and missions; Mrs. Nathan Gilman of Bozrahville, international relations; Miss Elizabeth H. Fitts of Warehouse Point, narcotics.

Address by Rev. Dr. Spaulding

One of the features of the morning program was a stirring address by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding of New London on prohibition. In part Rev. Dr. Spaulding spoke as follows:

Prohibition today is the result of a hundred years of experimentation, of scientific observation, of education and of moral persuasion. We have tried every single thing that has ever been proposed for the elimination of the manifest evils of the traffic in beverage alcohol. Our friends, the wets have never yet produced an argument in behalf of their cause. Abraham Lincoln said "The liquor traffic has many defenders but no defense." They loudly demand modification without being able to present a substitute which has the least shadow of scientific ground for confidence. They ask us to discard the results of a hundred years of effort with no suggested alternative. Their worst indictment against prohibition is that it prohibits. The only grounds for a change is that the proponents do not wish the liquor traffic interfered with. The only possible alternative for prohibition is the return of the saloon with all its terrible influences. "State control" is the trap with which the wet cause at this moment seek to deceive the people of this country. Is it possible that our friends, the enemy, do not remember that we have tried that to our complete dissatisfaction. When the 18th amendment was passed there were 30 odd states under state prohibitory law. But they were not getting it, because state prohibition was and always must be a failure. The inter-state commerce commission permitted the transfer of liquor through prohibiting states and the trains were side-tracked and unloaded without an attempt to prevent this inundation of dry states by the connivance of wet interests. States rights are no rights at all, when they run into the craft of the business in beverage alcohol. Federal licenses to sell liquor in dry states made a roaring farce of the efforts of any states to protect itself and its youth from this age long curse. The Canadian system has been a great success—if you count it success to increase the amount of hard liquor sold and consumed, to increase drunkenness and crime, to render the streets of a Canadian city unsafe for women to traverse by night unattended, to increase bootlegging and speakeasies. If this is the success that patriotic well-wishers seek, then and not till then may we learn from the atrocious Canadian system anything of value.

Adopt Platform

Lunch was served in the dining room of the church between the hours of 12:15 and 1:30 o'clock and department conferences followed. The convention was again called to order at 2:30.

Convention Notes

A number of quilts prepared by the different unions about the state to be sent to tuberculosis sanatoriums were displayed at the front of the gallery in the church.

Souvenir booklets of Norwich were supplied by the Norwich chamber of commerce for distribution among the delegates.

Among those supplying flowers which were used in the attractive decorations were Mrs. Fremont Vergason, Mrs. Wellington Miner, Mrs. Ralph Gallup, Mrs. Bessie Browning, Miss Emily Wilcox, Miss Lillian Cross, Mrs. Richard Harding, Mrs. William Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Gilman, Mrs. Winifred Pulsifer, Fred M. Oat, Miss Marion Frink and Mrs. Frank Tyler.

The concluding session of the convention will be held this (Thursday) morning at 9:30. The election of directors of departments will take place and invitations to hold the 1931 convention will be received.

FRIDAY FINAL DAY TO REVISE VOTING LISTS

Two registrars of voters, Tyler D. Guy and Joseph B. Downes, are to be at their office at the court house on Friday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., in order to receive information of voters of the town who may have moved from one voting district to another, which makes it necessary to have their names changed on the printed district list. This is the last chance which voters have to get their names changed to the right district, if there is need of making the change, so that they may vote in the district where they belong on election day.

NORWICH TOWN

HALLOWEEN PLANS MADE KNOWN BY COMMITTEE

The Halloween celebration sponsored by Norwich Rural association, will be formally opened at 7:15 that evening with a costume parade. All school children of grade school age will be privileged to march. Children participating in the parade must be in costume and each will wear a number tag, to be eligible for prizes. Tags will be distributed at the Congregational chapel steps, Norwich Town, at 6:30 p. m. It is expected that Reginald and Gladys Laubin, of Providence, formerly of Norwich, will give a program of ghost dances on the Green following the parade. Officials of the Rural association who have been in communication with Mr. Laubin, from last reports, could not make a definite statement. It is anticipated nevertheless, that a similar program to that planned last year by Mr. and Mrs. Laubin will be carried out this year.

In case of rain the celebration will be held at Samuel Huntington school, West Town street. Posters concerning the celebration were placed at Huntington school, Norwich Town store, uptown, and at Mara's drug store, Norwich, Tuesday. The general committee comprises: President, Willard Haugh; Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, Flint Brayton, Past President Grosvenor Ely, James Moran, Benedict C. Pullen, Philip A. Johnson and Dr. James J. Donohue. The executive committee is made up of Mrs. Edwin V. Ross, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Haugh, County Agent of the Home and Farm Bureau Walter T. Clark and Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Waldo and James C. Mara. The judges are to be Mrs. Robert R. Agnew, Mrs. Willard Haugh, Rev. George W. Potter and James Boylan. Awarding prizes, Mrs. James C. Mara. President Haugh is to be the announcer. Miss Margaret Shugrue will be the director of the marching and Edward Jordan will act as bugler.

Edward Rich and Weston C. Pullen, Jr., will be the drummers in the parade. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Waldo will have charge of tagging. Walter T. Clark is chairman of the decorating committee; the posters were the hand work of Mrs. Clark.

Constable Lucius A. Fenton and two state police will direct the parking of automobiles. The judges' platform is being erected by Arthur Mullen.

Prizes are to be awarded for the most original, the funniest and the prettiest costumes.

LOCAL DEM. CANDIDATES ADDRESS 200 VOTERS AT TAFTVILLE RALLY

Pledging themselves to support the old age pension and the dirt roads programme, planks in the democratic state platform, William J. Fitzgerald, candidate for election as state senator from this district, and Irving Eisenstein and Raymond Girard, candidates for election as representatives to the general assembly from the town of Norwich, addressed a largely attended democratic rally at Parish hall, Taftville, Wednesday night. Edward G. Moran, prominent democratic party worker, presided at the rally which had an attendance of close to 200 voters.

Mr. Moran introduced as the first speaker Mr. Eisenstein, who in an enthusiastic address, publicly pledged himself to adherence to the democratic planks. He expressed himself as a supporter of the old age pension and the dirt roads programme which has for its object the improving of country roads now considered as practically impassable at certain seasons of the year.

Mr. Moran introduced as the next speaker, William J. Fitzgerald, candidate for election as state senator. In his introductory remarks Mr. Moran spoke of Mr. Fitzgerald's activity in behalf of the old age pension and the widow's pension. He said that Mr. Fitzgerald, as chairman of the recreational commission, is the idol of every child in the city.

"It certainly is a pleasure to come to Taftville tonight and speak in a hall," said Mr. Fitzgerald, in his opening remarks. He said there was a sharp contrast with the open air rally which the party held at Occum Monday night. The speaker went on to say that it had been planned to hold the Occum rally in a hall, but that through political trickery on the part of the opposing party, those in charge of the rally, arrangements found themselves out in the street. He said the rally plans went through as the speakers secured a soap box and spoke in the open air.

With reference to the controversy over tuberculosis facilities, Mr. Fitzgerald said that there are 360 people in the state afflicted with tuberculosis who are waiting and begging admission to the tuberculosis sanatoria. "The tuberculosis sanatorium in our district has a waiting list of 90," he said. And continuing, Mr. Fitzgerald said: "We can prove, without a doubt that there have been cases where people have died of tuberculosis before they could be admitted to a sanatorium. He told of one case, of a boy who became afflicted with tuberculosis last June, who died two or three days after he was admitted to the local tuberculosis sanatorium.

"We pledge ourselves to wipe out not only the waiting list for admission to the tubercular sanatoria, but to take care of future needs," he said. Mr. Fitzgerald also pledged himself to work in the interests of the dirt roads programme.

With reference to the old age pension plank in the democratic platform Mr. Fitzgerald said the cry is "Where are we going to get the money?" "Where do they get the money to pension off the judges of the courts, the school teachers and state employes?" he asked.

"I pledge you, if I am successful in the election, that I will not only vote for the old age pension, but will fight for it," Mr. Fitzgerald said. "I am just as sure as I am standing here, that I am going to be elected," he added. In conclusion Mr. Fitzgerald said: "I urge you to vote for the democratic party, to put it in power where it rightfully belongs."

Mr. Moran then addressed the gathering. "Two years ago we were waging a bitter political campaign in which our republican friends were victorious," he said. "Republican speakers were traveling the country cautioning the voters not to make a mistake by electing the democratic ticket. They cautioned the voters that prosperity could only follow a republican victory. My friends, what are you facing today. Have they brought you that full dinner pail? It seems to me they have gone so far as to take that dinner pail away," Mr. Moran said.

With reference to Dean Cross, gubernatorial candidate on the democratic ticket, Mr. Moran said: "We have at the head of our ticket, a man who knows no dictatorship. J. Henry Roraback, at a recent republican dinner at Red Top, said the democrats had named a man, "he thought his name was Croes.' "Well, J. Henry Roraback knows today that his name is Cross and he will know it better on November 5th, The only objection our republican friends can bring against our candidate for governor is that he is a college professor. I am confident that we are at the cross roads and that the people of Connecticut are going to make a change," Mr. Moran said.

He then introduced as the final speaker, Raymond Girard, democratic candidate for election as representative from Norwich. Mr. Girard addressed the gathering in the French language, pledging himself to support the planks in the democratic platform.

SPARKS FROM CHIMNEY SET FIRE ON ROOF

Sparks from the chimney on the home of Albert Boardman, 31 Slater avenue set the roof of the house on fire late Wednesday afternoon and the fire department was called to the house at 4:54 p. m. A hole about four feet square was burned in the roof, but the blaze was checked by the use of 43 gallons of chemical by Companies 1 and 3 and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan.

A Kitchen is Only as Good As the Cook That's in It...

• We are always reading, these days, of modern inventions for the kitchen. • But no one can invent a GOOD COOK. • Good cookery is a personal art ...as personal as writing a story. • GOOD COOKS and Heckers' Flour have this one thing in common: both understand the language of quality. • For 90 years Heckers' Flour ... this superlative flour ... has lived with the fine traditions of good things to eat. • It has been the choice of good cooks for its satiny texture and desirable dryness. • It is milled of the very best wheats in the world. And the rich body and superior flavor shows itself in the good cook's cookery.

WIDESPREAD COOPERATION TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

Reports Tell of Several Thousand Men Being Called Back to Work and of Plants Preparing to Resume Operations—Business Leaders of the Major Industries Express the Opinion That the "Turning Point" Has Been Reached—New York City Has $1,000,000 in Its Budget For Unemployment Relief and is Making Preparations to Care For the Destitute

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP) —A series of items of business optimism sang across the wires of the nation today—the first anniversary of the stock market crash.

They told of several thousand men being called back to full time jobs, of plants preparing to resume normal operations and, in one instance, of an increase in wages.

President Hoover's committee on unemployment began functioning at Washington, and municipal agencies made definite movements for the relief of local conditions.

None would minimize the seriousness of the present situation, but there was an undercurrent of increasing optimism in the day's news.

From Detroit came announcement that the ten plants of the Fisher Body corporation outside Detroit would resume full time operation Monday. Between 6,000 and 7,000 men who have been working only three days a week will benefit. The plans are situated in every area of the country.

The Yellow Cab company of Chicago, reporting a steady increase in business since September, made public plans to add 1,000 men to its present force of 4,000. In San Francisco the Yellow Cab company increased the wages of its 1,000 workers by 25 cents a day, at the same time raising its cab rates.

Business leaders of major industries, in conference at Chicago, expressed the opinion that the "turning point" had been reached. One speaker, George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mills company, pointed out that production of steel ingots and castings had increased from 14,000,000 to 56,000,000 tons, and he predicted still further increase in the next decade.

On the other side of the picture was the action of the Emerson Shoe company, of Rochester, N. H., which reduced wages 10 to 20 per cent to its 250 employes. But even this action, which other concerns have taken, was explained to meet an admittedly abnormal situation in a manner calculated to cause the least interruption to business and to employment.

In somewhat the same approach to the problem, the Public Service Coordinated transport, a bus and trolley company of Trenton, N. J., announced it would drop temporarily its application for an increase in fares and return to the flat 5-cent rate in established zones. The action was explained as a move to "aid business conditions."

New York city has $1,000,000 in its budget set aside for unemployment relief, and a house to house canvass was started today to determine the extent of unemployment in that city so that the problem might be met promptly.

At Washington, Colonel Arthur Woods tackled the problem of conquering unemployment on a national scale. His first pronouncement was a call to American industry to cooperate in the alleviation of suffering among unemployed this winter.

The request was met immediately by the United States shipping board and the post office department, which announced their readiness to cooperate fully with the plans for unemployment remedies. The war department already is taking a part, seeking the cooperation of contractors along the Mississippi river and its tributaries to furnish more general employment. War department engineers have been instructed to inquire into all possible projects which can be pushed ahead so as to bring unemployment relief in various localities.

Chairman Legge said the federal farm board would be glad to make its holdings of approximately sixty million bushels of wheat available as food for the unemployed, if congress would replace the money used by the Grain Stabilization corporation for its purchase.

NEW YORK CITY BREPARING TO CARE FOR THE DESTITUTE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.— (AP)— The city made preparations today to serve from 12,000 to 15,000 meals a day during the coming winter to the unemployed, and to shelter 3,000 nightly in the municipal lodging house and a recreation pier in the East river which is to be converted into barracks.

While these plans were under way Public Welfare Commissioner Frank Taylor estimated that there were already 10,000 persons homeless in the city, and police were checking up to see whether unofficial estimates that 800,000 were out of work were correct.

Commissioner Taylor said the 10,000 homeless were composed of both the actually destitute and others who still had enough resources to permit their patronizing the 35 and 40-cent "flop houses."

Police began this morning visiting all dwellings on their beats to determine the actual number of unemployed and to what extent women and children were affected. The survey was expected to be completed on Monday.

The compilation of the police reports will serve as a basis for working out a detailed program for the best way to spend the $1,000,000 set aside in the city's budget for unemployment relief.

GOVT. MAKING PLANS TO PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—The federal government took concrete steps today to stem the tide of unemployment as the Hoover cabinet committee set up to handle the problem began functioning.

Coincident with a call from Colonel Arthur Woods, the relief director, asking industry to cooperate, government departments announced plans to provide employment to a number of the 3,500,000 idle Americans.

The postoffice department took steps to suspend overtime work to regular employes in order that substitutes may obtain employment. Orders to this effect will go forward tomorrow.

Colonel Woods spent most of the day in getting in touch with men in industry to handle various phases of the committee's work he also plans to study the advisability of immediately setting up state organizations.

He said he not only expected industry to do its part, but added "I see that it is already doing so." He said he expected more cooperation.

Within a few days, he added, he expects to announce the set up of his working organization. However, he said, he did not know whether he would be able to get all the men he desired and would go to New York Monday to consult with several he had in mind. Colonel Woods said he hoped he would be able to reassemble the personnel of the 1921 unemployment conference, which he directed for President Hoover when the chief executive was secretary of commerce.

COP'S BULLETS FATAL TO YOUTHFUL BRISTOL BANDIT

BRISTOL, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Five bullet wounds inflicted by a policeman during a drug store robbery, resulted today in the death of Edmund R. Theriault, 21.

Wounded last night by Patrolman Edward O'Connor as he was backing out of the store with the contents of the cash register, Theriault died in the Bristol hospital this morning. The robbery, in which he got $17 in cash and two checks for small amounts, was planned by the youth, police believe, as a means of obtaining money to pay back a $25 loan to his mother.

Patrolman O'Connor was in the drug store chatting with John F Rock, who was in charge, when Theriault, his head covered with a black hood, entered the place. While Rock was handing over the contents of the register to the robber, O'Connor jumped behind a showcase. Theriault fired two shots at the patrolman and then his automatic jammed. Both bullets went wild. O'Connor returned the fire with more success.

COL. LINDBERGH FORCED BACK BY FOG AND SMOKE

MC KEESPORT, Pa., Oct. 23—(AP)—The weather, and there was all sorts of it, today thwarted completion of an inspection trip over the eastern link of the new line of the Trans-Continental-Western Air Transport, Inc., by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the concern's technical advisory committee.

The colonel arrived at Bettis field here shortly before 1 p. m. from Harrisburg, refueled his ship and started for Columbus, Ohio, where he expected to spend the night. He took off into fog and smoke, which made for poor visibility that forced him back to McKeesport after he had covered only a few miles of the distance to the Ohio capital.

Colonel Lindbergh was expected to resume his trip tomorrow morning.

ST. PAUL WOMAN HAS BEEN IN A COMMA FOR 52 DAYS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Max Beghtol has been in a coma for 52 days.

Knocked unconscious September 2 when a taxicab collided with a truck, Mrs. Beghtol, wife of a Lincoln, Neb., attorney is given only a slight chance by physicians to recover from the two skull fractures and multiple injuries she suffered.

She is able to swallow food slowly but otherwise gives no indication of consciousness.

The attending physicians fear she will contract pneumonia and die unconscious.

HOSTILITIES IN BRAZIL HINDERED BY RAINS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Heavy spring rains today brought a new defense to the aid of the federals who are opposing revolutionists in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector, scene of the hottest fighting thus far in the Brazilian civil war.

At Itarare, around which heavy conflicts have centered for more than a week, the river Parana-Panema has swollen until it provides a natural defense for the government troops and has halted attempted forays by the rebels. Itarare is on the lower Parana-Sao Paulo border.

PRIZE WON BY TINY EGG WEIGHING 6-10 OF A GRAM

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—An egg so tiny it would take 1135 of them to make a standard dozen, won a prize today as the smallest egg at the New Jersey Poultry Fanciers' association show. It weighs six tenths of a gram.

JUDGE VAUSE ACQUITED OF FALSIFYING TAX RETURN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Former County Judge W. Bernard Vause, charged with falsifying his income tax return for 1926, was acquited by a jury in Brooklyn federal court tonight.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

WARSAW, Oct. 23.—(AP)— Windows were smashed today in the building of the British consulate in renewed anti-British demonstrations organized by the 'He'Chalutz, Zionist youth pioneer organization, in protest against the British statement of policy on Palestine.

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Anna II coal mine disaster of Tuesday, one of the worst in Germany's history, took a death toll that had reached 255 tonight and it was believed a few more would be found in the debris-filled labyrinths of the mine.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Jewish telegraphic agency was informed today that the World Zionist executive had called an emergency meeting of the World Zionist actions committee in London Nov. 4 to deal with the crisis in the Zionist movement created as a result of the British government's statement of policy in Palestine.

MRS. DORAN'S CONCEPTION OF A PERFECT HOSTESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. — (AP) — Claiming success for her non-alcoholic cocktail launched a year ago, Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the commissioner of industrial alcohol, now plans to introduce to the country a new concept of the perfect hostess.

The new model will make her debut at the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Houston November 14. She has been evolved as the result of a nation-wide symposium of women conducted by Mrs. Doran.

In contrast to the perfect hostess of years gone by, whose chief duty was to please her guests, the new 1931 pattern of hospitality chosen by the temperance women will make her guests' desires, if necessary, subordinate.

She will: First, put her guests at ease and make them feel at home; second, so tactfully but firmly imprint her own personality on any function in her home that her guests will take what she serves and like it. Third, dispense only the hospitality which conforms with the laws of her city and state.

LIQUOR SHIP AGROUND ON GARDINER'S ISLAND

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The speedboat Helen, of New York, with a valuable cargo of liquor, was hard aground on Gardiner's Island tonight, where she had been driven under a hail of machine gun fire last night by a coast guard patrol boat.

The patrol boat Eagle was standing by tonight with an idea of salvaging the damaged craft, and towing it and its load of liquor here.

The Helen's crew deserted as soon as they reached the speedboat and escaped in the darkness. A landing party was unable to find any trace of them.

BANDIT SHOT DEAD BY POLICEMEN IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. — (AP)—One of two bandits who attempted to holdup a jewelry salesman on the ground floor of a building in the heart of the downtown business district today was shot to death but his companion escaped while bullets sent noonday crowds scurrying to safety.

The dead man was identified as Joseph Pieto, 32, of New York. Police said he had a criminal record and was wanted by Boston authorities. He was shot through the left lung and in the arm by bullets fired by two traffic policemen after a short chase.

NQUIRY INTO BANKING SYSTEMS TO OPEN NOV. 15

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The senate's inquiry into the operation of banking systems will open November 15 under tentative plans announced today by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, chairman of the investigating committee.

The hearings promise to give an insight into the operations of the stock exchanges, where fluctuations in stock prices have created considerable interest both at the capitol and the white house, but the investigation itself is not aimed at the stock exchanges.

Pending conferences with the other committee members, Senator Glass is announcing no definite plans for the study other than to emphasize that it will be conducted into all phases of the national and federal reserve banking systems.

TWO MEN CRUSHED TO DEATH BY TUNNEL CAVE-IN

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Two men lost their lives and a third was injured seriously in the cave-in of a railroad tunnel that buried a Wheeling & Lake Erie freight train near Adena, 25 miles southwest of here today.

The dead were E. E. Duga, 55, of Dillonvale, and Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor. The injured trainman was Al Romando, 35, who suffered a crushed hip and a broken arm and leg.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED ALEXANDER PANTAGES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23—(AP)—The state supreme court late today granted the petition of Attorney General U. S Webb for a reconsideration of the appellate court's order giving Alexander Pantages a retrial on an assault charge.

The theatre magnate was convicted in Los Angeles of assaulting Eunice Pringle, 17 year old dancer. The appellate court granted him a new trial.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending October 22 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $2,613,000,000 representing a decrease of $139,000,000 from the preceding week.

PLAN TO RELIEVE CUBAN SUGAR MARKET SURPLUSES

HAVANA, Oct. 23—(AP)—The Cuban house of representatives was called into an extraordinary session today to discuss a project drawn up by the Chadbourne committee on a plan for financing hold-over sugars—a plan calculated to relieve the market of sugar surpluses and stabilize prices.

President Of China Baptized A Christian

Ceremony Was Performed by a Chinese Pastor, a Graduate of M. E. Mission

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.—(AP) —President Chiang Kai-Shek of China has been converted to Christianity.

Appearing unexpectedly in Shanghai late today, the generalissimo went to the home of his mother-in-law, Madame K. T. Soong, and was baptized into the Christian faith by sprinkling, according to the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

The ceremony was performed by a Chinese pastor, the Rev. Z. I. Kuang, a graduate of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Mission university at Soochow. The mission's headquarters is at Nashville, Tenn. Chiang explained his action in these words:

"I feel the need of a God such as Jesus Christ."

The president's conversion was a distinct surprise to Shanghai. Only a few intimates, mostly relatives, attended the ceremonies after the chief executive came from the capital at Nanking.

Christian circles heralded the baptism with great joy and said it struck a blow at communism. Communists have been directing attacks at foreigners recently and particularly at Christianity as being representative of foreignism.

Pastor Kuang said he did not expect Chiang to take an active part in church affairs, as he is too busy with government duties, but "he and the spirit of Jesus Christ within him will go marching on."

The president's conversion is believed due to influence of Christian relatives. His wife, the former Mei-ling Soong, and Madame Soong, her mother, have been devout Christians for years as have other members of the Soong family.

The late Dr. Sun Yat-sen was a Christian. Another famous general who once espoused Christianity was Feng Yu-Hsiang. He was known as "The Christian general" and had his entire army baptised. Later he is said to have renounced his faith under the influence of bolshevism.

An instance of Chiang Kai-Shek's pre-conversion partiality to Christianity was seen in 1925 when a dentist at the Yale-in-China mission at Changsha extracted an aching tooth for the general. He was so grateful that when his armies later surged through the country he ordered the Yale buildings spared.

Another associate of Chiang's who is an outstanding Christian is H. H. Kung, minister of commerce and labor, and a descendant of Confucius. Before conversion Chiang had no formal religion.

William M. Hekking, director of a Buffalo, N. Y., art gallery, said he would go to Boston immediately to lay before police what he called detailed evidence against an alleged fake art ring now under investigation by Boston authorities.

Demonstrations By Zionists In Warsaw

British E-bassy Appealed For Prote[illegible] to the Polish Author[illegible]

WAR[illegible] Oct. 23.— (AP) —Anti-Britis[illegible] [illegible]onstrations by Zionist sym[illegible]s protesting against the [illegible]atement of policy on Palestine [illegible]day caused the British embassy [illegible] appeal for protection to the [illegible]sh authorities.

The Jewish telegraphic agency reports that Roy Young Zionists, members of the Heichalutz, Zionist youth organization, were arrested after demonstrating in front of the British embassy and the consulate.

The Polish government has permitted the holding of a huge protest meeting Saturday night on condition that there be no street demonstrations afterwards.

18 ALLEGED RUM RUNNER ARRESTED AT MARBLEHEAD

BOSTON, Oct. 23.— (AP) —Eighteen men were arrested at Marblehead early today when police intercepted a large shipment of contraband liquor and they pleaded not guilty to violating the revenue laws when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, here. They were held for a hearing November 1 and released in bail furnished by a bonding company.

The following were held in $5,000 each: Myer Klinosky and his brother, Jacob; Samuel Gordon, Tony Morino, Max Shapiro, Louis Gordon, John Page, John Castle and Frank Farris, all of Boston, and Charles McDonald, of Everett and Fred Wilson, of Gloucester.

The other seven, who were held in $2500 each were: Captain Edward W. Flynn, of the Salem fire department; Charles Welch, of Salem; Frank Lucas, of Boston; Joseph Belanger, of Salem; Michael Ross, of Boston; Martin Keegan, of Lynn, and Edward Gauthier, of Salem.

More than 500 cases of liquor were seized by the police, who turned the contraband and their prisoners over to federal authorities.

ANOTHER SLAYING BY GANGSTERS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Joe Aiello, once of gangland's royalty, fell dead before enemy machine guns tonight, wearing a cheap suit that testified to the decline of the near North Side mob in the face of "Scarface Al" Capone's merciless opposition.

Fifteen or twenty of the machine gun slugs, fired from a passing automobile, had struck the man.

Aiello is one of the 20 men listed by the Chicago crime commission as "public enemies." He, his brothers, and George "Bugs" Moran, who was released under $10,000 bond today on a vagrancy charge, long reigned supreme in the North Side of Chicago in the traffic in liquor, gambling and vice.

TO CRUSH COMMUNIST WAR ON CHRISTIANS IN CHINA

Nationalists Government Aroused By New Reports of Outrages Against Foreigners—Government Will Throw Its Full Strength Into Crushing the Reds Who Recently Massacred Thousands of Persons and Plundered Foreign Missions

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.— (AP) —The nationalist government moved again today to crush the bloody communist war on Christians in China, as new reports of outrages against foreigners were reported.

Foreign Minister Wang announced the government will throw "its full strength into crushing the reds" who recently massacred thousands of persons and plundered foreign missions as part of a campaign of wholesale murder, robbery and incendiarism in Kiangsi province.

The minister insisted, however, the government could not be held responsible for safety of foreigns who persisted in remaining in dangerous areas.

Informed several American and other foreign missionaries were forced to flee from Jaochow, Kingtechen and Kian to save their lives from reds waging bitter warfare upon foreign and Chinese Christians, Wang said:

"American and other foreign missionaries have been repeatedly warned not to enter bandit and communist infested portions of the interior. While the nationalist government is trying to obtain release of missionaries held in Kiangsi and other provinces the government can not be held responsible for welfare of foreigns who persist in remaining in districts already dangerous or likely to become battlefields between government troops and communists.

"Conditions existing in central China afford a vivid picture of what the entire country will be like if the reds gain the upper hand.

"Communism at present is an abstract problem in America and other nations. It has become an active menace in China. Therefore the government plans to throw its full strength into crushing the reds."

Writing from his place of concealment near Yoyang lake in northern Kiangsi, Father Verdini, an Italian priest, gave details of the looting by reds of the Lazarist mission at Jaochow and the flight of himself and other missionaries. Verdini's letter, dated October 14, said he knew of no missionaries being killed.

Five thousand communists, said Verdini, descended upon Jaochow after nationalist guards had fled. All mission property was destroyed. Shops and townspeople were robbed and many slain.

The missionaries fled. Verdini thought Bishop Sheehan of Streeter, Illinois, director of the Jaochow mission, had escaped to Fuchow, 100 miles away, where he might be safe although in a dangerous region.

Verdini believed Father Altenburg, of Milwaukee, had reached Wuyuan, southern Anhwei province, Tuesday.

Father L. J. Coyle, of Lincoln, Neb., escaped toward Nanchang. Leo Moore, of Perryville, Mo., fled with Verdini and Father Meyer, a Dutch priest, on a Chinese junk on Yoyang lake. The priests hoped to escape from reds active about the lake.

Verdini also reported the looting of Kingtechen, from which "eight out of every ten residents have fled to the countryside while those remaining have turning robbers or reds."

Chinese press dispatches reported a swarm of well armed bandits attacked Tsingkiang, 100 miles northwest of Shanghai, last night. Fierce fighting resulted in "both sides suffering many casualties."

The nationalist government, the dispatches adde, ordered reinforcements and bombing airplanes left Nanking to attack the outlaws. It is expected the bandits will be routed within two or three days.

INDICTED FOR ALLEGED INCOME TAX LAW VIOLATIONS

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Three brothers, excavating contractors who were reported to have done $5,000,000 worth of work for the sanitary district were indicted by a federal grand jury today for alleged income tax law violations.

The brothers, all executives in the same firm, were Thomas P. Dowdle, Raymond R. Dowdle and John J. Dowdle. Thomas and Raymond were named in an additional indictment charging that they made false deductions for operating expenses in filing their income tax returns.

The indictment was the second to be returned by a federal grand jury investigating sanitary district expenditures. The first named the U. S. A. company, which performed work for the district on sub contracts from the Dowdle brothers.

Bond was fixed at $25,000 for each defendant.

DEFRAUDER OF HARTFORD WOMAN HELD IN $50,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Eight additional complaints have been filed since his arrest Tuesday against Walter M. Miller, who is charged with defrauding Mrs. Mary Hotchkiss of Hartford, Conn., of $110,000.

This was revealed by the prosecutor's office today when Miller applied for a writ of habeas corpus. The application was denied and bail of $50,000 continued.

Mrs. Hotchkiss was questioned at length today in the attorney general's office concerning the stock deals by which she lost her money. Miller was arrested as he met Mrs. Hotchkiss at a railroad station in accordance, she said, with a plan whereby she was to turn $100,000 more over to him.

DIAMOND STILL DENIES THAT HE KNEW ASSAILANTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—In a cheerful, communicative mood, Jack "Legs" Diamond related from his hospital bed today what he said was the true story of how he was mowed down by the bullets of rival gangsters who invaded his hotel room on the morning of October 12.

He gave a detailed account of the attack to District Attorney Crain, who visited him in Metropolitan hospital on Welfare Island, and reiterated his denial that he knew the identity of his assailants.

"I tell you honestly," he asserted, "that if I knew who shot me I would tell you. I never saw the men before. There was no reason for anybody to shoot me or even to beat me up."

LOW BID FOR CONSTRUCTION OF FOUR NEW VESSELS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—The shipping board announced today the Federal Ship Building and Dry Dock company of Kearny, N. J., has made the low bid for four new vessels to be constructed for the Panama Mail and the Grace Steamship companies.

Federal bid $15,920,000 for all four vessels with electric winches and $16,830,000 with steam winches. It also bid $15,692,000 to build double gear reduction ships with electric winches and $15,602,000 with steam winches.

The owners of the lines have asked the shipping board for a loan to cover three fourths of the cost.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF TWO AUTOGIRO AIRCRAFT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23—(AP)—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Davis S. Ingalls and Commander Robert Potter Molten visited the Pitcairn field at Willow Grove today and watched C. J. Faulkner and Jim Ray, Pitcairn pilots, take two Autogiro crafts aloft.

Secretary Ingalls then took over the controls of the latest American machine, with Commander Molten in another, and, without any previous instruction, made an extended flight.

The secretary was of the opinion the Autogiro has a number of uses outside combat work in the navy.

ASSISSI, ITALY, PREPARING FOR ROYAL WEDDING

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 23—(AP)—This gentle little town of St. Francis, the apostle of peace and good will, tonight resembled a city occupied by general headquarters in a zone of war.

In the convent dedicated to repose and meditation, adjoining the church where King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy will be married Saturday, smartly turned out Bersaglieri strolled today, their coxcomb plumes waving in the breeze. Other religious buildings, too, are holding their quota of King Victor Emanuel's men.

A bandstand has been erected in the central square of this historic city, and there military musicians will put zest into the simple life of Assisi during the wedding festivities.

All day long detachments of troops that will line the way of the bridal couple were sternly drilled for the gala events of Saturday.

CATHOLIC MISSIONARIES IN CHINA HEMMED IN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Word reached the state department tonight from the American consul at Hongkong that eight American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow, Kiangsi province, were unable to leave there for places of safety.

The message was sent to the consulate at Hong Kong by Father McGillicudy, who said he had received a letter from the missionaries dated October 9. Their names were given as Bishop Oshea and Father Cahill, Strauvel, Curtis, Erbe, McLaughlin, Young, and McHringer.

McGillicudy informed the consul he was alarmed for the safety of the missionaries in view of the communist capture of Kian in the province.

The missionaries were warned repeatedly during past months to leave for places of safety but declined to do so.

TO PROBE PUNISHMENT AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

HARTFORD, Oct. 23.— (AP)— Gov. John H. Trumbull today promised immediate appointment of a disinterested commission to investigate charges that prisoners in solitary confinement at the state prison in Wethersfield have been subjected to brutal treatment.

The investigation will be conducted at the request of the prison directors, who, in a letter to the governor, said that because of "malicious, irresponsible and ignorant" charges made concerning conditions at the prison, they felt compelled to ask for a disinterested investigation "not in the spirit of defense, but rather in a spirit of challenge to our accusers."

PLUMBERS FOUND RINGS WORTH $4,500 IN DRAIN PIPE

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 23—(AP)—Plumbers were probing a maze of pipes today in an effort to recover $4,500 worth of diamond rings that were dropped in a drain in an appartment house.

Mrs. Sam Fertitta, owner of the jewels, the largest weighing four carats, said the rings were wrapped in a handkerchief. Screens were placed over all taps leading from the building. Many feet of pipe have been taken out and inspected a joint at a time and the sidewalk outside was taken up to get to the main sewer pipe.

MARRIAGE OF JOHN ROBERT GREGG AND JANET KINLEY

GALLUP, N. M., Oct. 23—(AP)—John Robert Gregg, of New York, inventor of the Gregg system of shorthand, and Janet Kinley, daughter of David Kinley, former president of the University of Illinois, were married here today in a private ceremony at the home of C. N. Cotton, a relative of the bride.

When the marriage license was obtained, Gregg gave his age as 63 and the bride as 30. The couple left this afternoon for Albuquerque, from where they will go to New York.

WIDESPREAD COOPERATION TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

Reports Tell of Several Thousand Men Being Called Back to Work and of Plants Preparing to Resume Operations—Business Leaders of the Major Industries Express the Opinion That the "Turning Point" Has Been Reached—New York City Has $1,000,000 in Its Budget For Unemployment Relief and is Making Preparations to Care For the Destitute

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP) —A series of items of business optimism sang across the wires of the nation today—the first anniversary of the stock market crash.

They told of several thousand men being called back to full time jobs, of plants preparing to resume normal operations and, in one instance, of an increase in wages.

President Hoover's committee on unemployment began functioning at Washington, and municipal agencies made definite movements for the relief of local conditions.

None would minimize the seriousness of the present situation, but there was an undercurrent of increasing optimism in the day's news.

From Detroit came announcement that the ten plants of the Fisher Body corporation outside Detroit would resume full time operation Monday. Between 6,000 and 7,000 men who have been working only three days a week will benefit. The plans are situated in every area of the country.

The Yellow Cab company of Chicago, reporting a steady increase in business since September, made public plans to add 1,000 men to its present force of 4,000. In San Francisco the Yellow Cab company increased the wages of its 1,000 workers by 25 cents a day, at the same time raising its cab rates.

Business leaders of major industries, in conference at Chicago, expressed the opinion that the "turning point" had been reached. One speaker, George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mills company, pointed out that production of steel ingots and castings had increased from 14,000,000 to 56,000,000 tons, and he predicted still further increase in the next decade.

On the other side of the picture was the action of the Emerson Shoe company, of Rochester, N. H., which reduced wages 10 to 20 per cent to its 250 employes. But even this action, which other concerns have taken, was explained to meet an admittedly abnormal situation in a manner calculated to cause the least interruption to business and to employment.

In somewhat the same approach to the problem, the Public Service Coordinated transport, a bus and trolley company of Trenton, N. J., announced it would drop temporarily its application for an increase in fares and return to the flat 5-cent rate in established zones. The action was explained as a move to "aid business conditions."

New York city has $1,000,000 in its budget set aside for unemployment relief, and a house to house canvass was started today to determine the extent of unemployment in that city so that the problem might be met promptly.

At Washington, Colonel Arthur Woods tackled the problem of conquering unemployment on a national scale. His first pronouncement was a call to American industry to cooperate in the alleviation of suffering among unemployed this winter.

The request was met immediately by the United States shipping board and the post office department, which announced their readiness to cooperate fully with the plans for unemployment remedies. The war department already is taking a part, seeking the cooperation of contractors along the Mississippi river and its tributaries to furnish more general employment. War department engineers have been instructed to inquire into all possible projects which can be pushed ahead so as to bring unemployment relief in various localities.

Chairman Legge said the federal farm board would be glad to make its holdings of approximately sixty million bushels of wheat available as food for the unemployed, if congress would replace the money used by the Grain Stabilization corporation for its purchase.

NEW YORK CITY BREPARING TO CARE FOR THE DESTITUTE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.— (AP)— The city made preparations today to serve from 12,000 to 15,000 meals a day during the coming winter to the unemployed, and to shelter 3,000 nightly in the municipal lodging house and a recreation pier in the East river which is to be converted into barracks.

While these plans were under way Public Welfare Commissioner Frank Taylor estimated that there were already 10,000 persons homeless in the city, and police were checking up to see whether unofficial estimates that 300,000 were out of work were correct.

Commissioner Taylor said the 10,000 homeless were composed of both the actually destitute and others who still had enough resources to permit their patronizing the 35 and 40-cent "flop houses."

Police began this morning visiting all dwellings on their beats to determine the actual number of unemployed and to what extent women and children were affected. The survey was expected to be completed on Monday.

The compilation of the police reports will serve as a basis for working out a detailed program for the best way to spend the $1,000,000 set aside in the city's budget for unemployment relief.

GOVT. MAKING PLANS TO PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—The federal government took concrete steps today to stem the tide of unemployment as the Hoover cabinet committee set up to handle the problem began functioning.

Coincident with a call from Colonel Arthur Woods, the relief director, asking industry to cooperate, government departments announced plans to provide employment to a number of the 3,500,000 idle Americans.

The postoffice department took steps to suspend overtime work to regular employes in order that substitutes may obtain employment. Orders to this effect will go forward tomorrow.

Colonel Woods spent most of the day in getting in touch with men in industry to handle various phases of the committee's work he also plans to study the advisability of immediately setting up state organizations.

He said he not only expected industry to do its part, but added "I see that it is already doing so." He said he expected more cooperation.

Within a few days, he added, he expects to announce the set up of his working organization. However, he said, he did not know whether he would be able to get all the men he desired and would go to New York Monday to consult with several he had in mind. Colonel Woods said he hoped he would be able to reassemble the personnel of the 1921 unemployment conference, which he directed for President Hoover when the chief executive was secretary of commerce.

COP'S BULLETS FATAL TO YOUTHFUL BRISTOL BANDIT

BRISTOL, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Five bullet wounds inflicted by a policeman during a drug store robbery, resulted today in the death of Edmund R. Theriault, 21.

Wounded last night by Patrolman Edward O'Connor as he was backing out of the store with the contents of the cash register, Theriault died in the Bristol hospital this morning. The robbery, in which he got $17 in cash and two checks for small amounts, was planned by the youth, police believe, as a means of obtaining money to pay back a $25 loan to his mother.

Patrolman O'Connor was in the drug store chatting with John F Rock, who was in charge, when Theriault, his head covered with a black hood, entered the place. While Rock was handing over the contents of the register to the robber, O'Connor jumped behind a showcase. Theriault fired two shots at the patrolman and then his automatic jammed. Both bullets went wild. O'Connor returned the fire with more success.

COL. LINDBERGH FORCED BACK BY FOG AND SMOKE

MC KEESPORT, Pa., Oct. 23—(AP)—The weather, and there was all sorts of it, today thwarted completion of an inspection trip over the eastern link of the new line of the Trans-Continental-Western Air Transport, Inc., by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the concern's technical advisory committee.

The colonel arrived at Bettis field here shortly before 1 p. m. from Harrisburg, refueled his ship and started for Columbus, Ohio, where he expected to spend the night. He took off into fog and smoke, which made for poor visibility that forced him back to McKeesport after he had covered only a few miles of the distance to the Ohio capital.

Colonel Lindbergh was expected to resume his trip tomorrow morning.

ST. PAUL WOMAN HAS BEEN IN A COMMA FOR 52 DAYS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Max Beghtol has been in a coma for 52 days.

Knocked unconscious September 2 when a taxicab collided with a truck, Mrs. Beghtol, wife of a Lincoln, Neb., attorney is given only a slight chance by physicians to recover from the two skull fractures and multiple injuries she suffered.

She is able to swallow food slowly but otherwise gives no indication of consciousness.

The attending physicians fear she will contract pneumonia and die unconscious.

HOSTILITIES IN BRAZIL HINDERED BY RAINS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Heavy spring rains today brought a new defense to the aid of the federals who are opposing revolutionists in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector, scene of the hottest fighting thus far in the Brazilian civil war.

At Itarare, around which heavy conflicts have centered for more than a week, the river Parane-Panema has swollen until it provides a natural defense for the ogernment troops and has halted attempted forays by the rebels. Itarare is on the lower Parana-Sao Paulo border.

PRIZE WON BY TINY EGG WEIGHING 6-10 OF A GRAM

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—An egg so tiny it would take 1135 of them to make a standard dozen, won a prize today as the smallest egg at the New Jersey Poultry Fanciers' association show. It weighs six tenths of a gram.

JUDGE VAUSE ACQUITED OF FALSIFYING TAX RETURN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Former County Judge W. Bernard Vause, charged with falsifying his income tax return for 1926, was acquited by a jury in Brooklyn federal court tonight.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

WARSAW, Oct. 23.—(AP)— Windows were smashed today in the building of the British consulate in renewed anti-British demonstrations organized by the 'He'Chaluts, Zionist youth pioneer organization, in protest against the British statement of policy on Palestine.

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 23.—(AP) —The Anna II coal mine disaster of Tuesday, one of the worst in Germany's history, took a death toll that had reached 255 tonight and it was believed a few more would be found in the debris-filled labyrinths of the mine.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Jewish telegraphic agency was informed today that the World Zionist executive had called an emergency meeting of the World Zionist actions committee in London Nov. 4 to deal with the crisis in the Zionist movement created as a result of the British government's statement of policy in Palestine.

MRS. DORAN'S CONCEPTION OF A PERFECT HOSTESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. — (AP) — Claiming success for her non-alcoholic cocktail launched a year ago, Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the commissioner of industrial alcohol, now plans to introduce to the country a new concept of the perfect hostess.

The new model will make her debut at the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Houston November 14. She has been evolved as the result of a nation-wide symposium of women conducted by Mrs. Doran.

In contrast to the perfect hostess of years gone by, whose chief duty was to please her guests, the new 1931 pattern of hospitality chosen by the temperance women will make her guests' desires, if necessary, subordinate.

She will: First, put her guests at ease and make them feel at home; second, so tactfully but firmly imprint her own personality on any function in her home that her guests will take what she serves and like it. Third, dispense only the hospitality which conforms with the laws of her city and state.

LIQUOR SHIP AGROUND ON GARDINER'S ISLAND

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The speedboat Helen, of New York, with a valuable cargo of liquor, was hard aground on Gardiner's Island tonight, where she had been driven under a hail of machine gun fire last night by a coast guard patrol boat.

The patrol boat Eagle was standing by tonight with an idea of salvaging the damaged craft, and towing it and its load of liquor here.

The Helen's crew deserted as soon as they reached the speedboat and escaped in the darkness. A landing party was unable to find any trace of them.

BANDIT SHOT DEAD BY POLICEMEN IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23. — (AP)—One of two bandits who attempted to holdup a jewelry salesman on the ground floor of a building in the heart of the downtown business district today was shot to death but his companion escaped while bullets sent noonday crowds scurrying to safety.

The dead man was identified as Joseph Pieto, 32, of New York. Police said he had a criminal record and was wanted by Boston authorities. He was shot through the left lung and in the arm by bullets fired by two traffic policemen after a short chase.

INQUIRY INTO BANKING SYSTEMS TO OPEN NOV. 15

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The senate's inquiry into the operation of banking systems will open November 15 under tentative plans announced today by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, chairman of the investigating committee.

The hearings promise to give an insight into the operations of the stock exchanges, where fluctuations in stock prices have created considerable interest both at the capitol and the white house, but the investigation itself is not aimed at the stock exchanges.

Pending conferences with the other committee members, Senator Glass is announcing no definite plans for the study other than to emphasize that it will be conducted into all phases of the national and federal reserve banking systems.

TWO MEN CRUSHED TO DEATH BY TUNNEL CAVE-IN

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Two men lost their lives and a third was injured seriously in the cave-in of a railroad tunnel that buried a Wheeling & Lake Erie freight train near Adena, 25 miles southwest of here today.

The dead were E. E. Duga, 55, of Dillonvale, and Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor. The injured trainman was Al Romando, 35, who suffered a crushed hip and a broken arm and leg.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED ALEXANDER PANTAGES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23—(AP)—The state supreme court late today granted the petition of Attorney General U. S Webb for a reconsideration of the appellate court's order giving Alexander Pantages a retrial on an assault charge.

The theatre magnate was convicted in Los Angeles of assaulting Eunice Pringle, 17 year old dancer. The appellate court granted him a new trial.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending October 22 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $2,613,000,000 representing a decrease of $139,000,000 from the preceding week.

PLAN TO RELIEVE CUBAN SUGAR MARKET SURPLUSES

HAVANA, Oct. 23—(AP)—The Cuban house of representatives was called into an extraordinary session today to discuss a project drawn up by the Chadbourne committee on a plan for financing hold-over sugars—a plan calculated to relieve the market of sugar surpluses and stabilize prices.

President Of China Baptized A Christian

Ceremony Was Performed by a Chinese Pastor, a Graduate of M. E. Mission

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.—(AP) —President Chiang Kai-Shek of China has been converted to Christianity.

Appearing unexpectedly in Shanghai late today, the generalissimo went to the home of his mother-in-law, Madame K. T. Soong, and was baptized into the Christian faith by sprinkling, according to the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

The ceremony was performed by a Chinese pastor, the Rev. Z. I. Kuang, a graduate of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Mission university at Soochow. The mission's headquarters is at Nashville, Tenn. Chiang explained his action in these words:

"I feel the need of a God such as Jesus Christ."

The president's conversion was a distinct surprise to Shanghai. Only a few intimates, mostly relatives, attended the ceremonies after the chief executive came from the capital at Nanking.

Christian circles heralded the baptism with great joy and said it struck a blow at communism. Communists have been directing attacks at foreigners recently and particularly at Christianity as being representative of foreignism.

Pastor Kuang said he did not expect Chiang to take an active part in church affairs, as he is too busy with government duties, but "he and the spirit of Jesus Christ within him will go marching on."

The president's conversion is believed due to influence of Christian relatives. His wife, the former Mei-ling Soong, and Madame Soong, her mother, have been devout Christians for years as have other members of the Soong family.

The late Dr. Sun Yat-sen was a Christian. Another famous general who once espoused Christianity was Feng Yu-Hsiang. He was known as "The Christian general" and had his entire army baptized. Later he is said to have renounced his faith under the influence of bolshevism.

An instance of Chiang Kai-Shek's pre-conversion partiality to Christianity was seen in 1925 when a dentist at the Yale-in-China mission at Changsha extracted an aching tooth for the general. He was so grateful that when his armies later surged through the country he ordered the Yale buildings spared.

Another associate of Chiang's who is an outstanding Christian is H. H. Kung, minister of commerce and labor, and a descendant of Confucius. Before conversion Chiang had no formal religion.

William M. Hekking, director of a Buffalo, N. Y., art gallery, said he would go to Boston immediately to lay before police what he called detailed evidence against an alleged fake art ring now under investigation by Boston authorities.

Demonstrations By Zionists In Warsaw

British E[illegible]assy Appealed For Prote[illegible] to the Polish Author[illegible]

WAR[illegible] Oct. 23.— (AP) —Anti-Britis[illegible] demonstrations by Zionist sym[illegible] protesting against the B[illegible] statement of policy on Palestine [illegible]day caused the British embassy [illegible] appeal for protection to the [illegible]sh authorities.

The Jewish telegraphic agency reports that Roy Young Zionists, members of the Helchaluts, Zionist youth organization, were arrested after demonstrating in front of the British embassy and the consulate.

The Polish government has permitted the holding of a huge protest meeting Saturday night on condition that there be no street demonstrations afterwards.

18 ALLEGED RUM RUNNER ARRESTED AT MARBLEHEAD

BOSTON, Oct. 23.— (AP) —Eighteen men were arrested at Marblehead early today when police intercepted a large shipment of contraband liquor and they pleaded not guilty to violating the revenue laws when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, here. They were held for a hearing November 1 and released in bail furnished by a bonding company.

The following were held in $5,000 each: Myer Klinosky and his brother, Jacob; Samuel Gordon, Tony Morino, Max Shapiro, Louis Gordon, John Page, John Castle and Frank Farris, all of Boston, and Charles McDonald, of Everett and Fred Wilson, of Gloucester.

The other seven, who were held in $2500 each were: Captain Edward W. Flynn, of the Salem fire department; Charles Welch, of Salem; Frank Lucas, of Boston; Joseph Belanger, of Salem; Michael Rosa, of Boston; Martin Keegan, of Lynn, and Edward Gauthier, of Salem.

More than 500 cases of liquor were seized by the police, who turned the contraband and their prisoners over to federal authorities.

ANOTHER SLAYING BY GANGSTERS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Joe Aiello, once of gangland's royalty, fell dead before enemy machine guns tonight, wearing a cheap suit that testified to the decline of the near North Side mob in the face of "Scarface Al" Capone's merciless opposition.

Fifteen or twenty of the machine gun slugs, fired from a passing automobile, had struck the man.

Aiello is one of the 20 men listed by the Chicago crime commission as "public enemies." He, his brothers, and George "Bugs" Moran, who was released under $10,500 bond today on a vagrancy charge, long reigned supreme in the North Side of Chicago in the traffic in liquor, gambling and vice.

TO CRUSH COMMUNIST WAR ON CHRISTIANS IN CHINA

Nationalists Government Aroused By New Reports of Outrages Against Foreigners—Government Will Throw Its Full Strength Into Crushing the Reds Who Recently Massacred Thousands of Persons and Plundered Foreign Missions

SHANGHAI, Oct. 23.— (AP) —The nationalist government moved again today to crush the bloody communist war on Christians in China, as new reports of outrages against foreigners were reported.

Foreign Minister Wang announced the government will throw "its full strength into crushing the reds" who recently massacred thousands of persons and plundered foreign missions as part of a campaign of wholesale murder, robbery and incendiarism in Kiangsi province.

The minister insisted, however, the government could not be held responsible for safety of foreigns who persisted in remaining in dangerous areas.

Informed several American and other foreign missionaries were forced to flee from Jaochow, Kingtechen and Kian to save their lives from reds waging bitter warfare upon foreign and Chinese Christians, Wang said:

"American and other foreign missionaries have been repeatedy warned not to enter bandit and communist infested portions of the interior. While the nationalist government is trying to obtain release of missionaries held in Kiangsi and other provinces the government can not be held responsible for welfare of foreigns who persist in remaining in districts already dangerous or likely to become battlefields between government troops and communists.

"Conditions existing in central China afford a vivid picture of what the entire country will be like if the reds gain the upper hand.

"Communism at present is an abstract problem in America and other nations. It has become an active menace in China. Therefore the government plans to throw its full strength into crushing the reds."

Writing from his place of concealment near Yoyang lake in northern Kiangsi, Father Verdini, an Italian priest, gave details of the looting by reds of the Lazarist mission at Jaochow and the flight of himself and other missionaries. Verdini's letter, dated October 14, said he knew of no missionaries being killed.

Five thousand communists, said Verdini, descended upon Jaochow after nationalist guards had fled. All mission property was destroyed. Shops and townspeople were robbed and many slain.

The missionaries fled. Verdini thought Bishop Sheehan of Streeter, Illinois, director of the Jaochow mission, had escaped to Fuchow, 100 miles away, where he might be safe although in a dangerous region.

Verdini believed Father Altenburg, of Milwaukee, had reached Wuyuan, southern Anhwei province, Tuesday.

Father L. J. Coyle, of Lincoln, Neb., escaped toward Nanchang. Leo Moore, of Perryville, Mo., fled with Verdini and Father Meyer, a Dutch priest, on a Chinese junk on Yoyang lake. The priests hoped to escape from reds active about the lake.

Verdini also reported the looting of Kingtechen, from which "eight out of every ten residents have fled to the countryside while those remaining have turning robbers or reds."

Chinese press dispatches reported a swarm of well armed bandits attacked Tsingkiang, 100 miles northwest of Shanghai, last night. Fierce fighting resulted in "both sides suffering many casualties."

The nationalist government, the dispatches adde, ordered reinforcements and bombing airplanes left Nanking to attack the outlaws. It is expected the bandits will be routed within two or three days.

INDICTED FOR ALLEGED INCOME TAX LAW VIOLATIONS

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — (AP) — Three brothers, excavating contractors who were reported to have done $5,000,000 worth of work for the sanitary district were indicted by a federal grand jury today for alleged income tax law violations.

The brothers, all executives in the same firm, were Thomas P. Dowdle, Raymond R. Dowdle and John J. Dowdle. Thomas and Raymond were named in an additional indictment charging that they made false deductions for operating expenses in filing their income tax returns.

The indictment was the second to be returned by a federal grand jury investigating sanitary district expenditures. The first named the U. S. A. company, which performed work for the district on sub contracts from the Dowdle brothers.

Bond was fixed at $25,000 for each defendant.

DEFRAUDER OF HARTFORD WOMAN HELD IN $50,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—Eight additional complaints have been filed since his arrest Tuesday against Walter M. Miller, who is charged with defrauding Mrs. Mary Hotchkiss of Hartford, Conn., of $110,000.

This was revealed by the prosecutor's office today when Miller applied for a writ of habeas corpus. The application was denied and bail of $50,000 continued.

Mrs. Hotchkiss was questioned at length today in the attorney general's office concerning the stock deals by which she lost her money. Miller was arrested as he met Mrs. Hotchkiss at a railroad station in accordance, she said, with a plan whereby she was to turn $100,000 more over to him.

DIAMOND STILL DENIES THAT HE KNEW ASSAILANTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(AP)—In a cheerful, communicative mood, Jack "Legs" Diamond related from his hospital bed today what he said was the true story of how he was mowed down by the bullets of rival gangsters who invaded his hotel room on the morning of October 12.

He gave a detailed account of the attack to District Attorney Crain, who visited him in Metropolitan hospital on Welfare Island, and reiterated his denial that he knew the identity of his assailants.

"I tell you honestly," he asserted, "that if I knew who shot me I would tell you. I never saw the men before. There was no reason for anybody to shoot me or even to beat me up."

LOW BID FOR CONSTRUCTION OF FOUR NEW VESSELS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—The shipping board announced today the Federal Ship Building and Dry Dock company of Kearny, N. J., has made the low bid for four new vessels to be constructed for the Panama Mail and the Grace Steamship companies.

Federal bid $15,920,000 for all four vessels with electric winches and $16,830,000 with steam winches. It also bid $15,692,000 to build double gear reduction ships with electric winches and $15,602,000 with steam winches.

The owners of the lines have asked the shipping board for a loan to cover three fourths of the cost.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF TWO AUTOGIRO AIRCRAFT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23—(AP)—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Davis S. Ingalls and Commander Robert Potter Molten visited the Pitcairn field at Willow Grove today and watched C. J. Faulkner and Jim Ray, Pitcairn pilots, take two Autogiro crafts aloft.

Secretary Ingalls then took over the controls of the latest American machine, with Commander Molten in another, and, without any previous instruction, made an extended flight.

The secretary was of the opinion the Autogiro has a number of uses outside combat work in the navy.

ASSISSI, ITALY, PREPARING FOR ROYAL WEDDING

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 23—(AP)—This gentle little town of St. Francis, the apostle of peace and good will, tonight resembled a city occupied by general headquarters in a zone of war.

In the convent dedicated to repose and meditation, adjoining the church where King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy will be married Saturday, smartly turned out Bersaglieri strolled today, their coxcomb plumes waving in the breeze. Other religious buildings, too, are holding their quota of King Victor Emanuel's men.

A bandstand has been erected in the central square of this historic city, and there military musicians will put zest into the simple life of Assisi during the wedding festivities.

All day long detachments of troops that will line the way of the bridal couple were sternly drilled for the gala events of Saturday.

CATHOLIC MISSIONARIES IN CHINA HEMMED IN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Word reached the state department tonight from the American consul at Hongkong that eight American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow, Kiangsi province, were unable to leave there for places of safety.

The message was sent to the consulate at Hong Kong by Father McGillicudy, who said he had received a letter from the missionaries dated October 9. Their names were given as Bishop Oshea and Father Cahill, Strauvel, Curtis, Erbe, McLaughlin, Young, and McHringer.

McGillicudy informed the consul he was alarmed for the safety of the missionaries in view of the communist capture of Kian in the province.

The missionaries were warned repeatedly during past months to leave for places of safety but declined to do so.

TO PROBE PUNISHMENT AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

HARTFORD, Oct. 23.— (AP)— Gov. John H. Trumbull today promised immediate appointment of a disinterested commission to investigate charges that prisoners in solitary confinement at the state prison in Wethersfield have been subjected to brutal treatment.

The investigation will be conducted at the request of the prison directors, who, in a letter to the governor, said that because of "malicious, irresponsible and ignorant" charges made concerning conditions at the prison, they felt compelled to ask for a disinterested investigation "not in the spirit of defense, but rather in a spirit of challenge to our accusers."

PLUMBERS FOUND RINGS WORTH $4,500 IN DRAIN PIPE

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 23—(AP)—Plumbers were probing a maze of pipes today in an effort to recover $4,500 worth of diamond rings that were dropped in a drain in an appartment house.

Mrs. Sam Fertitta, owner of the jewels, the largest weighing four carats, said the rings were wrapped in a handkerchief. Screens were placed over all taps leading from the building. Many feet of pipe have been taken out and inspected a joint at a time and the sidewalk outside was taken up to get to the main sewer pipe.

MARRIAGE OF JOHN ROBERT GREGG AND JANET KINLEY

GALLUP, N. M., Oct. 23—(AP)—John Robert Gregg, of New York, inventor of the Gregg system of shorthand, and Janet Kinley, daughter of David Kinley, former president of the University of Illinois, were married here today in a private ceremony at the home of C. N. Cotton, a relative of the bride.

When the marriage license was obtained, Gregg gave his age as 63 and the bride as 30. The couple left this afternoon for Albuquerque, from where they will go to New York.

TOWN CHAIRMEN FOR HOSPITAL DRIVE NAMED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23.— The selection of a number of the town chairmen who will have charge of the $500,000 drive for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital in their respective districts, was announced today at the campaign headquarters.

Dr. Frank E. Guild will be chairman of the Windham division, Merritt Welch has accepted the chairmanship for Chaplin; Louis A. Kingsbury will be chairman in Coventry and Charles E. Burnham is announced as chairman for Hampton.

There are at least 20 of these neighboring towns into which the campaign will be carried. They are all towns which depend logically on Willimantic for hospitilization needs and it is pointed out that a new institution here will offer to these towns the same improved services and facilities available to local residents. Workers will be enrolled in the campaign work which will be along identical lines as has been outlined for the city, giving each worker an opportunity to select the name of a prospective subscriber.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Margaret M. McQuillan

Leaving from the home, 24 Brook street, the funeral of Mrs. Margaret M. McQuillan was held this morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock. Rev. Michael J. Thompson was celebrant; Rev. Francis A. Duch, deacon, and Rev. Henry E. Quinn, subdeacon. The organist, Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance, assisted in a special musical program. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal prayer was conducted by Rev. Father Thompson. The bearers were T. Frank Cunningham, J. Francis Keon, Arthur E. Welch, James S. Donahue, Jr., Eugene E. Curran and Alfred Noel. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Franklin P. Beckwith

The services for Franklin P. Beckwith were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the late home at South Windham. Rev. Joseph F. Cobb officiated. Burial was in the Windham Center cemetery. The bearers were Arthur Beckwith, Arthur J. Hanna, Alfred Beckwith and Eugene Hanna. Lincoln and Potter had charge of the arrangements.

G. O. P. Rally

Prominent speakers, including Philip Erard of Springfield, Mass., orator in the French language, will be heard at a big republican rally to be held in the town hall here next Thursday evening. Among the speakers scheduled to appear are: Attorney Benedict M. Holden of Hartford, member of the state veteran commission who will speak on Campaign Issues; Mrs. Frances Ross of New Haven, whose subject will be State Institutions; Philip Erard and C. J. Jordan, secretary of agriculture in the state of Pennsylvania, who will discuss issues of special interest to farmers. Among prominent politicians of this section who will be seated on the platform will be Sheriff Charles A. Gates of this city and Andrew T. J. Clarke of Canterbury, candidate for state senator. As entertainment features there will be an opening concert by the Peerless orchestra and selections by the Willimantic Glee club of 30 male voices.

Horace J. Fenton, former professor of English and common law at Annapolis Naval academy and now a retired resident of Spring hill, will give the historical sketch at the 220th anniversary celebration of the Mansfield Center Congregational church next Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Fenton will be heard during the Sunday afternoon program. Rev. Roy Gilmour Pavy, M. A. B. D., a former pastor of the church, will deliver the sermon during the Sunday morning worship. Mrs. John Jacobson has organized a splendid chorus of 17 voices for the event. Mrs. Grace Homer will be organist and accompanist and the orchestra will be composed of Rexford Crane, Jessie Inman, M. L. and Donald Nichols. Saturday evening there will be a musicale by adult and children choirs, quartets and duets.

Orders have been received by Captain Ellison S. Smith of Company C, 169th Infantry, to have his command turn out Saturday, November 8, to participate in the military parade at Meriden in conjunction with the dedication of a World war memorial. The trip is to be made in auto busses.

This city will again have three motion picture houses in operation with the re-opening this week of the Strand theatre, under the management of James J. Rabinowitz of this city. The playhouse, which has been closed for the past eight months, has been equipped with sound equipment and the interior has been attractively redecorated. The new owner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rabinowitz of 39 Brook street and is a popular young business man.

A meeting of the sewer assessments committee of the common council, comprising Aldermen Eugene B. Lewis, William E. Webber and Louis C. Vegiard, will be held in the council chamber of the town building next Tuesday to fix the expense of constructing sewers on Young street, to abutting property owners.

COLCHESTER

According to a notice received the past week from the U. S. naval air station, Lakehurst, N. J., as a part of the Navy day activities, October 27, the non-rigid airship J-4 which is based at the Lakehurst station will fly over Connecticut and will pass over the Westchester section of Colchester about 11:55 Monday morning. The itinerary of the airship is given as follows:—Leave Lakehurst, 8 a. m., arrive New London 11:15, Chesterfield 11:30, Salem 11:35, Westchester 11:55, Marlboro 12:00, Hartford 12:10 p. m., Wallingford 12:45 p. m., New Haven 12:55 p. m., Bridgeport 1:32 p. m., Sandy Hook 1:45, Lakehurst 2:00. Navy day has been an annual event since 1922 and is sponsored by various patriotic and civic organizations with the authorization and cooperation of the navy department. On that day its sponsors seek to acquaint American citizens with the work and purpose of the navy and to recall the splendid services the navy has rendered toward making the United States a progressive nation. A tribute is also intended to the memory of the late President Roosevelt, the anniversary of whose birth falls on that day, it being Roosevelt who laid the foundation for the modern United States navy. The airship J-4 which will pass over the western section of the town Monday is 203 feet long, 48 feet high, has a speed of 60 miles per hour, a helium gas capacity of 210,000 cubic feet and bears two engines of 150 horse power each.

TAXPAYERS STAND BACK OF WILCOX TO DEFEAT PURPOSE OF INSURGENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23—Out of a chaos of charges and counter-charges of faithlessness in the association, a formal organization of the Windham Taxpayers' association was completed at a lively meeting held in the town hall tonight with an attendance of nearly 300. The action of a taxpayers' meeting last Monday night, when 17 members of a board of governors were selected in a movement to take the administrative power away from President Dr. George E. Wilcox, failed to be ratified tonight.

The meeting, after adopting a constitution, drawn up and submitted by Attorney William A. Arnold, re-elected Dr. Wilcox as president of the association but failed to re-elect Secretary Michael F. Falvey and Treasurer Eugene J. Dion, who had been leaders in the movement for a new administration.

Pursuant to the new constitution the following list of officers were elected tonight: President, Dr. Wilcox; vice president, Samuel Polcaro; secretary, Miss Gertrude Crane; treasurer, Henry A. Bugbee.

The advisory committee, including the officers, was chosen to comprise the following: A. L. Gelinas, W. P. Jordan, Ernest Johnson, A. Sussman, L. F. Hartson, William A. Arnold, Mrs. Margaret Mahoney, Mrs. Annie Helmold, Anthony Kuzdal, Thomas Mara, Michael Dennehey, Herbert D. Pollard, John Bowman and two others, to be selected later.

At intervals, while discussions were on as to the ratification of last Monday's action, or the adoption of a new constitution, remarks waxed exceedingly warm and the charges became personel in nature, affording considerable amusement to the audience. Among other charges, Dr. Wilcox rose in defense of attacks made on him to say that he had been "cut behind the back" and that Mr. Falvey had been promised position on the board of assessors and Mr. Dixon had been promised one on the board of selectmen, these charges being denied in response.

Up to the present time, the association has not been formally organized, although it has functioned effectively in securing an audit of the town books, this work having been its major objective at the time of its organization.

EVENING SCHOOL TO START WITH SIXTEEN REGISTERED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 23.—Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools announced this morning that it has been decided to have an evening school through the fall and winter, the first session to be held at the high school building next Monday. Some time since Superintendent Parker requested that all who wished to attend evening school register with that intent in view. There was only one response. Later three more persons signified their desire to attend.

During the early days of this week Superintendent Parker had notices posted in mills hereabouts in which was set forth the plan for an evening school. The result has been further registrations, so that now a total of 16 persons are listed to attend.

Though the number already registered is not as many as is desired for an evening school with two teachers, a start is to be made. Each one of those who is signed to attend is being asked to get one more person to come. It is hoped this plan will work out successfully. It is also hoped that persons other than those who will be directly solicited will decide to attend. Last year 49 registered for the evening school course, which is free to all desiring to improve their educational status under pleasant surroundings.

FUNERAL

Francis Socquet

With military honors, the funeral of Francis Socquet was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Socquet, on lower Dyer street, this morning. A detachment from the Service battery, 193d Field Artillery, of which he was a member, was in attendance. The service was held at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, with the pastor, Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., as celebrant of the high mass of requiem.

At the grave in Holy Cross cemetery the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. The usual tributes of volleys of musketry and the sounding of Taps paid a soldier as he is laid at rest were part of the final rites. First Sergeant Emil Meunier, Sergeant Walter Evans, Corporal Peter Klocek and Ambrose Poirier, Herman Joly, Francis Andrews, Leo Giguere and John Whitman, all of the Service battery, made up the firing squad. Taps were sounded by Sergeant Walter Pester, an overseas veteran of the World war and member of the Service battery. Battery members acting as bearers were Raymond Godreau, Montcalm Thomas, George Boulais, Lionel Boulay, Roland Meunier and Joseph Bishop. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Miss Harriet E. Perkins

Prayer service for Miss Harriet Eliza Perkins was conducted at 1:30 this afternoon at the home on Maple street by Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's church, where Miss Perkins had been a communicant for many years. At the church service at 2 o'clock, with many in attendance, the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Jones, assisted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards of Christ church, Pomfret, and Rev. Albert Jepson of Warehouse Point, both former rectors of St. Alban's parish. The choir of the church, Mrs. F. O. Armington organist, sang the Episcopal burial service, including Psalm No. 39, and the hymns, For All The Saints, and Fight the Good Fight. Burial was in historic Old Trinity churchyard, Church street, Brooklyn, where numbers of Miss Perkins' ancestors lie at rest. The committal service was conducted by the same clergymen that officiated at the church service. The bearers were Henry E. Anderson, Alfred L. Reed, Sidney P. Marland, John Marland, Frederic O. Armington and James Sayles. There were many beautiful floral pieces. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Rev. S. W. Lindsay, rector of the Church of the Reconciliation at Webster, will be the preacher at the annual All Saints' day service to be held at Old Trinity church, Brooklyn, the beginning of the coming month. This is the traditional and outstanding service of each year at this ancient church, where people have gone to worship since that long vanished time when the locality where it stands was known as the Manor of Kingswood, in early Colonial days.

This All Saints' day service each year impels people to come from many distant points to be in attendance. Most of these trace their ancestry back to the days when their ancestors were the earliest worshippers there. The old church, well preserved and given the necessary care to keep it so, is much the same as it was far over a century ago.

PEEVED WHEN COURT IS STINGY WITH SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 23. — Peter Cadorette, without a job, without funds and claiming no particular place as home, was indignant this morning. A bit jealous, too, it would appear. Pete and two other men equally unfortunate in their lack of possession of worldly goods were before the town court. The others were Ledger Bisson, no permanent address, and Jerry Walsh, erstwhile resident of Jewett City. Each of the trio faced charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. All were more than willing to plead guilty and did.

Bisson drew a sentence of 30 days for having been intoxicated and 180 days additional for breach of the peace. Walsh scored with 30 days for intoxication and 90 days for breach of the peace. Each indulged in an expression of great contentment as they heard the sentences.

Cadorette did not fare so well, getting only 5 days for intoxication and 5 days for breach of the peace. The explanation of this is that Cadorette was a customer that had just been sucking around, as the boys say, for a complete winter sentence in jail. He tried his best to get it, too, stealing fruit off stands here last night, and buying a feed in a restaurant and nonchalantly telling the restaurant people to try to get their money if they could. Cadorette doesn't live any particular place, either, being just here and there as fancy dictates. But it's getting cold and he'd like things fixed up comfortably for himself until next spring—at the expense of the town and county. Maybe he will win out yet. He was very much disappointed this morning at what amounts to getting thrown for a loss while the other two before the court at the same time got away with what amounted to runs down the field for touchdowns.

The Cadorette case is regarded in police circles here as typical of other such cases likely to develop throughout the late fall and winter season as the result of the present general economic situation in the country. Killingly does not wish to be brutal in dealing with the situation, and on the other hand does not wish to rate an easy mark. In addition to the approximately 70 prisoners already held there, six came in from Killingly and Windham today. At the present rate the jail will have a capacity attendance within a month.

WINDHAM COUNTY BOYS NOT TO BE GUEST OF BROWN A. A. THIS YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 23—Due to the ungentlemanly conduct of unchaperoned and irresponsible groups of boys attending the annual Brown-New Hampshire State grid classic at Providence in past years, authorities of the Brown university athletic association have decided against the continuance of the policy of admitting large groups of boys from communities in the vicinity of Providence, to the stadium to witness this game gratis. Because of this decision, County Y. M. C. A. Secretary L. Edwin Hill of Danielson on Tuesday announced that no attempts will be made to make arrangements for the conveyance of Windham county boys to Providence on the day of this game, this year. The matter, he said, will probably be taken up again in 1931.

Mr. Hill stated that groups in recent years have been too large for proper management and the conduct of many of the youngsters while in the Brown stadium has served to disturb the comforts of the "cash customers," whose resentments, the Brown authorities have recognized. The adoption of this attitude by the college officials, in no way reflects upon the deportment of the Putnam and Danielson corps of boys who have been in attendance at the game each year for the past four years, and the fact that they are to be deprived of their annual autumn treat because of the disregard of a certain few, seems biased and unfair, but it is nevertheless a ruling that must be adhered to for this season at least.

Approximately 750 boys of eastern Windham county, principally from Danielson and Putnam, of high school and grammar school age will be disappointed when they learn of Mr. Hill's announcement. The annual mid-autumn excursion to the Brown stadium by the legion of youngsters in late years has come to be the biggest event of the year in the life of the local boy and a day each one looked forward to soon after the reopening of school in September. The disappointment of the "kids", will be shared in equal proportion by a great many prominent men in this city and in Danielson, who got many a thrill in the course of the trip to the "big game" and return and who willingly donated to the Y. M. C. A., the use of their automobiles for the price of seat in the stadium.

Secretary Hill expressed hope Tuesday that arrangements might be made for another expedition of eastern Windham county boys to the New Hampshire game next year, when Brown athletic association officials may be prevailed upon to renew the no longer upheld policies of extending admittance courtesies to outside boys organizations.

RUNDALL'S YOUNG FOXES HAVE MADE GOOD GROWTH

With this weather holding on for a couple of weeks, fur will be prime. The local market for fox skin buyers is all set, with Al Rundall and Earle Palmer having the goods already on hand. Each of these men has seven of the finest red foxes that were ever bred to range the Lisbon and Griswold hills, but didn't—nor will they do so, if their captors can prevent it. These fox puppies were dug from their burrows early in the spring of this year, and thriving in captivity, have come to be 14 handsome specimens of a species of wild life that seems to survive without effort the ceaseless tracking of the hunters' hounds. Seven of these animals came from within the shadow of Mt. Misery, while Mr. Palmer's catch was unearthed in Lisbon. Mr. Rundall located his burrow just at nightfall one early April evening. Coming two days later with pick and spade to make his capture, he had two hours of smart shoveling for nothing. The vulpine nursery was deserted, for the old vixen had caught a glimpse of the hunter during his first visit, and moved the entire litter. Within four days the new burrow was located under a ledge and the two weeks old little yellow balls were brought home in a meal sack.

Today, they are nearly full grown, and when asleep, lying on the bench in their cage, with all seven tails hanging down in a row, they are surely a call from the wild, and a sight worth seeing. Including the town's bounty, $20 will be only a reasonable figure for each one. In the case of Mr. Palmer, he is town clerk of Lisbon and all he will have to do about the bounty is to take it out of one side of his jeans and slip it in the other.

Granolithic sidewalks are being laid for Edward Blanchard, E. G. Lague and Joseph Glowacki.

The many friends of Mrs. Hector Sebilleaud will be glad to know that she has recovered from her recent illness. She was cared for by Mrs. Walter Farmer, of Lowell, Mass.

Mrs. Leonard Geer and daughter Mildred and Miss Georgia Flint, of Willimantic, were guests of Mrs. Ella Geer, Thursday.

Fog of Brief Duration

Following temperature of 22 at 6 a. m., Thursday, this section was enveloped in a dense fog, which, lasting 45 minutes, shut out every object over 100 feet distant, then disappeared. At 5:30 there was no sign of fog, and no trace remained at 7:30.

The big bridge is receiving its finishing polish from end to end, with workmen preparing Thursday to set the light standards in place on the balustrades. The lights will be arranged on the "stagger" plan, not opposite.

Board Walk Messages

A local man was showing a vacation comic card he received from F. A. Gilbert, who, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Gilbert, is visiting Atlantic City. The picture was that of a buxom bathing beauty that had evidently been poured into a bright red and much abbreviated suit. In the same mail the man's wife received from Mrs. Gilbert a handsome view of the famous board walk. The message side of the latter card was thus inscribed: "You see that Fred and I have different ideas about the scenery down here."

Saturday morning is the best time to give The Bulletin boy or girl who leaves the paper the slip which will indicate one's desire to receive The Norwich Sunday Record, beginning Nov. 2. These slips will be given to Harold Frink, the Record boy, who will have charge of the delivery of the Jewett City circulation.

Can't Account For Fire

Ferris Arremony, who occupies the room in the Finn block where the fire started in a bed Wednesday afternoon, declares he left the room at 6:30 that morning, and was away all day, adding that he left the door unlocked as was his custom, that his daughter might make his bed. Hence the origin of the blaze remains a mystery.

PUTNAM

OVER 200 NEW VOTERS TO VOTE IN NOV. ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 23—This town has a total of 222 new voters entitled to participate in the state election this year, according to figures received today from Town Clerk Henry N. Benoit. The great majority of the new electors are enrolled in democratic caucus lists, Mr. Benoit said. The new voting strength was created at three voters-making sessions conducted in September and October by the board of selectman and the town clerk.

Mr. Benoit intimated that the number of new voters now qualified to cast initial ballots on November 4, when compared to the number made in recent "off" years, is unusually large and the gains made by the democrats this year are substantial.

At the meeting of the selectmen on Saturday of last week, the applications of 41 new voters were acted upon. Of the number of applicants granted sufferage rights, 21 were women and 20 were men. Mr. Benoit said that he was unable to state the number of new voters declaring their political convictions.

The surprising result of the sessions is the large number of new voters tossing their lots with the democrats. Heretofore, the republican caucus list has always been resorted to by the young bloods and the only explanation given for the reversing of the currents has been the conquering by the democrats of town offices long held by the republicans.

THREE GRADES AT PUTNAM SCHOOL ARE DISMISSED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 23—As an additional measure of precaution to guard against further outbreak of scarlet fever at the Israel Putnam school, Superintendent Leon M. Farrin yesterday dismissed students in the first three grades of the primary department from attendance at sessions until Monday morning. Mr. Farrin stated today that examinations of pupils throats by Dr. Florence F. Dean and Mrs. Lillian D. Morrison, school nurse, has revealed no traces of the disease, which was discovered affecting a first grade child on Tuesday. Health Officer Peter A. Gardner reported today that no cases other than the one found at the Israel Putnam school has come to his attention as yet and in view of this fact he feels reasonably certain there will be no further spread of the fever.

Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee has announced that a republican rally will be held in this city at Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street, Wednesday evening. The speakers list is made up of many prominent state officials including John A. Danaher, assistant United States district attorney; State Tree Warden Luther A. Keith of this city; Miss Byrne and George A. Grady, corporation counsel for the city of New Haven. Local party leaders will also address the audience. Following the speaking programme a luncheon will be served and a programme of music will be rendered by an orchestra. The rally will be the first held in this city since the opening of the state campaign.

Students attending public schools will be given a holiday Friday, while teachers are attending conventions being held in various cities throughout the state. Putnam teachers will attend the conventions to be held in Hartford and New London.

Levi Maynard of Pomfret was given a 60 day jail sentence yesterday when found guilty of charges preferred against him by State Officer Lionel H. Poirier of Danielson barracks. Maynard appeared before Attorney Louis A. Woisard of Danielson, who was acting in his capacity of justice of the peace.

State Officer H. Theodore Strand of Danielson barracks and Anthony Barber of Danielson attended the boxing match between Maxie Rosenbloom and Al Bain, fought Wednesday night at the Madison Square garden in New York city for the light heavyweight championship title. The policeman and Barber were the guests of Announcer Joe Humphries, colorful ring character who appeared in Danielson a few weeks ago in connection with the benefit bouts staged for the Day Kimball hospital nurses home fund.

Curtis N. Dean, clerk of courts, said today that although reports to the effect that Trenor A. Rice of Willimantic, has instituted a $25,000 libel suit against the Hartford Courant company

BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

There is talk about one and possibly three new bridges over the Connecticut at or in the vicinity of Hartford. Talk doesn't mean that they will all be built.

The purpose of the one new one within the city of Hartford would be for the relief of the traffic now centered upon the one bridge. The other two bridges would be for the purpose of giving traffic a chance to get around the city of Hartford without going through the center and clogging its streets. Hartford would appreciate such relief and so would much of the traffic which is headed and desirous of getting elsewhere.

From Bridgeport comes the intimation that the state ought not to be expected to stand any such expense, in view of the manner in which Bridgeport has gone down in its pocket for bridge construction. If sentiment in other parts of the state should be similar, it would not be surprising.

There are points where bridge construction has been taken over by the state. Is the time coming when it should all be shouldered by the state in fairness to all sections? The feeling that all sections should be treated alike in this respect is a popular one.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the state of Kentucky has let contracts for the construction of ten more bridges, two of them being interstate, and to meet the expense of construction it is to charge tolls until sufficient funds have been raised to meet the outlay. This is in keeping with certain bridge construction that has been done in Connecticut. It means that those who are benefited by new bridge construction are the ones who gradually contribute to the cost and it requires but a short time to remove the debt. It means also that facilities are to be provided which would probably not be secured if it were a case of having the expense met out of the general funds of the state. In many instances bridges take the place of ferries so that the cost of getting across the river is not increased by the erection of toll bridges when done by the state with the intention of removing the tolls when the cost has been met.

HITCH HIKING ROBBERS

In spite of the many who have been robbed through yielding to the appeals of others for auto rides there continue to be those who will insist that they will never turn down any such request. This indicates a faith in humanity which might seem to be based upon little experience, the attitude of an honest man who is ready to believe that everyone else is honest and trustworthy. But there are the experiences of other persons which justify the more common attitude of turning down all requests from strangers.

Hitch hiking has been given a black eye in certain states by penalizing those who resort to it. It has been seriously frowned upon in others, but there are those who still indulge in it. In many instances no harm follows but in others those who yield are subjected to all kinds of mistreatment and relieved of their money, sometimes their car and, if not roughly handled, threatened with deadly weapons.

One of the latest affairs of the kind occurred in Providence. Two men in an auto, residents of East Providence, were signalled by two in the highway at night who asked to be given a lift. The motorists fell for the plea that they had walked from Fall River and not only took them into the center of Providence but complied with the request to carry them to one of the dark streets of the city. There they were held up, relieved of $30 and a gold watch at the point of a pistol and before the robbers departed they removed a part of the auto which made the machine useless for the time being.

That was the manner in which those who were helped showed their gratitude for the faith that was placed in them. It was simply a repetition of the old story in a slightly new form and it is safe to say that there will be no disposition to see any thumb jerkers or listen to any hitch hikers in the future. Their experience was the experience of many others. They might have learned their lesson from others but they insisted upon personal acquaintance with those who are playing that game. It is safe to say that such methods would be effectively squelched if all requests by strangers were given a cold shoulder.

LAND ARMAMENTS

There have been times when our representatives to disarmament conferences have set out with far more encouragement in sight than can be seen for those who have started this month for the session of the disarmament commission of the league of nations. There have been times when the thoughts of and demands for peace were greater, though perhaps no more justified, than they are today. There is turmoil and suspicion in many directions. Instead of talk of peace there is revolution, war and talk of more war.

At the headquarters of the league such discussion as will develop concerning disarmament will probably be confined chiefly to land armaments and air armaments. With the latter there will be plenty of opportunity for discussion but when it comes to limiting armies it is evident that there still exist conditions which are certain to make it difficult for the nations of Europe to come to any agreement that will mean any distinct change.

As for the United States, there will be little opportunity for this country to assume any leading role. It is well understood that this country has brought its army down to the vanishing point, a mere nucleus around which a larger army could be built in case of emergency, so that there is no chance for this country to show any further leadership in the way of reduction. It has already set an example in that respect and it remains to be seen how much disposed other nations will be to meet it.

Cutting land armaments depends, of course, chiefly upon the nations of Europe. They are in close contact and cutting land forces is a step which rests entirely with them. If they are prepared to relax their past standards in this respect, there can be no objections from other countries. But with the difficulties experienced in getting the naval limitations adopted, and even then with only three countries participating, it is not a promising outlook for the disarmament gathering at Geneva.

There is always a chance to talk over the desirability of such a step and to sound the sentiment of the various countries in such a conference, but getting a definite programme adopted is an entirely different matter and hardly to be expected at this time.

PRISON INQUIRY

It is an easy thing to bring charges based upon fancied wrong or imaginary ills. It is easy to create a wrong impression without setting forth the complete facts and conditions and because too much stress is laid upon theories instead of actual practice and experience.

Claiming that "malicious, irresponsible and ignorant" charges have been made against conditions and the manner of handling prisoners at the state prison, the prison directors have challenged the accuser to come forth with the facts by asking the governor to appoint a disinterested commission to investigate the situation.

While the directors have denounced the charges, they believe that there should be an inquiry. They have nothing to cover up. They are confident of their position and the governor is to name such a commission at once.

A former chaplain, whose resignation was sought, and another employe who was relieved of his job at the institution, are those who have made the charges concerning the handling of prisoners. They have received no encouragement from the state board of public welfare, for it has declared its confidence in the prison directors and management, and always found conditions proper at the prison.

There is little that creates a favorable impression in the charges as made but the course of the directors, inasmuch as they have been made and gained certain sympathetic attention, in urging an investigation is to be commended and the action of the governor in complying with the request gives assurance that there will be a thorough and prompt disclosure of the facts. The very attitude of the directors inspires confidence on the part of the people.

A NEW PALESTINE POLICY

Back in 1917 there was made what has since become known as the Balfour declaration, in which it was stated that the British government would establish a national home for the Jews in Palestine, and the government invited the Jews to establish such a home there. It was received with much interest throughout the world and much money was raised for the development and many Jews went there to live and pass their last days. The result was that the Jewish population was increased to 160,000.

Following that Balfour declaration and the close of the war, Palestine was included in the mandated territory which was assigned to Great Britain. In the years that followed there was evidence of a growing ill feeling between the Arabs and the Jews. They didn't get along together well and there was difficulty in trying to get them to. It resulted in outbreaks and the massacre of a year ago.

The situation made it necessary for the British to undertake a hard task. The result is that it has made a new statement of policy and this is causing much distress of mind to the Jews. Responsibility is recognized for the Arabs as well as the Jews and in view of the depression which has struck that part of the world along with the rest it is pointed out in the British statement that "if the immigration of Jews results in the prevention of Arabs obtaining work necessary for their maintenance, it is the duty of the mandatory power to reduce, or if necessary, to suspend such immigration."

It has been most unfortunate that those living in that mandated territory have not been able to get along together better. The British apparently feel that it is necessary for them to use different methods and, while the Arabs were disturbed before, the Jews are as much, if not more, disturbed now.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Has anything reminded you that election is less than two weeks away?

"New gold strike in Ontario" doesn't mean the same thing as a "new mill strike in the south."

The hope is being expressed that the war is nearly over in China. That may be only a signal for a new one to start.

The man on the corner says: It is going to be no easy job to pick out that particular day which is going to be Indian summer.

There has been little heard and less seen thus far this year of the boys who are keeping alive the barrel burning custom Thanksgiving night.

The mistake should not be made of thinking that because it rained a few days ago no more fire prevention efforts will be needed this year.

QUITE TYPICAL

When novelists are in the bud they look upon all human beings as types. The moment that Harrison saw this girl he felt that she was one of the most interesting types he had ever run across. In fact, his heart thumped three times in his excitement. It was not that she was so pretty, although she was simply that she had personality. She was different.

She placed her feet daintily as she came down the street, held her fur wrap around her at just the correct angle and owned an arresting face. No wonder the young man walking with her held onto her arm possessively as though challenging the world to take her from him. She had a mouth that curved deliciously and real eyelashes that could have been braided. Harrison stood stock still and watched the two until they disappeared in the crowd. No telling when he might want to use her in a story and it was well to grasp details when he had a chance.

For two weeks running as he headed for his suburban depot Harrison met the couple. Each time she seemed more interesting, purely as a type, of course. The young man certainly made no effort to conceal his slavery and Harrison realized with some sophisticated amusement that he had before him a perfect example to be docketed Young Love—Exhibit No. 1. He acknowledged that the young man was passably good looking, but on the whole he was no match for such a pearl of a girl. It was somewhat irritating to see her throw herself away when there positively was no limit to her possibilities.

Each time he looked at her, studying her, of course, and several times she had seen him. Oh, not a flicker of an eye or a sign; nevertheless she saw him. It was a shock, then, one night, for Harrison to meet her hurrying along in the semidusk alone, both hands tucked into her fur cuffs, collar snug around her peachy face. She looked grave.

Aha! A lover's quarrel. Somehow Harrison as glad. Served the dub right if he couldn't manage to retain the interest of a girl like that. Yet she might be frivolous and a flirt, unstable and restless. Three nights later he saw her coming along with her escort again walking close beside her. A wholly unreasoning wrath possessed Harrison at the sight. When they were near and he saw that it as a different young man he was so confused and appalled that again he stood still in his tracks. Heartless—yet, on the other hand, she might only be trying to cover up her despair at the loss of No. 1. What a grand story if only he could be certain!

But five nights later it was still another young man who walked beside her, and Harrison went his way so grimly that he missed his train. That was the sort of woman who wrecked men's lives, demanding adoration from all sides. He supposed that any man who was not making a novelist's study of woman would fall for a girl like that and rue the day ever after. Thank the fates that he had a keen enough mind to read her through and through, dissect her frivolous motives, analyze her in black and white, know her for her actual self, quite uninfluenced by externals. At least he was safe from that type of female.

He found himself sitting next to her at a studio party a week later and was so startled that his jaw dropped. She smiled adorably and with a touch of mischief.

"Haven't I seen you before?" she wanted to know.

Eureka! Then it was true—she had noticed him on those evening walks when her attention by good rights belonged elsewhere.

Two nights later the pretty girl came down the usual street headed for her own line of transportation home. An adoring young man walked close beside her and held onto her arm possessively. He was his own perfect example of Young Love—Exhibit 1—and he didn't give a hoot who knew it.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Now that the republican political kettle in Pennsylvania has boiled over, resulting in a situation that could conceivably elect a democrat to the governorship, almost anything is possible.

It is added evidence of the vexing cross currents, like the business depression, the drought, and the startling spread of anti-prohibition activities, which are all washing about the approaching November elections.

Impressions

All of these things have to do with the revolt of General Atterbury and the republican ward leaders of Philadelphia against Gifford Pinchot's candidacy for governor.

There is a strong impression in Washington, however, that there is more to the declaration of these stalwarts of the G. O. P. of their intention to vote and work for election of Pinchot's democratic rival, Hemphill, than appears on the surface.

To such regular republicans, the fiery former chief forester and one time storm center of the natural resources conservation row of the Roosevelt administration, looks like even more of a liberal than Bill Borah or George Norris.

The word the old guardsmen would use for all three is "radical."

And the republican liberals or radicals or "pseudo republicans," as Chairman Senator Fess of the national committee once called 'em, or the sons of the wild jackass, as Chairman Senator George Moses of the senatorial campaign committee dubbed 'em on another historic occasion, have been having about all the republicans fun to date out of the 1930 elections.

Now suppose Mr. Pinchot won a whopping victory in November, as he no doubt would if the republican state organization functioned as usual.

Might there not be in that real cause for alarm lest there develop by 1932 a third party movement founded on a Pinchot-Borah-Norris combination of some kind? And if there is any such danger, would not the wise time to stop it be before it got started?

Obviously, yet how could that be done? The chances of knocking Norris out of his senate saddle seem not so good. It is also a fact that his defeat probably would not impair his ability to menace party success in the next presidential show down very much. He seems to thrive on hard knocks.

Targets

Mr. Borah's political head is not available to shoot at this year. Mr. Pinchot's is. And, clearly, any such thing as a Pennsylvania-Wild Western alliance in a third party movement would be disturbing. So strategy among old guardsmen would seem to call for Pinchot's defeat right now.

Anyway, and for whatever reasons, that is what the Philadelphia group is seeking to bring about.

And how may all this affect the senatorial hopes of Jimmie Davis, the caroling cabineteer?

Possibly not at all; but you never can tell what might happen when party regulars go haywire.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thoughts for Navy Day

Mr. Editor: Monday, Oct. 27, 1930, will be another anniversary of the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt.

As assistant secretary of the navy he gained valuable experience in naval affairs which enabled him later, when president of the United States, to formulate a naval policy that has, in a large measure, resulted in our present day navy.

It is most fitting that his birthday should also be designated as "Navy day."

From my personal experience may I assure you that the navy loved Theodore Roosevelt almost to a man and the navy honors his memory on this day.

"Teddy" and "Fighting Bob Evans," what a combination, with the watchword of the Around the World battle fleet, "we are ready for a fight or a frolic."

The navy remembers that cruise and it remembers the courage of its commander-in-chief. What a poker hand he held and he called for a showdown. The navy has steadily grown since then, until today we stand, in theory, second to none.

It now remains for us to carry out the terms of the latest naval treaty, which doesn't mean simply to scrap certain vessels, but also means the speedy completion of the required number of new vessels to bring parity to reality out of the haze of theory. It is a duty for us as citizens to insist that this shall be done as rapidly as possible.

Most Americans have a warm spot in their hearts for the navy and they have an abiding faith that it is adequate and efficient. See to it that it is kept so. The best men in the world cannot bring us victory if they are not provided with the proper weapons to fight with. A perfectly equipped navy cannot win our battles if the properly trained men are lacking. Keep the active vessels fully manned.

A uniform does not make an officer nor an enlisted man. Experience is the factor that will weigh heavily during the hour of our greatest need.

The navy should have a reserve personnel at least equal to the number of men assigned to active service in peace time. Many persons labor under the false impression that men-o'-war's-men may be trained in a very brief time. They are greatly in error. I believe that one year of intensive training aboard even one of our medium sized vessels would still leave a most intelligent man with many a foggy spot he had not mastered. To win battles they must be mastered.

If trained men were collected from various vessels of the navy and assigned as a new crew of another vessel, it would require considerable time for them to get adjusted to themselves and their new ship, probably a period of several months before the ship and men became the efficient fighting machine required. I could relate personal experiences but space will not allow. Our participation in the World war is no criterion as to what may be expected if we are called upon in the future.

Our navy is expected to be ready to go to sea and engage and defeat an enemy battle fleet on short notice. It is possible that one week might be the very longest time limit we could hope for. It would be too late then to lay down new cruisers or other vessels needed to properly balance the fleet. Too late to reinject forgotten naval lore into the brain of the reservist or to even consider the training of volunteer recruits. Victory or disaster will rest upon the material you have provided and the intelligence you have insisted upon.

These desired essentials cost money, millions of dollars, but as the world exists at present, "let's not dream," there appears no other way to establish a sense of security.

Skilled American mechanics will turn out the necessary materials, but the directing intelligence must be built up and kept built up year after year by a continual addition of new personnel and a continual round of experience. Experience can be gained only by cruising under service conditions.

Money cannot purchase patriotism, but money can give patriotism a mighty fine lift.

The men who are giving their whole life-time to the navy deserve to be compensated in some measure commensurate with the responsibilities they must assume. Funds should be provided to enable the reserve personnel to be amply trained. Half trained is only 50 cents worth and if the navy is at all justified, then it deserves the whole dollar's worth.

I have written this letter as a means of doing my bit toward Navy day. I live and work every day in this community and the navy means no more to me than to you, except that I have lived close to its heart.

You may do your bit by informing yourself about your navy and when enlightened, insist according to your judgment that your wish is acted upon.

For real first hand information, visit the submarine base, but remember you are only seeing a small part of a large organization. Our representatives in the senate and congress are very sensitive to the desires expressed by their constituents.

If this letter creates an active interest in naval affairs, in the thoughts of its readers, I believe it will have served its purpose.

The navy is not a political football nor a grafter's paradise. It is honest and conscientious and has too often labored under great difficulties.

It has given us many victories and very few defeats; even the latter have wreathed themselves with immortal glory.

GUNNER CHARLES N. BENTLEY,
V (G) U. S. N. R.
Norwich Town, Oct. 22, 1930.

Seeking Work, Not Charity

Mr. Editor: Evidently letters to The Bulletin are very generally read by the public, judging by the way all of the different nationalities have been expressing themselves recently.

Here is one which we hope will appeal to every person who has a disposition and an opportunity to express their sympathy in deeds rather than in words.

We all know depression exists all over the world and Norwich has its share. We have applications for work from all classes of people, including skilled, unskilled, clerical and domestic labor.

We make this appeal to the public to call on us for help of any kind to do odd jobs, to care for furnaces, or the like, in order to help men and women get a living during this winter—as they are calling on us all day long for work and not charity.

YOUR HEALTH

Mother's Health

By Irving S. Stein, M. D., Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There are periods in the life of woman when the body undergoes notable physical alterations. These are always associated with certain mental changes and disturbing sensations calling for adjustment. The first period is that of passing from adolescence into womanhood; next is the transformation to motherhood; and the third is the period which is reached after the family is established and the children beginning to grow up. The mother, having made great sacrifices of health and even of life for her children looks forward with a certain amount of fear to the period of transition has taught her may be attended by suffering or invalidism.

The third epoch in woman's life has not received the consideration it merits from the standpoint of preventive medicine. How, you may well ask, can certain changes of mid-life be prevented? It is during this time that so many distressing complaints develop, some of them purely functional, but nevertheless annoying. To most women they are considered inevitable and to be endured. To some they are the excuse for indulging in various advertised remedies for relief. While it is true that many of these disturbances are not at all serious, many of them which may appear so or even natural may be the danger signals of some impending trouble. It is only by means of the family doctor's careful examination that one can determine whether they are harmless or not.

Most commonly at this time of life is woman subject to nervous disturbances, headaches, insomnia, flushes of heat, sweats, palpitation of the heart, backache, fatigue and various other annoyances. Some women fear insanity at this time. Some fear growing too fat. It is no wonder that many seek the irregular cures at this time, but it is certain that they do not safeguard their health or lives by these means.

The intelligent woman of 40 to 55 years of age will visit her physician for a physical examination. If she has borne children she may at this time require more or less surgical care to prevent the development of serious consequences later. However not many mothers require corrective surgery. The doctor alone can determine this. Is it inevitable that women grow fat during this time? Not at all! But this tendency to obesity should be met only by restricting over-nutrition, by following some prescribed form of exercise, and by long walks in the open air.

One of the most vital questions of this epoch is that of cancer. All students of the cancer situation agree that in prevention lies our greatest hope. We all recognize certain conditions which are not malignant but which may lead to cancer and which we term pre-cancer. If we find such pre-cancerous development and eradicate it we have thus prevented the development of cancer itself. Thus in prevention lies the real cure. Unless cancer is detected in its earliest stages it is rarely cured. It is only by a physician's careful examination to detect the pre-cancerous conditions and by eradicating them before they become real cancer that we can expect to reduce mortality from this disease.

Middle aged women, do not sit by and wonder if a lump which you have discovered is growing. Do not allow certain signs which you suspect to be normal to continue indefinitely. Do not fear that your doctor will find something to operate and so keep away from him. Perhaps a minor treatment or operation at this time will obviate the necessity of a greater, but hopeless one some months hence.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Mother Brown Has Another Surprise

Some folk may diet, if they will,
But as for me, I want my fill.
—Black Pussy.

Mother Brown was still puzzled over Black Pussy. Apparently, Black Pussy had eaten two big dinners and still was hungry. Any way, that is what Mother Brown thought. She couldn't understand it at all.

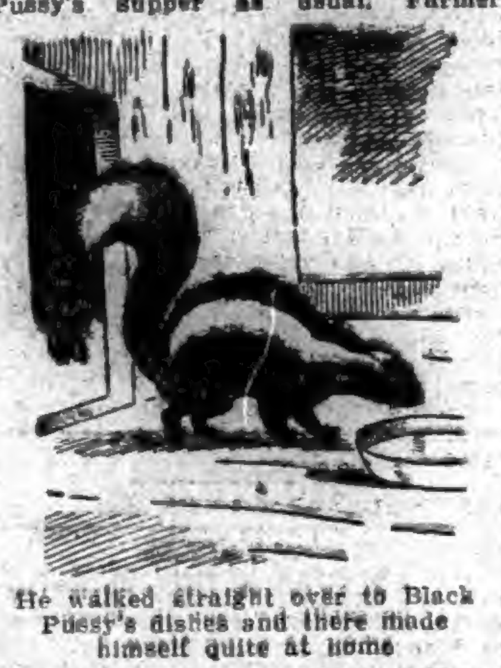
Farmer Brown's Boy saw how puzzled she was and chuckled. "Tomorrow night you are going to have another surprise," said he.

"What kind of a surprise?" asked Mother Brown.

"Wait and see," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "Just you wait and see. You are going to have another surprise and then you are going to understand why Black Pussy has been growing thin. All I ask is that you do as I tell you to."

Mother Brown good-naturedly agreed to this. "All right," said she, "I'll do just what you tell me."

So the next night she prepared Black Pussy's supper as usual. Farmer



He walked straight over to Black Pussy's dishes and there made himself quite at home

Brown's Boy was on hand and told her to put it out in the back shed where she usually did, and then to wait in the kitchen doorway to see what would happen. Black Pussy at once began to lap up the milk. Then there was a scratching sound. Black Pussy stopped drinking. A look of fright came into her eyes. She turned and ran past Mother Brown into the kitchen and hid under the stove. Mother Brown couldn't understand it at all and turned to go after her; but Farmer Brown's Boy called to her.

"Never mind Black Pussy," said he. "You stay right where you can watch Black Pussy's dishes. Do you hear that scratching?"

"Yes," replied Mother Brown. "What is it?"

"Some one wants to come in," said he. "Some one is getting a trifle impatient. I'm going to open the door now."

So Farmer Brown's Boy very quietly went over and slid back the little door that covered the hole made for Black Pussy to go in and out of the woodshed. For a minute nothing happened; then, in through that hole, walked a gentleman dressed in black-and-white. Without hurrying in the least, or without the slightest hesitancy, he walked straight over to Black Pussy's dishes and there made himself quite at home.

In the kitchen doorway Mother Brown stood with such a funny expression on her face. She was looking down at Jimmy Skunk with open-mouthed astonishment. At first she couldn't find her voice. No, sir, Mother Brown simply couldn't find her voice. When she did, it was to say, "Why, why, Jimmy acts as if he had been here before."

"He has," chuckled Farmer Brown's Boy. "You were so sure that you had been feeding Black Pussy so well, and all the time you haven't been feeding her at all, but have been feeding Jimmy Skunk. Just see how fat the rascal is. Jimmy knows a good thing when he finds it; and when he discovered that he could come in through that cat-hole and get a good meal, he made the most of it. Now you understand why Black Pussy has been getting thin. We'll have to shut the door on Jimmy, I guess, hereafter."

"No," said Mother Brown most decidedly. "No, we'll not shut the door on Jimmy. I guess we can afford to feed him and Black Pussy, too. Hereafter, I'll feed Black Pussy in the kitchen and put a meal out for Jimmy just the same."

Then Mother Brown remembered that Black Pussy was still dinnerless, hiding under the kitchen stove, and she hurried to prepare a good big dinner for her.

Plans War On Boll Weevil

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—Boll weevils going to bed hungry this winter will die before spring. Farmers, by communities have been asked by insect experts to remove the weevil's feed supply and send them into hibernation in a starved condition by killing all cotton stalks as fast as the staple is picked.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

C. H. Dexter & Sons, Inc., Windsor Locks.

This business was established in 1767 as a sawmill, located on the Dexter property directly west and on the opposite side of the canal from the present paper mill. The founder was Seth Dexter.

A second Seth Dexter succeeded the first and expanded the sawmill into a gristmill. This gristmill was in operation up until three years ago.

Seth Dexter, 2nd, was followed by his son, Charles H. Dexter, the founder of the paper manufacturing interests of the company and from whom the firm takes its present name.

Charles H. Dexter made his first paper from manila rope in the basement of the gristmill in 1835. The paper making was so successful that in 1840 a frame building was erected across the canal from the gristmill. At that time the firm was christened, C. H. Dexter & Co.

In 1867, C. H. Dexter took into the business his son, Edwin D. Dexter and his son-in-law, Herbert R. Coffin, 1st. The company then became, C. H. Dexter & Sons.

C. H. Dexter died in 1869 and under the same name, Edwin D. Dexter and Herbert R. Coffin, 1st, continued the manufacture of paper, that has built a lasting reputation.

The original mill was destroyed by fire, but a new mill was erected in 1875, which formed the nucleus of the present extensive plant.

Edwin D. Dexter passed away in 1886 and the business devolved upon Mr. Coffin, who assumed full ownership of the property, trade and trademark. Mr. Coffin greatly increased the size and capacity of the mill and began the manufacture of high-grade tissues, cover papers and various paper specialties.

Mr. Coffin's death occurred in 1901 and his two sons, Arthur D. Coffin and Herbert R. Coffin 2nd, continued the business, under the old firm name.

Expanding business found the Dexter mill inadequate to take care of the many different lines, so a second mill was bought at Suffield and operated until a few years ago, when the development of a large water power project made it necessary to flood the site of the so-called "No. 2 mill."

C. H. Dexter & Sons became an incorporated organization in 1914, with Arthur D. Coffin, president, treasurer, and general manager; Herbert R. Coffin, 2nd, vice president; and Charles H. Coye, secretary. In 1924, Arthur D. Coffin's son, Dexter D. Coffin, joined the firm as assistant treasurer. Mr. Coye died in 1927, after having served the company for over 40 years.

In the meantime, the No. 1 mill was re-equipped with new and improved machines, which greatly increased the capacity. In fact, at the latter part of 1928 the last piece of the old machinery was discarded and replaced by a modern paper making machine.

In July, 1929, the company, feeling the need of still further manufacturing facilities, purchased from the American Writing Paper company the Oakland mill, situated in the town of Manchester.

The present officers of C. H. Dexter & Sons, Inc., are Arthur D. Coffin, president, and treasurer; Herbert R. Coffin, vice president; Dexter D. Coffin, vice president, assistant treasurer, and general manager; Herbert A. Wingate, secretary; Herbert H. Griswold, assistant secretary.

The company is now specializing in the production of highest grade thin papers, including white and colored tissues, both plain and embossed, manifold papers, carbonizing tissues, condenser tissue and various other specialties.

IOWA LIVESTOCK FARMERS HOPE TO GAIN BY DROUGHT

AMES, Iowa—(AP)—The drought has been bad for Iowa grain farmers and good for Iowa livestock producers, an Iowa State college survey shows.

Although Iowa's corn crop is 20 per cent short, benefits normally to be expected are removed by the crops distribution and the effect of the price of wheat on prices of all feed grains.

Feed shortage is not so marked in Iowa as elsewhere with the result that the state expects to raise its normal amount of hogs and cattle for the better prices anticipated next year.

TEXAN GAINS BY FEEDING RANGE HOGS FOR MARKET

BRADY, Tex.—(AP)—Few farmers feed out their range hogs for market, but Raleigh White overruled the order for a net profit of $354 on 114 shoats.

For 60 days he fed them 44,000 pounds of maize and 3,700 pounds of protein supplement for an average gain of 89 pounds apiece.

The original value was $798, but for a feeding expense of $900 he sold them for $2,052.

NORWICH TOWN

AUTOMOBILE CRASH AT HARLAND ROAD CORNER

Tuesday afternoon about 5.40 residents on Town street, near Harland corner, were given a second thrill within three days' time, when two automobiles came together with such a bang that people on upper Washington street heard the crash. A Hudson sedan, practically new, with Connecticut registration 53,551, driven by George Hoffberg, of Hartford, was crashed into by a Chrysler roadster, L-4069, driven by Archie Tate, who conducts a repair garage in Yantic. The Hartford car which was proceeding uptown on the right side of highway had a mudguard and fender so badly damaged that a repair man was obliged to detach them from the car after it had been pushed into the driveway nearly opposite where it first stopped, by order of Constable Lucius Fenton. Later the Hartford car proceeded away under its own power. The Chrysler roadster which was reported to be badly damaged, was proceeding toward the city at the time of the accident. One front wheel was torn off and was minus the spokes when the car landed on the left hand side of the road. The front axle on the left was gouged into the earth on the sidewalk, bringing the car to a standstill about 50 feet from the other car. Mr. Hoffberg was somewhat unnerved over the accident as he told one of the women who happened on the scene he was afraid his mother would be worried as he told her he would return to Hartford early, plans having been made that he and his mother would attend the theatre Thursday evening.

Next Sunday night in the Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter is to deliver the first stereopticon lecture of the fall and winter season. "Early Indian Mission Trails in the Oregon Country" is the subject. The lecture guides the observer over the trails nearly a century after they were first blazed by that Indian delegation of the northwest in search of the "White Man's Book of Heaven." The story of that quest and the response of Jason Lee and his co-workers is one of compelling interest, causing an audience to realize how large a part they had in the developing of the Oregon country. The lecture is open to the public and will be a part of the service that starts at 7:30. Nearly fifty beautiful colored pictures will be shown.

Gave "Pollyanna"

Before an appreciative audience Monday evening in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, Miss Pauline Mayo of New York gave her classic "Pollyanna." By her charming presentation of Eleanor H. Porter's character Miss Mayo convinced her audience that the glad game was the only true way of making the most of life. How the little girl Pollyanna had taught a whole town how to play the game including her prim aunt and a grouchy banker was most cleverly interpreted by Miss Mayo, who has given the play over five hundred times. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter and her social committee, Mrs. Woodruff Sullivan, Muriel Rose, Virginia Ward, Mildred Carter and Florence Gembel.

ACADEMY SECONDS EASILY DEFEAT WESTERLY SECONDS

The Academy cross-country squad continued undefeated after a second team meet with Westerly high here Thursday and by virtue of a sweeping 18 to 37 victory, now has four straight wins. The Wildcats registered their most convincing victory yesterday, led by Red Caulfield, who finished the 2 1-2 mile course in 14 minutes 49 seconds, and was closely followed by three N. F. A. runners to give the Academy the meet no matter where their fifth man finished. Woldarczak was second, with Mahoney third and L. O'Neil fourth. Three Westerly men followed in Shippee, Celestino and Cappuccio, then came the fifth Academy runner, Rathbun, and Steadman and Vuttone, both of Westerly, finished out the list of scoring places.

The Academy is making a great showing this fall under the coaching of Matt Sheridan and will enter the interscholastic run with a great chance for its first title. Already victories have been scored over Connecticut Aggie freshmen and Stonington by the first team and Bulkeley and Westerly seconds by the seconds.

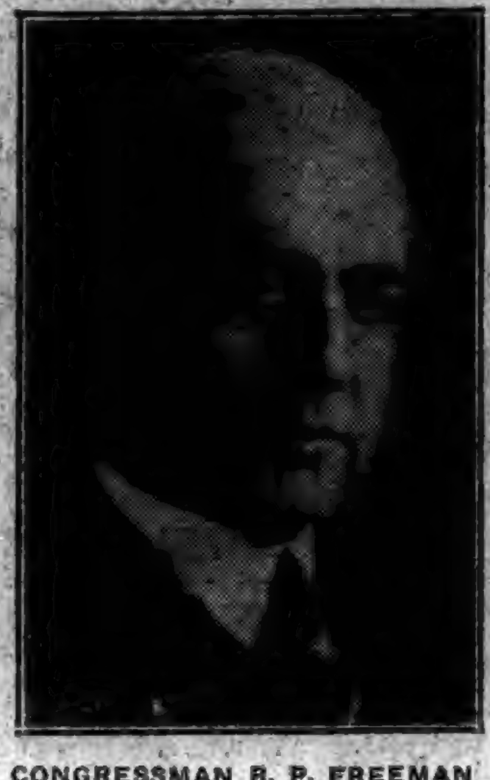
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES 100 PER CENT EFFICIENT SAYS CONG. FREEMAN

The men on our ticket are 100 per cent. efficient, said Congressman Richard P. Freeman, of New London, in an address Thursday evening at an enthusiastic rally at Pulaski hall, under the auspices of the Polish-American Republican club of Norwich. After speaking of the accomplishments of President Hoover's administration, reduction in taxes, reduction in the national debt, reduction in naval expenditures, and the president's promotion of world peace, Congressman Freeman, who is running for re-election on November 4th, said that these endeavors on the part of the president deserve support and approval. "You can best manifest your support and approval of President Hoover by voting the straight republican ticket," said the congressman.



CONGRESSMAN R. P. FREEMAN

There was an attendance of over 300 men and women at the rally, at which John Stankiewicz, president of the Polish-American Republican club, was chairman. In opening the meeting, President Stankiewicz stated that the club had been organized two years ago and that it now numbers over 100 members, every one a voter. He introduced as the first speaker, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. After expressing his pleasure at the large sized turnout, Mayor Robbins went on to speak of the principal issues in the coming election. "When you want a lawyer you go to the best lawyer you can find," he said. "You take his advice. When you want a doctor, you go to the best doctor you can find. You take his medicine. When your house is on fire, you don't call a policeman, you call a fireman. When you want good government, you don't call a democrat; you call a republican," said the mayor.

As To Workmen's Compensation.

Charles W. Cassidy, candidate for state senator on the local republican ticket, was the next speaker. "My friend and opponent, William J. Fitzgerald, when he accepted the democratic nomination for state senator, said, according to the newspapers, that the workmen's compensation law was passed by the democrats and that the republicans, since that time, have done nothing for the working man.

Let us keep the record straight. Let us look at the facts. The compensation act was passed by the general assembly in 1913. It was written by the labor and judiciary committees, these committees being controlled by the republicans. It was passed by a republican house of representatives and a democratic senate, and signed by a democratic governor. So you can see that the republicans deserve at least half the credit for this act. It has been amended from time to time by general assemblies entirely republican, in their membership, and these amendments were signed by republican governors. These amendments were in favor of the working man, so it seems that in the passage of the compensation act the republican party has helped the working man.

Also the republican party in 1913 favored the widow's pension act and this, although it does not directly help the dead working man, it helps his widow and dependent children. So it seems to me that the republican party has greatly helped the working man. The republican party has also passed numerous labor laws beneficial to both working men and women so, once more, it seems to me that the republican party has helped the working man. Therefore it seems as if Mr. Fitzgerald was misinformed when he made this statement.

As to the care of the tubercular cases in this state, I just want to say that I want to see every person afflicted by this terrible disease given prompt medical attention and cure. I want to see enough dormitory buildings in this state, so that there will be room for every afflicted person. This will be done under republican administration.

The next speaker introduced was B. Koniski of Middletown. After speaking of his pleasure at seeing so many of his friends seated on the platform, Mr. Koniski addressed the gathering in Polish. He spoke of the campaign issues and urged his listeners to give their whole hearted support to the national, state and local republican ticket in the coming election.

Selectman Murray Speaks

"It is always a pleasure to receive an invitation to come here and say a few words," said Selectman William S. Murray, who was then presented. "It is gratifying to see so many of you here tonight," he went on. "It shows an interest not only in your town but in your state," he said. Mr. Murray said that the voters will have an opportunity to decide for themselves on November 4th which is the best party to govern the state, and in a measure, the nation.

Mr. Murray said that for the benefit of new voters, demonstrations on the use of the voting machines will be held October 29th, 30th and 31st. The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m., said Mr. Murray and he advised the voters to vote early on election day.

The next speaker was Fred Knowles, candidate for election to the house of representatives from Norwich.

Candidates For Representatives

"I am a working man," said Mr. Knowles. "I have worked in Taftville for 18 years," he went on, "and I think I know some of the needs of the working men. I intend to do the best I can for the working man. I have always voted the straight republican ticket. When we have a republican administration we have good government," he said. Mr. Knowles urged listeners to vote the straight republican ticket.

The chairman presented as the next speaker, B. J. Monkiewicz, of New Britain, who addressed the assemblage in their native tongue, the Polish language. Josiah Greenstein, candidate for election as representative from the town of Norwich, was another speaker. He said in the course of his remarks:

"We are on the eve of another election and as usual the bunk flies thick and fast, but it strikes me that this campaign is rather unique in that all the bunk comes from the democratic side. The reason is obvious—the republican administration has done such a capable and efficient job of running the state of Connecticut that the democrats have nothing to talk about and so are throwing the bunk good and plenty, attacking and criticising the present administration simply and solely for the purpose of creating a smoke screen to endeavor to obscure the good work done by the republican administration.

"It is amusing to hear some of the bunk handed out to the voters by the democrats and it is particularly amusing to hear them blame the unemployment situation and business depression on the republican party. That situation exists not only in our own city and state but it is an unfortunate situation existing all over the world at the present time. We ought to be thankful that we are living in this country under a republican administration rather than to be living in some foreign country where conditions are ten times worse.

"Ladies and gentlemen, you know and I know that the business depression now existing is not the fault of the republican administration because it is something entirely beyond the control of the administration. The experts on economics will tell you that business travels in cycles, that is, for a certain period business will be good, then as economic conditions change, it becomes either better or worse, depending upon the prevailing conditions. It so happens that on the eve of this election we find unemployment and bad business conditions and the democrats take advantage of this unfortunate situation by trying to place the blame on the republican party. Connecticut has prospered and flourished under 15 years of uninterrupted republican administration. The state of Connecticut represents a big business corporation and it takes men of real business ability to conduct the business of the state. The present healthy condition of its finances proves that the men in control, who are republicans, know their business, and they are entitled to be re-elected to continue the good work.

"Ladies and gentlemen, do not permit yourselves to be blinded to the good work of the republican administration by the smoke screen thrown up by the democrats but go out on election day and vote the straight republican ticket and you will be assured of the continuation of an efficient, clean, honest, business administration."

Congressman Freeman Speaks

President Stankiewicz then introduced Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London who was greeted with hearty applause. "I noticed you have listened to a great many speeches and given them your close attention," said Congressman Freeman. "I trust you will bear with me a little while this evening," he continued. "Through dark days and fair days, the republican party holds its men and women to an abiding faith in its policies and principles—a faith that knows no turning or shadow of turning.

"The republican party has always remained steadfast. Changes and counter-changes have been made by the democratic party. What faith can any man or woman place in such a party?

"I am confident that the republican administration has done its best," said the congressman. With reference to the unemployment situation, the speaker explained the underlying causes of the trouble in this country at the present time. For instance, he said that importation of cotton by England from the United States fell off two thirds between January, 1929, and March, 1930. He also called attention to the fact that civil war has disorganized the oriental trade. China has always been a world market for cotton goods. Overproduction of sugar has caused unemployment in Cuba. All these things have contributed to the situation in this country today.

Congressman Freeman expressed his confidence in President Hoover and his advisers. "You know and I know," he said, "that President Hoover has had experience in these conditions throughout the world. We know he has always mastered them. Now it is up to you to say whether you will stand by him or whether you will cripple his efforts by voting for democratic candidates."

The congressman expressed his admiration for the republican state ticket. He said he has known Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, candidate for election as governor on the republican ticket, since boyhood days. He spoke of Mr. Rogers as fair, honest, industrious and steady and said he has achieved success in everything he has ever undertaken.

Judge Warren B. Burrows, he said, he has also known since boyhood days. He has seen him rise in the legal profession to a judgeship in the U. S. circuit court. Congressman Freeman said that all the men on the ticket are able and efficient. He spoke of Samuel Spencer, candidate for lieutenant governor, and of others on the state ticket. They will fulfill the positions with honor to themselves," he said.

"I trust you will elect Charles W. Cassidy to the state senate, and also the two republican candidates for the house," said Congressman Freeman. "I trust you will elect George H. Bradford as high sheriff of New London county.

"It has been said that J. Henry Roraback had quite a little to do with the selection of the state ticket," the congressman continued. "Well, if that is so, he has much to be proud of and little to regret. The men on our ticket are 100 per cent efficient." The congressman expressed the hope that the voters will roll up a rousing majority for them on election day.

Speaking of the achievements of congress he said that that body has passed appropriations for many millions that will aid in the common welfare and restore prosperity. He spoke of the creation of the farm relief board and of its make-up. This enterprise is one of the greatest ever undertaken by any government in the interest of agriculture, Congressman Freeman said.

The tariff bill, he said, is necessary to protect American labor and American wages. He charged that the democrats throughout the long tariff session, acted as obstructionists. The democrats were trying to hold off the beneficial effects of this tariff until election, or as near election as possible.

The congressman said that in ten years the national public debt has been decreased 10 billions of dollars with a great savings in interest charges. The savings this year in interest charges alone is $405,000,000 over the 1921 figure. There have been five reductions in taxes in 10 years. Our merchant marine has been expanded and increases have been voted for necessary public buildings throughout the country. There have been increased disability allowances and increased pensions for veterans of all wars, and rivers and harbors have been improved. Yet great consideration has been shown the individual taxpayer.

Congressman Freeman said we have saved millions and millions of dollars through the naval limitation conferences and yet our navy has not been neglected. This saving of money will benefit every man and woman in the United States. President Hoover is promoting world peace, said the speaker. These endeavors on his part deserve your support and approval by voting the straight republican ticket.

The final speaker was Anthony Fidrych, of the Polish-American Republican club, who addressed the audience in Polish, exhorting them to support the republican candidates in the coming election.

Among those present in addition to the speakers were Albert J. Bailey, state central committeeman; George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee; Sheriff George H. Bradford of Montville, Deputy Sheriff John R. Bowman, Jr., and others.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION IS INVITED TO HARTFORD

An invitation to hold the Women's Christian Temperance union state convention in Hartford in 1931 was presented at the closing session of the convention Thursday morning at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, without definite action being taken now, but it is expected the invitation will be accepted later.

The following telegram in response to one sent to President Hoover from the convention on Wednesday was received:

Ladies:

The president has received the telegram which you have been good enough to send him and wants you and everyone concerned to know how gratified he is by your assurance of confidence and good will.

Sincerely yours,
LAWRENCE RICHEY,
Secretary to the President.

During the morning another telegram of greetings came from the Georgia W. C. T. U. and was answered as follows: Your greetings gladly welcomed. We are workers together with God.

Election of Directors.

The principal piece of business to come before the final convention session was the election of directors of departments, L. T. L. and Y. P. B. secretaries and editor of White Ribbon Banner. The following were elected: Branch secretaries, young people's branch, Mrs. Mary Sunderland of Milldale; loyal temperance legion, Mrs. Marguerite E. Goodale of Durham; editor of White Ribbon Banner, Mrs. Mary E. Welles of Hartford; Sunday school, Mrs. Ida M. Mathews of South Willington; non-alcoholic fruit products, Mrs. Angeline Lund of Groton; Christian citizenship, Mrs. Charles G. Smith of Watertown; Americanization, Mrs. Grace Curtiss Platt, Bridgeport; evangelistic, Mrs. Charlotte B. Joyce, Bridgeport; Flower Mission and relief work, Mrs. Margaret E. Hood, South Manchester; institute leader, Mrs. Hattie M. Newton, Durham; international relations, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, Bozrahville; medal contests, Mrs. Eva B. Castaldine, Bristol; medical temperance, Mrs. Mary B. McKinnon, Yalesville; narcotics, Miss Elizabeth H. Fitts, Warehouse Point; parliamentary usage, Mrs. Ella F. Burr, South Manchester; scientific temperance instruction, Miss Clara M. Norton, Bristol; soldiers and sailors, Miss Ethel D. Barrows, New London; temperance and missions, Mrs. Addie M. Slate, South Windham.

Vice Presidents' Report.

High points of the year concerning work in their respective counties were outlined by the eight county vice presidents. Those to report were: Hartford county, Mrs. Eva B. Castaldine, Bristol; New Haven county, Mrs. Mabel P. Preusser, Waterbury; New London county, Miss Nellie J. Starr, Uncasville; Fairfield county, Mrs. Mary S. Marshall, Bridgeport; Windham county, Mrs. Mary L. Stearns, Willimantic; Litchfield county, Mrs. Mary P. Lamphier, Watertown; Middlesex county, Mrs. Hattie M. Newton, Durham; Tolland county, Mrs. Annie P. Service, South Willington.

A brief talk relative to her recent tour of Europe was given by Mrs. Mary L. Stearns of New London. Mrs. Stearns made mention of impressions gathered while abroad and spoke of the beauty of England and Scotland. She also described visits which she made to Italy, Germany, Switzerland and Austria.

Great credit is due Mrs. Ernest J. Jones who had entire charge of the dining room during the convention. Twelve tables were set which were prettily decorated with fall flowers, which had been arranged by Mrs. Jones. She was assisted by the following efficient waitresses:

Miss Mabel Rogers, Miss Josephine Rogers, Miss Lena Haglund, Miss Hannah Haglund, Mrs. Chas. Browning, Mrs. Albert A. Guile, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Ruth Baker, Miss Lois Leffingwell, Miss Myrtle Browning, Miss Myrtle Phillips, Miss Dorothy McNeely and Miss Mildred Mellor.

About 150 guests were served at noon. Miss Gwendolyn Jones had charge of the waitresses at supper time. Those who assisted Mrs. John Phillips who had charge of the kitchen work were Mrs. Lula Palmer, Mrs. Tyler D. Guy, Mrs. Elizabeth Bjorn, Mrs. Christopher Allen, Mrs. Emma Worthington, Mrs. Louis H. Geer and Mrs. Lumis.

SEEKS INJUNCTION TO GET GARAGE REMOVED

On the claim that a brick garage has been erected on his premises by Maria DePalo, the owner of adjoining property, suit has been brought in the common pleas court against Mrs. DePalo by Thomas Constandi who seeks an injunction and $1,000 damages. The Constandi property is on the westerly side of the Zion church on Franklin street.

Constandi alleges that the brick garage was erected during 1930 and he asks for a mandatory injunction to have it removed.

MERIDEN TEAM WILL WORK DEGREE FOR EAGLES

Plans have been made by the entertainment committee of Norwich aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., to have the degree conferred upon one of the largest classes of the season at Eagles home Saturday evening. The degree work to be conducted by the crack Meriden team will be witnessed by several national officers who have received invitations to be present. They are B. L. McAvoy of Providence, W. Murphy of Boston and Department State Officer W. Kelley. A buffet lunch will be served and a programme of entertainment has been arranged.

NO CRIMINAL BLAME IN MOTORCYCLIST'S DEATH

In a finding issued Thursday, Coroner Edward G. McKay finds that the death of George A. Miner, 22, late of Groton, was not caused by the criminal act of carelessness of any other person. Miner died Sept. 23, having been fatally injured when a motorcycle he was driving, left the highway and collided with a stone cliff at what is known as the Crystal avenue underpass in New London. The coroner says in his finding:

This accident occurred east of what is known as the Crystal avenue underpass, in the town of New London. The highway at that point runs under the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. It is the main highway between New London and Providence, surfaced with concrete and about 40 feet wide. The road runs around a curve from the southeast toward the northeast and after passing under the said tracks runs up an incline towards the northeast. On the south side of the said highway there are two streets which intersect the main road, namely, Winthrop street and Harrison street. Between these two streets is a high rock cliff that comes to a sidewalk on the south side of the main highway. The accident occurred about half way between these two streets.

At about 2.05 p. m. the deceased was operating his motorcycle from New London toward Groton. He had come through the underpass and was going around the curve and up the grade. He apparently misjudged the extent of the curve and his wheels came over to the edge of the sidewalk. They scraped along the sidewalk, jumped up on the sidewalk and threw him against the bottom of the cliff. His head struck a projecting part of the cliff about 14 inches above the level of the sidewalk. The force of the blow fractured his skull and rendered him unconscious. He was rushed to the hospital but died about three hours later.

There did not appear to be any other vehicle involved in this accident nor any other person responsible for it. The young man had been on his way from New York to visit his home in Groton. It appears as though he had been driving too close to the edge of the road or had failed to turn sharply enough when he came to the curve.

I am satisfied and find that the death of George A. Miner was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

Democratic Women Will Meet

Reports on the activities of the women's division of the state are to be made at a luncheon meeting next Tuesday at Bridgeport for democratic state central committee women and the Connecticut Federation of Democratic Women's clubs.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Aftermath Club opened its season Thursday evening, meeting with Miss May M. Maher. Mrs. Laurence E. Millea and Miss Margaret M. Murphy took the prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunt Chase and daughter, Miss Virginia Chase of Sachem Terrace, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Cockrell of East Greenwich, R. I., who motored to Bradford, Penn., Friday returned Tuesday evening. While in Bradford they were joined by Mr. and Mrs Charles C. Elwell, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Hemingway, of New Haven. Saturday evening the ladies of the group were members of a dinner party entertained by Mrs. Lawrence George Dana, at her home. At the same time, her son, Milton Dana was giving a bachelor dinner of thirty at the Hotel Holley for Amos Prentice Chase, of Utica, N. Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Chase. The wedding of Amos Prentice Chase and Miss Helen Claire Dana, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence George Dana, took place Monday morning at 10 o'clock, at the rectory of St. Bernard's church, Bradford. The rector Rt. Rev. Monsignor David F. Hickey performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by members of the two families and a few intimate friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Dana, the best man being Frank Mattison, of Utica, N. Y. The bride wore a brown crepe gown, princess model, with gold nail-head trimming. Her hat was of matching tint and she carried yellow roses and lillies-of-the-valley. Miss Margaret Dana's frock was of golden yellow trimmed in brown, she wore a brown, close fitting hat and carried talisman roses. The breakfast following the ceremony was served at the Holley, where the decorations were autumn flowers. After several weeks' motor trip in the South, Mr. Chase and his bride will reside in Utica, where he is supervisor of the Shenandoah Rayon corporation mill. The bride was graduated from Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, with the degree of Bachelor of Science. Mr. Chase was graduated from Cornell University, '20 and is a member of Zeta Psi. His marriage is of special interest to many in Norwich society, as he is the namesake of his grandfather, Amos Prentice, a leader in mercantile activities in this city during his life time, also representing the town in the state legislature and state senator, besides serving for a number of terms as Mayor of Norwich. While the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Chase was quiet because of a recent death in the Dana family, the social events attending it were very elegant in all their appointments and the marriage aroused wide social attention because of the prominence in Bradford of the bride's family.

Principal and Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell had as dinner guests Tuesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Butterfield, of Hartford.

The last meeting of the Sandwich Club was held with Mr. and Mrs. Reed W. Tisdale, of Bliss Place. The prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Hull.

The Wednesday night Bridge club met with Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon, Jr. Mrs. Herbert H. Willey and Miss Villa C. Bussey were the prize winners.

Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell and Miss Helen Tirrell leave today (Friday) to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tirrell, at their home at Sound Beach, Hartford.

RISKO LOSES TO DANIELS ON A FOUL

BOSTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Dick Daniels, hard punching Minneapolis heavyweight won on a foul from Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, in the seventh round of the Boston Garden's 10-round feature bout here tonight. The low blow, which appeared unintentional, was struck while Risko was savagely battering Daniels' body with both hands. Risko weighed 198 and Daniels 185½.

Daniels dropped under the blow and had to be carried to his corner. The referee, Johnny Martin, who had warned Risko but a round before, unhesitatingly disqualified him.

The battlers were on even terms when the contest was stopped. Risko started savagely and gave Daniels a furious battering during most of the opener. The Cleveland "rubber man" grew careless near the end of that session and came out of a clinch wide open. Daniels caught him with a right to the head and floored Johnny, but for no count.

Risko was a bit dazed, either from pain or surprise, when he came out for the second and Daniels nailed him with another right hook and he dropped for nine. Risko, however, fought his way out of danger and managed to keep Daniels off with a long left.

Daniels did not flash again until the fifth, when he gave Risko a heavy hammering, the latter's wide ring experience came to his rescue and he escaped the knockout blows that Daniels aimed by crowding him closely. Risko made a great recovery during the sixth and took the round by pounding Daniels' body at close quarters. Each had three rounds and were making the battle a sensational affair when the low blow was struck.

Beautiful hair !

Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and lustre; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than with Danderine. Each time you use your brush, just moisten it with this delicately fragranced liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and lustre.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so much longer.

Danderne quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant.

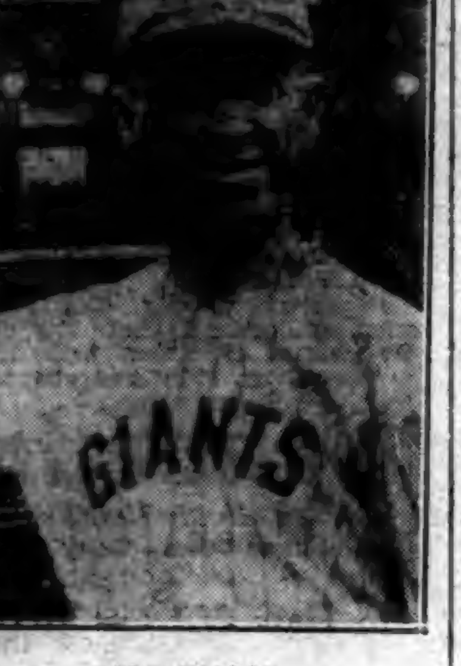
NORWICH MAY HAVE TEAM IN STATE LEAGUE TO BE ORGANIZED NEXT YEAR

There is a strong possibility that Norwich may have a team in organized baseball if plans of Joe Wall, veteran leaguer, go through. Mr. Wall, who at one time played with Norwich in the old Connecticut State league and later with Boston, Brooklyn and the New York Giants, is planning to organize a Connecticut league similar to that of 25 years ago. Mr. Wall, who is now living in New York, sees a chance to organize a league of class B or C teams now that the old Eastern league is all washed up.

He intends to promote teams in the eight following cities: Norwich, New London, New Haven, Hartford, New Britain, Waterbury, Meriden, and Bristol. Later in the season Mr. Wall intends to visit each city to interest people in sponsoring a ball team in their town. Already he has written to several local people whom he knew when in Norwich relative to the establishing of a club here.



JOE WALL

"In Norwich, the only drawback is the lack of an enclosed playing field but with a little capital this might be overcome. Norwich has had no organized ball since the old trolley league went out of existence almost 20 years ago. At the present time Norwich is very much interested in baseball as has been manifest during the past few years in the industrial league. The object of the new league is the training of the young ball players for major league berths and a good part of each team would be made up of players from the home lots.

FORDHAM-N. Y. U. GAME IS NEW YORK'S FEATURE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)— While the rest of the nation worries about tickets for Saturday's pigskin duels involving ancient rivalries, intersectional matches, and the clashes of universities with hallowed names, New York city is setting itself some records and getting all excited about a home town quarrel.

Some 80,000 football fans will jam the Yankee stadium for the eleventh meeting of Fordham and New York university with other thousands turned away because of lack of room. Already 68,000 reserved seats have been sold at $3 each, with 12,000 bleacher pasteboards held for sale at $1.50 each at noon Saturday.

The total gate will touch $222,000, the greatest in the history of New York football aside from Army's famed clashes here with Notre Dame, Navy and Stanford. Of that, 25 per cent goes to the management of the Stadium and Polo grounds, which pool their properties in the football season, share the profits and pay all expenses.

Thus the Fordham stalwarts, undefeated for the past two seasons and a slight favorite to add another conquest Saturday, will earn $83,250 for the athletic treasury of their alma mater and the New York university huskies will do the same. So far in ten games, Fordham has won six and N. Y. U. four.

The university offices reported today that requests for at least 10,000 reserved seats had to be refused for lack of accommodations. Speculators who had some of the tickets were selling $3 seats for $5.

BROMBERG BACK IN DARTMOUTH LINEUP

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 23—(AP)—Guy Bromberg, Dartmouth's outstanding lineman, evidently shook off his "heavy cold" overnight for he was in the lineup here today when Jackson Cannell put his Green regulars through the last of the hard workouts for Saturday's Harvard game at the stadium.

Bromberg, according to the reports broadcast last night from Memorial field, was in such serious shape that he was ordered confined to the college infirmary. Grave fears that he would be out of the Harvard game were also expressed. His actions today, however, indicated that he was in perfect condition for the annual Crimson clash, one of the major events on the Green's pigskin program.

Cannell spent much time perfecting his varsity's forward passing game, a gesture that may or may not, indicate that the Green intends to place great reliance on its overhead plays on Saturday.

With Bromberg again in good health, the Green's starting lineup will be the same as that which opened against Columbia last week, with either McCall or Morton at quarterback and Sutton instead of Wilkin at fullback.

TO ASK FOR SUSPENSION OF AL FRIEDMAN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Gilbert Harrison, secretary of the Oklahoma state athletic commission, today notified Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, he would ask his suspension by the National Boxing association if he goes through with a fight with Young Stribling scheduled for October 31.

Friedman is under contract to fight Frankie Wine here November 3 and a rule of the Oklahoma commission forbids a boxer to participate in any other bout within six days before a fight in this state. Oklahoma is a member of the National Boxing association.

FOOTBALL STARS DEMAND MONEY OR WILL QUIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—A demand by six of the star players on the George Washington freshmen team that they be paid for their football services resulted today in their dismissal from the squad.

James W. Pixlee, director of athletics, said five of the players had come in a group, stating that unless the university reverted to its former practice of giving room and board as well as a means of getting spending money they would leave school.

Forewarned of the move, Pixlee sent out an answer that they could leave immediately. Later another player joined the "pay or no play" group and he, too, was invited to leave the university. Six other freshman athletes were under investigation.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington, reiterated Pixlee's answer as the group came to him asking honorable dismissal. He said "George Washington would rather have no football team than one where the players were receiving money to represent the institution." It had not been decided tonight whether the players would be expelled. The players announced late today they had withdrawn from the university.

Four of the group constituted Pixlee's first string freshman backfield. They were Frank Walsh, of Duluth, Minn., John Hofsess, of Mexico, Missouri; August Newcamp, of Erie, Pa., and Charles Robinson, of Newark, N. J. The others were Vance Joviol, of Butte, Mont., and George Generosa, of Pittsburgh.

Pixlee said the group had planned to make their demand tomorrow night, just before the arc-light game with the Georgetown university freshmen, the high spot of the season. The game, however, was cancelled.

"Every one of the group," Pixlee said, "had come into the university with the definite understanding that we would do nothing for them except to see that they got a job.

"If we could not find a job that would leave them free to play football I agreed to see that room and board was provided for a month, and after that I would find a job whether it interferred with football or not, providing only that it left them time for study."

The athletic director, now in his second year with the university, said that up until last Thanksgiving room and board, as well as athletic scholarships and other concessions had been given football men.

Things grew so bad under that system, he said, that players came who thought mostly of the room and board and little of the university. At times, he asserted, they showed so little spirit it was necessary to exclude them from the training table and lock their rooms to get them to play at all.

Last fall, however, the university issued an edict that it was cleaning house, effective Thanksgiving day. Pixlee said he took the athletic scholarship fund and split it equally among the squad. He added he told every man that his free room and board would stop at that time, and that unless they wished to continue for the sake of the university alone they could go.

Last year's freshman team, which now comprises virtually the George Washington varsity, was given no concession other than an offer to find each player a job, Pixlee said. He added they had never shown any discontent.

TICKNOR RETURNS TO PLACE ON HARVARD TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Captain Ben Ticknor, Harvard's All-American center, rejoined the Crimson varisty squad today and participated in the final hard workout for Saturday's Dartmouth game. The Crimson leader appeared fit and will be in the starting line-up against the Green.

Head Coach Arnold Horween gave his squad a light but long workout and the feature of the afternoon's activities was the dummy scrimmage engagement between the varsity and second varsity, the latter combination using Dartmouth formations. The usual signal drill, during which Horween outlined several new plays, ended the session.

MISS HICKS WINS MEDAL IN PEBBLE BEACH TOURNEY

DEL MONTE, Cal., Oct. 23—(AP)—Adding a 73, one over women's par, at the Monterey Peninsula Country club today, Miss Helen Hicks of Inwood, N. Y., won the 36 hole low gross and low net honors in the Del Monte invitational golf tournament. Her score yesterday on the Pebble Beach course was 82, for a total of 161.

Miss Hicks made four birdies and one eagle.

She was closely followed by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia and Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, each scoring 164 for the 36 holes.

Eighteen hole low gross and low net honors on the Dunes links today went to Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit, who scored a 78, women's par.

Tomorrow contestants in the recent women's national golf championship will compete in an 18 hole invitation event at Cypress Point.

Basketball Challenge

The South Willington basketball team will swing into its schedule on December 12th. All home games will be played on Friday nights They are ready to book games with the leading amateur teams throughout the state. Most of the games will be played at home, they having one of the best courts in the state. Though not the largest, the playing surface is excellent, measuring 60 by 60 feet. Any top notch amateur team interested in playing them are requested to get in touch with the manager, Gardiner H. Hall, at South Willington.

YOUNG, NEBRASKA STAR BACK, SCORES HIGH IN DRAMATICS

"RED" YOUNG
AP

LINCOLN, Neb.—(AP)—An elusive red-haired lightweight halfback again this year is expected to supply the main scoring punch of the University of Nebraska grid machine, long-famed for poundage and power plays.

The nimble-footed youth is Robert "Red" Young. Weighing 155 pounds, Young led the Big Six conference in scoring last season, and in the Cornhuskers' first appearance this fall, he romped across the goal line for one of their two touchdowns and proved that his old knack for open-field running has not been lost.

In high school days at Norfolk, Neb., "Red" exhibited the same propensities for skitting ends and running back punts. At that time and in the university also he kicked and punted both far and accurately.

A senior this year, Young has been active not only on the gridiron but also on the campus.

During his university career he has been a member of the student council. Last year he played the male lead in the Kosmet Dramatic club show.

In order to take part in the club play one night last year and also run in a track meet the same day, Young flew 400 miles by airplane. He was then a member of the Nebraska relay team and was entered in the Drake relays.

An airplane solved the problem and Young flew to Des Moines, ran a good race and was back in Lincoln in time to tread the boards that evening.

REGULAR BACKFIELD IN YALE LINE-UP ONCE MORE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 23.—(AP) — It seems that the scrambling of the Yale backfields yesterday was just a gesture after all, because Mal Stevens had Booth, Austen, Dunn and Crowley, the combination that started the Brown game, back in line today.

And to give a tinge of authenticity to the reports that this backfield would start against Army, Stevens even went so far as to say he "intended" to send the quartet into the bowl for the opening kickoff.

Benny Friedman, one time Michigan forward pass wizard, was on hand today to give one of his lessons in the art of aerial offense and defense. While the backs and ends were under Prof. Friedman's tutelage, the linemen had a snappy drill in fundamentals which included live tackling.

Yale's second backfield, which undoubtedly will be sent into the Army scrap late in the second period to relieve Booth and company, will consist of Sullivan, Parker, Taylor and Muhlfeld. McLennan and Helm, quarterbacks, are still ailing, and may not see service at all. Lindenberg, left end, is definitely out with a wrenched leg.

The cadets arrived at Choate school, Wallingford, today, and will hold a practice in the bowl tomorrow. The junior varsities of the two schools will play a game of football tomorrow, Army using Yale's plays and Yale using Army plays.

ACADEMY READY FOR WESTERLY GAME TODAY

A short signal drill with a bit of punting practice by Bob Geer thrown in, on Thursday, completed the Academy's preparation for its game with Westerly high at Westerly this afternoon. This contest, the second of the conference season for the Wildcats, may go a long way in deciding their chances in the race. A victory over Westerly today will give the Red and White a better than average chance to cop their first football title, while a defeat will set them back somewhat and make Westerly just a little stronger favorites to win for the second straight year.

All of the first string men were out in uniform Thursday and took part in the practice, but it is doubtful whether Coach Whitney will be able to use everybody he would wish to have in action. Joe Sheridan, end, and Cotter, halfback, were out of last Saturday's tilt with injuries and it is possible that they will not see service today although they ran through the signals yesterday.

Westerly is the only undefeated team in the section, having easily stopped South Kingstown and Central Falls and beaten Windham and Bulkeley after hard tussles and the Academy has its work cut out this afternoon. Grid meetings between the two schools of recent years have been fairly even affairs. Last year Westerly got the decision at the campus, 6 to 0.

ARICO LEAVES SCHOOL TO WORK IN NEW YORK

Alex Arico, captain of the 1931 Academy baseball team and first baseman for the Wildcats for the last three years, left school this week to assume a position in New York. Arico is the fourth prominent Wildcat athlete this school year who has withdrawn from school. The others were Tommy Lynch, basketball star; Les Crowell, one of the mainstays in football and baseball and Cliff Hamil, promising diamond performer.

Miss Fordyce Retains Cup

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23—(AP)—Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, successfully defended the Dorothy Campbell Hurd golf cup over the Merion east course today by turning in an 88 which with her 84 over the west course yesterday gave her the winning 36-hole score of 172.

Miss Frances Williams, Allentown, Pa., who led the field at the half mark yesterday with 82, took a 91 today, failing by one stroke to tie Miss Fordyce.

Gaetano J. Russolari, 38, was found dead by monoxide gas poisoning in his garage in Springfield.

BACON HARRIERS OUTRUN TEAM FROM BULKELEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Oct. 23.— The Bacon academy track team outpointed the fast Bulkeley high school harriers of New London, 27 to 28, in a close exciting race on the two and a half mile course west of the village, Thursday afternoon. Mortimer Krupnic, the Bacon star, came in first, with a time of 13 minutes, 50 seconds. Zenowitz, another Bacon runner, was second while the other three Bacon men, Gregory, Turetsky and Goldberg came in 5th, 9th and 10th respectively. Both teams were well matched and showed the result of much intensive practice. By a queer coincidence the score was the same, 28-27 points in favor of Bacon academy in last Monday's race with Lyman Memorial high school harriers here but the time was two seconds slower in the Bacon-Bulkeley meet. The Bacon harriers feel elated at having outpointed the strong Bulkeley outfit and Coach Howell hopes to enter his boys in the interscholastic conference meet of eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island to be held in Norwich, November 20. A return meet with the Lyman Memorial high school team in Lebanon is to be held on October 30. A return meet with Bulkeley high has not yet been arranged. The Bacon outfit will compete with the Norwich Free Academy team in Norwich on Nov 6 and on Nov. 17 a return meet will be held here with N. F. A.

VELVETMEN TOP SOCCER LEAGUE BY SINGLE POINT

The games to be played this week in the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league are the same as on last Sunday, with the exception that the visiting team last week is the home team this week:

Putnam vs. Baltic at Putnam; Jewett City vs. Danielson at Jewett City; Plainfield vs. J. B. Martin at Plainfield; N. L. Rangers vs. Wauregan at New London.

Last Sunday all of the home teams won their games except Wauregan, who lost a fast and cleanly played game to the N. L. Rangers by 5 to 2 score.

With Plainfield losing last Sunday to the J. B. Martin, they dropped from first to third place in the league standing to go in a triple tie for third place.

The Baltic team is in second place, one point behind the league-leading Martin team.

The league standing:

Team	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pt.
J. B. Martin	3	3	0	0	6
Baltic	3	2	0	1	5
Danielson	3	2	1	0	4
Plainfield	3	2	1	0	4
N. L. Rangers	3	2	1	0	4
Jewett City	3	0	2	1	1
Putnam	3	0	3	0	0
Wauregan	3	0	3	0	0

THREE ARRESTED FOR HAVING COUNTERFEIT TICKETS

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23—(AP)—Sale of tickets for the Notre Dame-Pitt football game Saturday and the appearance of counterfeit tickets today resulted in the arrest of three men and the detention of four others.

The three men under arrest and one held for questioning were believed by police to have been the innocent victims of spurious ticket sellers. One man had 25 tickets in his possession and he said he paid $125 for them.

The remaining three were held for further investigation in police court, where they were arraigned on scalping charges.

Police and Pitt athletic authorities said several thousand counterfeit tickets were in circulation in the city. The Pitt stadium was sold out several days ago.

HOLLYWOOD WINS SECOND STRAIGHT FROM ANGELS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23.— (AP) — With another wild batting spree, Hollywood took the second straight game from Los Angeles, 14 to 12, today in the play-off for the Pacific Coast league championship. There were six home runs.

Los Angeles	12	13	0
Hollywood	14	15	1

Ballou, Yerkes, Walsh, Gabler and Hannah; Shellenbach, Hollerson and Baseler, Severeid.

LEMIEUX LEADS SHYMA CLUB BALL TEAM WITH BATTING MARK OF 394

The season's records of the Shyma baseball club have just been compiled and they show that the club had a very successful season and that the boys played some exceptionally good ball. Lemieux, the Shyma third baseman, led the hitting with an average of .394, while he was closely followed by Captain Wilk with an average of .352. Two other players on the team batted over the .300 mark. Dudek and Faucher had fielding averages of 1.000 but Wilk, who played first base, can really be called the leader as he had an average of .981.

The outstanding players of the club, were Lemieux, who, besides leading in batting, had the most three-base hits with 5; Wilk had the most doubles, 13; Bunk led in stolen bases with 14; S. Raymond and Bunk tied with 9 sacrifices each. The team won 23 and lost 10 games during the season. The averages follow:

BIG SIX CONFERENCE UP AGAINST PROSELYTING AGAIN

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Charges and counter charges of subsidization and proselyting of athletes tonight involved half the members of the Big Six conference.

The solution of the problem rests with conference faculty representatives at a regular meeting here tomorrow and Saturday.

First centering on James A. (Jarring Jim) Bausch, Kansas halfback who has been a perennial subject of investigation since he forsook the University of Wichita for the University of Kansas, the charges tonight involved not only Bausch but his football coach, H. W. (Bill) Hargiss; William H. (Bill) Meissinger, Kansas Aggie halfback; and Chester L. Brewer, athletic director, and Dr. H. J. Huff, track coach, both of the University of Missouri.

George C. Shaad, Kansas faculty representative on athletics and president of the conference faculty group, admitted today he had received formal charges against Bausch and Hargiss but declined to reveal their nature. It is understood, however, Bausch is charged with professionalism and Hargiss with recruiting an athlete in violation of conference rules.

Meissinger said today, in conference with Dr. H. H. King, faculty representative, and M. F. Ahearn, athletic director of the Aggies, he was receiving a monthly salary from E. H. Lupton, Jr., Topeka and Lawrence insurance man, which was in the nature of a retainer for a position as manager of Lupton's farm after his graduation. Lupton lists Bausch on his payroll at $75 a month, as a salesman.

Bausch issued a statement in which he said he had been approached indirectly by Huff, regarding attendance at the University of Missouri, with promise of a larger monthly wage than he received from Lupton and other inducements if he would transfer his athletic endeavors to Missouri. Bausch said this offer was made in the summer of 1929 before he had competed on Kansas varsity teams. Huff was track coach in Bausch's freshman year.

The University of Kansas athletic office, which issued Bausch's statement, also made public the copy of another letter written by Clerin (Bogie) Zumwalt, Kansas City, Kas., athlete now at Washburn college, Topeka, in which Zumwalt says he met Brewer in Colorado last summer and the Missouri athletic director told him he had a friend in Columbia who would give Zumwalt work for his room and board if he would attend school there.

Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, athletic director at the University of Kansas, reiterated a previously expressed desire for an open investigation of the conference by an outsider, or group of outsiders, with the schools pro-rating the cost. Kansas officials reiterated statements that Bausch had been investigated before, and his amateur status was found unblemished.

Missouri athletic officials denied they had made overtures to any athletes.

King and Ahearn of the Aggies expressed regret at Meissinger's revelations and said had they known of the arrangement they would have taken action in their own athletic council.

Hargiss denied he had influenced Phil Borello, Kansas City athlete, to attend Kansas. Hargiss was supported in this by Judge Clarence A. Burney of Kansas City, former Kansas athlete, who said he had urged Borello to go to Kansas. Borello attended Notre Dame for a part of a term a year ago.

College Soccer Game

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 23—(AP)—The Springfield college varsity soccer team filled an open date when it contracted today to play the Wesleyan team at Middletown, Conn., tomorrow. The locals will have Seewagen in goal, Parker and Warner at fullbacks, Hartman, Miller and Caldwell; halfbacks, Captain Searle, Joyce, Owens, Mathew and Gunn in the forward line.

Black Hawks vs. Fells All Stars

Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock at the Academy campus the Black Hawks play Fells' All Stars. Each team is confident of a victory which makes the battle more interesting. Each Black Hawk is asked to report at the Academy campus at 9 o'clock. A large crowd is expected.

King Tut Knocks Out Townsend

DETROIT, Oct. 23—(AP)—King Tut, hard hitting welterweight from Milwaukee, won on a technical knockout from Billy Townsend, Vancouver, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Tut weighed 142½; Townsend 141½.

Burt T. Peynter, 61, a railroad telegraph operator who worked at the North Haven station of the New Haven road, was killed on the treatle a half mile from his office.

DARR-KOZIOL BOUT TOPS FAST [illegible] BOXING CARD AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD
Three Star Bouts—Eight Rounds
Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Vic Darr of Norwich
Johnny Woods of New York vs. Johnny Curcio of Providence
Jimmy Quinn of Norwich vs. Tony Caprio of Providence
Six-Round Preliminary
Al Redman of Goodyear vs. Young Rochette of Westerly
Four-Round Preliminary
Al Brouillard of Danielson vs. Julio Rossi of Westerly

The smack of leather on flesh and the smell of powdered resin will pervade Parish hall in Taftville this evening when the first indoor boxing show of the season will be staged by the Shyma Boxing club. This is Norwich's first boxing card since last June and should be well attended.

From the sidelines the card looks like one of the best seen in Norwich in some time as it is well balanced. Two bouts and possibly three will no doubt be slugging matches, while the other two will be more scientific affairs. The two preliminaries bid fair to provide plenty of action, especially the bout that brings together Al Rodman and Young Rochette. These two boys have stood toe to toe for ten rounds so far and have pummeled each other with abandon. Each holds a decision over the other and tonight's bout will be the deciding one. In the opening bout, Julio Rossi and Al Brouillard try conclusions. Brouillard, who is a brother of Dynamite Lou Brouillard, has not lost a bout since he turned professional, but in Rossi he meets a boy who has a world of experience and who hits plenty hard.

Jimmy Quinn, local featherweight, will make his first start as a star bout fighter in the opening of the three star bouts. Quinn meets Tony Caprio of Providence, a clever kid who has worked up from the amateurs. In his bout with Romeo Dubois at the roof garden last summer Caprio looked exceptionally good despite the fact that he was outpointed by Dubois. Quinn will have his hands full tonight and it will take all his boxing skill to stand off the rugged Providence lad. This bout will be the most scientific of the evening, as both are clever.

The second eight-rounder will bring together Johnny Woods of New York and Johnny Curcio of Providence. This should be one of the features of the card as Woods and Curcio are veterans of the ring and know their socks and jabs. Woods will be remembered as the awkward boy who gave Joe Russo such a shellacking at an open air show early in the summer. Looking decidedly out of place in a ring, Woods turned out to be a clever boxer and a boy who packed a mean punch. In tonight's setto he will need all his skill, as Curcio is a master at the boxing game and can hit plenty hard with either hand.

Local interest centers in the main bout between Vic Darr and Al Koziol, with a wide divergence of opinion as to the outcome. Some predict a quick knockout for Darr, while others favor Koziol to take Darr in the early rounds. Some are of the opinion that if Darr keeps away from Koziol he can outpoint him in the eight rounds. No matter what the opinion is the bout is going to be a whirlwind affair from start to finish. If it goes the eight rounds it will be a surprise to many of the fans, who are looking for a quick finish one way or the other.

The show is scheduled for 8:15 and the advance sale of tickets indicates a capacity crowd.

AGGIE TEAM CONCENTRATES ON PASSING AND KICKING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 23.—In their longest workout of the week the Connecticut Aggie football team worked on kicking and forward passing here this afternoon. While there was no actual scrimmage, the kicking and forward passing were carried on under scrimmage conditions.

Coach Dole had his men practice going down on punts and then worked on receiving kick-offs. Eddy, DeRosa, and Williams drilled on kicking for point after touchdown. Although the team has made but one touchdown this season, it is hoped that these men will have an opportunity to show their skill in the contest with Tufts here Saturday.

Eddy, sophomore right end, practiced throwing passes to his running mate, Callahan, who plays left end.

Marty Gilman, who is coaching the freshmen in the absence of Louis Alexander who is studying at Columbia university this semester, is pointing the yearling team for its game with Pomfret Prep at Pomfret this Saturday. His backfield will probably consist of Coss, Carney, Cronin and Pogwist in this next contest. The frosh have not been able to break the losing slump which has hit the Aggie teams this fall. They lost to Loomis 13-6 and to Trinity Jay-Vees 13-0.

Eastern Football Briefs

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Once more Bill Roper devoted an entire practice session to the offensive side of the game today. Howson, a fine punter, probably will start against Navy, but Lea, an end, was slightly hurt again in scrimmage yesterday and may be on the sidelines.

NEW YORK— New York university's football warriors wound up hard work for the Fordham game today. Only a light signal drill will be held tomorrow. Al Gaudet again held a place in the varsity backfield.

NEW YORK—If N. Y. U. thinks it has small chance to score through Fordham's line, Fordham doesn't think it has any more of getting through the Violet forwards. Coach Cavanaugh had the Rams out for four hours today, practicing mostly punting and passing. He indicated the Rams would depend chiefly upon an aerial attack.

PITTSBURGH—The Pitt Panthers, who battle Notre Dame next, went through a last hard workout today and were cheered by the announcement that there is a possibility that Franklin Hood, pile-driving fullback, and Jim MacMurdo, end, would be in shape to play.

ANNAPOLIS— Bill Ingram apparently is satisfied with the improvement shown by his Navy team. He restricted the Midshipmen's workout to a light dummy scrimmage today. Steffanides seems to have replaced Smith at end, although which of the two will start against Princeton has not been announced.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Colgate's last heavy practice session for Penn State saw Coach Andy Kerr emphasize today the need of a defence for the forward passes the Nittany Lions probably will throw.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—The Penn State football squad went through a light drill in the rain today. Most of the practice was devoted to perfecting a defense against Colgate plays. French, quarter back, and Edwards, end, who are suffering from injuries, again were on the side lines and probably will not start Saturday.

GEHRIG TO HAVE SEVERAL MINOR OPERATIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Lou Gehrig, clouting first baseman of the New York Yankees, who missed out by a couple of points in his battle with Al Simmons for the American league batting crown, is in need of surgical repairs but not in such shape that he cannot continue his barnstorming tour with Babe Ruth's All Stars.

Lou has a date to play first base for the Bambino's outfit Sunday in Brooklyn but after that he probably will go into a local hospital for a series of operations on a finger he broke three weeks before the end of the 1930 season, an elbow damaged two years ago, and cysts that have formed in the lobe of his right ear.

"I'll know better about it tomorrow night," Gehrig said today at his home in New Rochelle. "I've got some more dates with the doctors. They tell me the repairs have to be made and I'll probably go through with it. Nothing very urgent about it, though."

The big hitter played through the last three weeks of the season with a small cast on a broken finger of his right hand and missed beating Simmons, the Philadelphia clouter, to the wire by closest of margins, although unofficial averages at first awarded him the batting championship. He said his left elbow was damaged two years ago in the south and bothered him for months at a time during the past two seasons. It became much worse this summer, he said, an an x-ray revealed a bone chip that surgeons said must be removed. The cysts in his ear are painful but of minor importance, he said.

WINDHAM HIGH CRIPPLED BY LOSS OF THREE PLAYERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23. — Windham high is expected to be without the services of three of its regular players in its conference game with Bulkeley high at Mercer field, New London, Saturday. Carl Johnson, regular center, is unable to walk following the extraction from his foot of a needle on which he had stepped at his home. Bocash, a lineman, is ineligible to play and Lombardo, a back, probably will not be injected into the game although his scholastic standing is O. K. E. Chase, brilliant back, has not yet fully recovered from injuries sustained in the Westerly game two weeks ago but Coach Thomas A. Callaghan plans to use him nevertheless.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE TO WESTERLY HIGH SCHOOL BY FIRE AND WATER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 23.—The Broad street high school building of the Westerly public schools department suffered hundreds of dollars damage, mostly from smoke and water, on Thursday afternoon from a fire which broke out on the top floor from a flue closet in the chemical laboratory. Late Thursday afternoon Superintendent of Schools Willard H. Bacon said that in all probability some of the high school activity would be curtailed, depending upon the amount of damage finally done by the flood of water and clouds of smoke which filled the rooms on the top floor and found their way into the rooms on the second floor.

The fire alarm was sounded from the fire alarm box No. 513 in front of the school building and all the apparatus of the Westerly fire department responded with Fire Chief Robert Bonner and Assistant Engineers McKenzie, Pasetti and Paton and a large force of firemen. Not only were fire and booster hose lines taken into the front entrance on Broad street next to Wilcox park but ladders were erected at the front of the building and hose taken to the roof.

The alarm was sounded by the school janitor, James Maxwell, who was at work on the top floor after all the students had left the building and first saw the fire in the chemical laboratory at the very top northwest corner of the large brick structure completed in 1908. The fire had eaten its way out of a fume flue and had gotten into a partition at the top of the large assembly hall on the second floor, the flames eating their way through into the laboratory room the woodwork of which was badly charred. At the time the fire broke out Principal Herman Driggs of the Elm street grammar school was in the building and with a traveling salesman attempted to use the small fire hose. This was found to be full of holes and the water lacked pressure at the nozzle end. The schoolmen realized that the fire had reached such headway that the services of the firemen were necessary to cope with the blaze.

Superintendent Bacon was early on the scene directing the firemen to various parts of the building to enable them to look into the school partitions. Thomas Perry and Daniel F. Larkin of the school committee were also in and about the building to assist in the salvaging of school property. From the central location a large crowd gathered in Wilcox park and on Broad and Granite streets to watch the firemen, and the police were busy in directing auto traffic to keep autoists out of the way of the firemen.

When it was certain that all vestige of fire was out the various doors and windows were opened to permit the smoke to blow out of the building. Large rubber blankets and brooms were also used by the firemen in protecting school property and to clear away the large amount of water which was causing the plastering to crack and fall.

Election of officers and annual roll call of the Broad Street Christian church was held on Wednesday evening in the church vestry with Vice President George E. Broughton in charge. Supper was served at 6:30 o'clock by the members of the Ladies' Aid society to the 107 in attendance. The following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Samuel Girven, president; George E. Broughton, vice president; Orlando R. Smith, treasurer; Franklin C. Smith, clerk; trustees for three years, William Grant and Edward F. Card; deacons, Raymond G. Collins and Lawrence Congdon, elected for the first time.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports for the entire year were read and also the following reports: Sunday school, Christian Endeavor society, Girls' club, Men's club, Ellen Gustin circle, Missionary board and Ladies' Aid society.

Westerly taxpayers have but eight more days in which to pay their 1930 tax and escape the interest charge of 12 per cent per annum. It was reported at the town treasurer's office in the town hall building this morning that up to last night the sum of $188,020.56 in town taxes and $6,889.20 in sewer maintenance taxes had been paid. Only 250 poll tax payers out of a total of about 2,000 have paid.

The total town tax to be collected this year amounts to $470,778.30 and the sewerage tax amounts to $23,981. The net valuation of the town on which the tax is assessed is $23,069,100.

On Friday morning, in third district court, will be heard the continued case of P. H. Brundage, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor on Bradford road Sept. 30, and the respondent pleaded nolo, and the matter was continued. Attorney Clarence E. Roche appeared for the respondent.

George E. Perkins of Hope Valley, charged with failing to slow down at the intersection of the Carolina, Shannock and Alton roads on Oct. 11, was continued to Friday.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley had for company Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter of Pachaug and Mrs. Cocoran and three children of Voluntown, their daughters and grandchildren.

Harold Bitgood called on his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, Sunday. They also had other callers from Oneco.

The hired man that works for Jefferson Barber is chopping fire wood for William Bitgood.

Maurice Harrington and his aunt, Mrs. Cocoran, were Sunday callers at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's.

Ethel May Gray is staying with Mrs Emma Wilcox and goes to school. The lady that has been staying with her is on a visit for a little while.

Mr. Remington is much better so he has gone to work which he hasn't done for three or four weeks.

Percy Clark of Oneco is better and has gone back in the mill at Sterling to work.

The deer have eaten up a good part of Mr. Barber's turnips and winter cabbage. He is 87 years old and trying to raise something for winter. They also ate his beets, carrots and beans. It doesn't seem hardly right on an old man like him, but he can't kill one.

Mrs. Sabra Baker of Campbell Mills has gone to Pendleton Hill to visit her granddaughter, Mrs. Benjamin Gallup.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pratt and two children of Pawtucket, R. I., were week end visitors at Mrs. Emma Wilcox's and Mrs. Alice Macumber and daughter Linda, of Wickford, R. I., were Sunday visitors.

WAUREGAN

The Congregational church was overflowing with the crowd gathered Sunday evening to hear an address by Dean Luther Weigle, Yale Divinity school, at the annual meeting of the Windham County Council of Religious Education. Delegates to the number of 150 were registered in the afternoon session, and all were entertained to lunch, cafeteria style, by Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood (assisted by Miss Dorothy Atwood, Mrs. W. Williams, Mrs. Addison Tracy and Mrs. Gertrude Tracy) at the Atwood home. All the services were in charge of the retiring president, Rev. William Williams, with the arrangements of speakers in charge of Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, Danielson. In addition to the Yale Dean's address, addresses were given by Miss Roberts, New Haven; Rev. R Schramm, Yale Divinity school; and Miss Ethelyn Nichols, Willimantic. The registration clerk was Miss Ethel Davis, Wauregan, the organist was Robert Bethel, with Mrs. Albert Abbott, Danielson, soloist. At the business session the following officers were elected: President, Rev. Everett S. Lyons, Thompson; vice president, Rev. Henry Hodge, Putnam; secretary, Rev. George H. Reese, Eastford; treasurer, Rev. A. Linton, Woodstock; representative on state committee, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord; the present officers were continued in the various department divisions.

Henry L'Heureux underwent a major operation at Day Kimball hospital Tuesday. Favorable reports were issued Wednesday as to his recovery.

A large delegation attended the church conference at Westminster, Tuesday, to hear Norman Kilpatrick speak on Life in Bulgaria. Mr. Kilpatrick, after graduating from Brown university taught school in Bulgaria under the Near East College's scheme. His address was informative and interesting. The chicken pie lunch served at the noon hour was much enjoyed. The morning session was a worship period with sermon by Rev. W. Williams. A discussion induced by a paper read by Malcolm B. Wibberly of Canterbury, was conducive of much interest.

WARRENVILLE

Miss Helen Botham and Miss May Korner gave a Halloween party at Mrs. Fenelon McCollum's home Friday evening. The two large rooms were decorated in orange and black, with candles and jack o'lanterns. The severe electric storm added to the witching by extinguishing the lights. Dancing and games were enjoyed by sixty guests, coming from Willimantic, Willington, Hampton, Putnam, Gurleyville, Storrs, Merrow, Coventry, Hartford and New York, and this place. Orange soda, sandwiches and cake were served.

Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Howell spent a part of the past week with their son, Rev. John Howell of Waterbury. Mrs. John Howell underwent an operation this past week.

The two showers of last week were much appreciated.

Saturday night produced a real freeze, ice an inch thick being found Sunday morning.

The Missionary circle met with Mrs. A. J. Bowers, Friday afternoon. After the meeting the members sewed for the coming annual fair.

Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Howell attended some of the meetings of the Missionary society held in New London, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Goodrich and four sons spent Sunday evening with Mrs. M. E. Green.

Miss Mildred Kinne of Voluntown was a recent caller in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Young of West Haven called at R. H. Young's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterry H. Kinne have returned from a motor trip to Long Island, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theron C. Kinne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Luther were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Richmond and family of Chicopee, Mass.

The Ladies' Aid society of Bethel M. E. church plans to serve a baked bean supper.

ADVANTAGES FROM HOME OWNERSHIP

Not only are comfort and happiness to be derived from owning one's home, but other factors enter into it as well, including:

1. Financial independence is more quickly attained.
2. Security in times of financial distress assured.
3. Cash equity is equivalent to a savings account.
4. Credit is more easily procured in department stores, etc.
5. Peace of mind is obtained in knowing that one's family is provided for.
6. Social background is provided for children.
7. Children are given play space.
8. A sense of responsibility is developed with regard to dwelling and neighborhood.
9. Interest is evidenced in civic and municipal affairs.
10. Decorating exterior and interior gives the home owner a chance to display individuality.
11. Permanent environment is afforded, making for long and worthwhile friendships.
12. Habits of thrift are developed.
12. Healthful exercise is obtained through garden work.
14. Character is built up through the necessary financing and upkeep of a home.
15. Restrictions and interference of home-life are eliminated.
16. A freedom from rental expenses is ensured after the home is paid for.
17. A permanent selection of furnishings can be made which is not possible when the family moves from one rented home into another.
18. No restriction as to size of family is necessary.
19. Pets can be enjoyed without permission from landlord.
20. Possible income can be derived from garage or a portion of the residence.

FURNITURE HANDLES MUST BE CORRECT

Handles for various pieces of furniture are items which should be considered with fully as much attention to details as household hardware. Reputable manufacturers never would put out furniture with inappropriate handles, but there are some who either do not know what is appropriate, or else do not care. If one is selecting something out of the ordinary in furniture it would be well to brush up on this subject, for the wrong type would do much to neutralize the striking character of the pieces themselves.

The flair for glass handles, for example, has led many people to junk their old furniture fittings and substitute glass. This also has been done in the case of doorknobs "to make the whole room harmonize," the owners explain. There are times, of course, when this is perfectly consistent, but there are many other times when it is not. It is the same with other types. Some fit under certain conditions and not under others. It is best to consult authority and learn for certain just what particular type is desirable and correct.

BUILDING A FENCE FOR "LITTLE ROVER"

Families with young and capricious dogs frequently are put to some bother in deciding what they need to do in the way of providing outdoors exercising space for the pup. If they turn him loose some outraged neighbor will be sure to storm in with a tale of damaged lawns and gardens; if they tie him up he will howl—which is virtually as bad as the other. One enterprising individual has built a fence for him. That is, he has provided a fence, a trim metal affair of sufficient height, which can be put up and taken down without prohibitive manual labor. This particular fence is equipped with thin metal posts which are pointed and easily driven into the turf. The fencing itself is of flexible wire which may be rolled up and put away without much trouble.

One advantage of this arrangement is that the fence need not be placed in the same location at all times. The family hound may prefer shade, or sunshine, and the location can be changed at will to accommodate these tastes. Or, if it is found that Rover is prone to dig into the turf, his corral may be moved to less verdant spots. Moreover, such a fence, when rolled up, would fit nicely upon the running board of an automobile, thus making it possible to administer as effectively for the dog's welfare on the annual vacation as at home.

GEORGIAN INTERIORS USE SMALL WALLS

The Georgian and Colonial types of interior employ smooth painted, papered or fabric hung or upholstered walls, while the early American, English, French Provincial, Spanish and Italian generally employ rough plaster effects.

Pargetry or molded plaster ornaments are appropriate for French and English walls and ceilings, while the Mediterranean styles rely upon colors mixed with the plaster and tile inserts to give interest.

The northern styles employ greater use of wood paneling than the southern, wood being more plentiful in the north than in the south.

OILCLOTH, YES, BUT BE SURE IT'S RIGHT KIND

A few weeks ago in these columns an article appeared advising that certain types of oilcloth are being used as substitutes for wallpaper and that these substitutes, being easily washed, have proved to be quite valuable and attractive. An interior decorator of unquestioned standing has taken us gently to task for telling part of the story, but not all of it. It is true that the materials in question are, according to strict interpretation, oilcloths. But, they are not just any oilcloth. Those of particular value as wall covering have been manufactured along somewhat different lines, are softer and more pliable than ordinary oilcloth and can be repainted and refinished countless times without the necessity of removal. Unlike regular oilcloth of the kitchen table variety, they never crack. Moreover, they are manufactured in virtually as many patterns and designs as regular wallpaper. Virtually any store dealing in paints and wallpapers can furnish complete information concerning it.

Is Mother of Eight

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."—Mrs. Oreance Godfrey, 103 Cumberland Street, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

ONE WILL ALWAYS STAND OUT

One out of thousands!

ONLY outstanding valor is thus signally rewarded.

Only exceptional merit could win for Chesterfield a following among smokers greater than all the armies of the world combined.

In two things—two highly important essentials—Chesterfield is unsurpassed:

MILDNESS—the wholly natural mildness of tobaccos that are without harshness or bitterness.

BETTER TASTE—such as only a cigarette of wholesome purity and better tobaccos can have

Chesterfield Cigarettes are manufactured by LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO

They Satisfy —that's Why!

Looking Forward

A hundred years from now—who knows,
Or thinks he can foresee,
What life in this old world of ours,
Forever young, will be?
Will every one fly through the air,
With no thought of a fall?
And will the women wear short skirts,
Or any skirts at all?

Will all the world one langue speak,
And never come to blows?
Shall we have lady Presidents,
And will the girls propose?
Will television seem as strange
As when it first began?
Will folks look in a little box
And see folks in Japan?

Will women then still rule the men,
Just as they rule them now?
Will poverty be out of date,
And sickness, too? And how?
Will people yearn when Death draws near
To live their lives again?
A hundred years from now! Who knows?
And where shall we be then?

—Somerville Journal.

Rheumatism Goes Swollen Joints Vanish

How To End Rheumatism In Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflammed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless. What you need is RU-MA, and need it right now.

RU-MA acts on the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and drives the dangerous rheumatic poisons from the system through the natural channels of elimination—it eases pain the first day.

You must use an internal medicine to free the joints and muscles of crippling stiffness, soreness and torturing pain. That's why RU-MA succeeds while external remedies and pain deadening drugs give only temporary relief.

Lee & Osgood says no matter what kind of rheumatism you have suffered, try RU-MA—it must completely end all rheumatic agony or you get your money back.

UNUSUAL EFFECT GIVEN BY NEW WALL TILE

A new wall tile now on the market gives an unusual effect by having surface decoration and texture dependent upon the reflection of light on contrasting planes of each unit. This tile, in matt or bright glazed colors, provides an interesting wall covering, for with each different shadow that falls upon it a varying effect will be given.

Wall units each four and a half inches square can be trimmed with a decorative border made up of narrow tiles of different design.

SILENT INCINERATOR DOOR

A quite recent development in incinerators for the home is the "slam-proof" receiving hopper door. The "slam-proof" or "silent" door, as it has come to be known, is equipped with a check device which prevents the door from slamming when closing. In corridor installations where the receiving doors are used quite frequently, the "Silent Door" eliminates any annoyance which might be caused by this frequent closing of the door.

NEW KIND OF HARD WHEAT STANDS WHEN OTHERS FALL

OKLAHOMA CITY — (AP) — A new variety of hard wheat, which has yielded more than any other type during a five-year test, has been developed by C. H. Hyde, Woods county farmer.

Hyde originated the new variety which he named "Eagle Chief," after a series of tests in the laboratories of the state board of agriculture, goverment experiment stations and on his farm.

The wheat has coarse stiff straw which will stand when other varieties have fallen. The strain originated in selected heads found in Kharkov wheat from Russia and has been kept pure.

KEEPS GARAGE WARMER

Much of the patience-trying difficulty of starting your car on cold winter mornings can be easily and inexpensively eliminated by lining the interior of your garage with a good insulation board. Nailed to the interior side of studs and rafters, insulation will retard leakage of heat through walls and roofs. Thus, when you drive your car into the garage at night, the heat from your motor will actually be largely retained in the garage, keeping the car warm and making it easier to start in the morning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Resuming American Gov't. Course

The Columbia university extension course in American government will hold its first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, 380 Washington street, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 25, at 4 o'clock. This course is a continuation of the course begun last year under the auspices of the Norwich League of Women Voters, and is open to all members free of charge. It is hoped by the league that a large number of women will take advantage of the exceptional opportunity to acquire a working knowledge of American government. An informal discussion led by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, the able feminist leader, will conclude each meeting.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

NO LACK OF EMPLOYMENT ON THE FARM

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

One of the criticisms of our city friends is that we farmers are always grumbling about something.

It's either too hot or too cold; too wet or too dry; yields are too scanty or prices are too low. If it isn't one thing it's another.

To which the usual answer is that discontent is apt to be a keener spur to activity and improvement than smug satisfaction with existing conditions. The man who isn't entirely pleased with things as they are is much more likely to take steps towards their improvement than the man who is stolidly content with the world as it is.

All of which is pertinent and reasonable.

Nevertheless, there is such a thing as working a grouch overtime, and out of season.

Just for a change, I wonder if it mightn't be worth while to try a different tune, for once, anyway.

There's small danger that an occasional inventory of our advantages and gains will make us too contented for our own good.

Let us consider for a moment this great matter of "unemployment," which is just now bulking so large before the public eye. Various social economists make various estimates of the number of people out of work and, consequently, deprived of any income. While practically all agree that we're rather better off in the matter than many other countries, the estimates of our out-of-work people run from no less than two millions to twice that number.

Note, right there, that these unemployed workmen are all in the cities or large towns. There is no unemployment among farmers. Instead, it is one of their loudest complaints that they have more to do than they can manage and can't find men to employ as helpers.

I doubt if many of us realize the amount of real distress which there is in the big cities, among city workmen who want jobs and wages, but can't get them. The cities are in many cases, undertaking public works mainly to provide ways for these unemployed to earn at least a living. The states and even the national government with them are doing the same. Yet the cry of "We want work and can't get it" continues to rise in seemingly unabated volume from one city after another.

Within a week a volunteer committee of big New York city bankers and business men has been formed with the deliberate purpose of raising $150,000 a week to aid in giving employment to idle workmen. It includes such names as Owen D. Young of the General Electric, George F. Baker of the First National bank, Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan and Co., Walter S. Gifford of the American Tel. and Tel., Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National bank, and a score of others of comparable business prominence and wealth. The published statement of this emergency committee's purpose is "to have available at least $150,000 weekly to provide work for unemployed heads of families in Manhattan and the Bronx."

That's quite a pot of money even for one week. Multiply it by the 20 or more weeks of the winter season during which it is likely to be quite as much needed as now and the result will make any man's eyes goggle.

Such hard-headed business men would not put their hands into their pockets to any such depth unless they were strongly impressed with the necessity therefor. At $15 a week to each unemployed family head this would reach 10,000 families. That, too, in addition to the work being hurried by municipal, state and national governments for the same general purpose, and which is giving or will give employment to unknown thousands more.

You can't imagine a New England farmer on any farm of ten acres or over finding himself out of employment. There is something for him to do every day which provides weather suitable for doing it. He may not get even $15 a week in money for his work, but he will get something to keep the wolf away from the door.

The gaunt spectres of unemployment and starvation have no terrors for him. He may lack much of what he wants, but he has or can have all that he absolutely needs. Don't ever forget the world-wide distinction between those two words, "want" and "need." Most of us "want" the earth and the moon and a large part of the solar system, but we really "need" only a very small fraction of one township.

Now, honestly, isn't that freedom from the fear of unemployment something to be reckoned to the good? When we feel like complaining over the hard work of hoeing cabbages or digging potatoes, why not reflect that it's really better to have potatoes and cabbages, even if they cost work, than to have nothing to do and no pay for doing it?

Consider, next, another phase of farming which we're all of us liable to overlook. It may not always result in eminent successes, but it rarely fizzles into teetotal failure. How many farmers in your own neighborhood go bankrupt? Now and then one, of course. But the percentage is small. Most of us manage to pull through, though sometimes only "by the skin of our teeth." We don't go "stone-broke" very often. How is it in so-called "business"?

For more than ten years a statistically-minded chap has been keeping tab on the retail businesses in the big city of Buffalo, N. Y. His records in the grocery-store line are rather interesting. During the last ten years 6,268 groceries were opened in Buffalo and during the same time 6,053 of them petered out. Of every hundred which opened during the last year, 60 failed to live the year through.

D'ye s'pose there is any farming community in New England from which 60 out of every 100 farmers went to the poor-house last year?

I think I know something of the hardships of farming in New England, something of the difficulties encountered, something of the deprivations involved. It isn't a wholly idyllic life. Indeed, it's often a bitter struggle. Just to keep ahead of the bugs and the worms and the blights and the weeds puts the average farmer "on his toes" most of the time.

However skeptical one may be about the blessings of work, regarded solely as work, he must admit that it keeps him out of mischief, and that, when there is any incentive for it, it gives life a zest otherwise absent. It tends towards development, which is always desirable, and towards accomplishment, which is always a reward in itself.

The opportunity for worthwhile occupation is never absent from farm life. There is no room for unemployment in it. For every nine grumbles we feel impelled to emit, isn't there reason for one thanksgiving over this fact?

Also, however poor may be the money remunerations from farming, it doesn't send 80 per cent of its addicts into bankruptcy or the poor-house every ten years, like the grocers of Buffalo. It may not be a "get-rich-quick" proposition, but it isn't a pauperizing one, either. If we can't luxuriate with Dives in a palace, neither must we, like Lazarus, take to life with the dogs in their kennel.

There is something more than mere philosophy in the prayer of Agur, son of Jakeh: "Give me neither poverty nor riches . . . . . lest I be full and deny thee and say, Who is the Lord? or lest I be poor and steal."

If we must complain because we aren't given the riches we think we deserve, why not even up the score by expressing thanks because we aren't so poor we must steal to live? Isn't one as fair as the other?

There are several other exceedingly wise cracks in those old and modernly neglected Proverbs, such as "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith"; and "He that is of a cheerful heart hath a continual feast." In fact such ideas are altogether too practical to keep for Sunday use only. They are what might be called first-class week-day wisdom.

It's about the easiest thing in the world to criticise and complain. Most of us take to fault-finding as the sparks fly upward.

After all, however, is finding fault the best use we can put our minds and our tongues to? Is persistent grumbling the most effective means towards betterment? I may be permitted to doubt it.

What the poet calls "divine discontent" is not wholly to be disparaged. When that discontent moves us to a movement upward it is a real spur in the flanks of progress. We should never have had the Twentieth Century express if we had been entirely content with the ox-team. We should never have had electric lights if we had been fully satisfied with tallow candles.

When dissatisfaction with his lot impels the farmer to work for its amelioration, then it is a good thing. But when it vents itself only in grumblings and grouchings, the results are usually negligible. It's like the steam in a locomotive boiler; when it goes into the cylinders and drives the pistons and turns the wheels then "there's something doin'." But when it justs blows off through the escape valve what use is it? It's more of a nuisance than a help.

Let's not take too much stock in any Pollyanna-ish poppycock about this being "the best of all possible worlds." It isn't, by a long shot.

But there's no use in trying to improve it by standing off at one side and snarling at it or snivelling over it.

A more sensible procedure would be to get behind it and push.

That's all the advice I'm trying to wedge in, this morning.

THE FARMER.

D. C. MODELS ALSO AVAILABLE

Only BRUNSWICK has all these features . . .

THE UNI-SELECTOR. Only Brunswick has the UNI-SELECTOR—one control to perform every operation of the set. This device takes the place of the usual series of unsightly, unhandy knobs.

THE ARMORED CHASSIS. The Brunswick Chassis is solidly constructed and efficiently designed. Heavy sheet-steel shields all working parts from dust and damage and electrical interference.

THE RIGID TUNING SCALE. Automatic tension on a broad, firm-gripping copper belt does away forever with dial slipping. Stations MUST always come in at exactly the same point!

THE TONE CONTROL. You can now modify reception by shifting emphasis through a thousand even gradations of tone from the deepest bass notes to the silvery clearness of the treble.

The four devices described here are not mere gadgets intended to attract the fancy of a fickle public. They are serious, definite improvements in radio design of such importance that the new Brunswick has justly been termed, "The Radio of the Future."

Only Brunswick has all these features. Others may some day seek to incorporate these devices in their, as yet, unbuilt models, but when you buy a Brunswick you get them now!

Ask your nearest Brunswick dealer to show you these features. Ask him to let you get the "feel" of the Uni-Selector; the new experience of controlling tone in radio reception. Only in this way can you appreciate what Brunswick has brought to radio.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Very light supplies this morning and little activity. The market consisted mostly of root crops, apples, potatoes, spinach, celery and squash.

The tone of the potato market was not quite steady as at the opening of the week. Offerings of native crops continued liberal and Maine shippers were offering Green Mountains in carlots at slightly lower prices than last week according to reports. Apples were practically unchanged, moving slowly but readily, the cold weather helping out the common storage. Oranges were very firm in California stock. The first Floridas were noted.

Live fowl were generally liberal and slow demand except in fancy heavy colored stock which was more active. Roasting chickens more plentiful and prices declining. Native eggs were firm.

MYSTIC

Williams Woman's Relief corps met in G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening with 27 members of the local corps, three visitors from New London and one from Vermont present. At 6 o'clock, the members went for supper to a local restaurant. During the business session, Mrs. Annie Maynard, of New London, inspected the corps. It was voted to observe the 40th anniversary, Dec. 16. Twelve calls were reported by the relief committee. A standing vote of respect was taken in memory of Comrade Everett A. Scholfield, and the charter was draped for the late Mrs. Louise K. Tufts. Several of the visitors gave short talks, after which two selections were sung by Mrs. J. S. Hammond. There were readings by Mrs. Leota Wilcox and Mrs. Lucy Burdick. An invitation was received from Mrs. Truman Jewell to meet at her home on the 29th for a social time. It is planned to hold an all-day session at the home of Mrs. Herman Eldredge Tuesday next. At this time sewing will be done for needy families. Anyone having clothing suitable for children of any age may bring it to this meeting. There will be a covered dish dinner at noon. During the evening, Mrs. Eldredge presented a gift, on behalf of the corps, to Mrs Maynard.

The Parent-Teacher association of West Mystic held a whist in the school house, Tuesday evening, with 15 tables in play. High scores in bridge were made by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cutler. Second prizes went to Mrs. Albert Wilson and James Maxson. High scores in straight were made by Mrs. Zenas R. Snyder and Charles C. Dodd. Mrs. Florence Andrews and Charles Anderson were low.

Miss Barbara Chapman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chester R. Chapman, of New London road, celebrated her birthday Wednesday evening, entertaining several schoolmates. She received several gifts. During the evening games were played and refreshments were served. Those present were Sybil Bindloss, Priscilla Saunders, Hamilton Dodge, Louis Knox and Herbert Williams.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Groton Baptist church, Old Mystic, met with Mrs. Chelsea J. Williams, Wednesday afternoon, with ten members and guests present. Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Holloway, of Eastern Point, attended. The hostess served tea and cookies.

May Have Holiday Lights

The directors of Mystic chamber of commerce met Tuesday evening in the office of L. E. Vatet, with a very good attendance. A representative of the Mystic Power Co. was present and there were discussions in regard to having the colored lights along the main streets, as in other towns, for Christmas. If the merchants decide to have them, the power company will put up the community Christmas tree.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church held a card party in Columbus hall Tuesday evening with 14 tables in play. Prizes at bridge were won by Miss Marian Cooper and Daniel Gilbert, Mrs. James Belair and James Hanley. High scores in straight were made by Mrs. James Richards and Frank Richards. Mrs. Clara Morin and Lester Cooke had low. Cake and coffee were served by the committee, Mrs. Clara Morin, Mrs. Joseph Ravenelle, Miss Annie Feeney and Miss Mary Inderduhnen.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Patterson, Miss Marie Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnes, Henry, Ruth and Lucy Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Barstow, Norman Barstow, Mrs. W. L. Main, Miss Hazel Main, Mrs H. S. Williams, Mrs. James Stanton, Miss Agnes Austin, Harold Austin, Merton McGrath, Frank Clay, Ernest Post and Mr. and Mrs. George D. Johnson were some of the local people who attended a chicken pie supper given in the Congregational church at Ledyard Wednesday evening. Following the supper, there was dancing in Grange hall.

At Westerly Meeting

Tuesday evening was Neighbors' Night at Westerly grange and among the granges invited was Mystic grange. Those attending from here were Worthy Master and Mrs. John Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Massey, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desley, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Peddleton, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Patterson, J. W. Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Allen, William Stott, Stanton King, Raymond Smith, Harry MacKenzie, George W. Brooks, S. J. Swallow, Capt. Truman Jewell, Amos Barnes, Mrs. Perry Eldredge, Mrs. Arthur Main, Miss Florence Lamphere, Miss Hazel Main and Miss Marie Patterson. About 16 granges were represented at the meeting.

United Workers of the Old Mystic Methodist church met in the parish house Wednesday afternoon and tied a quilt.

Going to Lantern Hill

The Young People of Mystic Bridge Congregational church are to hold a Halloween social at Lantern Hill, Saturday evening, having chartered a truck to furnish transportation.

Harry, Fred, Rose and Clara Whipple, of Matunuck, R. I., with their guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Crouch and daughter Thelma, attended the Congregational church supper in Ledyard, Wednesday evening.

The supper given by the Methodist church Thursday evening was well attended, several from out of town being present.

Rev. R. J. Chrystie, Ph.D., pastor of the Methodist church here, is to give a talk, "The Mission of Eccentric Folks," in the vestry soon. Mrs. Thomas Travens will be the soloist of the evening.

Mrs. Marie T. Holmes and Mrs. Emily B. Holmes were callers in Norwich, Wednesday afternoon.

PRESTON

The Congregational Missionary society held its meeting in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. As it was the annual meeting, reports were given and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. S. W. Clark; vice-president, Florence Kennedy; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Nathan Hall. It was voted to hold meetings on the first Tuesday of each month from September to June. A lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hall were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hall at Middletown Tuesday.

At the C. E. meeting Sunday evening, the leaders were Rev. J. A. Smith and Harold Muttart. The topic of "Christians and Sunday" was discussed. A solo by June Havens added to the interest of the meeting.

Rev. H. E. Small, of Canterbury, preached at the Congregational church Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. G. W. Clark.

The women of the community met Tuesday at the Baptist church. Miss Ruth T. Russell, of Norwich, home demonstration agent of the Farm bureau, gave instructions in making and remodeling of hats.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Browning and Mrs. Gilbert Burns spent the week-end at Mt. Hermon, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Hall, of Shelton, Mass., were week-end guests of Mr and Mrs. A. E. Shedd.

The Ladies' Bible class of the Baptist Sunday school met with Mrs. Ella Bennett Wednesday afternoon. The devotional meeting was in charge of Mrs. Appleton Main and the Bible study questions in charge of Mrs. Jesse Crary. The program, prepared by Mrs. Clark Woodmansee, included several readings and songs, contests by Rev. J. A. Smith. Sandwiches, pickles and coffee were served by the hostess.

FRANKLIN

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith took a motor trip recently over the Mohawk, Leconic and Rip Van Winkle trails, to the Catskills, Storm King highway and Bear mountain bridge.

Miss Vera L. Bushnell was a recent guest of relatives in Waltham, Mass. While there, Miss Bushnell visited several places of historical interest in Concord and Boston.

A meeting of the Nimble Workers, under the leadership of Mrs. Bernard Crandall, was held Saturday afternoon at the home of the secretary, Miss Althea Davis. An achievement night program was discussed. Upon judging the uniforms, Mary Manning was given first place; Althea Davis, second, and Marian Robinson, third. Cake and cocoa were served by Mrs. B. P. Davis.

NOANK

Miss Sara Ellis has returned, after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ellis at East Greenwich.

Misses Katherine MacDonald and Christina McNeil have returned, after a visit in Providence.

Charles Shirley has returned to Providence, after a visit with local friends.

Daniel MacArthur, of Moosup, was a recent caller on local relatives.

ANDOVER

A public card party is to be held in the town hall.

Royal D. Webster, of Southbridge, Mass., spent Monday night at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary Webster.

Mrs. Sage, who fell recently and broke her hip, is getting along as well as could be expected. Friends all wish her a speedy recovery.

A supper was held at the Andover Lake Corporation house, Saturday evening.

Tuesday morning was the coldest of the season, so far, the thermometer registering only 14 above zero. Ice formed to quite a thickness. Autoists were taken unaware and some cars were frozen up.

Mrs. Emily Fitch and Miss Josie Griswold of Hartford called at the home of Mrs. W. B. Thompson, Sunday.

I SEE YOU ARE WASHING CLOTHES THE NEW WAY NOW
YES. THIS WAY SAVES SCRUBBING AND GETS THEM WHITER
WHAT IS THE NEW WAY?
WITH RINSO, MOTHER!
RINSO SUDS SOAK OUT THE DIRT AND SAVE ALL HARD WORK

You, too, can now have whiter washes—easily!

HERE'S a soap that practically does the wash for you. Loosens the dirt so that all you need to do is rinse. Clothes soak so white and clean, you don't need to bother about boiling.

This way saves the clothes—and washes them much, much whiter. Safely.

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Great, either in tub or machine; the makers of 38 famous washers recommend it. Get the BIG package. You'll like Rinso for dishes—for all cleaning.

MONTVILLE

Mrs. Alice R. Dart, district nurse of the town of Montville, has completed the enumeration of children in the town between the ages of 4 and 16. There is a total of 1,033, a gain of 42 over last year's enumeration.

Friends are encouraged to hear that Mrs. Milton Bogue, of Montville Center, who was taken seriously ill last Tuesday evening, is recovering steadily.

Await New Sunday Record

Much interest is manifest by the townspeople in the announcements which have been appearing in the Norwich Bulletin for the past three days of the issuance of the first eastern Connecticut Sunday morning paper to be published by The Bulletin company of Norwich and to make its first appearance Sunday, Nov. 2nd. This new Sunday issue will contain the latest news flashes from all over the world, last minute news photos, latest news in the sporting world and eight pages of comics featuring the best known cartoons in the country. The standards of the breakfast table delivery service of The Norwich Bulletin, maintained in the town of Montville in recent years by The Bulletin company will be continued with the new Sunday paper. A large number have already placed their order with the local newsboys and the regular readers of The Bulletin that have grown accustomed to receive their papers on the morning route maintained by The Bulletin Co., if they place the signed blank where the newsboys can pick it up, they will be assured of prompt delivery of the first Sunday issue.

Workmen under the supervision of First Selectman Ambrose Sullivan commenced Thursday morning spreading a coat of tarvia on the Uncasville-Palmertown highway.

Baptist Men To Meet

A meeting of all the men of Palmertown Union Baptist church, is to be held this (Friday) evening at the home of Frank P. Richards, at Palmertown. Plans will be discussed for the annual supper, under the auspices of the men of the church.

A number from here attended the democratic rally held in parish hall, Taftville, Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rheaume, of Uncasville, were business callers in Waterbury Thursday.

Schools in the town will be closed today (Friday) to enable the teachers to attend the annual meeting of the Connecticut Teachers association which will be held in four cities throughout Connecticut, including New London.

HEBRON

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Hewitt motored to New London, Sunday, and spent the day with their aunt, Mrs. Grace Chamberlain.

A. J. Manley, of Manchester, was a caller in Hebron on business Tuesday.

Gilead Congregational church members held their annual church supper and roll call Saturday in Gilead hall. About 70 were present with a number visiting church members. The supper consisted of roast beef, mashed potatoes, salads, coffee, ice cream and cake. The supper and decorating committee were Mrs. Robert E. Foote, Mrs. Winifred Ellis, Miss Clara Ellis. The toastmaster was C. Daniel Way and the church program committee was Mrs. John W. Deeter and Mrs. Clifford R. Perry. The following church officers were elected: Treasurer, Asa Ellis; treasurer of benevolences, Miss Clara Ellis; organist, Mrs. John W. Deeter; ushers, Carroll Hutchinson, Jesse Hills, Edward A. Foote; church clerk, Mrs. Robert E. Foote. Sunday school officers: Superintendent, Homer Hills; assistant superintendent, Everett Hutchinson; superintendent elementary department, Mrs. Robert E. Foote; assistant superintendent, Miss Florence Jones and seven women, Mrs. C. Daniel Way, Mrs. Richard Hubbard, Mrs. Effel Deeter, Mrs. Winifred Ellis, Mrs. Annie E. Foote.

Mrs. Viola F. Porter and Miss Helen Rathbun were in Hartford, Monday to attend an art and costume lecture by a representative of the costume department of Washington, D. C., at headquarters of the Electric Sewing Machine company.

The Ladies' Aid society of Gilead met in Gilead hall, Wednesday afternoon and quilted. The hostesses were Mrs. E. E. Foote, Mrs. Alfred H. Post, Mrs. C. Daniel Way. Refreshments were served.

UNION

Sunday morning, Oct. 19, was the coldest of the season to that date; Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, each a bit cooler, with the mercury on the hills at 24 degrees, Wednesday, October 22.

We need rain badly. Few wells hereabouts that are not dry, and brooks, where are they?

Last Friday the schools here were closed for the day that the teachers, Miss Helen Hutchins and Miss Mary Daley might join in the field trip arranged for the Abington Social Study class.

Instructor Howe of New Britain Normal school, who is conducting the Social Study class one evening each week and Supervisor Calvin Stanley accompanied twenty-four teachers on the field trip. Starting out from Putnam at 8 o'clock, Friday morning, the party went in a special bus to Providence. After leaving Providence the other places visited were in Massachusetts, the first stop being at Fall River. Other points of interest were New Bedford, Plymouth and Boston. Friday night was spent in Boston, and Saturday the trip was continued to Lexington, Concord and Sudbury. In the last named town the famous Wayside Inn was, of course, the main point of intrest. Instructor Howe was provided with a moving picture machine and secured many interesting pictures along the route during the two days. When the party arrived in Worcester, Miss Daley, teacher of Rock Meadow school, stopped at her home in that city for the week end and Miss Hutchins, teacher of Red school, returned directly to Union.

Mrs. Adelbert Agard spent the week end at Northfield Seminary with her younger daughter, Miss Ruth, a member of the freshman class. Mrs. Agard's older daughter, Miss Mary, a successful teacher in Stratford, is a graduate of Northfield, and Mrs. Agard was a student at the same school before her marriage.

Mrs. Helen Baldwin Bauer, of New York, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. M. Lawson, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ballou of Wendell, Mass., were guests of the former's cousin, Frank Ballou and family for a few days. Charles Ballou is first selectman of the town of Wendell. His wife was a resident of Union before her marriage.

Guests at the More homestead at Mashapaug for Sunday and the week end were Mrs. Ida G. Moore's sister, Mrs. E. D. Gilbert of Spencer, Mass., and Miss Irene Moore, student at Willimantic Normal school.

Mrs. Ora Young, accompanied by her niece, Miss Ida Bartlett, of Eastford, took a trip to Vermont where they were guests of relatives for a few days.

Miss Emma Gaudette entertained her cousin, Miss Margaret Oliver, of Enfield, over the week end.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for coughs from colds that hang on, for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is $1.25—a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

EKONK

(STERLING HILL)

Rev. and Mrs. Albert Stanton, of Newark, N. J., were callers in Ekonk, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holmes and children, of Willimantic, were visitors Sunday at George Tanner's.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bassette, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Gardner and son Howard visited in Westerly and Ashaway, Sunday.

Ekonk grange met Monday evening. Several applications for membership were received. The program for the evening was in charge of the home economics committee. Mrs. Alice Makepeace of Putnam was present and gave a helpful talk on Nutrition. Sixteen members of Ekonk grange visited Plainfield grange Tuesday evening and furnished part of the program.

Golden Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. George Gallup celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Monday, Oct. 20th. They motored to Danielson where they had their pictures taken. They were there joined by their daughters, Mrs. Louis Ingalls and nephew, John W. Gallup and his wife and went to Putnam and had lunch at the inn. From there they went to Woodstock and called on George Frink and Mrs. William Gallup. On the way home they called on Mr. and Mrs. John Baton in Wauregan.

Rev. Lydia Hartig and Mrs. John Tanner attended the six church conference in Westminster, Tuesday. Miss Hartig is spending the remainder of the week in Saybrook.

Clarence Kinnie and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kinnie, of Pawtucket, were visitors at Henry Congdon's recently.

Enoch Douglas and daughter Florence and Edward Freeman attended the Baptist state convention in New London last week and visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frink.

George Gallup, in company with friends from Plainfield, attended Windsor fair Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Young and Miss Juliette Richmond attended Fathers' day gathering at Storrs Agricultural college where their son Richmond is a student.

Edward Freeman in company with his daughter and her husband, Mr. Poole took a trip over the Mohawk Trail recently.

The midweek service at Sterling Hill was held at Adelbert Gallup's, Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Baldwin, of Norwich, were dinner guests at John Frink's, Sunday.

EASTFORD

Miss Elsa Johnson, now of Somers, a former teacher here, spent the week end with Miss Chism on the hill.

The Hill school is closed for the remainder of the week on account of the illness of the teacher, Mrs. Bassett.

Miss Lena Hall spent the week end in West Cornwall at the home of her brother.

Chickens may now be fed without going near them, by means of an automatic feeder, which releases and scatters grain at any time for which the machine is set.

HANOVER

Mrs. H. E. Grant, of Quaker Town, is being entertained at the home of Mrs. Webster Standish this week.

At the opening meeting of the Men's club of Park Congregational church Monday evening, the Hanover church was represented by Messrs. Raymond Allen, Edgar Goyette, Theodore Kusian, Clarence Still and Rev. Mr. Stone.

A small fire started Monday forenoon on the roof of the ell at Miss Margaret Eadie's house, probably the result of the high wind of that day carrying a spark from a torch which was being used in replacing the roof of that part of the house. A call was sent in to the department at Baltic, and in ten minutes their pumper was on the spot ready to operate, but a deputation from the Airlie mills had already extinguished the blaze so their assistance was not needed.

Mrs. William G. Park and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone represented the League of Women Voters at the Citizenship school being held at Connecticut college Tuesday and Wednesday. A part of the program consisted of a visit Wednesday to the State Farm for Women at Bride Lake, Niantic.

All are greatly pleased to tender congratulations to Raymond Allen as state champion 4-H Poultry club member. This honor entitles him to an educational trip to the congress of the club held this year at Chicago, Nov. 28 to Dec. 5.

Master Russell Lucy, who has been laid up with ivy poisoning for a week or more, has recovered sufficiently to be again at his place in school.

The two delegates from Hanover church, elected at the annual meeting to represent the church at the semi-annual meeting of the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers, to be held at Park church Tuesday, Oct. 28, are Mrs. Henry B. Hazen and Mrs. Robinson W. Dean. The alternates are Mrs. Kenneth H. Doyle and Miss Ruth O. House.

LISBON

Rev. W. J. Reynolds preached Sunday morning from the text, Thy law have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against Thee. His subject was Law Observance. In the evening, at Community hall, Rev. Fred Bunker, of Wilton, gave the second illustrated talk. Scenes From the Life of Christ was his subject. His next lecture will be Oct. 31.

The Ladies' Aid society met at Community hall Wednesday afternoon to finish the sewing and make final plans for the bazaar.

Anniversary Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hyde entertained, at their home in Jewett City Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hyde and Miss Clara Hyde, of this town; Mrs. Grace Frink, Miss Mabel Frink and George Frink, of Griswold; L. V. Whitford and Miss Esther Whitford, of Jewett City. The date was the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hyde, also Mr. Hyde's birthday.

The program of the grange meeting Friday evening opened with a grange song and a guessing game. This was followed by two numbers provided by Pachaug grange, solo and encore by Mrs. Adam Medick, and talk on Rural Roads by M. H. Bartlett. Norwich grange put on a play entitled Dumb as a Door Knob, and a sketch. The lunch was cookies, coffee and sweet cider.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hull, of Providence, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Phillips Wednesday.

Misses Freda, Louise and Alice Schmidt are visiting with relatives in Yonkers, N. Y.

All except four counties of Kansas are represented by students at the University of Kansas.

GO[illegible]N

During the morning service Sunday Miss Pauline Mayo, of New York, gave four readings. Among them were Billie Brown's Description of Abraham Lincoln, and The Old Rugged Cross. Miss Mayo is one of the most talented elocutionists there is and is coming here again.

Deacon James Thomas is seriously ill.

A herd of 12 deer was seen here recently, quite an unusual sight.

During the recent high windy days the airplanes have been traveling unusually high, some of them so high they were out of sight.

A noticeable feature of late October is the cheery song of the bluebirds.

Mrs. Charles Hinckley entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Hinckley and family, of Willimantic, recently. Mrs. Hinckley attended the Ladies' Aid meeting held with Miss Annie Gillette.

[illegible] oak sleepers were put, this week, into the Barstow bridge, which is being rebuilt.

At last came the gentle rain, wetting the surface of the ground, which will tide over the serious drought for a short time. The recent deep snow in New York State brings to mind when we have had an October snowfall here which lasted for several days.

The schools in town will be closed today (Friday) on account of the teachers' convention.

Miss Ruth [illegible], of Norwich, county demonstration agent, held a meeting with Mrs. J. A. Thomas Wednesday to make hats.

Mrs. Fred Faulkner led the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

Mrs. Joseph Bonsquet of Dyer street, has [illegible] Hartford hospital and is [illegible] a surgical operation there on Friday, this the third operation to which she has submitted within a little more than a year.

Next Tuesday evening members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Albans church will be guests of the members of the same society of St. James' Episcopal parish of New London, at a banquet.

Painting of the tall spire of the Westfield Congregational church was practically complete tonight. The main body of the church also has been receiving the attention of painters. The work will be close to complete at the end of the present week, and the imposing edifice glistening in its customary dress of white.

Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam and Attorney Samuel Harvey of Willimantic were in town today in connection with a legal matter that is claiming their joint attention.

Firm after firm operating motor trucks through this territory are causing their motor vehicles to be marked with the legend "No Riders." Drivers of some of these trucks say that so many men are walking the state highways nowadays and pleading for a "lift" that marking the trucks as mentioned has become practically a necessity.

During the course of a brief vacation this week, State Officer H. Theodore Strand has been a visitor in New York.

Youngsters about town already are engaged in collecting the spooky novelties they are to use in the observance of Halloween, all of which forecasts a lively celebration of the occasion here.

Boxing fans who follow closely the activities of local battlers will be at Taftville Friday evening to watch Al Rodman, Kid Brouillard and others from this town in action.

The advance guard of cars bearing Yale or Army supporters began to roll through here today, New Haven bound, for Saturday's classic gridiron contest. This was indicated to observers by pennants or other insignia the cars carried.

Donald Geddes was called to New Haven today by reason of the sudden illness of his father, Colonel James Geddes, high sheriff of New Haven county, and one of the most prominent republicans in Connecticut.

After a week without rain the forest fire menace is again beginning to intrude itself into the picture of things that people are worrying about currently. Woodland territory is drying out again, and unless rain comes soon, conditions will be much the same as they were before the recent drought.

Mrs. Charles S. Bill will leave at the week-end to visit at Bergenfield, N. J., with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Irwin. Mrs. Irwin is Mrs. Bill's granddaughter.

Mrs. Charles Martin and daughter, Miss Grace, were visitors in Providence.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Mrs. Levi Baker, Mrs. Wilfred Lawson and Mrs. Edwin Kennedy attended the church conference at Westminster.

Mrs. Cora Day is entertaining Mrs. Meta Hall, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Luman Bennett have been guests of Providence relatives.

Miss Ruth Mathewson has been entertaining Miss Janette Shurtleff, of Boston.

Mrs. John E. Vaughn, of Norwich, who is making her home in Danielson, has been a business visitor here, where she owns property.

Mrs. Everett Ladd was in Norwich Wednesday to attend the W. C. T. U. State convention.

Thomas Grady, a former resident here at various times, has been taken to Norwich State hospital.

Mrs. Willis Rouse, Mrs. Frank Edgerton and Mrs. L. Howard Cross motored to Springfield Wednesday to visit Mrs. Cora Lewis and Mrs. Sarah Rouse, former residents here.

Edward Spicer has returned to Dayville, after spending several days at his home.

Entertained Auction Club

Mrs. Stuart Ellsworth entertained the Auction bridge club at her home Wednesday afternoon. The guests were Mrs. Wallace Payne, of Jewett City, Mrs. George Loring and Mrs. George R. Torrey. The prizes were won by Miss Ruth Mathewson, of this village, and Mrs. Lewis Hoar, of Moosup.

A meeting of the junior choir will be held at the church Saturday evening.

The young people of the Sunday school are planning to have a Halloween social.

Mrs. Ray Johnson, of Dayville, has been a visitor here, where she formerly lived.

Will Attend Game

Mrs. Abby Hopkins will visit her son, Alfred Hopkins, at New Haven, where he is a student. Mrs. Hopkins will attend the Yale-Army football game Saturday.

Crystal Anniversary

A party of friends visited Mr. and Mrs. George Loring Wednesday evening, giving them a surprise call to help celebrate the 15th anniversary of their marriage. They received many crystal gifts. Bridge was played; the prizes were won by Stuart Ellsworth and Mrs. Everett Dawson. The delicious lunch was served in the dining room. The centerpiece was yellow chrysanthemums and pink roses. Among the guests was the Jolly Eight whist club, of which Mr. and Mrs. Loring are members.

PUTNAM

of Hartford, papers supporting the action have not as yet been returned to the clerk's office for filing. The case, according to newspaper accounts, is returnable in the Windham County superior court in November.

Investigation of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Francis Socquet, of Dyer street, Danielson, who died at the Day Kimball hospital, Monday night, by State Officer Elton T. Nolan of Danielson barracks, brought the officer to this city today checking up on various phases of the case occurring in Putnam. An autopsy on the body of the young man, believed to be a poison liquor victim, was performed at the local hospital Wednesday.

Alexander's lake dancing pavilion at Wildwood park was the scene of the season's merriest social affair tonight. The entertainment was in the form of a dance given by the nursing staff of the Day Kimball hospital to hurry-up Putnam's quota for the home fund drive, which is fast nearing its zenith of $25,000. While the dance was an informal affair many appeared in evening clothes, the trend running especially great among the ladies. Socially and financially, the dance was a success and proceeds derived will aid in a large way in boosting the lagging Putnam quota.

Major A. D. McIntyre of Grove street will be marshal of the Armistice day parade on November 11, the general committee in charge of arrangements has announced. Rev. Father J. C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church in North Grosvenordale and one of the best known orators of the Catholic clergy in Hartford diocese will deliver the Armistice day oration.

Members of the city street department are engaged in burning dead leaves which are at present clustering the main highways and rendering driving conditions dangerous on wet days.

AMSTON

Max Ams and William Coulter of Bridgeport were in town Monday for the start of the hunting season. They were dinner guests of First Selectman and Mrs. C. F. Bailey. Mrs. Carrie Burnham of the green was also a dinner guest.

Miss Emily Dankers, R. N., is the guest of Selectman and Mrs. C. W. Jones for a few days. Miss Dunkers has been enjoying the balmy sunshine of Bermuda for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martindale of New Britain were callers at the home of Mrs. C. Burnham Sunday.

Earl Tucker and fiancee also spent Sunedy with his mother.

Mrs. Mamie Wright has returned to Milford after visiting at E. A. Raymond's.

E. C. Brainard is wiring the Raymond home.

Mrs. Louise Blume is spending a few weeks in Canaan.

Several citizens were made voters at the Saturday session held in the Record building.

High cost of rice in China has caused strikes for higher wages.

CHILDREN

CRY FOR IT!

FIVE million modern mothers will tell you that children DO cry for Fletcher's Castoria. For mothers always give a few drops of this pure vegetable preparation when a child has any of the symptoms that tell of sluggish bowels, colic, or other upsets. When tiny tongues are coated and breath is bad. When a child is restless; irritable. Always soothing and comforting to an infant—yet it is effective for children in their teens. You never have to coax children to take Castoria; they love its taste.

Be ready for the next case of sour stomach, constipation, or other need for Castoria!

When buying look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

RAILROADS WERE WEAK, INDUSTRIALS AND UTILITIES STRONG IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Weakness of the railroads, notably those of the Van Sweringen group, and strength in the industrials and utilities gave a clouded complexion to the stock market today. Grains held up well, but bonds again weakened, which was rather perplexing since nothing developed to influence such a trend.

Trading in stocks seemed to assume a more professional character than has been evident recently and much stock that was bought on the rally of the earlier hours was sold before the close. This was hardly surprising, however, in view of the extensive liquidation that was in progress all day among the carrier issues, a score of which went to new lows. Volume of trading was comparatively light, aggregating 2,664,520 shares.

September railroad earnings, now filtering in, show the familiar shrinkages in comparison with a year ago and some of the executives willing to comment on prospects are none too enthusiastic about the weeks immediately ahead. The income futures, in themselves, seemed hardly alarming enough to touch off today's selling orders, the source of which was believed to be holders who had grown tired of waiting for turn in business. Erie, Chesapeake Corp., Allegheny Corp. and Nickel Plate dropped 3 points or more, and Chesapeake & Ohio lost 2 3-4. Pere Marquette broke more than 20, selling below par for the first time in four years on a small turnover. Weakness in this group was pronounced from the opening and it spread to numerous other rails in the afternoon.

National Biscuit's report featured the day's earnings statements, showing $1.01 a share for the third quarter against 86 cents a year ago. Hershey Chocolate's statement was also favorable. Phillips' president announced that the 50 cent quarterly dividend would be paid; it was earned with 40 cents to spare.

Estimates on U. S. Steel's earnings for the third quarter, to be published next Tuesday, are around $2 a share, while forecasts for the year favor about $10. The likelihood of an extra dividend payment is regarded in most quarters remote.

The building statistics continue encouraging. Construction in states east of the Rockies is running only 10 per cent under 1929 this month, on the basis of the daily average, whereas in September, the discrepancy was 20 per cent.

The $189,000,000 decrease in federal reserve brokers' loans brought the drop in the last four weeks to $609,000,000 and put the total at the lowest since Nov. 24, 1926. This decline, which incidentally is not as large as the deflation witnessed from June 11 to July 2, carries less significance than the recent recession in bank loans on collateral, for it was to the latter account that the huge burden of speculative borrowing was transferred after last fall's collapse. In some quarters it is believed that bank loans will be still further reduced and many brokerage houses feel that until this liquidation is completed the stock market will find the going rather soft.

The reserve statement showed that discounts had fallen $9,000,000 for the system but $26,000,000 at the local bank. Government security holdings were unchanged, while the total of bills and securities was off nearly $25,000,000 for the 12 banks.

Stocks pushed ahead 1 to 3 points in the early trading, wavering slightly when the rails made so poor a showing. However, the advance was resumed in the afternoon and gains of 3 to 7 were frequent. This improvement was more than halved by the late selling and the market averaged 3 points higher at the close, despite the sustained weakness of the carriers. U. S. Steel, which had been up 4 points, closed 1 3-4 higher. General Electric, General Motors, American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Hershey, Radio, Johns-Manville and Standard Oil of New Jersey, held 1 to 3 points of larger advances. Atchison lost a 3-point gain.

The tone of the wheat market was improved by the proposal to make the farm board's holdings, amounting to a considerable volume, available as food for the unemployed. Closing quotations were unchanged to half a cent higher, despite rains in the southwest and reports of a large increase in the world's visible supply. Corn sagged fractionally but cotton made a strong finish, up $1.20 to $1.50 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were easy, with the exception of the yen, which touched par for the first time since the war.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Sudden upturns in all grain prices late today, reaching a maximum of 2 1-4c a bushel from the day's bottom level, aroused much interest among traders. The advance was largely ascribed to reports current that changes in prospect would permit manufacture of 4 1-2 per cent beer, and would afford an additional outlet for millions of bushels of grain. No satisfactory confirmation of the reports was obtainable, however, and the upturns in grain quotations mostly failed to hold.

Wheat closed irregular, at 1-4c net decline to 1-2c advance, corn closed 3-8a1 1-4c down, oats 3-8a3-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive largely to a rise in the value of hogs.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Call money, 2 per cent all day. Time loans steady, 60 days, 2a2 1-4; 3-4 months, 2 1-2a2 3-4; 5-6 months, 2 3-4a3 per cent. Prime commercial paper, 2 3-4a3. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The curb market made irregular recovery today, in sympathy with the big board, where strength in industrials and utilities evidently prompted short covering in the more active curb issues.

Trading slackened somewhat, and the gains were modified by fresh selling in the last hour. Total sales aggregated 698,700 shares. Utilities and oils generally closed steady to firm, while several of the lightly traded industrials were again weak.

Electric Bond and Share rallied 3 points, then reduced its gain to 1 3-4 net. American Gas and Electric sold up 3 1-2 then slipped off 2 from the top. Brazilian Traction and American and Foreign Power warrants gained more than a point. United Light A rose 2 but reacted to close unchanged.

Oils were steadier, although Standard of Indiana, an active feature, closed off 1-4. Cities Service was also turned over in large volume, and closed up 1-2. Gulf gained as much and Vacuum rose a point. Investment trusts also improved, notably the Goldman Sachs group. Goldman Sachs trading, together with Blue Ridge and Shenandoah preference stocks, closed about a point higher. Chain stores were quiet and irregular. Lerner gained 2, while Mercantile Stores dropped 10 to a new low at 35.

Aluminum Company of America rallied 9 points and Aviation Corporation of the Americas 3. Manning Bowman A dropped 9 to a new low at 3. Carnation Milk and L'Aire Liquide sagged 2 to new lows. Deere re-acted 1 1-2. Dow Chemical and Glen Alden 2.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—An extensive list of rail obligations broke sharply in the bond market today coincident with the weakness of shares. Active selling forced many issues 1 and 2 points lower and convertible obligations of the Allegheny corporation dipped 7 to 11 points.

The selling provided new impetus for the sagging bond market and the domestic list moved down to new low levels for the current decline. The price level as reflected in the averages is only 1-14th of a point above the year's minimum.

Despite a few soft spots foreign obligations were firm and some of the Latin American governments were in demand at a point or two above the previous final price.

Virtually the entire list of railroad loans was affected by the liquidation, and some of the largest declines were in legal issues whose decreased earnings has left in doubt their continuance on the list of legal investments for savings banks.

Bonds of companies in the Van Sweringen group were very active, as sellers accepted bids well below the previous prices. Allegheny 5s of 1944 were down 7, and the 5s of 1950 reacted to 9. All three were at new lows for the year. Chesapeake corporation 5s lost 4 3-4 to touch a new year's minimum and there were 1 to 2 point losses in Chesapeake and Ohio 4 1-2s A and B, Cleveland Union Terminal 4 1-2s, Erie 5s, of 1975, Missouri Pacific general 4s, and 5s, A, F, G, and H, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s C, and Texas and Pacific 5s and 5s C. Pere Marquette bonds were soft. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s firmed at the close.

Other prominent issues dropping a point or more included Boston and Maine 5s, Canadian Pacific 4 1-2s, Chicago Burlington and Quincy 4 1-2s, Chicago and Northwestern 4 3-4s, Illinois Central 4s, International Great Northern 6s, Kansas City Southern 5s, M. K. T. 4 1-2s, New Haven debenture 4s, Reading company 4 1-2s, Southern Pacific 4s and several Wabash issues.

Liquidation in other sections of the domestic list was more moderate, especially among utility bonds where few losses exceeded a point. Columbia Gas and Electric 5s, Laclede Gas Light 5 1-2s, Consumers Power 5s, New Orleans Public Service 5s B, New York Edison 6 1-2s, Pacific Gas and Electric 5s, were among the weak spots. Western Union and Consolidated Gas were steady. American Telephone issues were little changed.

In sympathy with the share market, a few stock privilege issues were closed firm to give an irregular appearance to the group. American Telephone 4 1-2s sagged 3 points, General Theatres 6s, and Warner Brothers 6s lost a large fraction. International Telephone 4 1-2s, Shubert Theatre 6s, Philadelphia-Reading Coal & Iron 6s, Pathe 7s, were firm. While buying was on a moderate scale, principal Latin Americans were further improved. The feature of the Europeans was strength of Belgian issues. The 6s and 6 1-2s advanced a point and the 7s were well bought. German bonds were again mixed. Rhine Westphalian bonds moved sharply lower in this sales.

U. S. Governments were steady and dull.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(P)—The Fisher Body Corp. plans to resume operation in its assembly plants throughout the country next Monday after a shutdown of three weeks for inventory. Operations are expected to reach a substantial basis by Nov. 1, with 6,000 to 7,000 former employes back at work.

The Waltham Watch Co., which has been virtually shut down for three weeks, plans to start Monday on a four-day schedule, with about 60 per cent of its employes working.

The gold statement of the federal reserve bank of New York for the week ended Oct. 22, showed imports of $92,000, chiefly from Latin-America, and exports of $20,000 to Germany. There was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Her Wedding Night!" Here is a picture which has plenty of pep, plenty of jazz, plenty fun and plenty of "It" with the original "It" girl, Clara Bow. "Her Wedding Night" comes to the Palace theatre on Saturday, where it will be shown for four days. The cast is great and the picture is a comedy-drama written especially for Clara Bow.

Imagine the predicament of a red-headed film star in France who cannot understand the language. She has a hard time and at last finds that she is married. It all happened by proxy and it was all sort of a joke and while she has never met her husband it doesn't seem to bother her much. But she does meet him and then she falls hard.

When Skeets Gallagher and Charles Ruggles get together to make comedy there is something doing and you will laugh your sides out at the amusing situations which arise in this film. Clara and Skeets are taken for love birds in their travels together. Clara and Charlie Ruggles are misunderstood and no one really suspects that the real bride and groom are wed until they make their way through France and unwind the merry matrimonial tangle in Venice.

There isn't one single serious line in "Her Wedding Night." There isn't one single dramatic situation in the whole play and you have never seen the "It" girl with so much "It" in all her life. See it and laugh! Miss it and weep!

"Dixiana," a glorious romance of the old south, with Bebe Daniels, Everett Marshall and a supporting cast which reads like a stage and screen blue book, and "The Way of All Men," a drama which reveals the truth about men, starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Dorothy Revier, Noah Beery and many others, will be shown at the Palace for the last times today.

What Is Going On Tonight

Columbian commandery No. 4, K. T., meets in Masonic temple.

Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., meets in Moose home.

Seeks Air Laurels

Confident that he can fly from New York to the west coast in 20 hours, Wilmer Reedholm, 18, of Boone, Ia., plans to capture the east-west, west-east and round trip marks. Although he is only 18, Reedholm has had a great deal of flying experience.

How important to the downtown business district of Norwich is the trade of Norwich Town and Yantic residents is demonstrated by the scores of shoppers, most of them carrying packages small or large, who board the cars north, every afternoon

HERE HE COMES NOW—
IT WORKED—SHE'S ALL EXCITED AND WANTS HER RING BACK—BUT I'D RATHER YOU'D KEEP IT ETTA, IT'S AWFULLY NICE,
WAS IT TOO LARGE? I SEE YOU HAVE A STRING TIED AROUND THE BAND.
OH, NO, IT FITS FINE—
I JUST TIED THAT ON—SO THAT IF IT GOT IN WITH MY OTHER RINGS I COULD TELL IT APART!

NEW LONDON SCHOOL BOARD MEETS, BUT VERY FEW CITIZENS APPEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23—A special meeting of the board of school visitors was held this evening in the council chambers to listen to the presentation of the school budget for the ensuing year. There was about a dozen citizens other than the members of the school board present. Superintendent Hanson displayed the chart on which all the expenses for the year were tabulated and minutely explained them. The opportunity to ask questions was given, but no one cared to be informed to a greater extent than the enlightment Supt. Hanson had given. The board voted to adopt a cover for school books which will be provided free of cost to the board, the provider to get his compensation from advertisements which shall appear on the cover. It was also voted to print the annual report of the board in the yearbook. Two members of the city council only were present, Messrs. Twomey and May. The president of the board expressed surprise that more citizens were not interested in the meeting and did not appear to be advised on the expenditure of the city's money to the extent of some $300,000 a year.

DEAN WILBUR CROSS COMING FOR DEMOCRATIC RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23—The opening rally of the local democrats will be made tomorrow night when Dean Wilbur Cross will address the voters of New London at the Bulkeley auditorium. He will state his platform as the candidate of the party at the coming election and when he will seek election as governor of the state. As a college professor his remarks should be instructive and interesting. William C. Fox, candidate of the party for member of congress and the opponent of Richard P. Freeman, will be another speaker. Mr. Fox has selected for his topic, "The Democrats Gave New London the Submarine Base and the Republicans took it Away." Alton T. Miner, candidate for secretary of state, will be another speaker.

Mrs. John Paul, of 35 Tenth street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

Casey—Straw

Daniel Casey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Casey, 3 Grand street, and Miss Anna Straw, of Brattleboro, Vt., were married Monday at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley. John Connors was best man and the bride was attended by Miss Catherine Casey, sister of the groom.

Oyarzabal—Graves

Dr. Jose L. Oyarzabal, New York, and Violet M. Graves, of Groton, were married at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ yesterday by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Tracy Sheffield will move shortly from their Ocean avenue residence to the Hotel Mohican and will occupy an apartment there until next summer.

Breaks Bone in Foot

Kenneth H. Holmes, employed by the city as assistant city engineer, and residing at 202 Thames street, is confined to his home suffering from a fractured bone of the foot, which injury he sustained yesterday by falling from a step-ladder. Holmes was at a Woodbridge residence, attempting to change a socket in an electric light fixture, when the ladder toppled over, causing the electrician to fall.

Latch String Out for Burglars

Two more stores were discovered, early today, not properly secured against visitations of thieves. Patrolman Albert Iverson was making his rounds in the rear of the store of the Standard Cotton Goods Co., 138 State street, when he discovered the door open and a screen partially removed. An employe in closing the store Wednesday night neglected to close the door and the screen has been in a dilapidated condition for some time. Patrolman George Laboue found a window open in the rear of the carriage repair shop of D. E. & J. F. Moran, of Bank street, and with a ladder against the structure, giving the impression that a thief had entered by means of the open window and ladder. An investigation, however, revealed that the window had been left open for the purpose of ventilation and that the ladder had been used during the day in order that carpenters could go to the roof and make repairs.

A force of city laborers has been engaged for several days applying tar and bluestone to depressions in the highways. Wherever holes were filled with this form of material and the highway was of brick, quantities of sand were distributed on the pavements for many feet to prevent automobiles skidding on the surface made slippery by the tires coming in con-

DEATH OF NEW-BORN SON FOLLOWS THAT OF MOTHER

Frederick, infant son of Frederick T. and the late Ida M. Horn, died at Lawrence Memorial hospital last night. The mother of the child died Oct. 8th. Mr. Horn recently resided at the submarine base and is a member of the crew of U. S. S. Bushnell, which left port yesterday for Pearl harbor, Honolulu, where several submarines will be decommissioned.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of John Montrello, 55 Warren street, and Patrick E. King, employed at the United States government dock, Water street. The license of Montrello was suspended recently but was returned to the driver last Monday, only to be suspended again.

DR. THOS. A. WOODRUFF ILL—THREATENED WITH PNEUMONIA

Dr. Thomas A. Woodruff, 44 Mott avenue, one of the city's most widely known physicians, is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital, threatened with pneumonia. Dr. Woodruff contracted a severe cold earlier in the week and when symptoms of pneumonia developed, he was taken to the hospital. It was said this afternoon that the condition of the patient was comfortable.

The Eagle Realty company has sold three building lots on the former Burrows Homestead plat, off Bayonet street, to Guiseppe Perrone.

The estate of Edward Brest has sold a building lot on Connecticut avenue to Isadore and Pauline Ribner.

A trustee's deed transferring title in a house and lot on Steward street from the estate of Amy B. Wiggins to Alberta A. Ware, has been received for record at the office of the city clerk.

Samuel Miller has brought suit against Seldemar and Mildred Korchinsky to recover a loan of $750. Property on Ocean avenue owned by the plaintiffs has been attached.

Blaze in Underbrush

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters this afternoon for a serious blaze off Colman street, in the rear of the former U. S. Housing corporation, where a vast area of undergrowth was afire. Chief Thomas Shipman and two pieces of apparatus went to the big field and it was not until the firemen had worked hard over an hour that the fire was extinguished. It is believed that the blaze was started by boys.

John R. Dorsey, a truck driver, residing at 851 Main street, was in the police court this morning charged with breach of the peace, but because of the absence of any reasonable foundation for the arrest and prosecution of the youth Dorsey was discharged. Dorsey was arrested last night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy upon complaint of Michael Sutura, Huntington street cobbler shop proprietor. Dorsey has been devoting his spare time to collecting shoes and taking them to a Main street cobbler that repairs could be made. Sutura, it is claimed, became enraged at the act of Dorsey because the former was losing some of his customers. When Sutura engaged in an argument with Dorsey a near-fight was precipitated and Sutura alleged that he had been threatened with bodily injury for he said that Dorsey displayed a knife. When searched at police headquarters no weapon was found on him. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50.

A man charged with intoxication was given suspension of judgment. He was arrested on State street last night by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan.

Harold Denison Leaves Hospital

Harold Denison, a young man who formerly resided at 495 Montauk avenue and who has been a patient at Norwich State hospital for several months, escaped from the institution this afternoon and the New London police have been requested to maintain a watch for him. Denison, who has been of unsound mentality for a long time, was arrested early last summer when he attempted to entice children into the wooded section adjacent to Evergreen street, being arrested by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin upon complaint of nearby residents. Prior to his arrest Denison had been living the life of a hermit in Waterford.

Mrs. Ruth Ford, of 182 Broad street; Mrs. Charles McGourty, Waterford; Mrs. Frank Power, 556 Bank street; James Rasmussen, Bartlett's Reef lightship; Miss Mildred Phillips, Mystic; George Muise, 93 Hempstead street; Angeline Rutigiliano, 38 Hamilton street, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Herbert Richards

The funeral of Mrs. Clara B. Richards, wife of Herbert Richards, formerly of New London, who died at Newark, N. J., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

John Lukovitz

The funeral of John Lukovitz, janitor of the Castaldi apartments, 30 West street, who died suddenly from hemorrhage of the lungs Tuesday afternoon, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 35 Belden street. The services were conducted by a Russian priest from Norwich. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

TO OAGANIZE NORWICH MECH. ENGINEERS SECTION

Organization of a Norwich section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is to be effected at a meeting to be held next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the Arcanum club.

The territory assigned to the Norwich section by the national society extends from a point just this side of Hartford to a point somewhat east of Westerly; thence northerly to the Massachusetts line and southward to the sound, inclusive of all communities located within these bounds on the coast.

The guests of honor next Wednesday evening are to be Mr. Westcott of Westcott and Mapes, consulting engineers of New Haven; and Calvin W. Rice, secretary of the national society. The meeting will be addressed by the guests as well as by William H. Buck of the Aspinook Co.; Lovelock Holm of the Interstate Paperboard company, and Clarence E. Barber, engineer of the Norwich State hospital. The last three speakers are among those mainly instrumental in organizing the local section. Mayor Robbins will be asked to welcome the new section into being. All those signing applications for membership at the organization meeting will be received as charter members of the Norwich section.

Founded in 1880 to conduct research work and to promote the prestige of the profession, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is now an international organization, its foreign branches being especially strong in England, Germany, Italy and Japan. Its headquarters are at 29 West 39th street, New York. In America the society has a membership of 20,000, including such prominent engineers as Herbert Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, Charles M. Schwab, Henry Ford and Orville W. Wright.

The organization enables its members to engage in a broad work for the advancement of engineering, establishes a high standard of professional attainment for the individual member and provides many advantages which accrue from association at its meetings and through mutual interchange of information and courtesies.

In a communication to the organizers of the Norwich section, Secretary Rice says:

"In the broad sense, the society's activities are as inclusive as the profession of engineering itself, which has been defined by the American Engineering council as 'the science of controlling the forces and of utilizing the materials of nature for the benefit of man.' Each of the 70 local sections in the United States and Canada has innumerable contacts and responsibilities, largely exercised in conjunction with other local groups through co-operative effort directed to better the profession and to promote the best interests of the community. Every effort of the society is exerted to make for a better understanding among members of the profession and to contribute its share toward the solution of problems affecting the welfare of all."

How Norwich Section Meshes In

In the conduct of local section work, it is the policy of the society to foster and promote the welfare of strong local engineering societies. This policy is carried to a particularly high point in a number of cities such as Philadelphia, Cleveland and St. Louis, where the local branches of the national societies are integral branches of the local societies.

This method of organization, which is to be followed out here in Norwich also, permits civil, mechanical, electrical and other engineers to conduct specialized meetings, and yet provides for frequent general meetings at which broader contacts are possible.

A definite effort is also made to increase the co-operation between local sections and student branches to the end that the students may have the benefit which comes from contact with older members of the profession, and that they may respond to the help of the older members by manifesting keener interest in their studies and in the activities of the particular student branch.

In addition to the effect which the Norwich section of the society can thus exert on the educational institutions and trade schools of eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island, the Norwich section will hold itself ready to perform similar functions in connection with the submarine base, the coast guard academy and the training courses conducted privately by the various industries of this region.

Helps Students Through College

Through the generosity of Maj. Max Toltz, who gave to the society the sum of $15,000 to be used as a loan fund, the society is able to assist many deserving students who for financial reasons would otherwise be forced to sacrifice their college career.

These activities are all in furtherance of the society's desire to cooperate with and assist the engineering schools of the country with all its facilities. Such facilities include the library, reference service, publications, speakers, employment bureau and the personal interest of the membership generally.

Professional divisions are organized under special authority of the council by those members of the society particularly interested in selected branches of engineering included in the scope of the society's activities. Members of the society may enroll in any three divisions and will secure without request the technical papers and publications for these divisions in their sections of transactions.

The divisions are responsible for providing papers covering the developments in their field for the meetings of the society. Each division is allowed to hold a yearly national meeting. More than 10 divisions are now holding national meetings which vary in duration from one to four days, the largest being comparable in size to the spring meetings of the entire society.

Norwich May Get Convention

If the Norwich section so elects, a national division meeting may be held here at its invitation, the local section acting as host and taking charge of entertainment and handling of the meeting with the division in charge of the program. Such a meeting will of course add to the status of Norwich as a convention city.

The Norwich section can also call on the professional divisions for assistance in arranging local technical meetings, as the divisions hold themselves in readiness to furnish technical programs.

These professional divisions enjoy complete autonomy. The executive committees are appointed by the president, and the sub-committees are appointed by the executive committees.

The activities of the professional divisions are supervised by the standing committee on professional divisions, which consists of five members appointed by the president from among active division committeemen. The chairman of the standing committee has a seat on council. The activities of these divisions consist mainly of procuring technical papers for spring, annual and regional meetings; preparing yearly progress reports of developments in their fields; surveying their fields for possible research projects; and holding national meetings.

Registration in the various profession divisions is as follows: Management, 6,163; power, 5,498; machine shop practise, 3,851; fuels, 3,495; applied mechanics, 3,398; oil and gas power, 2,884; materials handling, 2,574; iron and steel, 2,218; aeronautic, 2,083; hydraulic, 1,787; railroad, 1,170; petroleum, 1,156; wood industries, 664; textile, 606; printing industries, 253.

Norwich Section in National Defense

There is also a special national defense division, providing a contact with the several branches of the army and navy for the immediate object of promoting the provisions of the national defense act of 1920. Every member of the society is a member of the national defense division. By reason of the many military, naval and coast-guard establishments within its territory, it is felt that the Norwich section will be a valuable liaison unit in connection with the national defense work of the society.

The research group of committees numbers 60. It is constantly at work on programs of special interest to mechanical engineers. After organization by the main research committee these special committes make themselves self-supporting by soliciting funds from the individuals and firms specially interested in the problems under investigation.

Such subjects as the following are being studied: Lubrication, fluid meters, strength of gear teeth, cutting of metals, mechanical springs, elevator safeties, effect of temperature upon the properties of metals, boiler-feed water studies, condenser tubes, boiler-furnace refractories, welding of pressure vessels, worm gears, saws and knives, absorption of radiant heat in boiler furnaces, velocity measurement of fluid flow, and fuels and Diesel-fuel-oil specifications.

Rigid Membership Requirements

The following extracts from the society's constitution, by-laws and rules explain the requirements regarding membership, references and fees.

A member shall be an engineer, at least 32 years of age, who has been in the active practice of his profession, or who has fulfilled the duties of a professor of engineering in a college or school of accepted standing, for at least 10 years, and has been in responsible charge of important work for at least five years, and is qualified to design as well as to direct engineering work. Graduation from a school of engineering of accepted standing shall be considered equivalent to two years of active practice.

An associate need not be an engineer, but must have had such responsible connection with some branch of engineering, science, the arts, or industries, that the council will consider him qualified to cooperate with engineers in the advancement of professional knowledge, and he must be at least 30 years of age.

An associate-member shall be an engineer, at least 27 years of age, who has been in the active practice of his profession, or who has fulfilled the duties of a professor of engineering in a college or school of accepted standing, for at least six years, and has been in responsible charge of work for at least two years. Graduation from a school of engineering of accepted standing shall be considered equivalent to two years of active practice.

A junior must have had such engineering experience as will enable him to fill a subordinate position in engineering work, or he must be a graduate of an engineering school of accepted work. He must be at least 21 years of age, and his connection with the society shall cease when he becomes 35 years of age unless he previously transferred to another grade.

An application for membership from a candidate who may not be able to give the necessary number of references may be recommended to the council for ballot after sufficient evidence has been secured to show that the candidate is worthy of admission to membership. Such candidates may refer to officers or voting members of other societies of like standing.

175,000 Volumes in Library

The library of the society is a free public reference collection of engineering publications and books. It contains about 175,000 volumes, excluding duplicates. Some 4,000 mail inquiries requiring investigation are received yearly. The number of readers is about 25,000 a year; the total users are about 37,000 annually. Each year about 5,000 telephone calls are handled, 3,600 persons supplied with 35,000 photoprints, and 200 "searches" conducted. These "searches" include translations, bibliographies, assistance in patent work, tabulation of data and general help.

WIDESPRED COOPERATION TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

cooperate with the government in relieving unemployment.

Postmaster General Brown said overtime work would be given to substitutes in the postal service and Chairman T. V. O'Connor said the shipping board had abandoned its plan to reduce its personnel by 500.

Brown said after a conference with Secretary Lamont that orders would go forward tomorrow to suspend overtime to employes in order that substitutes may take their place and thereby give employment to a greater number of persons.

O'Connor said the shipping board would not "let out any one at this time" and had abandoned the plan to reduce the personnel of the board. O'Connor made the announcement as he began a conference with Secretary Lamont on the unemployment situation. He said he had another idea to aid in relieving unemployment which he would suggest to the committee.

BELIEVES UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS WILL DISAPPEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(AP)—Colonel Arthur Woods, director of unemployment relief, believes that eventually recurring problems of unemployment will disappear.

In discussing the present situation today, Woods said that despite existing conditions the world was making strides toward the elimination of such periods.

"Ways and means," he said, "Will be found to give gainful employment to all workers."

Although he did not explain how it would be done, he cited that after the 1921 unemployment conference, which he directed, conditions remained stable for a decade.

He indicated he thought a better plan of distribution of work would be found that would stabilize empolyment.

PLANS IN CHICAGO FOR UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—(AP)—Unemployment relief in Chicago and Illinois advanced today in the following formations:

Surveys to find jobs for the jobless.

Establishment of soup kitchens and shelters.

Establishment of registration bureaus for the jobless.

Collection and distribution of relief funds, clothing and food.

Patroling of railroad stations and bus depots to prevent an influx of unemployed from other states, who might be ruled to Chicago and Illinois by prospects of either relief or jobs.

A central statewide committee, appointed by Governor Louis L. Emmerson, guided the relief work with local groups in cities, towns and countries.

LONDON'S HOTHOUSE AIR FLIGHT TERMINUS

"The Scilly Isles, terminus of the most recent transatlantic flight, lie about 30 miles off the southwestern tip of England and are the hothouses of London," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Only five of the islands, St. Mary's; Tresco, where the flyers landed; St. Martins, St. Agnes and Bryher, are inhabited. More than half the total population of about 2,000 are on St. Mary's, the largest of the group, which is slightly more than four square miles in area. Hugh Town, the capital, a village of about 200 houses, is located there.

"Before London's trees and shrubbery begin to show signs of life in the spring, tons of Scilly lilies narcissi, tulips and daffodils are for sale in florist shops of the British capital.

"The climate on the isles is always temperate, the gulf stream never letting the thermometer drop below 40 degrees, although the isles are in the same latitude as the northern tip of Newfoundland.

"The Scillies form an archipelago of about 200 islands and isolated rocks, all of which lie within an area of 30 square miles. They are the ragged summits of the same granite ridge that forms the backbone of Cornwall on the mainland. Tradition has it that the isles are remnants of a lost territory which sank beneath the sea. While geologists refuse to be convinced of this the old fishermen of the Scillies still tell of great buildings seen under the waves of calm days and of bringing up bits of ancient furnishings on their gear.

"A theory once held that the Scillies were the 'Tin Islands' of Herodotus, but it is now known they were not. The Scillies have no known mineral wealth. They might have been, however, the trading center where the Phoenicians, three thousand years ago, met with the Britians and bartered for tin from the Cornwall mines.

"Until the building of the lonely Bishop Light on an outlying rock to the southwest, and placement of numerous other lighthouses and lightships, the Scillies were hazards to shipping between Europe and the west coast of England. Before the flower business enriched the inhabitants, salvaging goods from wrecked ships was an important vocation among some of the islanders.

"Scillians were fisher people until an enterprising islander sent a few flowers to London. The blossoms attracted such attention that the flower business was organized and several hundred tons of about 200 varieties of flowers are sent to London annually. From December to June practically all the inhabitants are employed in picking, packing, and dispatching flowers which are sent by boat to Penzance, Cornwall, and then by fast train to their ultimate destination.

"Once the haven of pirates and ne'er-do-wells, the Scillies now boast of the prosperity of the inhabitants, due to their new industry, and assert that poverty has been eliminated.

"The boat trip from Penzance to Hugh Town, a distance of 40 miles, was so rough and the Scillies so desolate that tourists formerly seldom wasted time in the neighborhood. Now the balmy climate, beautiful gardens, the boating under expert pilotage for which the islanders are famed, and excellent sea fishing are lures to the increasing tourist trade.

"Except for the trees at Tresco Abbey, the residence of the lord proprietor of the isles, the whole area is nearly timberless. All lumber and manufactured products are imported."

Use of chemically preserved lumber is being urged as an aid to forest conservation.

Avoid Ugly Pimples

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin

Norwich, Friday, Oct. 24, 1930

THE WEATHER

Conditions

Pressure continues low over Hudson straits and pressure is relatively low over the lake region.

The high pressure area that covered the Atlantic states this morning has to a large extent disintegrated, pressure now being high off the north Atlantic coast and over Nova Scotia.

Temperatures have risen in the middle and north Atlantic states and portions of the plain states, while they have fallen over the south portion of the west Gulf states.

The outlook is for rains on Friday in the Atlantic states and possibly in the Appalachian and eastern lower lake regions.

Temperature changes will be unimportant.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh southwest winds, possibly strong at times over extreme south portion; weather becoming overcast followed by light rain Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh southeast winds, possibly strong at times over north portion, weather overcast with occasional light rain Friday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Cloudy with light rain Friday; Saturday fair; not much change in temperature.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Thursday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	26	30.10
12 m.	52	30.10
6 p. m.	44	30.10

Highest, 52; lowest, 26.

Comparisons

Predictions for Thursday: Partly cloudy, slightly warmer.

Thursday's weather: Fair, warmer, southerly wind.

GREENEVILLE

The T. D. Sewing circle met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Agnes Knight, on Boswell avenue, with a large class present. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and lamp shading, which was followed by a social hour with piano and vocal selections rendered. Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruit, candy and hot chocolate were served by the hostess.

Miss Marie Gadle, a member of the school nursing department, is attending a convention for school nurses at Hartford today. She will also attend the alumnae meeting of St. Francis' hospital Saturday in that city.

Rally Is Postponed

The democratic rally which was supposed to be held tonight in Union hall was postponed until Monday evening so as not to conflict with a local fight card, which is being presented on the same evening.

TAFTVILLE

The many friends of Mrs. Esdras Caron are pleased to learn that she has been discharged from the William W. Backus hospital where she has been a patient for the past few weeks, and has returned to her home on upper Merchants avenue.

In compliment to Mrs. Theo Goodrum of Vallejo, California, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Meyer of Blissville, Miss Flossie M. Meyer gave a bridge of two tables Tuesday evening. The prizes were won by Mrs. George W. Weller and Mrs. George Kramer. After cards, the hostess served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Perkins of Occum heights have returned from a motor trip to Maine.

The home department of the Taftville Congregational church school plans to open its fall season this (Friday) evening when they will hold a meeting in the church parlors. A social hour is to follow the study period. The committee in charge of the affair which has been arranged by the supervisor, Mrs. Fred Ince, includes Mrs. Gustave Hedler, Mrs. John D. Sharples, Mrs. Walter S. Sharples, Mrs. George M. Thompson and Mrs. Robert Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Fontaine, who have been residing on Merchants avenue, have moved to South B street.

The remodeling of the property of Wilbur E. Baldwin on Norwich avenue which was partially destroyed by fire several months ago, is nearing complexion.

Since the opening of the season Monday, Oct. 20, John Ely, Jr., of Blissville, has bagged two raccoons, one of which weighed 19 pounds.

FIFTH DISTRICT MEMBERS TO ATTEND INSTALLATION

Large delegations from the Fifth district of the American Legion are planning to attend the department installation to be held in Rockville Saturday evening, Nov. 1, at 7 o'clock. Among the officers to be installed will be Francis DeGange of New London, new commander of the Fifth district. He succeeds Joseph A. Bellefleur of Norwich, the retiring district commander, who will turn over his paraphernalia to Mr. DeGange, at these exercises.

Preston Democratic Rally

A democratic rally for Preston was held Thursday evening at the Long Society hall with an attendance of about 50. The speakers included the two party nominees for representatives, Rev. George W. Clark and Frank Krug, and William J. Fitzgerald of this city, the party nominee for state senator in this district.

Rabbi To Speak On Zionism

"Zionism—The Beginning of the End?" will be the subject of the sermon to be given by Rabbi Theodore Friedman, a senior student at the Jewish Theological seminary at New York, when he addresses the congregation of the Norwich Community synagogue this (Friday) evening. This will be Rabbi Friedman's second appearance before the Norwich congregation.

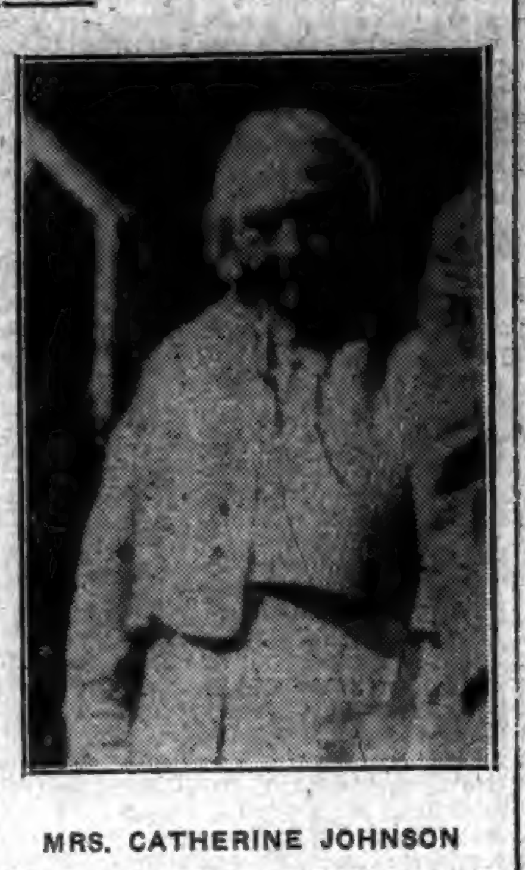
CAKE WITH 101 CANDLES WILL MARK MRS. CATHERINE JOHNSON'S BIRTHDAY

A birthday cake with 101 candles will be lighted this (Friday) afternoon at The Haven, home for elderly people at Abington, to signalize the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Catherine Johnson, the oldest and one of the most loved members of the family at the home.

Along about 5:30, Mrs. A. G. Griggs, superintendent at the home, will have Mrs. Johnson's bed rolled into the sun porch where members of The Haven family will gather around a table on which will be the cake with its 101 candles. These are to be lighted, the cake will be cut and ice cream provided by Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Gwen Careg farm, Abington, will be served.

Mrs. Johnson is well preserved for her years, with mind keen and memory very good, enabling her to recall vividly interesting incidents that occurred in her early life. Up to this spring she had been able to be about the house the greater part of the time, but within the past three years she has been suffering from a form of arthritis, which has caused partial paralysis and necessitates her being confined to her bed.

Mrs. Johnson was born Oct. 24, 1829, at Chelsea, Lunenberg county, Nova Scotia, the daughter of George and Rachel Uhlman, and was married in Nova Scotia in 1848 to John Edward Johnson, a blacksmith, who also was a Nova Scotian, having been born in the town of Liverpool in 1827. With their three children they came to the United States about 1855-60, and Mrs. Johnson recalls that up to that time she had never seen a railroad train, and her husband, who died in 1900, never rode on one. Seven more children were born to the couple in the United States and of the family of ten children, five are still living. Grandma Johnson has 28 grandchildren, 59 great-grandchildren, and nine great-great-grandchildren.



MRS. CATHERINE JOHNSON

She united with the Baptist church before coming to the United States, but after coming to North Scituate, R. I., she attended the Methodist church and she finds great consolation in her Christian faith, as she often says: "My heavenly Father is my greatest comfort now." She is very appreciative of the care she receives at The Haven and has endeared herself to all who know and care for her.

DUWELL TROOP WILL HIKE TO CAMP SITE

Duwell troop No. 7, Boy Scouts, held its regular meeting Thursday evening at the Duwell club, Senior Patrol Leader William Galligan being in charge. The troop had two drilling instructors as guests, John Keeley and Captain Kane. A number of interesting announcements were made. The troop is to hike to the new camp site Saturday morning under the leadership of Scoutmaster Walter Weidman and Assistant Scoutmaster John Boldrighine and next Thursday evening a Halloween party is to be staged when many games of interest are to be played. Plans were made for the celebration of the troop's first anniversary, which will be in the form of parents' night.

FREE ACADEMY TRUSTEES RE-ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

To fill three places on the board of corporators of the Norwich Free Academy left vacant by the deaths of Oliver L. Johnson, Winslow T. Williams and Philip T. Welles, the election of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, James L. Case and Joseph C. Worth took place at the annual meeting this week.

Judge Allyn L. Brown was elected to the vacancy on the board of trustees to take the place of the late Oliver L. Johnson and officers were re-elected as follows:

President, Shepard B. Palmer; vice president, Wallace S. Allis; secretary and treasurer, Guy B. Dolbeare.

WILL BE SPEAKER FOR BIBLE CLASS CONVENTION

Dr. D. J. Evans of Rochester, N. Y., formerly leader of the largest men's Bible class in the middle west, with over 2,000 attendance, is to be the speaker for the afternoon programme when the sixth annual state convention of the Connecticut Federation of Men's Bible classes is held in Waterbury on Nov. 15. After this meeting there is to be a parade and in the evening a banquet in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Rev. Arthur F. McKenney of St. John's Episcopal church, Waterbury, is to be the speaker.

Edwin B. Floyd of this city is a member of the executive committee of the state federation, of which Warren P. Grant of Hartford is president.

GERARD STAFFORD SMITH TO WED MISS ALICE C. GOOD

Norwich relatives have received cards for the marriage of Miss Alice Campbell Good, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Good, of 880 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Gerard Stafford Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Smith, of Carroll street, Brooklyn. The marriage, Wednesday, Nov. 12th is to be followed by a large reception at Sherry's 300 Park avenue, New York. Mr. Smith, who is in the bond business, is a member of Brooklyn Riding club and a star pony polo player, having been a member of the team which defeated the British army players on their first visit to America after the war. His mother was Miss Winifred F. Murtagh, of Brooklyn, in former years a frequent Norwich visitor.

NUTTING DAY EVENT FOR Y. M. C. A. BOYS

Members of the Boys' division of the Y. M. C. A. will observe today (Friday) as nutting day, starting out from the Y building at 9 o'clock sharp. Each member of the party is expected to bring a lunch and a container in which to put the nuts. Hot dogs will be supplied. In order to create interest two prizes will be awarded, one to the person securing the largest quantity of nuts and the other to the runner-up.

Warning To Jewelers

The Norwich police gave warning to jewelers of the city Thursday against a jewelry store shoplifter who has operated in other parts of the state. His method is said to be to go into a store, where he orders a cheap wedding gift and while the clerk is wrapping it up, steals whatever he can. He has another package in his hand which he leaves and promises to call in a few minutes for it.

The description of the thief is given as follows: Age 35 to 40 years, 6 feet, 2 inches tall, 190 pounds, very dark complexion, may be a light-skinned Negro, dark eyes, swarthy complexion, red face or weather beaten. Wart on left side of nose near left eye, very prominent. When last seen he wore a brown suit and soft hat.

Seeks Divorce For Desertion

On the ground of desertion since Aug. 2, 1920, William D. Gibson of this city has brought suit in the superior court for divorce from Ina Dell (Clark) Gibson of Saybrook Ferry. They were married Aug. 27, 1914.

UNIVERSALIST LADIES' AID MEETING AND ENTERTAINMENT

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Church of the Good Shepherd was held in the church social rooms Thursday evening with a large attendance. The reports of the secretary were read by Mrs. Charles W. Parsons and the treasurer of the organization, Mrs. Henry Maguire, showed a good balance in the treasury. At the conclusion of the business meeting an entertainment was given by Hall's Imperial Entertainers. Songs by a quartette composed of Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. A. L. Drury, Mrs. Mary Wheeler, Mrs. John Evans and Mrs. Mogeila Dennis; readings by Mrs. Florence Whitter and magician's tricks by Charles Hall made a delightful evening's entertainment. Delicious refreshments were served by Miss Betty Pike and Mrs. William Mitchell. Mrs. Walter Bussey and Mrs. Harry J. Bjurstrom poured. The decorations were chrysanthemums.

JANE CASSIDY HOLRAN'S SHORT STORY PRAISED

The book section of a Boston newspaper of Saturday, Oct. 18, notes that Mrs. Jane Cassidy Holran, formerly of Norwich, who writes under her maiden name — Jane Cassidy— is in the roll of honor, as having one of the best short stories of the year, "The Bitter Seige," in a well known magazine.

Jane Cassidy is granddaughter of the late Dr. Patrick Cassidy and daughter of Mrs. Jane Cassidy and the late Dr. Patrick J. Cassidy. Jane Cassidy's homes are in New Preston, Conn., and in New York.

BLOCK ISLAND ASKING FOR HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

Block Island residents made their claims for harbor improvements there at a hearing Wednesday before government army engineers.

Their claims were presented in three resolutions as follows;

1. Control of sand seepage through the east breakwater of the Old Harbor into the harbor basin, a recurrent menace to water traffic. Additional barrier or wall of cement suggested. Stated that the government now spends $15,000 every two or three years to remove accumulations when the situation becomes acute.

2. Enlargement of Old Harbor by moving the north breakwater approximately 600 feet farther north. Suggested to provide more ample harbor which in the winter attempt to put which in the winter atempt to put in from storm, but often are compelled because of congestion to proceed to Newport 24 miles distant.

3. Widening of the New Harbor channel of Salt pond to its original dimensions of 300 feet, at present narrowed through years of neglect to 100 feet. As a result of the channel's condition the Eastern Steamship company last summer was forced to cancel several scheduled trips from New York to Block Island. The navy uses the harbor extensively about eight months of the year and upon several occasions submarines have gone ashore in the narrow channel.

With reference to the Old Harbor it also was said the excursion steamer Mount Hope was unable to stop at Block Island until mid season because of the harbor's undredged condition.

TESSONE BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

Andrew Tessone, 21, of Westerly, was bound over to the criminal superior court on a charge of theft of an automobile, when he was presented in the city court Thursday morning. Bonds were set at $1,500, and unable to provide the bonds, the accused was taken to jail.

The accused is charged with stealing an automobile from the Main Street garage, Sept. 20. The machine is owned by William Barry of Cliff street.

Several nights ago Tessone was arrested in New London as a suspicious character. He had a long paper knife with him and was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. The charge was nolled Wednesday morning in the New London court.

The New London police learned that the car he was driving at the time of his arrest had been stolen in this city and investigation revealed the fact that it was Mr. Barry's machine. Tessone, it is said, claimed he did not steal the machine but said that an Ohio man committed the theft.

Tessone was for a time employed in Norwich for a bus operator and it is claimed that while working here he learned where a key to the Main Street garage was kept. It is charged he took the key from its hiding place, got into the garage and took the car.

Following the disposition of the concealed weapon charge in the New London court Wednesday morning, Tessone was turned over to the local authorities and brought here by the state police.

TO ARRANGE BUSINESS FOR CRIMINAL COMMON PLEAS

Prosecuting Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey of the court of common pleas will be at the court house in New London after the short calendar session of the superior court today, (Friday), and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of arranging for the business of the October session, criminal side, of the court of common pleas which will open in New London next Thursday morning.

All cases not arranged on or before Friday afternoon will be considered as assigned for trial for Oct. 30 without further notice, according to Clerk J. Frank Corey.

NEGOTIATING TO LOCATE AMPHIBIAN PLANE PLANT

Through Miss Mary Bundy, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and the aviation committee of the chamber negotiations are being conducted towards the possibility of bringing to Norwich an organization for the manufacture of amphibian planes which would be a very material asset to the business life of the community.

Preliminary information which has been given on the project make it seem a very desirable acquisition and strong hopes are being entertained that it will be located here.

Visitors to Slater museum on Sunday will find in the Converse Art gallery an exhibition of panels of silk, which were made by Cheney Brothers. This exhibit was hung for the meeting of the art association on Monday and is to remain there during next week.

KEEP GARAGE DOOR OPEN WHEN STARTING MOTOR

In a radio talk at 1.25 Thursday afternoon from WTIC, Hartford, Warren A. Cook, industrial hygienist of the state department of health, issued a warning to motorists not to have their garage doors closed while starting or warming up a car during the winter season. At this time, Mr. Cook pointed out, there is especial danger of falling victim to the insidious, poisonous gas, carbon monoxide, which is in the exhaust smoke of the motor.

This gas we cannot smell, we cannot see. But even when the engine is well warmed up and ceases to give off a cloud of smoke or bad smelling vapors, even under such conditions carbon monoxide is being discharged from the exhaust pipe. The first of the insidious qualities of carbon monoxide to be emphasized then is that the senses of sight and smell do not give us any indication of its presence, said Mr. Cook.

"The second of these qualities which should be remembered is that carbon monoxide gives no warning. The first noticeable effect is often a sudden muscular weakness which causes victims to fall to the floor and renders him helpless. A third of the insidious qualities of carbon monoxide results from that property which causes it to be poisonous, namely its displacement of oxygen in the blood stream. Accordingly just at the time when the victim starts to escape from the poisonous atmosphere, the physical exertion defeats its own purpose. The more violent the effort to escape, the more quickly unconsciousness results. These three insidious properties of carbon monoxide have been discussed in order to emphasize the importance of a single simple preventative measure: Before starting the automobile engine open the garage door. Adhere rigorously to this practice and prevent the tragedy of the closed garage door from being enacted at your home."

FACULTY CHOSEN FOR COMMUNITY TRAINING SCHOOL

For the faculty of the Norwich Community Training school, which is to open next Monday and run till Friday at Noyes' parish house of the Central Baptist church, the following faculty has been chosen: Dean, Rev. P. A. Kilmister, Norwich; Rev. William G. Fagan, Mystic; Rev. Raymond J. Bates, Montville; Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, Moosup; Mrs. A. N. Foster, Norwich; with Miss Elizabeth F. The school is to be conducted under the auspices of the Norwich Council of Religious Education in co-operation with the state council and will hold five evening sessions for church and church school workers and for parents interested in Bible study and religious education.

The instructors in the different courses will be as follows: Story telling in religious education, Rev. Mr. Bates; the teaching work of the church, Rev. Mr. DeWolfe; a study of the pupil, Rev. Mr. Fagan; dramatization and pageantry, Mrs. Foster.

JUDGMENT FOR M'CARTHY IN ACCIDENT SUIT

Daniel J. McCarthy of this city is given a judgment for $100 and costs of $30.37 against Frank J. Prodell, Jr., of this city, according to a decision handed down by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas and filed with Clerk J. Frank Corey. The case was one which had been appealed from a decision of Justice of Peace Thomas J. Kelly, and Judge Waller, by his decision, sustains the decision of Justice Kelly.

McCarthy in justice court obtained a judgment for $72.62 and costs of $11.67 against Prodell for damage done to his (McCarthy's) machine when struck on Jan. 18, 1930, by a car owned by Prodell. Prodell ran into the rear of McCarthy's machine, when the latter's machine stopped up short in order to avoid hitting someone in the road. The accident occurred on North Main street, near Central avenue, close to the car barn. Prodell's counterclaim for $75 is disallowed by the court.

The number of American tourists entering Mexico through Laredo, Tex., reached a new high mark in July when 2,815 passed through the city.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUB WORKING ON NORWICH PARKING PROBLEM

Because of their belief that Norwich merchants have been losing trade from out of town customers who find no convenient and adequate parking places in the city, the Business and Professional Women's club, through a committee, brought before officials of the chamber of commerce on Thursday afternoon a number of suggestions which were the results of a study of the situation. The meeting was held in the chamber of commerce room in the Thayer building, with President Charles V. James, Secretary Mary Bundy and C. Edward Smith, representing the chamber and Miss Mary E. Rogers, Mrs. Sara J. McClellan and Mrs. S. W. Sevin appearing for the women's club.

The club committee reported the results of its survey to determine what spaces in the down town section could be offered as free parking places. One of these was the large yard in the rear of the Elks' home on Park street and another was space in the yard of the Gilbert Furniture company off Chestnut and Willow streets. Another space mentioned was at the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building on Main street, but it was stated that officials of that organization did not see how this could be thrown open to the public.

Communication had been had with the New Haven railroad officials, it was stated, with regard to allowing parking in the open area around the railroad station entrance, and the suggestion was made that it might be well worth while for the city to secure this property on a lease arrangement and throw it open as a free parking place.

The committee reported also that its survey had included the possibility of securing permission from adjoining property owners to make White's court area a parking place with the opening up of an outlet on to Hill street, now known as Arcadia street.

There was a suggestion also that through the winter season more Norwich citizens who bring their cars down town for all day could be induced to patronize garages and that a guaranteed increase in garage patronage might result in an agreement for a special reduced rate.

One suggestion that was given practically unanimous endorsement was that "teeth" should be put into the city's 40-minute parking regulation. It was declared that if this were persistently, consistently and continuously enforced, such action would go a long way towards clearing the curb of cars that stand there for long periods during the day and would naturally result in leaving more chance for those who would patronize Norwich stores to find some place to stop along the main business streets.

Several of those at the meeting related instances of which they had knowledge where prospective out of town customers had expressed their preference for patronizing Norwich stores because they found that prices were more reasonable than in either Hartford or New London, Westerly, or Providence.

The meeting adjourned with the understanding that both the women's club and the chamber of commerce should keep working at the problem in the expectation of improving conditions.

MAY DEVISE STICKER TO SHOW CAR INSPECTION

Connecticut's procedure in administering the law regarding the use of stickers on automobiles was explained by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel in an article prepared for radio station WTIC and read from there Thursday afternoon.

In connection with the practice of some states in issuing stickers to place on cars after they have been tested, Commissioner Stoeckel said:

"The policy in Connecticut must continue to be against stickers, or any other type of view interference; until such time as the law is changed to permit the use of a small card or sticker which will certify that the equipment of the car has been tested. This type of sticker would seem a safe exception to the general rule, especially if the regulation required that it be placed near the top of the windshield and not near the bottom.

"For the nuisance which has been occasioned by duplicate inspection there is regret. There will be an attempt to make such examinations more practical and to work out some kind of an authorization which can be attached to the car instead of issuing cards, which must be carried by the operator, as is now the case. The present system has been developed for the purpose of checking up, and in most cases the simple word of any Connecticut operator has been accepted on the matter of previous tests, so that there has been no particular hardship occasioned by duplicate examination."

BROADWAY PROPERTY SOLD AT AUCTION FOR $7,000

At public auction at the property Thursday afternoon, the real estate at 120 Broadway, the so-called Henderson or Webster property, was sold for $7,000. This is subject to a mortgage of $5,000, the sale being to Hattie Henderson Clark Graves, one of the heirs of the estate of Hattie Henderson, widow of Joseph C. Henderson, who was in the ice business for many years. The sale was by order of the probate court in the settlement of the estate. There was an attendance of about 75 at the sale which was conducted by Witter Bros. The house contains three tenements.

Compensation Agreements.

Workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner A. J. Bailey:

C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co., employer and Vernon A. Burdick, 39, Westerly, employe; septic finger on Sept. 26, at rate of $9.04.

W. Spencer and Sons Corp., employer and Irving Truscand, 46, 202 Bank street, New London, employe; laceration right heel on Sept. 27, at rate of $6.

Max Pollock and Clemplouer and Herman Becker, 51, Groton, employe; sprained right side on Oct. 1, at rate of $17.50.

Motor tourist travel from the United States to New Brunswick, Canada, has been 56 per cent greater this year than last.

MILITARY JUNTA CONTROLS THE GOVERNMENT OF BRAZIL

Fall of the Luis Government Was Preceded By Rioting and Arson—Great Demonstrations of Approval Were Staged in Rio De Janeiro—The Junta Heads Have Invited Leaders of the Insurgents to a Conference, With a View to Ending Civil War and the Establishment of a Civil Government

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A military junta tonight ruled Rio De Janeiro after overthrowing President Washington Luis in a coup d'etat accompanied by rioting and some arson.

Although announcement was made at 10 o'clock this morning that the president had resigned, setting off great demonstrations in the principal streets of the capital, it was learned tonight that he had not actually signed the decree.

He held out against quitting, insisting that he would never leave the government palace unless bound and taken by force. That the government had fallen, however, not even the foreign office questioned. Only one thing remained, and that was the formality of the president signing on the dotted line. As he sat in his palace the building was surrounded by troops loyal to the new revolutionary movement.

Thus tonight generals of the army were provisionally in charge of the capital of the greatest country in South America, apparently with the entire army and navy behind them. Three generals, Leite De Castro, Pantaleao Telles and Menna Barreto, comprise the junta and will control the government until they can confer with representatives of Rio Grande Do Sul, Minas Geraes and other states which opened the revolt three weeks ago. They hope as a result to establish a civil government.

Two new officials already have been named—Gabriel Bernardes as minister of justice and Colonel Sotero De Menezes as chief of police.

The best information regarding the coup d'etat is that two generals, two admirals and Cardinal Leme went last night to Guanabara palace, residence of the president, and urged him to resign.

The president refused, and so at 2:30 a. m. today the entire force of military police was aroused to hrow a guard about the palace. They surrounded the Botafogo district, which prevented most of the American business men living in the Copacabanca area from reaching their offices.

With this show of force the president again was asked to quit. He refused and was given until 11 a. m. to do so, but he still held out.

The rioting and arson developed about 10 o'clock this morning with news that Washington Luis was out. Until then all traffic had been operating normally except in the vicinity of the presidential palace, but with this news crowds flocked into the streets and blocked the progress of buses, private cars and all other vehicles.

Shouting against everything connected with the Washington Luis regime, the angry crowds wrecked and burned five newspapers and the government news agency. One paper burned was the Jornal Do Brasil, among the largest in the country.

Fires were set in other places also and some shops were looted, but by night the police apparently had stopped all violence. The carnival spirit was still evident, however, with hundreds of persons wearing badges of red cloth or carrying red flags to show that their sympathies were with the liberal party and not with the fallen government.

The coup had been expected for 24 hours, for despite the strictest sort of governmental censorship it was known that only the federal district and the states of Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo were loyal to Washington Luis. Everything else either was in the hands of the revolutionary armies or else controlled by neither side, as in the state of Bahia.

SUCCESS OF REVOLUTION REPORTED TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP)— The state department was informed today a military junta of "responsible officers" had taken over the Brazilian government and President Washington Luis was held a prisoner in the presidential palace.

A cablegram from Ambassador Edwin V. Morgan, at Rio De Janeiro, said normal conditions were being re-established, and "popular enthusiasm is being expressed in a carnival spirit."

He said an army detachment has occupied the Bank of Brazil to protect the national funds deposited there.

Morgan said red flags were being displayed in the streets but that "they indicate revolution and not communism." He said the offices of late government newspapers had been sacked and a building owned by O. Paiz had been burned.

Members of the new military junta, described by Morgan as "responsible officers of long service well known to me personally" were named as: General Tasso Fragoso, General Menna Barretto, General Firmino Borba, General Pantaleao Telles and General Leite De Castro.

LUIS BOWS TO THE WILL OF THE MILITARY JUNTA

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 24.— (AP)—President Washington Luis of Brazil tonight bowed to the will of the military junta that overthrew his administration in the morning and left Guanabara palace, from which he had previously declared he would be taken only as a bound prisoner. He was taken under heavily armed escort to Fort Copacabana, where he was held in the quarters of the general staff.

Vice President Mello Vianna and all the members of the Washington Luis cabinet were arrested this evening. Several senators and deputies sympathizing with the administration also were held.

Special editions of the newspapers announced that the president had agreed to leave the palace on the advice of Cardinal Sebastiao Leme of Brazil, who only recently returned from Rome. Monsignor Rosalvo Costa Rego, vicar-general of the diocese, also advised him to leave.

The cardinal and the vicar-general, and General Tasso Fragoso of the military junta, escorted Washington Luis through the reception room of the palace where he had lived for four years as the country's chief executive. There he bad goodbye to the ministers of his cabinet and members of his civil and military household.

Then, still accompanied by the cardinal and the general, he entered an automobile. Heavily armed officers jumped on the running boards, and Washington Luis was whisked away through the darkness to detention in the fort.

The capital tonight was very quiet, even its usual night life being absent. Motion picture theatres and all other places of entertainment were closed. Cafes and bars had been closed all day.

In the parks and squares citizens walked quietly or stood talking in groups under the watchful eyes of soldiers and police. Omni-buses and street cars resumed their regular service tonight.

RIO DE JANEIRO WAS QUIET BY SUNDOWN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The riots which attended the attack upon the Washington Luis government here today, appeared to have been quieted by sundown. Police controlled strategic centers and the great crowds in the street showed good nature, cheering their political idols as they passed.

In spite of the general understanding early today that the president had resigned, he still was refusing to sign a decree of resignation late this afternoon, saying he would leave the government palace only as a bound prisoner.

The president is virtually deposed already. The palace is surrounded by military units loyal to the military junta which took over the city this morning.

MORE ABOUT DEFRAUDER OF HARTFORD WOMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The plight of Walter M. Miller,—held in $50,000 bail on a grand larceny charge involving sale of $110,000 of allegedly worthless securities to Miss Mary Hotchkiss of Hartford, Conn., was complicated today by reports that his real name is Walter Barr and that he has a palatial home at Long Beach, L. I.

Deputy Attorney General Calanese, who is investigating eight other charges of stock swindling against Miller, said these reports reached him in anonymous telephone calls. The callers said Miller's wife was known as Mrs. Barr at Long Beach.

Calanese said if the reports prove true, he will seize any bank accounts Miller has under the name of Barr. He added that Miller admitted he was married and that he had a home on Long Island.

Calanese said the "brains" of the swindle perpetrated on Miss Hotchkiss is Jesse Jacobs, who is free under $7,500 bail pending trial in federal court on a mail fraud charge. He said he would question Jacobs.

CONVENTION OF AMERICAN HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A session at which a proposal of cooperative hospital fire insurance and other business matters were discussed, today brought the 32nd annual convention of the American Hospital association to a close.

Paul H. Fesler, of Minneapolis, ne president, and other officers were installed.

Dr. Lewis A. Sexton, of Hartford, Conn., urged members of the association to investigate the possibilities of cooperative fire insurance and recommended that efforts be exerted to secure an endowment for the American Hospital association. An endowment, he said, would be "a contribution to 10,000,000 patients in America each year."

ELKS LODGE DISCHARGED FROM BANKRUPTCY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A discharge from bankruptcy was granted today to Philadelphia lodge No. 2, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, by the U. S. district court.

The discharge indicated, it was said, that the lodge is free of the conditions that existed at the time of the filing of a bankruptcy plea several weeks ago. At that time Edward A. Kelly, past exalted ruler, submitted schedules showing a deficit of $1,670,444 on the basis of liabilities of $4,836,803 and assets of $2,166,359.

GERMAN FEDERAL BUDGET ADOPTED BY THE CABINET

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The German federal budget for 1931, cut to the bone by the economies of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening but still showing a deficit of 3,000,000 marks (about $720,000), today was passed by a cabinet meeting.

Revenue was estimated at 10,420,000,000 marks and expenditures at 10,423,000,000. Drastic cuts had been made under the head of social expenditures, civil service and cabinet salaries.

GAVE ADDRESS ON "THE GREATER CONNECTICUT"

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard university, delivered an address on "The Greater Connecticut" in Woolsey hall, Yale university, today at the 84th annual fall meeting of the Connecticut State Teachers' association.

The general meeting in Woolsey hall was preceded by music by the combined bands of the New Haven and Commercial High schools. Mayor Thomas A. Tully gave an address of welcome.

An earthquake disturbance, describ-ed as the most severe noted in the past two months, was recorded yesterday on the Georgetown university seismograph, beginning at 3.30 p. m. and continuing for more than three hours. Officials estimated its center as about 7,000 miles from Washington.

The principal radio broadcasting systems of America, Great Britain and Japan will be employed Monday to distribute by air speeches by President Hoover, Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Hamaguchi of Japan in the ceremony of deposit of ratifications of the London naval treaty in London.

Cross Country Air Service Opens Today

Ten Multimotored Mail and Passenger Airplanes Will Be Used

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—At four widely separated airports ten multimotored mail and passenger airplanes will leave the ground almost simultaneously tomorrow morning in the inaugural flights of Trans-Continental and Western Air, Inc., the first passenger and mail service to connect New York and Los Angeles with all-air schedules.

Two of the airplanes, carrying Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general, Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, and Earl B. Wadsworth, superintendent of mail service, with other guests, will take off from Newark airport, Newark, N. J., the New York terminal, at 8 a. m.

Two will take off from Kansas City, one at 6:35 a. m., for New York, and one at 8:30 for Los Angeles. Two will take off from Amarillo, Texas, the first heading for New York at 7:57 and the second toward Los Angeles for the east, one at 5 o'clock and the second at 10. The other two planes will make round trips.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE STATE PRISON

HARTFORD, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, James T. Moran, of New Haven, and Judge Walter H. Clark, of Hartford, have been named a committee of three to investigate conditions at the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield, Gov. John H. Trumbull announced today. Mr. Cummings has been requested to serve as chairman of the committee, Governor Trumbull said.

"The door is wide open," said Governor Trumbull in announcing the appointment of the committee. "I have given no special instructions to the committee beyond requesting its members to make a thorough investigation of conditions at the prison, especially those which have been subject of complaints recently. The committee will plan its own procedure."

SCHOOL IN NEW BRITAIN WAS DAMAGED BY FIRE

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Fire of unknown origin tonight did serious damage to the Levi O. Smith school, a two-story brick structure.

The blaze was discovered by boys about 11 o'clock. When firemen arrived the entire interior of the rear wing was on fire. Dense clouds of smoke hampered the firemen, several of whom were overcome and later revived.

An hour later the fire was reported under control. No estimate of the damage could be obtained, but it is believed that it will amount to several thousands.

Against Th [illegible] ritish Polic [illegible] Palestine

All [illegible] Opposition Leaders Are Allied Against the MacDonald Government

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The MacDonald government tonight surveyed a scene in which all opposition leaders stood united against its proposals of British policy in Palestine.

With David Lloyd George, one-time premier of Great Britain, declaring in an address in Wales this afternoon that the British statement of policy in Palestine looked "far too much like a breach of national faith," the square of antagonism was completed.

Stanley Baldwin, conservative leader, with his lieutenants, Austen Chamberlain and Leopold Amery, previously had voiced critical protests against the statement and no leader of British Jewry had spoken a word for it.

Lord Melchett, a former cabinet minister and one of the strongest industrialists in the empire, had followed Dr. Chaim Weizmann's lead and resigned his post in the Jewish agency as a protest. Altogether, political observers said, it was not impossible that a political crisis might arise out of the situation.

COMMUNISTS SWARMING OVER THREE PROVINCES OF CHINA

SHANGHAI, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Missionaries arriving today from devastated areas said anti-American and anti-British red armies were swarming over three provinces of China, killing thousands of natives. They were reported robbing and burning foreign as well as Chinese property in a campaign against Christianity and capitalism, said to be inspired by Russian influences.

Many missionaries have fled and others, their missions destroyed, are held for millions of dollars ransom.

The south half of China, said the missionaries, was in danger of turning communistic unless the government sent at least 200,000 seasoned troops against bandits and communists.

Arriving from Kian with demands for $3,500,000 gold ransom for 14 missionaries held captive, Father De Jenlis, French, and Bishop Magniani, Italian, reported terrible conditions.

REPORTS EVERYTHING IN SPAIN GOING ON WELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Irwin Laughlin, United States minister to Spain, returning on the liner Berengaria tonight, said everything in Spain was "going along very well indeed."

He said he was surprised to receive American newspapers reporting strikes and disorders in Spain and said there was "no occasion for such exaggeration."

"There are strikes frequently in the United States," he said, "but that does not signify that they are any more than sporadic troubles, and so it is with Spain."

ENLISTMENTS INCREASING FOR WAR ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Colonel Woods is Receiving Encouraging Evidence of Cooperation From Governors, Mayors, Industrial Leaders and Welfare Organizations Throughout the Country—In Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Buffalo Men Are Being Called Back to Work—Charles M. Schwab Predicts a Greater Prosperity "Than America Has Ever Known Before"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.— (AP) — President Hoover considers it unnecessary to call a special session of congress for employment or any other subject.

The president's views became known at the same time that announcement was made that he had signed an executive order removing the restriction on the postoffice department which compelled it to draw from the civil service additional help for the Christmas holidays period.

This was done to permit the postoffice department to employ breadwinners of needy families irrespective of civil service status.

President Hoover said "No special session is necessary to deal with employment."

"The sense of voluntary organizations and community service in the American people has not vanished," he said. "The spirit of voluntary service has been strong enough to cope with the problems for the past year and it will, I am confident, continue in full measure of the needs.

"Colonel Woods is receiving most gratifying evidence of this from the governors, mayors, industrial leaders and welfare organizations throughout the country."

LEADING INDUSTRIALISTS PREDICT ERA OF PROSPERITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—The augury of a greater prosperity "than America has ever before known" was sounded today by Charles M. Schwab.

It was echoed by other outstanding industrialists; it was mirrored in the movement of stocks, and it found symptoms of support in developments themselves.

The federal government, through its director of unemployment relief, Col. Arthur Woods, pointed the way by which local governments might "go far toward relieving the expenditure of approximately $450,000,000 and the consequent employment of many thousands of persons can be started, he indicated, if voters approve bond issues up for decision at the November elections.

In Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Buffalo announcements were made of men being called back to work.

Chicago's plans, to provide both work and relief, began taking concrete shape.

A group of New York banks inaugurated a campaign to boost business recovery by discouraging what it called the "false economy" of persons not directly affected by general employment conditions.

In Wall street, the first anniversary of "Black Thursday" was marked by a strong and optimistic tone, contrasting sharply with that of a year ago. Active stocks finished the day two to five points higher.

Unfavorable financial news of the day included the announcement by Montgomery Ward and Co., of the omission of the regular dividend; but even this stock, sinking to a new low after the dividend omission announcement, made partial recovery before the market closed.

The Schwab statement was made before the American Iron and Steel Institute. Mr. Schwab regarded the "level-headed way in which business in general has weathered the current recession" as "most assuring."

James A. Farrell, president of United States Steel, expressed the sentiment that through cooperation the steel industry could "get back where it belongs" within 60 days.

Another industrialist who added a note of cheering prophecy was John J. Raskob, a director of General Motors, who said he believed the automobile industry had "touched bottom", and was slowly turning into normal channels.

"A sharp revival in the automobile industry may be expected to begin with the automobile shows in January," he said. Mr. Raskob also noted a pick up "in such basic lines as the textile and building industries.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urged the distribution as equally as possible of the work there is to be done. This same idea already is being employed in many cities, employers using a "stagger" system by which two men get three days work a week instead of one man getting six days.

KING BORIS AND PRINCESS GIOVANNA TO MARRY TODAY

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 24—(AP)—The beautiful hill towns of Umbria, from Spoleto to Assisi and Perugia, blazed tonight with tens of thousands of lights on the eve of the wedding of Princess Giovanna of Italy, and Boris, bachelor King of Bulgaria.

At a given signal an enormous broom of light swept across the country like the flame of a comet. Church bells pealed forth for fifteen minutes at command of the bishop of Assisi, and every townsman and thousands of visitors swarmed the streets. In the throng were some of the most important personages in several kingdoms of Europe.

For the first time a band played the Bulgarian national anthem in the public square.

Premier Mussolini arrived today and went to the Villa Venansi, belonging to the architect Carlo Venansi, whose wife formerly was Bertha Rockwell, of Kansas City, Mo.

Former Queen Sophia, of Greece, was the first royal guest to arrive. This afternoon she made a complete tour of the town, visiting the upper and lower churches of St. Francis.

All was in readiness tonight at the Villa Costanzi where 10 servants of the royal family awaited tomorrow's wedding breakfast.

All china, silver, linen to be used has been brought from San Rossore and other royal palaces. Twenty cooks were hard at work making last minute preparations.

RECOMMEND REMOVAL OF DETROIT POLICE OFFICIALS

DETROIT, Oct. 24—(AP)—Immediate removal of three high officials of the Detroit police department was recommended by the Wayne county grand jury today.

The officers cited are Robert A. MacPherson, deputy chief of detectives, whom Patrolman Adolph Van Coppenolle charged with plotting against Inspector Henry J. Garvin last winter; Inspector Norval Marlett, head of the blackhand squad, and Detective-Lieutenant Max Waldfogel, also of the blackhand squad.

Although the jury appended no explanation to its recommendation, the statement revived internal discord in the police department which followed the shooting of Inspector Garvin last winter.

REVOLT IN PENAL COLONY OFF THE COAST OF BRAZIL

FERNANDO NORONHA, Brazil, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Prisoners of the penal colony on this bleak island off the coast of Brazil revolted today against the authorities and the prison director.

Having insufficient force to quell the rebellion unaided, the director sent an urgent plea for help to Carlos Lima Cavalcanti, provisional governor of the state of Rio Grande Do Nortt.

FATALLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AN AUTOMOBILE

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Emil O. Engstrom, 45, was fatally injured here tonight, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Michael E. Milan, of 23 Lenox avenue, Brockton, Mass. Milan, who was held under $1,500 bonds pending an inquest, said that Engstrom became confused while crossing a street and stepped into the path of his machine.

COSTE AND BELLONTE WELCOMED AT HAVRE

HAVRE, France, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The French republic's great aviators, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, today came home to as great a reception as any of those they received in America when they repaid Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's 1927 visit to France.

The fliers landed from the liner France at 8 o'clock this morning, but "officially" they still were on board, awaiting this Norman seaport's civic welcome at 4 p. m.

When they came ashore in the early mists of morning, Coste quieted the reports from America which said the beautiful Mme. Mary Coste was not his wife.

As he embraced his wife he told newspapermen:

"This is your answer."

Coste and Bellonte were escorted to the city hall as 70,000 cheering Frenchmen lined the streets and the whistles of harbor craft shrieked. There the mayor, Leon Meyer, pinned on each a small medal denoting the freedom of the city and told them briefly, "We welcome you in the name of France; we welcome you as the greatest French ambassadors to foreign countries."

LINDBERGH COMPLETES HIS INSPECTION FLIGHT

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24—(AP)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Newark metropolitain airport at 5:20 p. m. today, completing a round trip inspection flight of the Newark-Columbus line in the new cross-country route of Trans- Continental Western Air, Inc His last hop was from Harrisburg, Pa

He covered the distance from Columbus in four hours and 15 minutes, attaining an average speed of 118 miles per hour. The stop at Harrisburg was made for fuel, but a scheduled stop at Camden, N. J., was omitted.

Lindbergh said he found that the route, over which the first plane will fly tomorrow, was "fine" and that he would not recommend any changes.

PAYMASTER SHOT DEAD BY ROBBERS IN SALEM, N. J.

SALEM, N. J., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Three robbers today shot and killed William J. MacCausland, 40, paymaster of the Salem Glass works, in an unsuccessful attempt to steal a payroll satchel containing about $2,000, which he was carrying.

MacCausland, a son-in-law of Francis D. Weaver, president of the New Jersey state board of taxation, was shot in the back as he was about to step into the glass plant and was pronounced dead when taken to a hospital by employes at the plant.

As he fell, he clutched beneath him the money satchel. The shooting attracted plant employes and the robbers fled in an automobile.

CHICAGO GANGSTER SHOT DEAD IN DESERTED SALOON

CHICAGO, Oct. 24—(AP)—The body of John Guida, reputed member of the "42" gang, was found behind the bar of a deserted West Side saloon today.

Guida, the second victim of underworld assassins in 24 hours, had been dead 12 hours.

A single pistol bullet through the head had ended Guida's life.

Police started search immediately for Joseph Liebrock, proprietor of the saloon. Their first theory was that Guida had paid with death for an extortion plot against the saloon.

SEVERAL CASES HEARD AT SHORT CALENDAR SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 24—A short calendar session of the Windham county superior court was held here today when several cases were taken up including one divorce action. The court also heard the case of Winkleman Brothers vs. Abraham Butleman. At the conclusion of the testimony in this case Attorneys Robert H. Fiske for the plaintiffs and Arthur T. Kelley for the defendant agreed to submit briefs to Judge Newell S. Jennings. The action is based on the purchase by Butleman in 1926 of 10 coats. In company with a professional buyer Mr. Butleman visited the Winkleman Brothers establishment in New York city. The coats were purchased for $385.

Butleman testified that the coats were selected from samples and on the arrival of the order in this city the fur was found to be unsatisfactory. The coats were returned but the plaintiffs refused to accept them. The plaintiffs set forth that the coats sent to this city were those selected by Butleman. Miss May Moriarty and Mrs. Jeanette A. Piche, sales women in the employe of the Butleman store testified to the inferior material in the coats.

During the forenoon short calendar the divorce action of Mrs. Lillian Bradley Delude was taken up, the woman receiving a decree on the grounds of desertion from Arthur F. Delude. She was also awarded the custody of their four-year-old child. The husband, notified at his home that the divorce case was being heard, stated that he did not wish to contest the suit.

In the case of Willis L. Baker et al vs. Richard J. Bowne et al, Attorney Ernest C. Morse of Putnam secured a judgment of $1,531.38 for the plaintiff.

A foreclosure judgment of $5,690.51 with the limitation as November 24, was ordered in the case of the Chelsea Savings bank of Norwich vs. Edna C. MacArthur et al.

The court denied a motion to open the default in the case of Wladyslaw Kozlowski vs. Peter and Tillie Blash. Attorney Irving S. Miron of Putnam subsequently withdrew a motion on behalf of the plaintiff for disclosure of defense or judgment.

Papers were taken in the case of the Boston Automotive company vs. Harry F. Prentice et als, the case being based on a promissory note with an alleged balance due of $689.50.

On motion of Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson for the plaintiff, the court ordered a continuance of three months in the divorce case of Jennie A. Allen vs. George H. Allen.

The court also granted a motion for a continuance of one month in the case of Mederise Murie vs. John B. Morin. Papers were taken in the following cases: Walter J. Lis by Lucas Lis, his father, vs. John F. Lewis; Fernand Durand, a minor, vs. R. Foster Reynolds; Gerard Bousquet, a minor, vs. R. Foster Reynolds; and Karl H. Kothe vs. Sadie Rosenthal.

A settlement was announced in the case of the General Equipment corporation vs. Maurice S. Leonard. A continuance for the purpose of further order of notice was granted in the case of Bernard W. Edwards vs. Alice Battey Edwards. The suit of Thelma Harris Balcolm vs. Arthur Leslie Balcolm went off the calendar for the present.

During a brief afternoon session the case of Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte, against whom contempt proceedings have been instituted by his former wife, Mrs. Ann Turcotte for failure to abide by the court order to pay alimony and allowance for the support of their child in full, was taken up. The physician paid $260, the amount representing what he was in arrears over a period of 13 weeks, the settlement eliminating the contempt proceedings. By previous order of the court Dr. Turcotte must pay alimony of $25 a week to his wife and $10 weekly for the support of the child. He has been paying at the rate of $15 a week for the past 13 weeks. Attorney Samuel B. Harvey presented a motion on behalf of Dr. Turcotte for a reduction in the alimony and allowance and the case was taken under advisement by Judge Jennings. There were no witnesses introduced.

Judge Jennings, in adjoining court announced that the next short calendar session would be held in this city November 3.

"Peggy" faithful airedale tonight accepted the same fate that befell its master, the late Daniel Killourey, in meeting with almost instantaneous death by being struck by an automobile. About eight months ago "Peggy" had to be dragged by force from the body of its master who was killed on the North Windham road. The dog has since been located several times at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery and given considerate care by Thomas J. Killourey, an uncle of the deceased. This evening the canine was killed while crossing Jackson street, opposite the store of James Simon. The dog is the most recent of a long list of deaths caused to humans and dogs on Jackson street where unreasonable speeding is the rule. It is expected by residents of the thoroughfare that the increasing list of accidents will momentarily bring about a curbing of speed and recklessness on Jackson street.

COLCHESTER

THIEF STOLE CIDER WHICH OWNER WOULD HAVE GIVEN HIM

Thieves broke into the cellar at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brodsky sometime between 11 and 12 o'clock Thursday night and carried off a fifty-gallon barrel of sweet cider. Nobody was at home during the night as Mr. Brodsky is visiting in New York and Mrs. Brodsky spent the night at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr and Mrs. Louis Lefkowitz on Main street. Nothing else in the house was disturbed by the marauders. Mrs. Brodsky last week sold fifty bushels of potatoes which had been in storage in the cellar and these had been removed by the purchaser only a few days ago. A large German police dog was on duty in the dooryard and in view of this fact Mrs. Brodsky is of the opinion that the cider was stolen by somebody acquainted with the dog and who must have known that the family was not at home. Mrs. Brodsky says she is sorry the thieves went to such trouble in stealing the golden nectar as she would have gladly given anyone a liberal supply of the cider. No complaint of the theft has been made to the authorities. The theft occurred at what is known as the former Scholes farm house, a short distance south of the village.

The following questions will be answered from the pulpit: "Are there any towns in this country that get on without any Church?" "Did not ministers use spirituous liquors freely in years gone by?" "Can you blame a man for stealing food when his children are starving?" "Who is Bruce Barton and Why is he an authority in Religion?" "Why is Sunday called the first day of the week when the Bible calls it the seventh?" "What is the difference between an atheist and an agnostic?"

Sunday evening November 2nd, members of the noted Yinger family will appear here at the Methodist church, from Boston University, and will present a delightful program of music and story. The members of a remarkable family, children of a Methodist parsonage in the Michigan conference, talented to an unusual degree, they have been carefully trained by their father who has had the pleasure of seeing them go throughout every state in the Union carrying cheer in song and story to thousands. They are happy young folks with cheer and good-will in their hearts and voices and theirs is a message of music and inspiration.

POETRY

A Song Of Duty

Sorrow comes and sorrow goes,
Life is flecked with shine and shower;
Now the tear of grieving flows,
Now we smile in happy hour;
Death awaits us, every one—
Toiler, dreamer, teacher, writer—
Let us then, ere life be done,
Make the world a little brighter!

Burdens that our neighbors bear
Easier let us try to make them;
Chains, perhaps, our neighbors wear,
Let us do our best to break them.
From the straitened brain and mind
Let us loose the binding fetter,
Let us, as the Lord designed,
Make the world a little brighter!

Selfish brooding sears the soul,
Makes the heart a nest of sorrow;
Darkening the shining goal,
Of the sun-illumined morrows;
Wherefore should our lives be spent
Daily growing blind and blinder?
Let us, as the Master meant,
Make the world a little brighter!

—Denis A. McCarthy, in Good Counsel Magazine.

The Answer

I asked of Fate,
"Why should I strive
Long hours and late
To keep alive?
Why should I give
My time and strength
Only to live—
And die at length!
Why should I fight,
Work, struggle, pray,
To keep the night
Further away?
Pain governs life,
Death is a rest;
Why all this strife
When sleep is best?"
Fame answered me
And shamed my mood:
"These questions be
Unlearned and crude.
Let us not shirk
The issue. Slave!
Why do you work
To dodge the grave?
The answer's not
A task immense—
Because you've got
No better sense."
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DANIELSON

OFFICERS OF AMERICAN LEGION AUX. INSTALLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 24.—Newly installed officers of the local American Legion auxiliary are: President, Edna B. Simmoneau; first vice-president, Sarah B. Taylor; second vice-president, Harriet Wood; secretary, Katherine K. Bard; treasurer, Esther Marrotte; chaplain, Lillian Beeney; sergeant-at-arms, Florence Wood; historian, Blanche Giguere; executive committee, Beatrice B. Beckett, Helen S. Dowe, Mary Casey; color bearer, Beatrice Beckett; emblem bearer, Rose Simmoneau; color guards, Rita Gaudreau, Madeline O'Brien.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing, in reference to the membership drive of the Windham County Farmers' association, points out that the life of the association is dependent upon the farmers of the county. During the past few years, the membership has gradually increased, as follows: 1927, 208; 1928, 229; 1929, 267; 1930, to date, 273.

The members of the association have available the services of the county agent, the county club agent and the home demonstration agent, all of whom are working with the association. In addition association news is supplied to members monthly, including timely articles by specialists from the Connecticut Agricultural college. Market news is sent out weekly, with prices of agricultural products. In addition, members also receive help on all extension projects which are worked on in co-operation with the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

The influence of the association in improving the agriculture of the county readily can be seen. Approximately 2,000 practices were improved in Windham county during 1929, through literature, meetings and other contacts of the association and its members. The Boston grade "A" market milk, and the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers, Inc., are successful marketing projects sponsored by the association.

On Saturday, Oct. 25, the assessors of Killingly will be at their office in the town hall building from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., to receive lists of taxable property.—adv.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Lucy Poirier

A death at Wauregan today was that of Mrs. Lucy Poirier, 74, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Cusson. Until about a year ago, Mrs. Poirier was a resident of Taftville, where her husband, Peter Poirier, died in November of 1929. She was a native of Canada, but had lived in the United States for many years. In addition to Mrs. Cusson, Mrs. Porier leaves the following additional children: Mrs. Laua Prive, Danielson; Mrs. Lillian Charron, Taftville; Walter, Sheffield, Vt.; Mrs Rose Dion, Hardwick, Vt.; Edward, resident in Canada, and William, of Danielson.

Must sell at sacrifice before Oct. 27, upright player piano, bench and 30 records.—adv.

Persons who neither speak nor read English have a fine opportunity, without expense to themselves, to learn how at the evening school opening Monday at the high school building. Those who know but a little of English likewise have the chance to learn more about the language. Given a sufficient number of attendants and this school will be in session 75 nights between now and spring.

Where they are necessary, the new type cable fences will be erected along the approximately three miles of concrete highway built the past season between Danielson and Wauregan. These fences have the endorsement of the majority of motorists, for when a car accidentally strikes one of them the danger of injury is not near so great as with the old style all-wooden fences.

Members of St. Alban's parish are to have their annual Halloween social next Monday evening. The excellent program has been arranged by the Girls' Friendly society of the church, assisted by the members of the Ladies' Sewing society and the Sunday school. Numbers are expected to appear at the affair in masquerade.

At a meeting of the Entre Nous club this afternoon, with Mrs. Lucien Lambert, the winners at bridge were Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mrs. Earl Wood of Cottage street and Mrs. Rene Buteau.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Louise Hopkins

Mrs. Louise Hopkins, 75, died today at the home of her brother, Percy Hammond, of Stearns street. Mrs. Hopkins was born in Albion, R. I., March 8, 1855, a daughter of Henry W. and Sarah Marble Hammond. For the past 40 years she had been a resident of Putnam, where burial is to take place.

Killingly's democrats are doing things up in style in the current political campaign. They have headquarters in what has been a small vacant store on Main street and will direct operations from there until after the election of Nov. 4. Daily campaigning is being done by their organization workers throughout the town, with much personal solicitation for votes.

If the parade of expensive cars and gorgeous furs, New Haven bound, that could be seen here this afternoon means anything, there's going to be a swapky gathering in the Yale bowl Saturday afternoon. The movement this afternoon was of the advance guard. The real rush of traffic through here is not looked for until Saturday morning. From many Massachusetts points and from Providence the route through Danielson is the popular one to New Haven.

Rene Pelequin, one of Danielson's boxers that battle professionally, left this afternoon for Worcester, scheduled to meet Eddie Forest of New Bedford in the six-round semi-final of a card of bouts tonight. Rene will be making his first ring appearance for a considerable time, but he has kept in training and is in good condition.

It is announced that members of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, are planning a parade and formal exercises at Davis park in observance of Armistice day. There is the possibility also that a band concert will be given on the park.

Secretary L. Edwin Hill of the Windham County Y. M. C. A., has announced that the fall meeting of the Camp Woodstock trustees will be held in Willimantic Monday. A full report of the year's camping activities will be presented, with recommendations to be considered at the annual meeting.

GATES-FOURNIER BATTLE FOR HIGH SHERIFF LOOMS IN WINDHAM COUNTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 24.—What is shaping into the outstanding contest of the coming state election, insofar as Windham county is concerned, is the one between Charles A. Gates of Willimantic and Napoleon J. Fournier of Moosup, for sheriff. With the election only a little more than a week away, the republicans are fully aware that they have a fight on their hands to re-elect Mr. Gates to the office he has filled so long and with such thorough-going satisfaction to the people of the county at large.

The democrats make no secret of the fact that they feel they have the best chance in many years to elect a high sheriff in this county, and believe that in Mr. Fournier they have a very strong candidate. Certain trends toward the democratic party as shown in certain parts of Windham county in recent town elections have bolstered the hopes of the democrats that they can make equally as good a showing in the state election.

Sensing the situation, republican leaders throughout the county will do their utmost within the next ten days to roll up the largest possible vote for Mr. Gates. This means that a real effort is to be made to get as close as possible to the full party strength at the polls on election day. If they succeed in doing that, responsible party members say, Mr. Gates will win. If there is any laxity in campaigning in his behalf, there may be doubt about the result, these leaders are inclined to believe.

The Gates-Fournier battle is much more in the limelight in this part of Windham county than any other feature of the present campaign.

PUTNAM

NO NEW CASES OF SCARLET FEVER FOUND AT SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct 24—Continued investigation by school health authorities of general health conditions of students in local schools has failed to reveal further symptoms of communicable disease. The examination of pupils was prompted by the recent discovery of a case of scarlet fever at the Israel Putnam school. Since the affected child was dismissed and placed under observation of a physician, the first three grades of the primary department at I. P. S. have been closed and close observation of students in other classes likely to have been exposed to the disease, has been maintained by Dr. Florence F. Dean, school physician and Miss Lillian Morrison, R. N. school nurse. Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin said today that the primary department quarantine would be lifted Monday with the resumption of classes.

Deputy Chief John C. Templeman of the Webster police department while in this city today said that a popular detective story magazine in its November edition will carry a detailed account of the Trudeau murder case, which developed in Webster on the morning of February 22, with the finding of the strangled and brutally beaten body of Mrs. Celia Manski Trudeau, 26-year-old wife of Leon A. Trudeau, 28, of Webster, now serving a life sentence for the alleged murder. The crime because of its extreme brutalness shocked the people of Webster, Putnam and neighboring communities where the principles in the case were widely known.

JEWETT CITY

HOW THE PRIZES WENT AT HALLOWEEN PARTY

The Happy-Go-Lucky club gave the first Halloween party of the season in the Congregational vestry Thursday evening. More than seventy-five attended, nearly all in costume and masked. The music for the grand march was played by Mrs. Earl H. Robinson on the violin, May Vallin, piano, and Earl Robinson, saxaphone. The judges were Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Rev. G. F. Goodenough, who were in costume. The matter of selecting the prize winners was very difficult. The best costume for the little ones was a tie between Shirley Peterson and Ruth Mae Benjamin, and the funniest, between Ralph and David Goodenough. On drawing cuts, Ruth Mae and Ralph won. Of the older children, Marian Wilbur took the prize for the prettiest and Evelyn Hereault, for the funniest costume. Ducking for apples, initiations, pumpkin grabs and games of various kinds kept the fun at the highest pitch. Refreshments were served during the evening. The platform and room were arranged with all varieties of Halloween novelties. Lucille Tomlinson and Eunice Webster were the decorating committee, assisted by Margery Webster. Leah Gill, Eva Shorey, Virginia Goodenough and Olga Zegeer were in charge of the refreshments.

HAD FAITH IN TRAMPS AND MOTHER NOT DECEIVED

One of the older housewives in the borough was wondering Friday, with all the great army of unemployed, what has become of the Weary Willie type that every fall, as winter approached, used to be locally so common. These knights of the road, always found pretty good picking here, and often in response to a knock at the door, would get a hand out fit for a king. One man recalls the way his mother was accustomed to invite these hungry wanderers to "come right in and sit down to the table, like folks." Then she would pile a plate full and make steaming hot coffee. Advised against such practices, she was told that any of the nomads would steal anything they could get their hands on. "Mother never believed it!" he said. One day, an unusually unkempt tramp knocked at the door. The good woman saw him and before opening the door, she placed her little gold watch and chain together with several pieces of silver on one side of the table, which was not yet cleared from breakfast. The visitor was invited in as usual, given a seat and told to help himself, lock the door when he went away, as she was going to market. "Mother's faith was sound," the narrator recalled, "for she returned to find things as she had left them with a note, scribbled on a part of a soiled envelope," which read, "Not down to that yet, mother!" The knights of the road used to have a system of hieroglyphics, by which they marked on the gate posts; that told the prospects to others of the fraternity that followed next day. Griswold once maintained a tramp house which was loaded every night. The selectmen finally devised a scheme which soon seemed to herd off the would-be lodgers. Instead of the tramp house accommodations in the village, the town officials gave each applicant for a "put up" a ticket, good for a night's lodging at the town farm, which was then, and is now, three miles from Jewett City.

UP TO THE AUTO DRIVERS

When there are highway accidents, cars are smashed and the occupants of them are injured, we shudder at the distressing things that happen to humanity, and in so many cases happen needlessly, but we think less of certain other things which are made necessary because of those accidents.

We invariably read about those involved being taken to hospitals for treatment. It may be a matter of bandaging them up, looking them over and sending them home. It may be a case of an immediate operation. It may mean broken bones to be set. It may mean the beginning of a long stay in the institution. In any case, even though it involves no more than the calling of a doctor to the scene of the accident, it involves professional services and other smaller or larger expense.

Thought may not be given to it, but there is a growing problem involved in regard to such expenses. The more accidents there are, the greater the expense they are certain to cause. It might be thought that the individuals concerned or their accident insurance would stand such expenses, but a nation-wide survey concerning this matter reveals that in 44 per cent of such cases the hospitals receive nothing. What this means with something like a quarter of a million highway accident cases can be easily understood. The survey shows that hospital maintenance costs for highway accident victims was greater than $15,000,000 and the failure to get payment in 44 per cent of the cases left the hospitals over $6,000,000 to worry about.

There are certain times when appeals are made for hospital funds for definite or general purposes and in the opinion of the Bridgeport Post such a situation as prevails regarding this phase of hospital expense shows "it is a community problem and must be regarded as such." The Post points out that there are those who cannot pay and treatment will not be denied them for that reason, but there are "dead beats" and those who receive compensation from insurance companies and skip their hospital bills. All this means that not only are 44 per cent of those involved in highway accidents dodging their hospital bills but there is probably a larger proportion of them who are contributing heavily to the daily highway dangers. There is thus a pressing need for a marked decrease in both highway accidents and the unpaid hospital bills. It rests with the auto drivers. Safer driving would reduce the accidents.

BRAZIL'S REVOLT

By the developments in Brazil another South American republic, the largest on that continent, has given way under revolutionary attacks. The seriousness of the situation in that country has been indicated by the manner in which the revolt has spread from state to state and the difficulties encountered by the government in defending itself.

With civil war underway and Brazilians wiping out Brazilians, there was faced a deplorable effect upon the country if long continued. It was a case of how long it could be maintained and how long the people of that country would fight against their fellow countrymen over the issues at stake.

The time came when those backing the government recognized the devastating effects of the fight and considered that peace under a reorganization was preferable. This involved the weakening of the support the government had been relying upon, the defection of backing that could not be overcome and a revelation of the handwriting on the wall. It was a case where greater consideration was given to peace than to the principle for which the fighting was being conducted, and there was apparently confidence aplenty that an understanding could be reached with the revolutionary leaders for a new government that would be satisfactory to the combined factions which would represent control.

This sudden turn of affairs indicates that the military and navy officials who aided in the overthrow recognized the inevitable outcome. It displayed the weakness of the head of the government and the strength of the insurgents in spite of the position that had been taken by this government concerning the sale of arms and ammunition to the forces in Brazil.

The United States had no concern in the civil war other than to indicate its unwillingness to permit munitions to go to those endeavoring to overthrow a friendly government. The attitude would have been the same with any country under similar conditions. This government was following international law and a policy long since established. In fact, the only policy that could be expected under the circumstances. This country has not endeavored to say which side was wrong in the civil war in Brazil. Its action shows that it was not trying to break down a government but to stand back of one that was constitutionally established and conducted and that was complying with international law, and it is reasonable to believe that it will take the same attitude toward any properly constituted government which has the sanction of the Brazilian people.

The move that has been made in Brazil for peace and a reestablishment of orderly government in place of destructive warfare will not fail to be recognized as an important solution of the problem. Indications point to the fact that it represents Brazilian sentiment.

STICKERS

Because this state has a law which prohibits the placing of stickers either on the windshield or on the rear windows of automobiles, there is no way provided for the placing stickers on a car window which will indicate that the machine has been inspected and approved.

The Connecticut regulation is in direct contrast to action in other states and small square stickers indicating the car has been tested and approved are frequently seen on machines from other states. They can be recognized at a distance and officials are not inclined to stop them and subject them to further inspection and delay.

Connecticut was not disposed to impose inconvenience upon its motorists in legislation against stickers. It was concerned with increased safety and recognized that obstructions placed on the front and rear windows of a machine made it more difficult for the driver to see what was before him or what was at his rear. When the law was adopted it was the practice to use the windows for advertising purposes and to almost cover them with various kinds of notices and pictures. Stickers concerning inspection had not been thought of at that time.

Whether conditions require a modification of the law to permit a sticker in one corner of the front or rear window has been brought to the attention of the motor vehicle commissioner. It is probably of less importance to have the stickers so displayed than it is to keep the vision of the driver clear by the prohibition of stickers. If, however, the time comes when stickers are considered necessary, and the placing of one on a side window isn't sufficient, it will be necessary to fix a limit to the size of them and probably determine the place to stick them.

ONE-WAY WATER TRAFFIC

What must be regarded as a move for safer navigation is the effort that is being made to have a two-lane system for water traffic along the Massachusetts coast for steamships.

The need of it was demonstrated when two steamships going in opposite directions in a single lane collided with disastrous results. The study that is being given to the proposed change by steamship owners, through their committees, indicates that there is some objection to the idea, although such reports as the committee made at their meeting this week indicated support. Nevertheless, there were presented what were considered to be objections. This indicates that both sides of the matter are being given consideration, which is only what should be expected, but when it comes to the matter of insuring greater safety there should be none more interested than the steamship companies. It is safety rather than unsafe navigating conditions which means more business and confidence for them.

Holding to the lanes under all conditions of wind and wave should offer no insurmountable difficulty, certainly not enough to raise a sufficient objection to keeping ships going in opposite directions far enough apart to insure safety. In time of clear weather there would be less importance in actually sticking to a lane, but in time of fog it is one means of avoiding a crash. Under conditions where visibility is extremely bad, almost impossible, the idea of keeping vessels in two lanes, rather than one, seems most sensible and desirable. It seems as desirable on water as it does in establishing one-way streets for motor traffic, though fog isn't the reason for the latter.

SHOWING THE CONSTITUTION

Much sentiment has been aroused throughout the country in behalf of Old Ironsides. The country has contributed liberally for the reconstruction of this old frigate which has such a glorious history.

There hasn't been such a great interest in the craft in recent years. It has had its visitors, but not by the thousands. Having been rebuilt, there has been awakened a greater interest in it. There are sections which have not been privileged to see it which are anxious for a visit from the ship. It is a natural feeling. The same view was taken in regard to the Liberty bell and it has made several trips with more or less question as to whether it was advisable to take the chances involved.

In arranging for the fair which is to be held in Chicago three years hence an effort is being made to have the Constitution sent there as one of the attractions. If it were no more than an ordinary warship there would probably be no question. The Constitution is more than that. It is a historic relic which cannot be replaced. It is necessary to take care of it in order to preserve it. If there can be definite assurances that nothing will befall it, consent to such a trip might be made. Whether such can be given is a question which will require study. No one would like to give the people of the middle west and other parts of the country a chance to see it than those who are charged with its care, but even those who are desirous of getting a glimpse of it would prefer to forego a personal inspection to having it meet with disaster.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The earthquake in Louisiana may indicate that the state is just recovering from the shock of Huey Long's nomination.

The man on the corner says: It is demonstrated from time to time that a person doesn't have to be an aviator to be a high flier.

With war being predicted in Europe that will involve three countries that may explain why there is talk about inability to pay the debts of the last war.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If one is seeking to find a vivid contrast between the spread of knowledge in the middle ages and what it is in our age he has only to contrast what happened in Santo Domingo recently with what took place in that region in the 15th century. A little more than four centuries ago Columbus put that section of territory upon the map of the world. Yet in those days the great mass of people in Spain, Italy, France and even England, we are told, knew nothing of Columbus and his great discoveries. This was due chiefly to their ignorance and poverty. We can easily believe this when we consider how slow navigation was in those days, and how meagre were the means of disseminating knowledge. The old sailing vessel was the only means of making knowledge known between widely separated portions of the earth. To this must be added the ignorant disbelief that there was a vast continent in the great west: that if one kept up sailing long enough in a westerly direction he would come to port in China.

What an amazing change in these four centuries! Recently an awful gale struck this territory which the genius of Columbus had put upon the map of the world. Immediately all the wonderful devices of modern times for the rapid spread of news were put into action. The awful hurricane had not wholly abated when they were reading accounts of it in all parts of the United States. Far more than this in importance, the pathway of the storm and its velocity were so accurately marked out that other islands in the vicinity were duly warned of the impending danger. This in itself is most amazing, but vastly more amazing was the humanitarian instinct that it aroused everywhere. Scarcely had the terrible gale abated before the Red Cross was sending supplies and putting into the stricken area all necessary aid. How the world has moved since Columbus' day!

It is not easy to understand why there ever should have been any reluctance in investigating new ideas. It is not so hard to understand why there should have been hesitation in accepting them without careful examination. In some cases, no doubt, there was fear that the ideas suggested might, if accepted, shatter some pet theories that were very dear. We love our idols whether they can stand an acid test or not. It touches our pride, and possibly our hearts, to see them shattered. We fight for their existence oftentimes because they have existed in the family for generations. We do not like to bury what dear old grandmother did so much to keep alive. If some of our ancestors were worth their salt we do not want to cast aside the inheritance. Our family pride will not allow us to let any "new-fangled things" tear them down from the thrones where they have reigned supreme for generations.

A practical and pertinent illustration of this fact was found in the slavery question during the Civil war back in the early 60's, right here in America. It is hard for those born since that terrible strife to understand the facts involved. There is no doubt as to the real attitude of the younger generation of the south toward this institution. They saw the moral fungus growing all over a system which was the legacy of ignorance and tyranny. They saw the emphasis it put on poverty, illiteracy and physical and spiritual degeneracy. And yet the slaveholder created a social cast; he was usually a man of wealth, education and high standing in the affairs of church and state. In many cases it was a distinguished mark of heredity. For several generations there had been slave holding in the family and they were looked upon as superior to the rank and file. It was hard to break such shackles.

And yet in time the natural growth of humanitarian ideas that sprang up in the pathway of expanding democracy was more than a match for the institution of slavery. The slaves, of course, were an organic part of human society, and where aristocracy dominated the situation slavery could more easily exist without very strong opposition. But where the spirit of democracy is uppermost, and the people rule themselves through representation, and where equal rights are respected, slavery cannot exist without opposition, and hence its bed is a thorny one. Sooner or later the institution of slavery was bound to be rooted out of our American soil. Slavery must always be a misfit in those countries where the governing body is the people themselves. One thing is quite noticeable, and that is how America leaped forward in every avenue of strength as soon as this curse was removed.

When the time arrives for the modern historian to draw a parallel between the religious activities of the present and what they were earlier in our history the conclusion will probably meet with wide differences of opinion. It is the trend of the American temperament to hustle. It seems to be obsessed with the idea of quantity production. The main idea seems to be how much can we turn out before a certain date; a fact that seems to apply to everything the market demands, all the way from raising cabbages to the annual output of young ministers. Please do not understand me as comparing young ministers, or older ones either, with cabbages. It is simply a random shot at an illustration. Of course the farmer is going to market all he can. The schools rejoice when all of their dormitories are filled with students. Is there not a danger of putting too much emphasis on quantity and not enough on quality?

We are perfectly justified in drawing a contrast between the present and the past along any line of human activity. And as we do this impartially we shall find that every human excellency is not to be found in any single age. The strong and the weak are found in whatever fallible man undertakes to do. The early Puritan stressed the importance of quiet meditation and prayer; he put perhaps an exaggerated importance upon the dogmas of man-made theology, past and present; he urged retirement from the so called vanities of social life, not because all were necessarily sinful, but because they kept devout spirits from a fuller realization of spiritual realities. Much time was given to spiritual meditation, and as little as was necessary to worldly things. But we must keep in mind that the early settlers of this country fitted into the needs of the age so well as to be the progenitors of a race of men never surpassed.

When this feature of the religious life is compared with the vast array of activities that the modern church indulges in, the question arises if we are not swinging too far in the opposite direction? Is it not better to strike a golden mean? It is neither the recluse nor the jumping jack who gets there. Look at the calendar of some of our churches and mark the number of meetings on Sunday and throughout the remaining days of the week! All of them are worthy objects, but many of them are of a purely secular nature. The Christian church is not called upon to father every possible secular activity however worthy. Trying to do so much as many churches do has a tendency to make some of these activities weak in spots. In this way lasting impressions cannot be made. Are we not morally bound "To Take Time to be Holy?"

BULLETIN FILES REVEAL 130 CENTENARIANS IN THIS SECTION SINCE 1862

Mrs. Catherine Johnson, who celebrated her 101st birthday at Abington yesterday, is the 130th centenarian, born or living in this section, to be mentioned in The Bulletin since 1862. In the subjoined list, if no comment follows the mention of a name, it is to be understood that the item merely noted that the person designated was at least 100 years old on the date given. If no other place is specified, the subject of the item lived at Norwich. If the place specified is outside eastern Connecticut or Rhode Island, the subject was a former inhabitant of this section.

The list follows:

YOUR HEALTH

Avoiding Tooth Decay By Prophylaxis

By J. C. Bryant, D. D. S., Minneapolis
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The dentist with his best attention and most skillful efforts often cannot prevent the loss of your teeth unless you assist him by observing the proper rules for the care of the teeth. A tooth is no better than the tissue which supports it. The gums must be kept healthy or a perfectly sound tooth will be lost because of pyorrhea. There has long been a mistaken idea that the gums will recede if they are brushed. Incorrect brushing will in time injure the teeth and gums. The gums themselves are greatly benefited by massage with the tooth brush or with the fingers. If the brush is employed for this purpose it can be used alone or with a tooth paste. The brush should be used with a kind of circular motion whereby the brush approaches the gum-margin from the gum edge and not from the biting edges of the teeth. When the gums and teeth are brushed this way, gum recession is prevented. The mechanical action of brushing back the gums as one pushes back the cuticle around the finger nails causes the gums to recede. When the gums recede the roots of the teeth are exposed; and because they lack an enamel covering they readily decay.

When the finger is used to massage the gums, the ball of the index finger should be used against the gum, and of course the hands should be as clean as possible. Gentle massage with the finger tips proves a great help in inflammatory conditions of the gums such as gingivitus and early pyorrhea.

A person should have at least two tooth brushes. The bristles of these brushes should be stiff enough to offer firm resistance to pressure against the teeth. These brushes should be quite small in size in order to get around into the small corners and crevices of the mouth. Most people use a brush that is much larger than necessary to effectively clean the teeth. Two brushes are advocated because many times a brush will not thoroughly dry out between the times of its use and if we are using two it is possible to alternate in their use.

Dry your brushes when possible by exposure to the sunlight. It is always well to view your efforts at cleaning your teeth in a wall mirror. It acts as a guide in manipulation as well as making it possible for you to observe the results of your efforts. The dentifrice or tooth paste used should be one that will efficiently cut and dissolve the thin film of fatty material, that accumulates after each meal. It is this fatty film which attracts the starchy and carboyhdrate food materials, the latter being the most detrimental to the decay of the teeth.

You should always realize that no matter how good your dentifrice is advertised to be, it is useless unless you use it by thoroughly scouring the teeth at least twice a day. We should make it a point to spend at least three minutes at each session of brushing the teeth, after breakfast and before retiring. It is of course, advocated that the teeth be brushed after the midday meals and this is possible to a great number of people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Remember, The "Elector's Oath."

Mr. Editor: The timely appeal of Senator Walcott to the citizens of Connecticut that each elector shall realize the obligation to go to the polls on election day, November 4, and register his judgment as to men and measures, brings to mind that priceless civic treasure of Connecticut, so often overlooked or even forgotten, namely, the "elector's oath." It may be found in the chapter on "oaths" in the general statutes of Connecticut. Each and every citizen who has been made a voter has given this solemn pledge:

"You solemnly swear that you will be true and faithful to the state of Connecticut, and the constitution and government thereof as a free and independent state, and to the constitution of the United States; and whenever you shall be called to give your vote of suffrage touching any matter that concerns this state or the United States, you will give it as you shall judge will conduce to the best good of the same, without respect of persons or favor of any man, so help you God."

This solemn pledge is to God and to state and country, and each elector has promised that "whenever called" to vote, "you will give it." Tere is here no justification for the "stay-at-home"! The elector who fails to vote ignores his pledge of effective citizenship.

With all due respect to the honorable junior senator from Connecticut, whom I esteem highly, it does seem that his fine words ignore the real issues at stake. He is non-committal on "repeal" which both political patries, through their leading candidates, are clamoring for. He ignores the "one man" domination of this state, which is the bulwark of "liquor and monopoly" and has been for years, with not a word from the "one man" against such corrupt and degrading domination. The situation is indeed perplexing, when so fine a man as Senator Walcott evades the real issues and gives only eloquence!

Note the peculiar significance of the "elector's oath," just at this time, promising to vote "as you shall judge will conduce to the best good of the same, without respect of persons or favor of any man." The real issue is—Shall Connecticut continue to obey her dictator for the advantage of himself and his henchmen and the favored few, or will the people reassert their own control of government for "the general welfare?"

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—A persistent rumor than Senator Hi. Johnson of California might resign before expiration of his present term in 1935 grew out of announcement that he had rejoined his old law firm in San Francisco.

Rejoining was about the first thing he did on his return to California at the end of the senate session.

In his absence from Washington, nothing very definite as to his plans was available; but the rumor persisted.

Important

If it is true that Johnson is preparing to quit, just when he does so is mighty important to California politicians. The selection of his successor is said by informed golden staters to hinge on that little detail.

For Jim Rolph, republican nominee for governor and perennial mayor of San Francisco, Johnson's home town, is credited with ideas of his own about that possible senate vacancy.

One California veteran told the Bystander that if Johnson held on long enough for the anticipated election of Rolph and his inauguration in January, Rolph himself would come to the senate, resigning as governor for the purpose.

If Johnson should resign before the first of the year while Governor Young still held office, this observer declared, Representative Phil Swing would be the next California senator.

"And Rolph would achieve new distinction in the senate," he added.

"How do you mean?"

"He's the greatest back slapper in the country, maybe in the world. He's better at it than Jim Watson."

Rolph was elected to his first term as mayor of San Francisco on the eve of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in that city in 1915.

"And Jim Rolph has been greeting visiting firemen ever since," added the California cynic. "He would make a grand national president for an association of hotel greeters, chaps like this son-in-law of Jim Couzens."

Storm Warning

However all that may be, the fact seems to stand out that to political observers from that state Rolph's election as governor would mean elimination not only of Governor Young's men from the state political set up; but also the vanishing of the last of the Johnsonites.

That would make re-election in 1934 a difficult matter for Senator Hi., they contend; so they are prompt to construe his re-establishment of his legal connections at home as paving the way for resignation from the senate.

Incidentally, Representative Swing's case is one of those which show how being "in" helps a man stay in congress.

He came up first to the 67th congress, by a majority of 37,281, as he proudly states. In the 68th he repeated by 71,578 votes, and did it again in the 69th but by 93,779 votes.

By that time his opposition was dead. He was renominated and reelected to the 70th and 71st "without opposition."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Fidelity

Some men give place to the Devil instead of fortifying themselves against him and resisting his assaults they invite his advances, make room for his entrance and entertain him cheerfully. But they know not what they do. They are not aware that they are preparing for themselves a terrible future. They do not believe that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall be also reap."

Our Saviour is our model in everything. If we study His life, we shall learn how to meet the adversary. He was fortified against the Devil by inward purity. He said, "The prince of this world cometh and hath nothing in me." If we have Christ's spirit dwelling in our heart and give Him first place in our hearts the fiery darts of the evil one can never penetrate.

Another means by which Satan may be successfully resisted is constant activity in the service of God. The idle soul falls into the snares of the Devid. One who is busy in selfish pursuits is no better off than the idler, but the Christian whose time is all taken up in doing the Master's work is not an easy mark for the efforts of the Devil. The fiery darts of Satan shall not harm him. When the enemies of Nehemiah suggested to him that he should come down and engage in a parley about the best method of procedure for the good of all parties, his reply was, "I am doing a great work; I cannot come down." So may every busy man answer the solicidations of evil. It is a good thing to be so busy in the Lord's service that we have no time to parley with evil. "Watch and pray," said Jesus to His disciples, "that ye enter not into temptation." It is not enough to be fortified by self-confidence. Our strength each day must be sought from above. Satan will use every means to destroy our souls. His diligences is wonderful. As the sentinel watches for the approach of the enemy, and does not give way to slumber for a moment, so must we watch against the prince of this world. One unguarded moment may cause our ruin, and when we have done all we realize, our helplessness. Pray as well as watch, pray without ceasing. We know if we do our part our Saviour will never fail to do His and what peace is ours after doing our very best even though it does not measure up, we know He will give us strength sufficient for every task. We know that if we at all times have true fidelity our lives, as Christians, will be from victory to victory.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Curtis 1,000 Inc., Hartford.

About 50 years ago—in 1880, to be exact—a small printing business was started at St. Paul, Minn., by Henry R. Curtis.

The business prospered and in 1886 it seemed desirable to place it on a more workable and permanent basis, so it was incorporated as the Curtis Printing company.

After it was incorporated, the business continued to grow and soon became a prominent factor in the printing, office, and bank supply business in the northwestern states.

During all these years in the printing business it was natural that the company should print a large volume of envelopes of various kinds. From this part of their experience it was quite apparent to Mr. Curtis that there was not available at that time a satisfactory envelope for heavy and important mailings. Working from that thought, he originated Curtis fibre envelopes in 1911 and started specializing on envelope business.

Curtis fibre envelopes quickly became very popular with banks and other businesses in the northwest so it was decided that the company's business on that particular product should be extended to the entire United States. This was done in 1915 and the first effort along that line was though the medium of direct-by-mail advertising. This advertising soon built up a demand for Curtis fibre envelopes which indicated the advisability of placing salesmen in various large cities and both of these methods of distribution are still being employed, the company now having one of the outstanding large sales organizations of the country.

In 1912, Henry Curtis, son of Henry R. Curtis, the founder of the business, joined the organization and due to his father's illness was soon forced to take over the active management of the business. The long experience and conservatism of the father combined with the aggressiveness and enthusiasm of the son soon proved to be the necessary combination for a rapid and healthy growth.

In 1922 the envelope business of the company in the eastern part of the country had developed to such an extent that a plant was opened in Hartford, to better serve eastern customers.

In 1925 another plant was established at Kansas City to supply envelopes more quickly and efficiently to the southwestern territory. In February 1929 it became necessary to establish another plant at Cleveland, O., to better serve the central industrial section of the country. Sales offices have been maintained in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and many other large cities of the country for a number of years.

The senior Mr. Curtis died in March 1927 at which time Henry Curtis became president and still continues in that capacity.

During the past two years, the general management and general sales management of the company has been transferred to Hartford, the president, vice president and sales promotion manager having moved their offices to that city.

The present slogan of Curtis 1,000 Inc. is "Better Envelopes for Every Purpose."

The present officers of the company are: Henry Curtis, president; B. R. Curtis, first vice president; G. M. Rogue, second vice president; G. E. Wheeler, treasurer; H. H. Cowle, secretary; T. L. Hansen, manager.

CONGRATULATIONS FLOOD IN FOR MRS. JOHNSON'S BIRTHDAY

Special to The Bulletin

PUTNAM, Oct. 24--Personal and mailed congratulations, and even greetings received by radio, poured into Mrs. Catherine Johnson, centenarian member of the family at The Haven home in Abington, who passed her 101st milestone of life today. She is one of Windham county's three centenarians, all of whom are women. The other two are Mrs. Julia Clark of Putnam Heights, who became 100 years old March 8 and Mrs. Mary Griffiths, of Danielson, who passed life's century mark on Aug. 30.

At dusk tonight the venerable Mrs. Johnson attired in a silken lounging jacket and propped up in her bed, was rolled into the sunporch chamber of The Haven where she was greeted by the members of the household and by invited guests, who assembled to congratulate and wish her continued happiness in the evening of her long life. In her usual spirit of cheerfulness, Mrs. Johnson received her many friends with gladness and enthusiasm.

In the coziness of The Haven porch room. Mrs. Johnson was personally greeted by Mrs. T. Morris Murray, of Gwen Careg farm, wealthy Boston and Abington society matron and generous Haven benefactor, who presented her Bwith a beautiful pale pink bed jacket trimmed with bands of costly ermine fur. The garmen, when laid before the delighted centenarian, so impressed her, that she reached up and embraced Mrs. Murray, exclaiming, "God bless you for all that's happened."

During the the joyous birthday party that followed, Mrs. Johnson, in attempts to display her appreciation, frequently remarked, "Everyone has been so kind."

Ever on the alert in displaying a special interest in everything that was being done in her honor, Mrs. Johnson's face was lighted with a beaming smile when the giant birthday cake, about 25 inches in diameter, was brought into the room with 101 candles mounted on its frosted surface. At a given moment Lincoln Davis, grandson of Mrs. Johnson, began lighting the many candles and before he touched off the wick on the 101st, those lighted earlier in the course of the ceremony were burning low and many had already been extinguished. While the candles were dying out, signalizing the passing of each year of Mrs. Johnson's life, the beauty of the whole ceremony was accentuated by the reflections of varied colored beams of light from the magikrome, an electrical device given to The Haven by Mrs. Murray.

Radio greetings to Mrs. Johnson were sent out this morning from station WEAF, New York, during the "Cheerio hour."

ANNUAL ENUMERATION SHOWS 7,577 NORWICH CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE

The annual school enumeration for the town of Norwich has just been completed by Tyler D. Guy and Joseph B. Downes, who have been engaged at the task since the first of September, with the result that 7,577 children of school age have been counted, upon which the state gives the town a grant of $2.25 per pupil.

Of the total number enumerated 6,878 are attending school and 699 are not in school. The public schools have 4,434 attending, of whom 2,191 are boys and 2,243 are girls. In the parochial schools there are 1,845, of whom 902 are boys and 943 girls and in private schools there are 599, of whom 278 are boys and 321 girls.

An analysis which the enumerators are required to make shows that there are 196 of school age who are employed at labor, these being in the different districts as follows: Central, 32; West Chelsea, 41; Greeneville, 41; Taftville, 50; Bridge, 6; Falls, 10; Town street, 1; Occum, 8; Long Society, 3; Yantic, 2; West Town, 2. There are also three deaf and dumb attending Mystic Oral school, 21 in the imbecile and sickly classification, of whom 12 are not attending school and 9 are at Mansfield, Meriden or Niantic. There are four in the classification of crippled, of whom three are not attending school.

The accompanying table shows the enumeration by districts:

Beaumont, Tex., soon is to build a million dollar courthouse.

NEIGHBORHOOD DIVIDED OVER BRAILSFORD BARN BUILDING

Divided opinion developed Friday morning at a hearing before the joint zoning board of appeals of the city and town regarding the erection of a barn and the establishment of a riding academy at East Great Plain by Arthur Brailsford. After taking the testimony offered, pro and con, the board reserved its decision. Mr. Brailsford had started the erection of a barn, 50x150, on the New London turnpike, near the former Norwich fair grounds. He had secured a permit to erect the barn from the board of selectmen, and the barn was in process of construction when a neighbor made complaint. The result of the complaint was that Selectman W. S. Murray advised Mr. Brailsford to hold up further construction pending a decision as to whether the zoning laws were being violated.

At the hearing Friday, in the mayor's office, it developed that Mr. Brailsford has the support of the Norwich Golf club, its land company, the Norwich Inn and some of the residents in that section, all of whom are located in the near vicinity of the proposed riding academy site. On the other hand, opposition was registered by some residents in the immediate vicinity of the place, the principal objection being that they did not care to have another "circus" grounds on their street. They were opposed to the noise of the horses in the highway and do not care to see the district become a commercial one.

Mr. Brailsford explained at the hearing that he is already conducting a riding academy on the premises and has been conducting a riding academy for some time. His stable at the present time contains ten horses and two ponies. His property consists of about nine acres, he said. The property has a frontage of 452 feet.

The barn is planned to house the horses and store hay and feed. Rainy days he would use the barn for riding instructions. The property is several hundred feet from the Golf club property.

Joseph C. Worth, speaking for himself, the Norwich Inn and the Norwich Golf club, stated that he wished to go on record as in favor of the petition. Mr. Worth said it is planned to lay out a bridle path from Mr. Brailsford's stables to the inn, for the benefit of the guests at the inn who desire to go out riding. According to Mr. Worth, Mr. Brailsford's stables are very desirable and a great asset to the inn.

Mr. Worth told of riding Mr. Brailsford's horses on various occasions and had his 4-year-old child out riding, also. "I believe the riding academy is conducted in such a way that I am not afraid to send my children there. My oldest boy goes there alone," he said.

Princess Ethel Alferoff-Elferieff, social hostess at the Norwich Inn, spoke in favor of the petition. L. W. Billings of No. 544 New London turnpike spoke in opposition to the petition. He stated that he doesn't like to see the section commercialized. Witness asked Mr. Worth how many times he is in that section and Mr. Worth replied that he goes to the Golf club and also goes riding at the riding academy. Mr. Billings said he understood that Mr. Brailsford planned to conduct the academy nights. Mr. Worth, in answer, said that had nothing to do with him. Mr. Billings said he particularly objected to unskilled riders, who, he said, are a menace on the highways.

John D. McWilliams of No. 587 New London turnpike spoke in opposition to the barn. He stated that he had no complaint in regard to riding, although he had heard the sound of hoofs near his home at midnight. At the present time, he said, the hills of Leffingwell can be seen from his house on one side and the beautiful estate of Dr. Manwaring on the other. The barn would obstruct the view, he said.

Witness said Mr. Brailsford's riding academy at the present time is all right. Riding, he claims is only a fad, and if it dies out, there would not be much use for the barn. "I don't think that anybody residing in a residential section wants a big barn in it."

Mrs. McWilliams, also in opposition to the petition, told of selecting a home site on the New London turnpike, because Elmer Pierson, who owned the property, had told her the section would be restricted to home lots only. She said there was no personal antagonism between her family and the Brailsfords, as had been hinted. She said that she liked the Brailsford family, but that her interest was in her home and just what her rights were was what she wanted to know. Her home represents an investment of about $20,000. If given a reasonable price for her property, she said that she would sell and would then have no objections if Mr. Brailsford desired to conduct riding academies there.

Witness stated that Mr. Brailsford already has one large barn on his property and that this would be a second barn. She stated that she did not make the complaint that resulted in the hearing. Opposition was also registered by Mrs. Clinton Simpson of No. 558 New London turnpike and Mrs. L. W. Billings.

Mr. Brailsford told of securing the permit to build, stated that the contract had been let, and the foundations poured. He wanted to know what he was going to do about the contract if he was stopped from building.

George Wright of the Norwich Inn, spoke in favor of the petition, and a communication to Mr. Brailsford from the Norwich Golf club, signed by William Eastwood, Jr., secretary and treasurer of the club, was turned over to the board. The communication read as follows:

"Please be advised that the board of governors of this club are heartily in favor of your plan to erect a building on your property to be used by your patrons for winter riding."

Before the board was also a petition from residents on the street, who are in favor of the erection of the barn. The signers are Thomas G. Washburn, Daniel L. Jones, Lloyd R. Jones, Raffaele Malerba, Thomas S. Sargent and Frank Minnini.

Mrs. Bjurstrom and several of those who went to Noroton on the annual visitation day reported in an interesting way and the meeting closed with the flag salute and furling of the flag.

EIGHT AND FORTY.

With La Petite Chapeau Mrs. Grace McNally, of New London presiding, officers were elected by the county unit 8 and 40, Salon No. 144, when it met this week at the home of Mrs. Frances Kelly in Taftville.

The following officers were elected: La petite chapeau, Mrs. Iola DeGrasse of New London; demi chapeau, Mrs. Betty Donahue of New London and Mrs. Lena Bennett of Norwich; la concierge, Mrs. Viola Duiffie of Poquonnoc; la aumonier, Mrs. Frances Kelly of Taftville; la archiviste, Mrs. Bertha Wilcox of Norwich; la superintendant, Mrs. Ruth Sears of Taftville; la petite pouvoir, Mrs. Sarah Bennett of Norwich. Mrs. DeGrasse then appointed Mrs. Sarah Bennett of Norwich secretire and Mrs. Clara Caron of Taftville la cassiere.

During the meeting Mrs. Kelly was presented with a membership citation for securing 10 new auxiliary members for Peter Gallan American Legion unit during the past year. The presentation was made by Mrs. Sears, state 8 and 40 president, and Mrs. Kelly made a most fitting response.

The unit voted to raise $20 as its share toward a war orphan scholarship fund. The newly elected la petite chapeau invited the unit to conduct its next meeting at her home in New London. The meeting will be held on the third Tuesday of November and at that time the newly elected officers will be installed.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

The regular meeting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, D. of U. V., was held at the Buckingham Memorial Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Bogue, presiding. The report was made of the visit to the Clara Barton home, also one from the committee which purchased the new piano for the tent.

Considerable routine business was conducted and the tent closed in usual form with the salute to the flag.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS.

Sebequanash council, No. 11, met in the Buckingham Memorial Wednesday evening; Rose Carter presiding officer. The degree was exemplified, one candidate being received.

The representatives report was read from the great session held in Winsted, Oct. 14 and 15. Members attending were: Marion Quinn, Grace Halliday, Rosa M. Quinn. The great Pocahontas was reported very ill. Henrietta Payne, of New London, is Great Minnehaha for the council. The social chairman reported a whist and pinochle soon. The meeting of the 12th of November will begin at 7 o'clock.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H.

The following officers of Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H., No. 54, were unanimously re-elected at the regular semi-monthly meeting held Wednesday evening in A. O. H. hall; Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, president; Mrs. Julia Breen, vice president; Mrs. M. V. O'Neill, recording secretary; Miss Catherine Toomey, financial secretary; Miss Margaret Dwyer, treasurer; Miss Dolly Tobin, mistress at arms; Mrs. Annie Brooks, chairman of standing committee; Mrs. Mary Wickham, sentinel and Mrs. Annie Connelly, Irish historian.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, chairman of the auditing committee, Miss Catherine Toomey, financial secretary and Miss Margaret Dwyer, treasurer, read their respective quarterly reports, which showed an encouraging increase in the treasury.

Miss Dolly Tobin was appointed chairman of a Halloween masquerade party for the members and their children and friends. The assisting committee comprises Mrs. Annie Brooks, Mrs. Mary McCarthy and the Misses Catherine Toomey, Jane Breen and Nellie McCarthy. Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts will be served.

Mrs. Julia Breen, vice president, made a pleasing report of the recent whist and pinochle in the officer's series and Mrs. M. V. O'Neil, recording secretary, will be chairman of the next one, to be held soon.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Officers were elected as follows at the state convention of the Knights of Pythias and Pythian sisters at Stamford this week:

Herbert J. Evans of Watertown, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, grand chief of the Pythian Sisters.

Knights of Pythias—Grand vice chancellor, Samuel C. Cone, Hartford; grand prelate, Ernest C. Falk, Torrington; grand keeper of records and seal, Edward P. Aspinall, Plainville; grand master of exchequer, William N. Potter, Willimantic; grand master at arms, Henry S. Wheeler, Derby; grand inner guard, John F. Hunderlack, Middletown; grand outer guard, Francis E. Corn, Durham; trustee, Daniel Heskins, Hartford.

Pythian Sisters—Grand senior, Mrs. Frances Chambers, South Manchester; grand junior, Mrs. Sarah Hartt, Hartford; grand manager, Mrs. Elizabeth Morganson, Meriden; grand manager of records, Mrs. Hazel Townsend, Branford; grand manager of finance, Mrs. Veronica Carter, Plainville; grand protector of the temple, Mrs. Fannie Mitchell, Waterbury; grand protector of the outer temple, Mrs. Edna Evans, Watertown.

Grand Chancellor Melvin R. Marquand and Grand Chief Nellie Nalley of Durham, retiring, were given past officers' badges.

Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias at their last convention on Monday evening conferred the rank of page on three esquires. The meeting was largely attended and after the conferring of the degrees a light luncheon and refreshments were served. At the next convention, several more candidates are to receive the rank of page.

DARR POUNDS OUT VERDICT OVER KOZIOL IN FEATURE OF SHYMA CARD

Vic Darr is a better man than Al Koziol. That is, he proved to be for eight rounds last night in the feature bout of the Shyma club card at Parish hall when he slugged Koziol about the ring to earn the decision by the proverbial mile. Fighting a cool and steady bout Darr scored heavily in the first few rounds with a terrific left hook to the body that floored the Laurel Hill mauler three times during the eight rounds of milling.

Only the intervention of the bell in the first round saved Koziol from being counted out for the first time in his career. Again in the second round Darr had the Laurel Hill boy on the floor in a bad way but Koziol managed to get back on his feet at the count of nine and weathered out the round. Darr scored a third knockdown in the sixth round with left to body but Koziol was up on his feet before the count could be started.

Darr looked like a real fighter in there last night while Koziol was the same tough egg and wild puncher that he was when he was fighting at the 135 limit. If anything Koziol did not look quite so good as he does in the lighter class but it may be that Koziol hasn't met quite such a tough boy as Darr.

Koziol after making Darr wait in his corner for a few minutes bounced into the ring with his customary gusto. At the opening of the first stanza Koziol rushed from his corner only to meet a right jab from Darr and a left hook to the body that took some of the eagerness out of him. Darr, using a straight right jab and working to Koziol's left side, stood him off while he shot for his jaw with the left. Even at this stage of the bout it was seen that Koziol had his work cut out for him. Just before the close of the round Darr jabbed Koziol with a stiff right and then put all he had into a left hook to the body. Koziol grunted and dropped like a log. Referee Billy Conway had reached the count of eight when the bell rang saving Koziol from a knockout.

Barney Keenan worked frantically over Koziol with the smelling salts during the minute respite and then sent his battler back to the wars. Still feeling groggy Koziol went down under another left to the body and stayed down until the eight count. Clambering to his feet Koziol clinched and held until the round was over.

Showing a wonderful comeback Koziol came out strong in the third round and also the fourth holding Darr to even terms in this stanza. The fifth round was the only round in which Koziol showed to advantage and in this stanza he clearly had the better of the punching exchanges. Darr opened up again in the sixth and upset Koziol with another left to the stomach but the Laurel Hiller was up before a count. The seventh was even but Darr took the final round by a good margin.

Koziol finished very strong and was apparently getting stronger which gave rise to the question of whether the bout would have had different termination if it had gone another two rounds. A rematch of these two youngsters over a ten round route would be as good a bout as any in the country. There was plenty of action throughout the go and although beaten and beaten badly Koziol showed remarkable staying qualities. After the bell had saved Koziol it was difficult to see how he could last the other seven rounds but he did and he put up a good fight.

Darr fought as nice a fight as any in his career. He took his time and fought with calculating coolness wasting very few punches but landing many with telling effect. His defense was exceptionally good with the result that Koziol landed not more than a dozen effective blows during the engagement. Darr weighed 141½ while Koziol came in at 143½.

Curcio Stops Young Siki

Johnny Curcio of Providence so far outclassed Young Siki of Harlem, that the bout was stopped in the fifth round to save the Zulu battler from further punishment. Siki, who substituted for Johnny Woods of New York, was just a substitute trying to grab off a little easy money. Siki may have been a fighter once but only once. Curcio swarmed over him like a hive of bees beating him to the punch at every stage of the game. When Referee Conway stopped the bout Siki was just as glad as the fans.

Quinn Shows to Poor Advantage

Jimmy Quinn local boy was a disappointment to his home town supporters when he lost to Tony Caprio of Providence in the first eight round star bout. The bout was exceedingly slow and lacking in action. What little real fighting was done in the bout was done by Caprio but Quinn refused to mix and slowed the bout by his continual holding. Caprio proved a willing boy but could get no action from the local lad. Only once during the bout did Quinn land effectively on Caprio. This came when Caprio drove Quinn to a neutral corner. As Referee Conway separated the boys and on the break Caprio let loose a hook to Quinn's head. Realizing that he should have broken clean Caprio put out his hand in token of apology and as he did so Quinn caught him flush in the face with a left hook which started the blood from Caprio's nose. Had not Quinn been a clever boxer he would have taken a sweet lacing for it was his boxing ability that kept him in there for eight rounds. Jimmy possesses no punch of his own and when he leads he is very awkward and many times is off balance. His punches carry no sting and until he develops a punch he will be just a good clever boxer. Quinn weighed 126 and Caprio 125½.

Rodman Gains Verdict

Al Rodman of Goodyear went one up on Young Rochette of Westerly in the six round preliminary, the third meeting between this pair. This bout rivaled the main go for action. For the first three rounds Rochette had the advantage but weakened rapidly while Rodman came through to a strong finish. It was a snappy slugging match with some mighty good boxing in it. Early in the first round Rochette drew blood from Rodman's nose and kept peppering it through the next two rounds. In the fourth Rodman came back strong and took the round. In the fifth the Goodyear boy had Rochette groggy and the Westerly lad was in a bad way. The final round found Rodman strong and Rochette fast weakening but he weathered the storm of blows. Rodman weighed 118¾ and Rochette 122.

Brouillard Noses Out Rossi

In the four round opener Al Brouillard of Danielson barely eked out a decision over Julio Rossi of Westerly. The fighting was fast and furious with Brouillard scoring heavily on the infighting while Rossi showed well at long range. Brouillard is a pocket edition of his brother Lou but apparently does not hit with the same power. Brouillard weighed 144½ and Rossi 148.

The bouts were good but the crowd was not up to expectations there being a few over 500 paid admissions. The Shyma club will put on another card in two weeks.

THRICE DEFEATED AGGIES MEET TUFTS OUTFIT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 24—Not the least bit downcast by their season's record of three defeats, by Albright, Maine and Trinity, the Connecticut Aggie football squad is in good physical condition and full of pep in anticipation of their game with Tufts here tomorrow.

Because of inclement weather here this afternoon, Coach Dole called his men out for a practice session which lasted only about three-quarters of an hour. The time was spent on a short snappy signal drill in which the team displayed plenty of vigor.

In the lineup which will probably start the game tomorrow for the Aggies, the left end is John Callahan who is outstanding as a snarer of passes. Bob Bebman of West Hartford is left tackle and tomorrow's contest will show how completely mended is the rib which he broke several weeks ago. He played for a short time in the Trinity game but for fear of damaging his rib he was kept on the sidelines for most of the game. If he gets going, well, he is expected to make some beautiful tackles for he has had much experience.

Yesukiewicz, a sophomore, will be in his regular position as left guard, and Jim Moore of Norwich, will hold down the center berth. John Sternberg who started the season as right guard but was relieved last week by John Kolb will resume his duties, since Kolb is in the hospital recovering from a spinal injury received in the game with Trinity. Carl Hakanaan, a husky Greenwich youth, will be found at right tackle, and John Eddy, the star passer of the team will take right end.

In the backfield, Herb French will choose the plays and call the signals. Captain Charlie Murphy will play left halfback. Frank Pierce of West Hartford who has been alternating back will play right halfback tomorrow in place of Pinky McCombe who will with Harger in the position of fullprobably not play Aggie football again because of an injured knee. Pierce is expected to get off some long punts and alternate with Harger in bucking the line. Harger, the fullback, is a Weaver High school product and is now playing his last year of football here. He has gotten increasingly better each year and is renowned for his spectacular dives over the line.

The Tufts lineup is as follows: Arlanson, le; Staffon, lt; Cockrane, lg; Knapman, c; Gibbons, rg; Littleton, rt; Godfrey, re; Clayman, qb; Uanna, lhb; Haber, rhb; and Lecain, fb.

The Aggie cross country team will run against Tufts tomorrow and will probably follow out their usual custom of having the meet finish between the halves in the middle of the athletic field. The Aggie team will include Captain White, Cliff Barnes, Jim Bottomley, Charlie Dittrich, and Len Hubbard.

The coed field hockey team will meet a team from Jackson College tomorrow afternoon in a game which will precede the football contest.

TICKETS FOR YALE-ARMY GAME SOLD OUT LAST WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A colorful crowd of 75,000 will see Yale and Army play their 30th game of football in the bowl here tomorrow. That vast sports amphitheatre has been sold out for more than a week.

Both teams held light workouts today. Mal Stevens gave the Elis a 15-minute practice on the Anthony Thompson practice field while Army went through its paces at Choate school, Wallingford, where the players will remain overnight.

Booth, Austen Dunn and Crowley were in the first Yale backfield today, and it is a certainty that they will start tomorrow. With the exception of Lindenberg, the regular Blue line will take the field. Flygare will substitute for the injured Lindenberg at left end.

The Army eleven was reported in good condition, with Bowman, Herb, Letzelter and Fields ready to start in the backfield.

The probable lineups:

SALE OF 3,000 FAKE TICKETS TO PITT-NOTRE DAME GAME

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24—(AP)—Three thousand counterfeit tickets to the Pitt-Notre Dame game have been sold, it was estimated tonight by police as fifty detectives and plain clothes men were detailed for duty tomorrow at the Pitt stadium to watch for scalpers and vendors of spurious pasteboards.

Frank R. Boyd, inspector of detectives, said trouble, too, was anticipated when holders of counterfeit tickets attempt to claim their seats. Four hundred extra patrolmen have been assigned to handle the crowd of 73,000 or more.

Several arrests have been made and police said they soon expected to learn the source of the fake ducats, described as being very poor imitations.

Two alleged scalpers were held for further inquiry in $10,000 bail today and a number of men found with counterfeit tickets in their possesion will be questioned.

TO BROADCAST BY RADIO FOUR FOOTBALL GAMES TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP)—Three afternoon games and one night contest between college football teams, are to be described for radio listeners tomorrow.

The afternoon games will be Army vs. Yale, and Dartmouth vs. Harvard to be presented by the NBC, and Notre Dame vs Pittsburgh by the CBS.

The night contest to be played by Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson in the civic auditorium at Atlantic City, will go over CBS.

Manhattan Harriers Win

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Running the five miles at Van Cortland park in 32:18, Shacklecte and Ryan led Manhattan college to a 26 to 29 victory over the College of the City of New York in a cross country match today. The meet was scheduled to be a three-cornered affair but Rutgers withdrew.

George Bullwinkle, I. C. A. A. A. A. mile champion, was the first City college runner to cross the line, finishing third, a minute and a half back of the two Manhattan harriers.

WESTERLY STAGES STRONG SECOND HALF COMEBACK TO SWAMP N. F. A.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 24.—After clearly outplaying Westerly high for the majority of the first half, Norwich Free Academy's gridiron representatives dropped like faded lilies after the intermission this afternoon and fell an easy prey to the conference champs, 25 to 6. It was Westerly's fifth straight win of the season, three of which have been in conference play and it placed the home towners in a very good position to cop their second straight championship.

Zictorac, Capt. Stevens and Geer played best for the Wildcats while Mudge was brilliant for Westerly and Capt. Dolan, Stenhouse and Trumpetto were also good for Westerly.

The Academy played great football for the first two quarters, something that baffled those who had seen them recently and many thought that the dope was in for a big upsetting. After a scoreless first quarter during which it was anybody's edge, the Academy, with the aid of a fumbled punt, pushed over six points with the second quarter about one-third gone, Golembeski taking a short pass from Geer for the tally. There was little doing the rest of the period.

Then came the dawn when Westerly was to play rings around the Red and White and easily win. Westerly received the kickoff in the second half and on the second succeeding play Mudge, Westerly's star halfback, went off tackle for 55 yards and a touchdown. He should have been tackled easily by at least three Academy men but they let him slip away and he ran unhampered for the last 40 yards. The try for the point missed and it was still a ball game.

After the Academy had received and the teams had traded punts three or four times, Mudge intercepted a pass at Westerly's 30 and traveled about 40 yards before being forced outside at midfield. Westerly ran off a first down as the period ended.

Another first down on the first play of the fourth period, a 12-yard dash by Mudge placed the ball on the Academy -yard line and Stenhouse, Westerly's plunging back, put it over and also rushed the extra point, making the count, 13 to 6.

The Academy received and Zictorac ran it back 10 to his own 40. Stenhouse intercepted a pass right off the reel but with a clear field for a score, ran into a teammate and was knocked out. This was a great break for N. F. A.

Westerly, however, would not be stopped by this and quickly clicked off the necessary yardage for a score with Stenhouse going over from the 4-yard line. The try for point by rushing failed. This put the score at 19-6.

The Academy received again and once more a Westerly back, Green, this time, picked a pass out of the air and ran 35 yards to a touchdown. The try for point by kicking failed and the score remained at the final figure.

Summary:

Westerly High		N. F. A.
Trumpetto	le	Fitzgerald
Dolan	lt	Kakabowski
Sisson	lg	Goldberg
Azzinaro	c	Abugie
Turano	rg	Stevens
Bonner	rt	Cote
Collings	re	Sheridan
Stenhouse	qb	Zictorac
Mudge	lhb	Geer
Green	rhb	Stockwell
Lamb	fb	Golembeski

Score by periods:

N. F. A.	0	6	0	0— 6
Westerly	0	0	6	19—25

Touchdowns, Golembeski, Mudge (2); Stenhouse, Green.

Points from try after touchdown, Stenhouse, (by rushing).

Referee, Sprague; umpire, Sheridan; linesman, Thompson; time, 10 min. quarter.

Substitutions, N. F. A.: Richards for Stevens; Shields for Sheridan; Cotter for Geer; Polsky for Cote; Reardon for Zictorac.

Westerly: Itchkowich for Sisson.

Notes

The Academy has now won two games and lost three, scoring 25 points against the opposition's 66.

The Academy will go to Storrs Saturday to see the Aggies-Tufts game for their annual excursion to a college game.

Several Stonington and Bulkeley partisans were on hand to get a line on the town teams.

Westerly seems to have a big lead in the race now, with only two conference games remaining. One of these is with Chapman Tech, the trailer in the chase and the other is with Stonington.

About 300 saw the game, which was played on a slippery field.

Westerly received a big jolt when Sission, star guard, was forced from the lineup in the first quarter with a broken collarbone which will keep him out of combat for the rest of this season.

COOPER LEADING WITH 70 IN SALT LAKE CITY TOURNEY

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 24—(AP)—Harry Cooper, diminutive Los Angeles professional, gained a two stroke lead over a classy field in the opening round of the first annual Salt Lake City $5,000 open golf tournament here today by bagging a par shattering 70 over the rugged Salt Lake Country club.

Trailing Cooper by two strokes were C. E. Foley, Utah State amateur champion; the Espinosa brothers, Abe and Al, of Chicago, and Craig Wood, long driving Bloomfield, N. J. pro. Each had par 72's for the first 18 holes.

Cooper started out with a five on the far four first hole but then played even par to the eighth where he bagged a birdie three, another birdie three on the ninth gave him a sub-par 34 going out. He shot his third birdie in a row on the short tenth, getting a two. Another birdie on the thirteenth put him three under perfect figures but he found a trap on the fourteenth and took five, one over par. He shot perfect golf on the last four holes, narrowly missing a birdie on the tricky last hole.

George Von Elm, Detroit, earned a 75. Von Elm, playing his first tournament as a "business man golfer" was the main attraction.

The second 18 holes of the meet will be played tomorrow and the final 18 Sunday. First prize is $1,500.

UMPIRE STARTS SUIT AGAINST LEAGUE PRESIDENT

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—(AP)— J. A. (Jim) Murray, American association umpire for 15 years, filed suit for $25,000 damages today against Thomas J. Hickey, president of the baseball league, whom he charged had blacklisted him.

Murray quoted a paragraph from a letter he said he received Sept. 18, 1929, from Hickey:

"Now, just read this letter over again so you can see yourself as I see you. And just remember I will work as hard from now on to keep you from receiving a position as I worked to secure one for you."

Murray charged that Hickey had engineered his discharge Sept. 4, 1929, as umpire in the Three-Eye league, by writing to Eugene Wylie, president, saying that Murray had refused to pay a debt he owed Hickey.

Although he applied for positions in all parts of the United States he was prevented from getting work through Hickey's interference, Murray said.

TIGERS DEFEAT COLUMBIA IN CROSS COUNTRY RUN

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)— With Prior and Saltus setting the pace Princeton won its first cross country match of the season today, defeating Columbia 27 to 28 over the five-mile course at Van Cortland park.

Prior led the pack across the line in 27:46. Twenty yards behind trailed his teammate in second place. Third and fourth went to Rhodes and Hildebrandt, respectively, of Columbia. Then came Bell of Princeton. He was followed by seven Columbia harriers before Miller and Downing of the Tigers counted for Princeton. Only the first three of the group of seven counted in the scoring, however, as each team's scoring was based on the first five men to finish.

Princeton almost made a perfect score in the freshmen three-mile event, defeating the Columbia yearlings 18 to 37 as Reed, Bonthorne and Hicks finished in a dead heat. Their time was 15:42.

RIGHT OF A. A. U. TO BAR PETKIEWICZ UPHELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.— (AP)— The right of the Amateur Athletic union to bar Stanislaw Petkiewicz, Polish athlete, from competing in the Knights of Columbus track and field meet at Madison Square Garden on March 12 of this year was upheld by the appellate division of the New York state supreme court today.

In an opinion written by Justice Edward R. Finch, it was held that the court had no authority to interfere with the internal management and disciplinary affairs of the union. At the time of the meet the K. of C. obtained a temporary injunction restraining the A. A. U. from barring Petkiewicz but the court today ruled this was illegal.

HARVARD HARRIERS BEAT DARTMOUTH AND MASS. TECH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24—(AP)—The Harvard cross country team continued its victorious course here today when it totalled but 20 points in a triangular meet with Massachusetts Tech, which scored 54, and Dartmouth trailed with 68. Gilman, of Tech, won the five mile race in 30 minutes, one and 3 1-5 seconds, just beating out Arthur Foote, youthful Crimson harrier, who has been improving with every race. Jimmy Fox, of Harvard, was third.

EIGHT BOUTS OFFERED ON AMATEUR CARD AT DANIELSON THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 24—Eight bouts are on the card for the show to be held in the town hall here Saturday evening. This is to be the second show of the amateur indoor boxing season. The last one gave the fans a great evening. This one promises to be just as good.

Gene Billings, Goodyear, a big favorite with the fans, will be in there at this show trying to take the measure of George Vigeant of Webster. These boys had one session with each other during the open air season—and what a session it was. Vigeant had Billings down for a count of nine, but the Goodyear boy came right back strong and eventually won by a knockout. There'll be doings aplenty when they meet Saturday night.

Another bout, and one that the fans have been clamoring to see, will be between Joe Jackson of Goodyear and Kid Brouillard of Danielson, this in the 105 lbs. class. Jackson won a hairline decision over Brouillard in their last meeting, but many of the fans did not agree with the referee.

William Leo, Killingly High school student, is matched to meet Benny Salinski of Jewett City. Ray Landry, Danielson, who has been through his last 10 bouts without getting a scratch, has a tough customer to battle at this show in the person of Kid Martell of Providence.

Young Pinto, a willing mixer out of Providence is matched to battle with Anselm Bernier, local boy who is making rapid improvement as a ringster and already has a good record.

Young Plasse of Webster takes on Kid Switch of Jewett City. Switch is again back in form after having been out of the ring for a considerable time.

Russell Martin of Webster, hard hitting middleweight, is taking on Al Menard, Providence, a boy who has been making a specialty of knocking them cold in one round. If he can do that to such a walloper as Martin, he just must be good. This bout should be a sensational one.

Another bout in addition to these mentioned will be on the card.

MANY IMPORTANT GRID BATTLES ARE SLATED FOR THIS AFTERNOON

By ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.— (AP) —The business of whittling down the list of college gridiron contenders for sectional or national championship honors, in preparation for the dash down the November stretch, should be booming all along the pigskin fronts tomorrow, to the accompaniment of a few million assorted outcries from the onlookers.

So far, the dwindling collection of pace-setters has embraced Washington State on the Pacific coast, Utah in the Rocky mountain fastnesses, Kansas in the Big Six fold, Northwestern, Michigan, and Wisconsin in the Big Ten, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Georgia, Florida and Kentucky in the southern conference, Notre Dame "at large," and Fordham, New York university, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth and Army along the eastern front.

Six of the undefeated and untied brigade battle among themselves tomorrow in a further effort to thin the ranks of the major title contenders, and most of the others face strong opposition.

Alabama, whose powerful and unbeaten array snapped the long winning streak of Tennessee last Saturday, tackles Vanderbilt at Birmingham in a game that may go a long way toward deciding the southern conference champion. It is a standout contest in Dixie, between two closely matched teams, with Florida, Kentucky and Georgia all strongly favored to continue their winning streaks and Tulane, the 1929 champion, making a stand against Georgia Tech in another headliner.

The east and west, as a result, can breathe a trifle easier with none of the foremost southern teams on a raiding expedition this week, trying to duplicate the smashing triumphs scored so far by Dixie's favorites. The invasions tomorrow are confined to Mississippi's visit to Chicago and Centre's jaunt into the Northwestern Wildcats' lair.

The dominating east-west affair of the day involves Notre Dame and Pittsburgh at the Pitt stadium. At least 65,000 spectators will watch these two undefeated arrays, with the sensational Irish favored to add the Pitt Panther's hide to the scalp of the Carnegie Skibos.

Noting the inspiring effect of Knute Rockne's pessimism the week before on the battle spirits of the fighting Irish, Dr. Jock Sutherland, Pitt's head coach, has gloomily predicted defeat for his charges. The general expectation, however, is that it will take more than this "bad medicine" to stop Notre Dame.

New York's Bronx is the battleground for the metropolitan championship scrap between Fordham and New York university, both undefeated and set to perform before upwards of 75,000 fans in the Yankee stadium. Picking the winner of this game is like picking daisies. N. Y. U. has a high-powered offense but it will be pitted against the strongest defense in the east.

More than 75,000 will pack the Yale bowl to see West Point attempt to complete a man-sized job— beating Harvard and Yale on successive Saturdays. Army already has the Crimson scalp but the undefeated Kaydets have Albie Booth and a rapidly-improving Blue line to contend with tomorrow. Booth ran wild last year through the West Point defense and he is primed to repeat, if given the proper aid from his mates.

Dartmouth's Indians have been on a rampage so far but they are likely to run into trouble at Harvard, especially if the Crimson shows its full strength again. Navy and Princeton come to grips on the latter's field, each seeking to regain some scattered laurels.

The biggest crowd in the Big Ten circuit, around 75,000, will watch Michigan's battle to overthrow the somewhat battered forces of Illinois and keep step with Northwestern and Wisconsin in the championship race. The Wolverines are favorites.

Northwestern's title aspirations are not involved in its game with Centre. Wisconsin, after the way it trampled Chicago and Pennsylvania, aims to dispose of the lingering hopes of Purdue, 1929 champion of the Big Ten, but the Badgers have their task cut out for them.

The big game on the Pacific slope brings Stanford and Southern California together at Palo Alto before upwards of 85,000 spectators. The joint debate indulged in earlier this year by the rival head coaches, Pop Warner and Howard Jones, with some acrimonious accompaniments, has not lessened the rivalry or interest involved. All things considered, the outcome is a tossup, despite Southern California's margin of superiority in the past two years.

California and Washington play at Seattle in another game that figures to be close fought. Washington State, potential conference champion, has little reason to be apprehensive about Montana.

Elsewhere the sectional title battles are equally warm. Texas figures to beat Rice and the Texas Aggies to conquer Arkansas in the southwest. Utah's Rocky mountain champions are the choice over Denver while Colorado university tackles a tough foe in the Colorado Aggies. Kansas, a Big Six favorite, takes on Iowa State while the Kansas Aggies play the Oklahoma Sooners, another conference leader.

Among the few intersectional tussles of the day, Southern Methodist is host to Indiana in the first Big Ten invasion of the southwest. Nebraska plays Montana State at Lincoln and Boston college hopes to greet Dayton with touchdowns.

EXPERTS PICK DARTMOUTH TO DEFEAT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Jackson Cannell and his high scoring Dartmouth Indians swooped down from their New Hampshire hills today and found themselves a ten to eight favorite to defeat Harvard tomorrow in northern New England's annual gridiron classic.

These odds, however, appear a bit exaggerated to close followers of both teams. Harvard was thoroughly tested by the Army last week and emerged impressively but Dartmouth, though it has piled up a total of 225 points against four opponents, without being scored on, is an unknown pigskin quantity. Both teams will be able to start their strongest lineups to date. Man for man, these ancient rivals appear evenly matched, except that Dartmouth appears to have a slight kicking advantage.

SEVEN CORNELL HARRIERS FINISH IN DEAD HEAT

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24—(AP)—Seven Cornell harriers crossed the finish line in a dead heat today to defeat Yale by a score of 15 to 54 in a cross country run of six miles. The first Eli runner came home a half minute behind the seven Cornelians.

Crosby, Eckert, Elbert, Madden, Marting, Mulligan and Ranney finished in a pack for Cornell in the time of 34:15. Greist, of Yale, finished first for his team in 34:47. Sheffield, Bryan, Hill and Thomas, of Yale, came in tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth.

WEST POINT CADETS TO ATTEND YALE-ARMY GAME

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 24—(AP)—The corps of cadets will leave the United States Military Academy early tomorrow for New Haven, where they will see the Yale-Army game.

The cadets will board boats at the local dock and go by water to Beacon, where two special trains will take them to New Haven. They will arrive at 10:45 a. m. They will march to the Yale dining hall for lunch and then march to the Yale bowl.

MISS HICKS CREATES NEW COURSE RECORD FOR WOMEN

DEL MONTE, Calif., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Miss Helen Hicks, Long Island, N. Y., shot a 77 at Cypress Point today to establish a new course record for women and win low gross honors in the last of the thre-day series of invitational tournaments on Monterey peninsula.

She was one over par with a 38 on the first nine and home in 39. Her birdie two on the third hole provided one of the high spots of a brilliant day's play.

LOS ANGELES WINS SLUGFEST FROM HOLLYWOOD, 11 TO 10

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24—(AP)—Los Angeles won its first game of the Pacific Coast league championship play-off series today, defeating Hollywood, 11 to 10. The conflict was featured by three home runs. Hollywood won the first two games:

Hollywood	10	14	1
Los Angeles	11	13	3

Diaz Outpoints Girardi

BRIDGEPORT, Oct 24.— (AP) —Sinolfo Diaz, 125, New York, outpointed Al Girardi, 129, Philadelphia, in one of the feature ten-round bouts here tonight.

Davey Atler, 134, New York, won a decision over Jimmy Watts, 127, New Haven, in the other main bout.

TIRRELL WILL START AT FULLBACK TODAY

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 24.—(AP)— A Wesleyan eleven reported as showing increased smoothness and offensive power in recent practice, will invade Amherst tomorrow for the first of the "little three" games.

Wesleyan's lineup will find Spike Guernsey at quarterback, Striebinger and Schlums at half, and Tirrell playing fullback. Frescoln and Wells will probably start at end, with Lun and Brown playing tackles, Eldridge and Means, guards, and Captain Joe Miller, at center.

Owing to infantile paralysis here Wesleyan undergraduates have been forbidden to accompany the team on the trip north. The game was originally scheduled to have been played in Middletown, but an agreement was reached to transfer it to Amherst.

Game at Campus Today

Today (Saturday) at 1:30 o'clock the Black Hawks play Fell's All Stars at the Academy campus. As each team is confident of victory a good game is expected.

Fontaine Wins Decision

WORCESTER, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Rene Fointaine, 123, Danielson, Conn., won a decision from Pat James, 119, Providence, in eight rounds here tonight.

HOLD-UP MAN KILLED, POLICEMAN WOUNDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Three hold-up men and two plainclothes policemen happened to select the same time tonight to raid a card game in a Madison avenue cigar store. The result was a shooting match in which one hold-up man was killed and six other persons, including a policeman, were wounded.

The policemen found 25 men in the room, lined them against the wall and were waiting for a patrol wagon when the hold-up men entered and ordered all to put up their hands.

Four of the card players were wounded.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Be Careful What You Say

In speaking of a person's faults,
  Pray don't forget your own;
Remember those with homes of glass
  Should seldom throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do
  But talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
  And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
  Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
  We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who has not?
  The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for aught we know
  Have fifty to their one.

Then let us all, when we begin
  To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
  To those we little know.
Remember curses sometimes like
  Our chickens "roost at home";
Don't speak of others' faults until
  We have none of our own.

The First Pair of Twins.

The Lord he listened to their talk,
  and gosh! it made him mad.
Abigail said, "I'm sure the child will be just like his dad."
And Dan would contradict her with,
  "Now, honey, that ain't so.
It's going to be a little girl, and just like you, I know."

The Lord, my! he was bothered, for he wanted to please both.
And what that soul was going to be couldn't tell on oath.
For now he'd say, "I'll make a kirl to satisfy old Dan."
And then he'd think perhaps a boy would be the better plan.

But finally the Lord grew tired, and then he thought how once
A friend of his, King Solomon, had proved himself no dunce.
So loud he called, "Oh, Solomon! What had I better do?"
And Sol, he smiled and answered—
  "Twins!"—and cut the soul in two.

What A Barrel Of Whiskey Contains!

A barrel of headaches, of heartaches,
  of woes,
A barrel of curses, a barrel of blows;
A barrel of sorrow for a loving, weary wife,
A barrel of care, a barrel of strife;
A barrel of all unavailing regret,
A barrel of cares, a barrel of debt,
A barrel of danger, of poison, of pain,
A barrel of hopes all blasted and vain;
A barrel of poverty, ruin and blight,
A barrel of tears that run in the night;
A barrel of crimes, a barrel of groans,
A barrel of orphans, most pitiful moans;
A barrel of serpents that hiss as they pass,
That glow from the liquor in the head of the glass;
A barrel of falsehoods, a barrel of cries,
That fall from the maniac's lips as he dies!

"I NEVER KNOWED!"

Old Billy B. was a pious man,
  And heaven was his goal;
For, being a very saving man,
  Of course, he'd save his soul.
But even in this, he used to say:
  "One can't too careful be,"
And he sang with a fervor unassumed
  "I'm glad salvation's free."

But "the means of grace" he had to own
  Required good hard-earned gold.
And he took ten pews, as well became
  The richest of the fold.
'He's a noble man!" the preacher cried.
  "Our Christian Brother B."
And Billy smiled as he sublet nine,
  And got his own pew free.

In class meeting next, our Billy told
  How heaven had gracious been.
Yea, even back in the dark days when
  He was a man of sin.
'I was buildin' a barn on my river farm—
  All I then had " he said.
I'd run out of boards, and was feedin' hands
  On nothin' but corn bread.

'I'll tell ye, bretherin, that I felt blue,
  Short o' timber and cash,
And thought I'd die when the banks
  then bust,
  And flooded all my mash.
But the Lord was merciful to me
  And sent right through the rift
The tide had made in the river banks
  A lumber raft adrift.

'Plenty o' boards was there for the barn,
  And to top was a cheese,
And a bar'l o' pork as sound and sweet
  As any one ever sees.
Then I had bread and meat for the men;
  And they worked with a will,
While I thanked God, who'd been good to me,
  And I'm doin' of it still."

A shrill-voiced sister cried "Bless the Lord."
  The whole class cried "Amen."
But a keen-eyed man looked at Billy
  B.
  In a thoughtful way, and then
Asked. "Brother B., did you ever hear
  Who lost that raft and load?"
And Billy wiped his eyes and said,
  "Bretherin' I never knowed."

OUR 1,100 MILE TRIP

Dear Social Corner Members: Last night my husband and I returned from a 1,100 mile auto trip and I am going to follow the example of some of our members and write you of some of our experiences. Friends of ours from Providence, a young man and his wife, accompanied us. When we planned the trip we decided to visit Maine but not to follow any particular route, just to ride along as fancy took us stopping for the night at overnight cabins or a tourist home.

We left home about 11 a. m., Sunday, Oct. 12th, and found the cutest little cabins that night near Concord, N. H. As we had dinner late in the afternoon a light lunch was all we required which we were able to obtain in a little store connected with the cabins. We always planned to spend the nig[illegible] a few miles of a city thus making sure of a good breakfast the next morning.

As we went into New Hampshire the scenery became more beautiful and gorgeous. The autumnal colorings of red and gold mixed with the evergreens would require a poet to describe. We just looked and looked thinking that each new view was more beautiful if possible than the last. Occasionally a small lake would appear, perhaps as we rounded a bend in the road, with water so clear, it was hard to tell which was the landscape and which the reflection.

By this time we were well in the mountains and our second night was spent in a cabin in Randolph, N. H., 406 miles from home. It had become so cold that we thoroughly enjoyed the fire in the small airtight heater with which the cabin was provided. After making everything snug for the night we usually played bridge for an hour or two, retiring early, as we tried to be on our way by 7.30 or 8 in the morning.

Each day when we stopped for dinner if the stores looked attractive Mollie and I would roam around in them for an hour or so, much to the disgust of our husbands, who waited in no patient mood for our return, one or both looking anxiously up and down the street for a glimpse of us. They couldn't understand how we could waste so much time, but indeed we didn't consider it wasted, as our Christmas shopping was well begun by the end of the trip.

Having to travel over many rough miles of a detour we had only 118 miles to our credit Tuesday night when we stopped at Pinecroft inn, Livermore, Maine. We were fortunate in securing a small bungalow for our exclusive use that night. We had supper at the inn and enjoyed a delightful chat with the host and his wife finding them delightfully pleasant and friendly as indeed was everyone whom we had the pleasure of meeting.

Up until this time the weather was perfect, a bit chilly perhaps, but just enough so to keep us on our toes. Wednesday morning when we woke up expecting the sunshine the patter of raindrops greeted us instead. I warned the others that we mustn't complain as back home the rain was needed so sadly and I hoped the same storm had reached there.

The rain stayed with us all day and when that night we decided to stay in Searsport. We looked for a tourist home instead of a cabin thinking we would feel more secure from the wild storm which was upon us, the rain by this time coming down in torrents and the wind blowing a gale. We stopped at the first sign that appeared and felt that we were lucky to have noticed it as we were greeted cordially and made to feel right at home by the man and his wife who kept the house and also a small general store connected with it. After removing our coats we were served a lunch and the fragrant tea which was nice and hot, made us forget the storm raging outside. The rooms assigned to us were lovely and the beds with their silk draperies too beautiful to disturb even for weary travelers like ourselves. I told our host that the rooms were much too nice to provide for tourists, but he replied that his wife took a great deal of pride in her home and enjoyed giving her guests the best that was possible, which shows a true spirit of hospitality, does it not?

The next morning, Thursday, the rain had passed, but we caught up with it again on the way to Portland. Up to this time we had not delayed to view any especial point of interest other than what we saw as we rode along, but in Portland we took the time to go around the Baxter Boulevard, a lovely ride. Beautiful gardens, wonderful and luxurious homes, and the bay, black with hundreds of wild duck, which made the male members of our party think of guns, hunting and similar subjects.

That night we hired a cabin in Wells, Maine, 30 miles from Portland. Our double was one of a group of 31 cabins which was the largest number in one place that we came across during the entire trip. By this time most of the cabins were closed as the tourist season was about over.

I haven't mentioned much of what we saw but have in mind the beautiful and prosperous farms in the mountain districts, the well filled wood sheds ready for the long winter which will soon be upon us, also the large collection of vegetables for winter use. Then, too, the beautiful hotels are all closed now, and the wild surf at Old Orchard was pounding against the deserted sands which in summer are dotted with happy bathers. Every refreshment stand was lonesome and bleak looking, all the windows boarded up, but the signs still there advertising hot dogs, taffy, etc., and all around us the mountains much too beautiful to be described by an humble person like myself. One night in New Hampshire a little fox ran in front of us and as I looked back to catch another glimpse of him there he stood, just as a dog might, watching us out of sight.

As we passed through Methuen, Friday, we stopped for an afternoon's visit with some cousins, then going on to Wilmington, Mass., where we stopped that night in a tourist home.

Lingered in Waltham, Saturday morning to say "hello and goodbye" to my father's brother and his wife who were some surprised but none the less glad to see us. Leaving Waltham we motored to South Sudbury, Mass., to visit Henry Ford's Wayside Inn. I shall not write at length about this beautiful place as no one could describe it more vividly than Ravena did in her letter a few weeks ago. Shall just mention a few things that especially appealed to me. Hooked rugs were in several of the rooms, real beautiful ones, and the hostess who showed us around told us rather an amusing incident relating to them. Not long ago a young man and his mother visited the Inn. Admiring the rugs, the mother told her son that she would like to hook some like them, and he being somewhat of a joker asked her why she didn't "hook" one of those. Probably you are all familiar with the H L hinges used in the olden times, but like myself have never heard the origin of their name. We were told here that the name came from the expression "Holy Lord."

Many rooms in the inn, or I should perhaps say doors, have this style hinge. In several cupboards were ancient coat hangers shaped similar to our modern ones, but made from a thick piece of wood and having metal hooks. These were very heavy and cumbersome. Another object of interest was a waffle iron which consisted of two 6-inch squares of iron fastened together on one end and attached to a long handle that is about two feet long, and having an imprint like the waffle irons of today. It must have taken some time to cook waffles enough to satisfy the appetites of a large family such as most every one had in those days, for instance Paul Revere, who was the father of sixteen children.

The hostess told us that about two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge spent a week end at the inn in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary. As the inn is closed to visitors on Sunday, the Coolidge's had the place to themselves, and in accordance with their own wishes, ate lunch which was cooked and served to them in the small kitchen.

Mrs. Coolidge said it was the most delightful experience that she had ever enjoyed. The regular dining rooms, one large and one small where tourists are served dinner looked very attractive and homelike with the light from the cheerful fire in the immense fireplace, shining on the lovely decorations of autumn leaves and the beautiful pieces of pewter displayed on the buffet. But the way, the collection of pewter in the inn is considered a most complete and attractive one and the pieces are all in use today. Letters and documents framed and hung on the walls in the various rooms are exceedingly interesting also the beautiful antiques with which the inn is furnished. This inn was owned for many years by the How family, spelled How, and upon the death of the last member of it, who was a bachelor, in 1860 everything was sold and became scattered, but through the efforts of Henry Ford, most of it was found and returned to the inn making of it a wonderful and thrilling place for an interested person to visit. Of course we inspected the grist mill and the little red school house where "Mary and Her Little Lamb" went to school. Ravena described this to you.

My husband just inquired if we were ever to have any dinner and I find that I have been sitting here three hours or more with no thought of anything so commonplace as food. My mind is filled with the beauties of the Wayside inn which Longfellow tells us about so delightfully in his "Tales of a Wayside Inn" and which I hope many of you will visit sometime if you haven't already done so.

A stay of several days would have suited us perfectly, but our vacation was most over, so reluctantly we turned our backs upon the enchanting and picturesque old house in its setting of beautiful trees and turned our faces toward home, reaching our own door at 4.30 on Saturday afternoon. Just one flat tire, the only unpleasant happening in the 1,100 miles.

Ravena: Will not be able to spend the day with you as I planned but hope to meet you somewhere in the near future. Please write to me. That you may have a successful meeting Tuesday is the sincere wish of LEE, (Club 4).

COLLOQUIAL PROBERBS

Dear Social Corner Friends: The reading of an article on the origin of proverbs, or adages has led me to wonder if there is such a thing as colloquial proverbs. Do you know of any saying commonly used in your neighborhood, which is native to it? If you do, I wish you would tell me about it, and about its history. Perhaps Quid Nunc knows of some.

This same article says that mankind likes to have its wisdom presented in potted form and it is because of this, that we hear these proverbs quoted and requoted so many, many times all down through the centuries.

You've noticed, haven't you, how some authors rely on sayings to make their characters seem more real? They overdo it sometimes and one becomes tired of the stereotyped conversations that result. And yet we do meet people whose conversation is chiefly composed of slang and current cracks.

Sister Rhody will be interested to know that I have been reading "Whiteoaks of Jalna." The copy which I borrowed had either been handled a great deal or else very roughly for it looked as if it had been through a war or two. The amusing thought came to me that it looked quite as if the Whiteoak family had been reading it! But don't you love them in spite of all their faults, and aren't they interesting? Someone said last winter that they were thankful that the Whiteoaks weren't real people and that they didn't have to have them for neighbors. But I think a good deal of their individuality lay in the cleverness of the writer, don't you? Maybe she could write a book about you and me and make it just as thrilling! But I'd hate to have anyone know that it was about me.

A girl friend speaks of "Pride and Prejudice" in a recent letter. She says, "I have not vituperative words in my vocabulary to adequately express my profound contempt for that book." Now, I have simply got to read it, if for no other reason than to see why she is so "prejudiced." And while we are still thinking about such things, I wonder if curiosity ever did kill a cat? I've never yet assisted at the funeral of such a cat. Have you?

If you will say mean things, talk to yourself.

What I kept, I lost.
What I spent, I had.
What I gave, I have.
  —Persian Proverb.

You can't whitewash yourself by blackening others.
Look before you leap; but don't look too long.
Distance proves the horse's strength, and time the heart of man.
  —Chinese Proverb.

SICKNESS AND DEATH IN CORNER

Dear Corner Folks: Just a short note this morning. How are you? What lovely weather, but, oh, how bad we need lots of rain.

Old Glory went over the Mohawk Trail Monday and said brooks and streams were dry, so it's everywhere that rain would be welcome.

Just received a card from Balsam Fir's hubby saying she was very sick but showed a little gain in the past three days. As an old writer and a former Norwich resident, I a k you Corner writers who care to, to send her a card or letter. Her address: Mrs. E. T. Libbey, Dry Mills, Maine.

My sympathy to Effie M's family in her recent death.

Bay State: Glad you weren't hurt in the accident. Missed you at the Buckingham. CALLA LILY.

Government agricultural experts say that hens that molt before September usually lay few eggs, whereas those that molt as late as October or November are usually very high producers.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AND FOREST FIRE

Dear Social Corner: First, I want to thank you for the "yellow slip." My excuse for not doing it before is that I am again roaming, this time at Colchester, once my home, where I came as a bride and spent many happy hours here. Since I came, I have been to a wedding anniversary of 30 years. There were 30 guests from Boston and many more from New York. The house was lovely with autumn leaves and streamers of red, yellow and brown with birds and butterflies all over everything. Great big pumpkins were each side of entrance.

A neighbor tried to burn up some rubbish and the fire got away from him and leaves and brush were burning. Our host, and men guests went after it, carrying water from the Jeremy river, that's now a brook. We went out to watch. It was quite a task to put out the fire, but the men were very jolly about it and thought they had something to tell when they got back to Boston about coming to a wedding and putting out a forest fire. We thought they should have a first page writeup in the Boston papers with full size picture dipping pails of water from Jeremy river.

The dinner scheduled for 8 o'clock was delayed until 10. It was a grand dinner of chicken, roast beef and all the things that go with them. We all had paper hats and the bride of 30 years, with her hat with long streamers and white dress, looked like a little girl.

What's the matter with the sisters? Such few letters! And new members every week. It would be terrible to lose our Corner. One sister says her "letter wasn't right." They made me say I liked "hard work" instead of handwork. I just hoped someone would believe it. I don't see how they ever read the letters. We don't all write alike, I know it takes patience to read some of them.

I think the yellow slip should go to the proofreader or whoever has to read them. Written right or wrong the letters are fine, only too few.

Wish someone would tell us about things to make for Christmas. It will soon be here. I'll try to in my next letter.

I like to try new recipes and I make glorified ginger bread every week when home.

I wonder if rug makers know you can buy lovely colors of jersey cloth and wool at a dress factory by the pound, in long strips or uneven pieces, very soft to braid or draw in. Hope we have a full page this week. SUSANNA.

GOOD CITIZENS

Dear Social Corner Friends: We must not forget that the strongest reasons given against giving woman the ballot were that she had not yet made good in her own especial work, and was not considered to be civic-minded enough to take an equal place with men as citizens. And they have not yet changed their opinions, women are still blamed for the failure of child development.

They say women have not yet brought their minds out of the purely individual system of caring for just their own. And not often do we find that even her own has been properly developed and prepared for life. The test is in the results. It is new and hard for a woman to plan and work with system. But if affairs are ever to be well done more and more responsibility must be taken over by the women. Their influence could bring to pass all the changed conditions so much needed now in this age. They only can see that all the children in their community are started with the right ideas, that all of them are trained to respect the rights and property of others.

We were interested in the case of the widowed mother who lost her compensation and her children, because she neglected to obey requirements. But the community should have held that nurse to making her succeed, it was easier to fail than to patiently train the mother. The nurse should have shown and compelled the incapable mother how to clean her house, and to teach her children proper behavior and to prepare suitable foods to give them each meal. The nurse was a failure, the mother was a failure, but if the community had been doing its duty as citizens, neither would have failed.

It is absurd to go on not having the best ways used and good results obtained.

The majority of children and adults have very little more idea of responsibility than animals, they just imitate more or less the crowd they happen to be with.

I sometimes wonder that any young person knows how to think or what to do now. Just as we thought that schools and everything had been so much improved and made superior, we began to realize that the children were not getting the benefit we expected from them, and we began to understand that it was because of the fact that children were not getting the mental development from infancy to school age that they had previously had.

We must keep the child coming, he must be allowed and helped to do and to know as fast as it is natural.

Parents wonder why their child finds it difficult to learn to read in school. The trouble is that he should have begun to learn to read as soon as he had learned to understand what he heard said. Then there would have been no trouble or hard work about it. If they had not allowed him to walk until he went to public school, he would have been helpless in body as well as in mind.

We can not help seeing that it is natural for an infant to learn everything he hears and understands, as natural as it is for him to walk.

See that he has his chance to develop naturally, physically, mentally and socially. MARJORY.

RECALLS GORGEOUS SUNSETS.

Dear Readers and Social Corner: Now that Jack Frost has done his worst, killed all the lovely flowers and soforth, a forerunner of King Winter's approach, of couse, we we must hurry and do the few last things, gathering apples, pumpkins and the last of the vegetables from the garden, carrots, beets, turnips, etc. We have 250 bushels of corn in the crib which meant work for some one else besides yours truly. Several bushels of different kinds of beans in the pod are stored and that calls for an invitation for my friends and neighbors to drop in some evening and help shell and gossip. You may eat apples and crack walnuts when the shelling of beans gets monotonous.

About 75 people showed their interest in the Shore Line club. Tuesday, when they assembled at Grange hall, North Stonington. As usual a bountiful dinner was served consisting of baked beans, brown bread, different kinds of salads, rolls, escalloped potatoes, Macaroni, cheese, cakes and pies, and coffee. Lauret was a charming hostess. Shortly after dinner the program was announced with Ravina a secretary. B Natural had charge of the program in which she must have spent a great deal of time and thought.

Her willing helpers gave the attentive audience, solos, readings from humorous authors and a very interesting and instructive description of the Christian Endeavor Conference abroad, given very cleverly by Miss Shreader of Mystic. The hours of pleasure and recreation for that day soon came to a close and we all hope to meet together next month in Westerly. The time and place will be announced later.

So many wonderful descriptions of the foliage have been sent to these columns, much better written than I could ever write that there is not much more to write about. Only I wonder how many have noticed the most beautiful sunsets. I recall the first week in September on a Wednesday evening the sky was most gorgeous. Ribbons of colors that stretched across the western sky away around the northern horizon. Then last week another such beautiful painting was set before us, many times handsomer than the most skilled artist could ever hope to do.

When I see these beautiful paintings on the sky I stop whatever I am doing and watch and watch as gradually those colors change and fade out and at last but only in a few short moments our sky painting has the shades of night drawn over all the horizon. To me these paintings are more wonderful on both sky and trees than the most celebrated paintings because I know no human hand has painted them or ever can. I pity the blind and the shutins and all those who are unable to see the beauty of Nature. PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

CANNING AND HOUSECLEANING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This is Tuesday night and will write a letter to help fill up the Social Corner page. It's been quite empty the last couple of Saturdays.

I canned 100 jars besides jelly and marmalade which made about 50 glasses, all sizes and shapes, and thought I had done a terrible lot, but I read where some one else canned 400 jars. Well, it's the most I've ever canned at one season for I have no garden and have to buy everything and it sure does count up.

I have only two rooms cleaned but only four windows left to wash. Have been busy painting the flower pots orange and they look real nice with the green plants. I had to let the dirt in the pots get dry so the paint could soak in and put on a second coat of paint the next day. Then I skipped another day before watering them. I used a half pint can and did two ten-quart pails, two coats and about 15 pots all sizes from eight-inch to the smallest. I have three to put the second coat on. I also used it to decorate the brush dustpan and poker handle. The other parts are painted a French gray.

American Girl: Two years ago I had the pleasure of visiting the same duck farm. It's in Wrenthem and called the Weber Duck farm. I have just received an answer to my letter asking if I could buy some of the down duck feathers. They are the best and they are 90 cents per pound.

Wish some of the sisters would write about their radios. There must be quite a few who have one. We had made up our minds to get one. My husband thinks one style is very good but I would like a lowboy.

Well, Jack Frost is here once again, though I have picked two dandelion blossoms this week and saw another today near my kitchen window where it gets the morning sun. There are roses in bloom in the back yard. They are lovely red ones and the blossoms are much prettier the last three weeks than all summer. The bush was set out a year ago last spring. It does not belong to me. My own house plants are losing all their nice leaves since I brought them in.

Here's hoping that those out of work will soon have work. I know of a case where the people are selling their household goods to get money for food. The father has been out of work all summer.

Sorry to read of more Social Corner members passing away. Hope the sick and shut-ins will soon be able to get out. LADY SLIPPER.

PREPARING FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Social Corner Friends: The letter writers seem to have come back and we are glad.

Pernickety: I like your good letters and am interested to hear about your course of reading, too.

Reading has always been one of my greatest pleasures. I like books and newspapers and magazines. The letter gives us all the latest ideas and new ways of doing things, so I try to look through most of the magazines and read as much as I have time in all.

I would like to have the address of the "Ex-Army Nurse" reprinted, as some one would like to write to her, and my copy seems to have disappeared.

Christmas used to be a time of last minute rush and hustle for me and I always got too tired to enjoy the many affairs that always came off during the holiday season. Now that I have my Christmas box to fill, the selecting of choice articles to add to my collection furnish me much pleasure and interest throughout the entire year and never becomes tiresome.

I start my collection immediately after the holidays and very much enjoy selecting the many inexpensive articles and knowing how much pleasure they will give the little ones.

You can be a fairy father or mother to some of the neglected children if you do not have small folks of your own to do for. Christmas should be a time of joy for every child.

I always wish then that I were a millionaire, that I might be able to buy and give thousands of new wagons, sleds, bicycles, skates, dolls, etc., besides shoes, coats, and clothing to those who lack.

Those who have more money than children could get unbounded happiness in bringing joy to those whose lives are stinted of the ordinary gifts and pleasures that everyone should have. Handsome dolls, pretty materials for making all kinds of fancy work, carpenter's tools and materials and paterns for making toys and useful articles, are always much appreciated gifts.

A bookcase for the small child to keep his toys in and later his books is a good investment. One can be made very inexpensively from boxes placed one above another and more added as the child gets older and has more possessions.

Many children prize most the gift of money that will make possible the posession of something they have long been saving up for.

A new pencil box, a new kind of toy airplane, an addition to their train of cars, a steam engine, give joy to the little fellows.

Begin early to plan and select all your gifts then the holiday season will be a happy, restful time for you, too, instead of one of weary relief after the last minute rush to get things done as we usually make it.

The community Christmas plans should especially take into account how many more men are out of work or only having part time work this year. This adds seriously to our problem as to what and how we are to help make better conditions for them now. IMPROVEMENT.

COMPLETING FALL GARDEN WORK

Dear Social Corner: What a nice frosty morning! Yesterday noon when William and I were out walking, we noticed a light skimming of ice on the pool below the bridge. But it was not cold enough to keep us from digging in the dirt. After dinner we got right busy and set out a bed of 14 hardy phlox plants. Digging the holes we found dry dirt less than a foot down.

There are several varieties of phlox in my garden and my favorite is a bright pink whose large florets are streaked with white. These needed moving as they had not been re-set since I started my perennial border almost five years ago. We set out ten clumps of this kind and three others, a pure white, a bright red and a white with a red eye. The later is called Europa. Then we found another white one that was being crowded out by its neighbor, pink physostegia, so we moved that. Maybe you will think I am superstitious because I added this fourteenth plant.

My lemon lilies did not bloom last June so I moved them and put them near some blue iris where they should have been set when Pernickety gave them to me. The catalogue name for these lilies is flava hemerocallis and they are the old-fashioned kind that are seen in so many gardens. The other varieties of day lilies do not seem to be so well known. By chance I have five kinds that furnish a succession of bloom. After flava comes an orange variety and then a dwarf yellow one. The next is a tall, large flowered orange with darker shadings; and the last one is the same except that it is double.

Do you use chives to flavor soups and salads? I took up a clump of these to grow in the house during the winter. Their double lavender blooms are an addition to the garden in the spring and when visitors ask what they are I tell them to take a smell. My next task was digging up the tubers of madeira or mignonette vine and storing them in the cellar. This vine is a rapid grower and in the fall it has fragrant feathery white flowers. Near it I had a cinnamon vine but that did not bloom.

Does Pernickety want us to think that she is through gardening and that she is going to play lady and read books all winter?

Eveline Burr: How far is a few miles? I have a sister in your town and when I visit her I have to travel about 15 miles. Perhaps you and I have common acquaintances.

Sumac: I enjoyed your account of a visit to pomona. Were you at Edgewood last Saturday night? They had an interesting program but it lasted until midnight. I cannot tell you about Durham but am looking forward to the next conference for it is to be at Storrs.

And now I must hustle and get the house cleaned up before going to the city for dinner. We are celebrating our wedding anniversary today. SISTER RHODY

"COMIN' THROUGH THE RYE"

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: In reading the Monday Evening Record, the undersigned came across this item: "In Burns' poem, 'Comin' Through the Rye,' what is meant by rye, a river or a field of grain? While it seems evident that the River Rye is referred to, the editor of the Scottish American has decided that a field of grain is meant." Evening Record, Oct. 20, 1930.

Having always been an admirer of Burns, it has been my privilege some years to become acquainted with the locality which inspired the poet to write the verse. Many mistaken ideas have been formed with regard to the subject of the song. The Rye referred to is not that variety of grain which is grown in some parts of Scotland and Scotch farmers are not so easy going as to permit either Jennie or Jock to go hilter-skilter through their fields of growing grain. The Rye referred to in the song is the River Rye—a small river in the south of Scotland. There is no bridge over the river and the method of getting across or through it is by stepping stones. When the river is in flood the water would be about level with the top of those stones. Jenny, the heroine of the song, had a lover who lived on the opposite side of the Rye, and their trysting place was on the bank of that river. It seems that this young man was not very punctual at the meeting place, and Jenny, consequently, had often to cross over the stepping stones to meet her sweetheart, for we read that

"Jenny's often wet, puir body,
  Jenny's seldom dry.
She draiglet all her petticoatie
  Coming through the rye."

That is a wonderfully comprehensive word, that Scotch word "draiglet." It is not dripping wet and it is not dry, but a sort of clammy condition—half and between wet and dry: and we must assume that this particular garment of Jenny's attire was worn a little longer in those days than it is at present. It would frequently touch the surface of the water as she went through the river to meet her swain. The question is often asked why Jenny is described as "coming through the Rye." This is just an old Scotch expression. If a person got to the other side of a river by bridge or ferry they are said to have crossed the river. If the river is small and they get to the opposite side by wading through or stepping stones they are said to be coming through the river. But these are scenes of bygone days, and we may safely conclude that if Jenny had been alive today and had occasion to cross the Rye and had been dressed in the prevailing fashion, she would not have draiglet all her petticoatie coming through the Rye.

Best wishes to all the Corner sisters. CASSAGNAC

FOLDING A BEDSPREAD

Dear Corner Members: E. L. M. asks if the ink is all dried up and why the members don't write. With me now, I have plenty of ink, but the ideas seem dried as—I can't seem to think of anything interesting to write about. Nevertheless I'll try to send something so as to help my membership.

It looks as if our beautiful warm days are of the past and I'm sorry. Jack Frost has touched everything about our place. No doubt, when we grow accustomed to the colder weather we shall enjoy it more, but Beth C. and I don't care very much for cold weather.

So many have written of their auto trips, fine letters all and very interesting. I was especially pleased with Ravena's letter, telling of The Wayside Inn as I've always wanted to go there.

We had a nice ride one Sunday during the summer to Wauregan and returning came through Sterling. Every flower garden I saw, I wondered if it was Pernickety's.

Theoda: We had lovely blossoms from the plants, or rather seeds, that you sent me. All bloomed but daisies and I think they had too much shade. I have a bouquet now of the gilia and marigolds with it, a pretty combination.

American Girl: Your letter of Boston trip was fine. How I'd enjoy going there. I sent the letter to a lady who will enjoy it as she was one of the party.

Skipper: Were you tired after the party? We had a lovely time.

E. L. M.: Is the rib knitting? Hope it doesn't drop a stitch but think your doctor looked out for that.

Rose Lee: We never hear from you. How are you?

Cosmos: Hope you got home all right. Many thanks.

Wonder how many fold their bedspreads as I do. I don't care to take it off every night and it gets dreadfully mussed if just thrown over the foot board. So I bring the top hem down, straight across, even with the foot board, then take one corner of the folded spread and bring that corner down to the middle of foot board which gives a bias fold on the spread, then I do the opposite corner the same which leaves the spread in shape of a triangle. Now take and throw the folded spread over the foot board, the pointed end will hang quite low, the sides all folded in nicely it never falls off and never wrinkles much. Best wishes to all. O. D.

OLD COLONIAL HOUSE.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: May you who like the old houses and relics of olden times just try to picture the pleasure I had in going to East Matunuck. There is in fine condition even after the many changes and natural wear, a fine old house built in 1696. Yes, really, and it's wonderful. The beams are one foot square, the rafters six inches square. It's of course made with wooden pins and hand-made nails. There is in the cellar the old dungeon where their unruly slaves were put. This is about seven feet long by 10 feet wide and seven feet high. It's built of brick. There is an old steel or iron door with air holes. The whole house has wonderful carvings. The bannister on the stairs is like a large corkscrew. The parlor has a fine arch cupboard, engraved. The room has many panels on which there are two that had George Washington and Martha's pictures painted. All of the rooms still have fine carvings. The large chimney is in fine condition. There are four large fire places.

There was at one time about 2000 acres to this old homestead. There is a fine pond that is on the side, really a cove of the great Atlantic ocean, so the fishing, etc., is still fine there. In the old cemetery one finds where there were many personal slaves buried with the family. The old stone steps are still doing duty and as one goes over them they are reminded of the wonderful changes that have taken place since the house was built. Hoping all doing fine and getting ready for the winter. GREEN HOLLOW.

CLUB 4 MEETS AT PUTNAM OCT. 30.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been some time since Corner 4 had a picnic. So it has been decided to have one at the Methodist church Thursday, Oct. 30th, at Putnam, Conn.

Bring something to eat, with plates and cups the same as we always do and something for entertainment. All Cornerites are invited to attend. More the merrier. A yellow bow will tell the way. ROSALIND.

RAISING CHICKENS

Dear Editor, Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: Look at who's here, old man Wylie, hale and hearty. I'm hearty alright, but not very hale. Been going upstairs on my hands and one leg, the knee gave out on the other. I guess I did too much kneeling in my garden.

Well, it's all over now, no more fighting potato bugs or tomato worms. I had a good crop. My potatoes are large, white ones, very fine eating. I had over 100 poles of beans; they were the finest I had seen. Then came dry weather and they stopped midway of the poles. They looked like a trimmed hedge.

I had about 75 chickens, just as a tryout. I'm in the hole about $5 a chicken, excepting those I have eaten. We had 37 roosters. If these had been uniform in size I would have sold them together. As it is some are very small and crooked. Some, when they walk, hop like toads, others cross their legs at every step in trying to keep their balance. Others are struting around with a wing so out of place they keel over. One large rooster has his tail so bent that it throws him out of plumb. He has the appearance of having stood on the northeast corner in a wind storm. This rooster is a beauty if one takes the right view of him. If he lives I will take him to Springfield fair, but I will first make a stall for him to be exhibited in where only the best part shows. My, but chickens can eat. They eat quarts and quarts of grain and yet they fight and crowd and hang around the door for more.

I'd rather keep a hog, though I tried that part of farming once. I bought two pigs and fed them all they could eat. One died of indigestion. We cut him open and he had a half bushel more of potatoes in his stomach than I had fed him, they swell so. Well, on the other, I made just $4 when I sold him in the spring.

I had better success selling cider vinegar. We had many apple trees. It costs little to have the apples ground and it is no trouble. The cider in casks is stored in the cellar. By spring I sold all I had at a good price. The vinegar was dark in color and very strong.

Today we have had our first rain for which we are very grateful. Wells are dry; even the old watering trough is dry. Some have sold off their stock for lack of water. The wind is coming strong today and the leaves are falling fast. That's a job I hate. Our yard is just full of trees and such a mess cleaning them up with nowhere to put them. I used them when living on a farm for bedding for our stock. I stored up all I got hold of, taking a day when there was almost no wind. I raked them up in a pile. I used a discarded ticking case of a feather bed. One side of the opening I pinned to the ground with wooden pegs, propping open the other side of hole with a string tied to an iron bar stuck in the ground in the rear of ticking. Then with a snow shovel I filled the bag. It is not heavy, even when full. Biddy Ann would take the ends of the corners and I the other two, carrying the load into the barn to a box stall, dump them and go for some more. They lasted all winter, using them generously. I like my stocq to have plenty of bedding.

I like summer, but like winter, too, with lights and cosy chair, bright fires, a good book or an easy couch, with a radio programme coming in. My first radio was a battery set. We got all the stations from coast to coast direct, but try and keep 'em after you had 'em. I like Amos 'n' Andy. They are sometimes silly, but that's the part I like. I am almost sure they are the most popular artists on the air. In our home town hundreds gather in front of the stores to hear Amos 'n' Andy. In the city it's just the same excepting the crowd steps into the places in front of the stores which allow them to hear, and do not obstruct the sidewalk. Cheerio is my favorite. His little sermons are fine. I am in low

LIQUOR VALUED AT $50,000 ON BOARD RUMBOAT HELEN SUNK OFF WATCH HILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 24.—A coast guard action was staged off Watch Hill at the east entrance to Fishers Island sound in the early hours of Friday morning when a large and speedy rum-runner was riddled with shot and forced to beach near Napatree Point, on the bathing beach at Watch Hill. A second speedboat, the Pueblos, said by Commander Michael J. Ryan, executive officer at the coast guard base on the state pier at New London, to have been acting as decoy, was chased into Stonington harbor after it had vainly attempted to enter the shallow waters of Little Narragansett bay at Watch Hill, was seized and taken to New London with its crew for questioning. On the beached boat, a 65-footer, Helen of Newport, R. I., there was taken off a crew of three men and on their way to New London, Commander Ryan of the base refused to state their names, but said they were to be taken to Providence for a hearing. The commander stated that as far as he knew the men were uninjured by the gunfire.

The contraband cargo of the rum-runner contained in the rear and forward compartments consisted of nearly 1,000 cases of liquor, also a deckload of some 47 cases all tied in burlap sacking. Soon after the boat was beached, pounding waves washed three cases overboard and they were salvaged by Capt. Streeter and crew from the Watch Hill station. From the deck the Watch Hill coastguardsmen also took some 44 cases, all being taken in the cutter to the Watch Hill station and placed under lock and key. The sacking was marked "Golden Wedding," "Bourbon Whiskey," "Old Kentucky," "K. R.," "Log Cabin," "Indiania," "P" and "C. H." A conservative estimate of the value of the liquor was well over $50,000. There was some supposition that this cargo on the runner picked up first about ten miles off Block Island, was bound for Stonington, and in Stonington many residents heard the early morning firing.

Capt. George W. Streeter of the coast guard station at Watch Hill said that he first learned of the Watch Hill rum battle when Surfman Manuel Sousa, on duty in the coast guard tower at the Watch Hill station, first saw the shooting about 1:50 a. m. At that time the speed boat was headed in from Montauk Point by Watch Hill reef with C. G. No. 290 from Block Island sound in pursuit. The sound of the firing of shots from the one-pounder deck gun attracted the attention of two other coast guard boats in the vicinity and they converged on the rum-runner, which was sailing without lights and refused to stop when ordered. From Long Island sound came C. G. No. 289 and then from Fishers Island sound loomed C. G. No. 148 and the skipper had only the beach before him, for which he headed without hesitancy. All this time the other boats fired on the boat as it neared the beach, outlined in the searchlights of the government boat. Higher up than the hull of the low, rakish craft machine gun bullets peppered the rum-laden boat. One shot put a small round hole through the port window light of the pilot house, another tore through the single spar and several went into the heavy side walls of the pilot cabin, the doors of which apparently had been sheathed and double planked. A pound shot hit and splintered a wooden deck mooring bit, skipped across the forward deck, gouging out deck planks in three places as the shot skipped off the bow of the rum boat. At close range all but G. G. 290 held their fire but before this a deck dory had shot pass in one side and out in several places. Crossing the reef at Watch Hill to reach the beach it is thought that some of the underplanking of the motorboat, valued at over $65,000, was loosened and with the strong south wind and high tide which followed, the rum-boat pounded on the small rocks off the beach and some of the underplanking loosened floated ashore.

On the approach of the crew of C. G. 290 the three men on board the beached craft readily surrendered and were taken on board to be taken to New London. During the bombardment the Watch Hill coast guard patrol returning to the Watch Hill station house reported many of the shot and bullets from some 500 rounds fired as whizzing overhead. Captain Streeter immediately manned his coast guard boat, also had all of his crew come on duty to prevent the escape of the rum-runner's crew ashore.

Watch Hill Light Keeper L. H. Congdon on duty first saw the beginning of the battle about 1:46 a. m., and as far as was known no shots were fired in return by the rum-runners. Across Little Narragansett bay at Foster's Point resides Capt. Chrystie McConnell, formerly of the Westerly Coast Guard Artillery company and airplane pilot who saw much service in the World war. He was awakened with other members of his family, whom he had removed to the rear of his home as his house was in the line of fire. He described the three lighted C. G. boats and the quarry outlined in the searchlight beam. He also saw the light from the tracer bullets used which he saw dropping into the waters of Narragansett bay in line with his home. Even across the waters of the bay, Captain McConnell said the bullets would have power to pierce a window glass and wound anyone looking out. The height of the firing he said was about 1:46 a. m., and also he went to his telephone and called George W. Hoxie, Watch Hill fire chief and also agent for the Napatree Point Corp. property at the site of the old Fort Mansfield reservation, towards which some of the shooting had been directed.

After the 75-foot C. G. boats left the waters off the bathing beach at Watch Hill, C. G. 148 went around Napatree and Sandy Points into little Narragansett bay to wait a change of wind and weather. Shortly before 2 p. m., the "148" again went off shore near the stranded rum-boat and Captain Streeter with cutter, dories and crew came from the Watch Hill coast guard station with the 47 cases and both the Watch Hill coast guard crew and the crew of the Quonochontaug coast guard station under Capt. Arthur Larkin, began the arduous work of transferring the burlap cases to the C. G. 148, which also sent a crew and dory to the Helen, which lay astern on the beach with bow down, as the forward compartment was filled with water. The men in the holds labored in long boots and oilers in taking out the cases to the deck, from which the transfer was made to the dories. News that a rum-runner was ashore at Watch Hill reached Westerly and while the transfer was being made some 30 automobiles were parked on the Mansfield reservation back of the wooden bulkhead and the occupants cast longing eyes on the wet goods.

The cargo of the Helen proved too much for the 75-footer and a 100-footer was sent to the scene from New London with a small scow in tow, arriving off Napatree Point about 4 a. m. The process of transferring the liquor cargo was not completed until after dark. It was not until the cases had been all taken out of the hole that the extent of the damages to the hull can be ascertained and plans will be continued today (Saturday) for getting the boat off the beach before another storm develops and the craft goes to pieces.

HOPKINTON MAN FINED FOR KILLING WOOD DUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 24.—Judge Oliver H. Williams held regular Friday morning session of Third district court. On complaint of R. I. State Trooper Albert L. Taylor of the Hope Valley barracks, Peter Miron, of Richmond, R. I., pleaded guilty to intoxication and, found guilty, was sentenced to pay costs.

On the complaint of killing a wood duck, William Erbig, of Hopkinton, was brought before the court by a deputy bird commissioner, Frank D. Newton, of Ashaway, R. I. On his plea of guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs.

Phillip L. Brundage, after several court continuances, changed his previous plea of not guilty to a charge of drunken driving to one of nolo, the last continuance having been last Wednesday when he indicated that a change in plea was desired. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Clark Shippee, of Hopkinton, was fined $5 and costs when he pleaded guilty to setting a fire in the open air without first having obtained written permission from the forest warden of the town of Hopkinton.

A state trooper stated that Shippee had a fire going both sides of the Nooseneck Hill road, near the Charles Hall place, formerly the Flint farm. Shippee told the court that he was instructed by Mr. Hall to start the fire. He said there had been a rain storm the day before and he could see no harm in starting the fire, which was located in a ditch. He paid the fine and costs and was discharged.

WEDDING

Mitchell—Bebbington

Wequetequock at noon Friday was the scene of a pretty wedding when Asher Carl Eels Mitchell, son of Mr and Mrs. Harry R. Mitchell, at the home of his parents on Westerly-Stonington road, was united in marriage with Miss Millett Pickard Bebbington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bebbington of Fredericton New Brunswick, Can. The marriage was performed by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, the single ring ceremony being used. The bride was given in marriage by R. A. Van Ward of Providence. She was attended by Miss Alice Conrad of Halifax, Nova Scotia, as bridesmaid. The best man was Charles Cushman of Westerly.

The brides's gown was of white satin with tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and she wore a Chantilly lace cap. The bride's flowers were orchids with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid wore powder blue with hat to match and carried a bouquet of old fashioned flowers. The wedding was performed beneath a wedding bell under which the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, stood 36 years ago in the Congregational church. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Florence Larkin, organist at Christ Episcopal church.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. At the reception Mrs. John Bebbington, the bride's mother, wore green georgette, with hat to match, and carried talisman roses. Mrs. Mitchell, mother of the groom, wore black lace over old rose with hat to match, and carried talisman roses. The latter were assisted in the reception by Miss Annie Woodworth of Apponaug, who was the bridesmaid at the wedding of the groom's parents. Miss Woodworth wore gray lace over gray and carried talisman roses.

The bride has for three years been a nurse at the Westerly hospital and is a graduate of the Newport hospital and the Rhode Island hospital in Providence. Mr. Mitchell is a graduate of the Stonington high school, Mt. Hermon school, East Greenwich academy and was a student at Alfred university when he enlisted in the war. He was 18 months abroad in the submarine service. He is now employed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left on an automobile trip, upon the return trip from which they will make their home with Mr. Mitchell's parents on the Stonington road.

Laurence E. Millea, past exalted ruler of Norwich Lodge of Elks, was the principal speaker Thursday night at Elm Tree inn at the annual banquet of Westerly lodge, No. 678, B. P. O. E., of Westerly. The speaker outlined the growth of the order from its founding and explained the meaning of its four objects, charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity. He told of the vast charitable work being carried on by what he termed the greatest organization in the United States. Mr. Millea was introduced by M. Walter Flynn, exalted ruler, who acted as toastmaster and gave a resume of the plans of the order for the coming season. Norman C. Church, chaplain, was presented an award for winning the championship of the lodge in the golf tournament last summer. Past Exalted Ruler Harold F. Doyle made the presentation as chairman of the golf tournament committee, making an award to Past Exalted Ruler James McCormick as medalist of the tournament.

Captain Shelby C. Nicholas of the Westerly fire police had his garage at 40 Pleasant street entered in the early hours of Friday morning and an automobile owned by the Gulf Refining company was stolen. The theft was reported to the Westerly police shortly after 6 o'clock and around 9 o'clock the report came to police headquarters that the car had been found abandoned on the White Rock road.

H. P. Parrock returned to his home in Brookline, Mass., after being a visitor in Westerly for a few days.

Mrs. L. Ward Alger was a recent automobile visitor in Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Phetteplace of Pawcatuck were recent automobile visitors in Providence.

Queen Solomon's Choice

By FAY MULHOLLEN

DEMMY PLANS A STRANGE ADVENTURE AS A MEANS OF SELECTING A HUSBAND

MISS DEMARIS BLANTON sighed deeply and set the porch swing in motion.

"You must help me to choose between them, Norm," she said to the young man seated rather negligently on the railing.

"They're both paragons of sterling worth and upright manhood, I take it, to say nothing of their physical charms. Is that right?" Norm Mackay asked.

"Yes," sighed Demmy. "They're both so perfectly perfect."

Norm nodded thoughtfully. His own eyes were greenish, as Demmy had so often told him.

"If only," Demmy mourned, "one of them had a flaw! But both of them are perfect."

The two young gentlemen under discussion were acquaintances made by Demmy during a year in school in the East.

"The only solution I see," said Norm, who had lived next door to Demmy most of his life, "is to move to Afghanistan, or wherever it is that women can have several husbands—" He broke off. "Say, what's the idea in having them appear at the same time! Won't that be a bit embarrassing?"

"Yes," admitted Demmy, "but it wasn't my arrangement. Richard is stopping off on his way to the Coast, and Brant's got himself invited to visit Tom Harrison. He and Tom were friends at college. I'm not anxious to have the two of them on my hands at once—but they arrive together Monday noon."

"If you haven't enough sense to know which one you care for, the chances are you don't want either one of them. In that case I offer myself as a prospect and—"

"Oh, shut up!" said Demmy. "Whatever color scheme I choose, Norman Mackay," she went on with considerable emphasis, "it will certainly have no place for a red-headed husband!"

DEMARIS BLANTON was the only daughter of Kiah Rix Blanton. Yes, borax mines. The Blantons occupied a rambling old house of no particular architecture or pretentions, and the Mackay home next door was much the same. Norm Mackay's father had a cattle ranch to the south of the town of Twospot and owned the wholesale house which distributed merchandise to the northern part of the state. Twospot wasn't much more than its name—a town of around 5,000 inhabitants which nestled at the foot of Dead Mans Range. To the east and south lay the desert; Dead Mans Range was northwest.

Norman had been graduated from the State university, where Demaris had also gone for a couple of years. Then she decided she needed the refining influence of the east and spent a year in New York.

Now she was at home, with two suitors about to arrive. Both were charming, eligible young gentlemen, and Demmy couldn't make up her mind which one she wanted. Richard Avery would be a house guest of the Blantons, but Brant Jarvis would probably be around almost as much.

Demmy greeted Norman gayly the next morning. "I've thought of something!" she cried, just as though twelve hours earlier she had not parted from him in anger.

"Is that so? I hope you're right. What do you use to think with, anyway?"

But she was not to be squelched by anything Norm could say. "It's a perfectly dandy idea, Norm, honest it is, but you're so snooty I'm not going to tell you until it's all over and I've made up my mind."

"Do tell!" said Norman. "So you've learned to make up your mind as well as your face. These eastern schools must be good."

She looked up at him with a little frown on her pretty face. "You—you'll be nice to them, won't you, Norman? Show them around and sort of play host?"

"I'll do all I can to help, of course," he said rather formally. "Take them off your hands when you tire of them—either one or both—and all that sort of thing. What do you have planned for their entertainment?"

She made a little face. "Oh, a dance at the house. Western, you know, with everybody in chaps and sombreros and toting guns. Then down to the Bar L Ranch for a rodeo and end up with a trip up Dummuns Peak. We'll ride horseback up the peak and hike back down the trail."

"Think your Easterners will be able to stand that hike downhill?" he taunted her. He recalled later the queer way she answered him.

"That's what I mean to find out," said Demaris Blanton.

BRANT and Richard professed themselves amazed by the rodeo at the Bar L. A great crowd had driven down from Twospot, and there was twice as much barbecued beef as any one could eat, with coffee and buns in proportion.

Richard and Brant each resented the presence of the other in Twospot, but to date neither of them had managed to get Demmy alone. She was very elusive. Demmy was as sensitive to their reactions as a good pointer is to a bevy of quail and played one against the other with a finesse she had not known she possessed.

"You've got 'em both going good," Norm told her gruffly. She had chosen to sit by him on the return trip from the Bar L. "Now that you've got them where you want them, which one are you going to choose? This suspense is worse on me than it is on them."

"I told you," said Demmy, "that I had an idea."

"Yeh, you told me, but I've known you for twenty years on your next birthday, and to my certain knowledge you've never had an idea before. How do you know that's what it is? Maybe it's just a misplaced nightmare."

That's the way they'd talked to each other since they had learned how to talk.

"You wait and see. Richard is leaving next Sunday night, and I expect to announce my engagement at a tea Sunday afternoon."

"A tea! In Twospot!" Norman broke into scornful laughter, then caught himself. "You mean—you've decided on Richard?"

"No," Demmy sighed. "I haven't decided yet, but I'll know by Sunday afternoon."

Demmy was bubbling with a secret, all her own. She couldn't keep from showing her excitement. On Friday, when the crowd departed for Dummuns Peak, she was like a fractious horse on a frosty morning.

"Oh, I know it will work," she said to herself. "It's like something Solomon would have thought of if he'd had my problem put to him!"

There were an even dozen in the party and they reached the summit shortly before noon. There were three or four men already there, sent up to prepare the noon meal and to lead the horses back. They were to go the main trail, while the hikers followed a short cut.

Demmy was gay and sparkling, the center of every discussion, the very life of the crowd. They ate and laughed and talked. The men went on with the horses, but still the young people loitered. The view was magnificent, but the immediate location was nothing but a desolate mass of rocks, devoid of any vegetation.

It was Norman who finally suggested that it was time to be starting. "As it is, we won't get home until past sundown, and the sun doesn't set until around 8.30 at this season of the year."

They all sprang up, gathered their sweaters and other little belongings and set out. Demmy loitered along well to the rear, both Brant and Richard at her heels. She laughed and chatted with them impartially.

Presently Demmy exclaimed in pretended surprise: "Why, we're way behind the others! Let's hurry along and catch up!"

She almost chuckled aloud. They were more than just behind the others; they were off the trail entirely and headed back over the ridge to the wild northwest country beyond Dead Mans Range. Demmy herself had led them there, working back around Dummuns Peak, which towered high above other mountains of the range.

THIS was her secret, her method of choosing between them. She meant to pretend to be lost and see how they'd play up. She figured it would be simple enough to make a choice by, say, Saturday night. Simply choose the one who stood up the best, showed the most fortitude, stamina and initiative. They'd wander around tonight and tomorrow, and then she'd get back on the trail late the next afternoon. Of course, as yet neither of the men had asked her in so [illegible] marry him, but Demmy knew that that depended solely on [illegible] one of them long enough for him to get the words out of his mouth.

"I hope," said Brant, after they had trudged along valiantly for thirty minutes or so, "that you know where you are going. This doesn't look like a trail to me."

Demmy stopped and dubiously regarded the route they had been following. "I haven't been here for years and years," she admitted. "Maybe you'd better shout."

"Yes," put in Richard, "at the rate we have been going we ought to be near the rest of the crowd."

He and Brant lifted their voices in a prolonged shout, then listened. No answering shout came, only silence. It wasn't probable that any one could hear them, for they had been going in a direction opposite to that taken by the crowd, but Demmy breathed easier when the silence remained unbroken. It would be just like Norman to be trailing around after them.

"This doesn't look like a trail to me, either," said Richard after looking around a bit.

They had come out of the unwooded section above timberline and were in a heavily wooded portion, where the undergrowth was very thick. Demmy had merely been threading in and out, picking out the easiest passage.

Demmy glanced hastily at the sun; it was still well up in the heavens, and if either of them had any sense of direction at all her plan might be thwarted before it was well begun.

"Oh," said Demmy hastily, "I'm sure I can find the way down all right. These mountains are a little confusing, but we'll be back on the trail in no time at all! Follow me!"

She set out, walking as rapidly as the undergrowth permitted, but the country grew wilder and wilder, until presently progress became almost impossible. They were down in a canyon now, and the shadows were dense as night. Demmy looked up for the sun, but could not locate it. No matter how smart they were, she didn't believe either Brant or Richard could get them out of here before morning.

"Boys," she said in a frightened little voice, "I guess we're—lost." She sank down on a little clear spot. "I'm just worn out," she said.

Brant and Richard looked at each other, a kind of fear going over their faces. "We can't stay here," said Brant.

"The thing to do is to try to find our way back to where we were," said Richard.

"Let's get our bearings," said Brant. "I'm all turned around. Which is north, Demmy; do you think?"

Her forefinger stabbed the air, pointed, wavered and fell. "That way—no, perhaps—oh, I don't know. I'm so confused I don't know where I am. What are we going to do?"

"Retrace our steps," said Brant grimly.

"It's too dark and dangerous," protested Richard. "Demmy wouldn't be able to stand it."

"I think," said Demmy, "that we'd better spend the night right here, then when morning comes we can get our directions from the sun. Besides, if we start now we'll be traveling blind, and heaven knows where we'll get."

Richard agreed instantly, but Brant protested. "We can't have come far," he said, "and if we can only go back a little way we cross the trail."

"Fat chance," thought Demmy, but she said nothing. In the end they decided to camp where they were.

"There ought to be water around near," Richard remarked. "We're almost in the bottom of this valley or ravine."

"Canyon," said Demmy. "I scarcely think we'll find water here. These mountain canyons are for the most part utterly dry, though there are a few springs. It would only be sheer luck to run across one, though."

"Now for a fire," said Brant, rummaging through his pockets for a match. "Jove!" he exclaimed in dismay. "I'm out of matches!"

"Richard smokes," said Demmy.

"But I don't put my trust in matches, old fellow," he said a bit condescendingly to Brant. "I use a cigarette lighter. Here!" He drew it from his pocket and tossed it to Brant.

Demmy smiled inwardly. She had borrowed the lighter herself a few hours earlier and emptied out the fluid.

Brant gathered together a little mound of grass, covered it with sticks and still more sticks. Then he clicked the lighter with his thumb. There was no spark, no flame. He tried it again and yet again.

"Empty," he said a little dully, and his eyes met Richard's.

As a matter of fact, she had several matches in the pocket of her leather coat, but she didn't intend to use them. She likewise had two bars of chocolate, and these she produced.

"Here's my contribution to the commissary, boys," she said. "What have you to add?"

Brant had a package of mints and a half packet of cigarettes, while Richard had three cigarettes.

"Not much of a selection," said Demmy cheerfully, "and I hope you two had as much lunch as I did. You can have the chocolate bars if you want them, but I wouldn't advise it. You can die of thirst quicker than you can of hunger."

FOR the night they hollowed out little nests in the shelter of a rock and covered themselves with leaves and branches. In spite of the fact that it was June, it was very cold in the mountains and the trio spent a sleepless night. Once some nocturnal animal dislodged a stone from the top of the canyon wall, and it came clattering down, gathering momentum and more stones as it came. The whole miniature slide landed beside them. There were queer croaking noises and the eerie cry of the morning dove. Once Brant started up, shaken, and said: "What's that?"

The frightened scream of a woman echoed and re-echoed, then died away, to be repeated, nearer and more hair-raising.

"No, no," said Demmy. "Sh-h! It's a wildcat!"

"Some girl lost! I'm going to call out—"

Even Demmy was a little frightened, though she had heard wildcats crying in the night a dozen times before. She hadn't really planned on wildcats. Besides, when she heard them before there had always been some one around, Norman or somebody. Oh, of course, Brant and Richard were with her, but with little sense they'd shown she really couldn't depend on them for much help from wildcats. But after a few breathless moments the scream was repeated in the distance, growing farther and farther away, and Demmy sank back with a feeling of relief. As soon as morning came she'd hit out for the trail, she decided. One night like this was enough.

As soon as it was light the three rose from their sleepless bunks and tidied themselves as much as possible.

"My mouth feels fuzzy," grumbled Richard.

"My head is as light as a balloon in this altitude," said Brant. "Gosh, what wouldn't I give for a drink of water!"

"Let's get going," said Demmy impatiently. "We came over into this canyon somewhere yesterday, but I'm positive we couldn't scale the walls here."

THEY looked about. The night before it had been too dark to take much stock of their surroundings, but now they perceived that they were in a narrow canyon, the floor covered with interlaced shrubs and giant pines and spruce shutting off most of the sunlight. The walls of the canyon were precipitous. At a glance they could see it would be impossible to climb them.

"Couldn't we follow the canyon down into the valley?" asked Brant.

Demmy looked thoughtful. "We may have wandered around and got on the northwest side of the range," she said. "We'd better try to get back to Dummuns Peak. We can certainly find the trail from there."

They started up the canyon, but the going was difficult and the three were weak from the lack of two meals. Demmy kept a sharp lookout for the break in the canyon wall where they descended the previous day, but it eluded her, and at noon they came to the end of the canyon. A sheer wall of rock 500 feet high blocked their way. Above and to the left towered Dummuns Peak aloof and inaccessible.

Demmy was thoroughly frightened now. She knew the canyon they were in—the famous Devils Shoebox. All her life she had heard of it, but it had never occurred to her that she would get into it. Its very location was vague to her: "on the other side of the range." The convolution of the surrounding country made it simple to get into, but once inside it was next to impossible to find the one way out. Demmy did not tell her companions this. It had been so easy to come here: she recalled threading her way in and out among the shrubs, a gentle descent and then the canyon floor. Surely, surely, such an easy entrance could be found again! She fingered the matches in her pocket. If she sent up a smoke some forest ranger would see it and come. But she hesitated doing that. It was so silly for Demaris Blanton to be lost.

"We got in here," she said with determination, "and we'll get out again. We're going back down the canyon again and we'll test every place that looks as though we might get out on that ridge up there. If we do that, the rest is easy enough!"

The sun shone down on them hotly when they now and then emerged from the trees, and they suffered from lack of water. Demmy still had the chocolate bars, which no one cared to eat as long as there was no water.

It had seemed such a clever plan twenty-four hours earlier, but Demmy began to realize how thoughtless and cruel she had been. Her father and mother—and Norman—how frantic with worry they would be! And Richard and Brant! Suddenly she realized for the first time that for the last night and day they had been experiencing this same stark fear that possessed her. She felt sorry for them both, but she wished Norm were there. She wouldn't be frightened then, because he'd know exactly what to do.

She wasn't watching as closely as she should have been, and her foot slipped on a rock and down she went in a heap. There was a queer little crackling noise in her pocket.

"Hurt yourself?" asked Brant, halting, but too weary to assist her to her feet.

"No," said Demmy in a puzzled voice. "No, not exactly." She rose slowly to her feet and sniffed the air. She knew that odor, but—then she had it. Phosphorus! She realized very well what had happened without looking in her pocket to verify it. The matches had been ignited when she fell, but quickly burned out for lack of air. She had seen the same thing happen sometimes when a matchbox fell to the floor.

"Here! where's Brant?" Demmy asked suddenly. "Brant, oh, Brant!" she called.

"Here!" came a hoarse voice. "My feet are one solid blister, and I sat down to rest a minute."

"But we'll be separated," said Demmy. "You mustn't do that! Besides, we've got to push on until we find our way out or get water."

"I haven't the endurance of an ox," he groaned, but he got painfully to his feet.

It was Richard who paused next. "I can't go on," he said. "You two go on and leave me; I'm done up."

"Don't be silly," said Demmy crisply. "We'll sit down and rest until you feel able to go on." She sat down gingerly, for from head to foot she was in an aching mass of flesh and bone.

Alternately pleading and commanding, Demmy urged them on. It was nearing dusk when she found the way out of the Devils Shoebox. Nothing about it looked familiar, yet they must have come in this way. They had investigated the entire length of the canyon wall and this was the first break.

THE stars were out when they stood at last on the ridge a step nearer home. In spite of the thirst that made her voice hoarse and cracked her lips, Demmy was exultant.

"Now, a fire! They undoubtedly have searching parties out for us, and if we light a fire on this ridge here it can be seen for miles. Richard, where's your lighter? I've thought of a way to make it light."

"You should have had that thought this time last night," he said wearily. "I threw the darned thing away."

"Oh!" She hadn't counted on that.

It was too dark to continue, and they spent another night covered only with leaves and branches. Demmy slept from sheer weariness, then awoke to chatter and shiver in the icy breeze that searched her out under the leaves and branches and scattered her covering. "Why did I do it?" she asked herself over and over. Remorse had set in, not so much because of her own plight, but because of the two boys and the folks at home. "If I get Richard and Brant out of this, I'll never, never do such a fool thing again," she vowed.

She thought that when morning came it would be easy enough to pick out Dummuns Peak and make for it, but morning found the country wrapped in a heavy mountain mist. Physically it was refreshing, yet it goaded them, too—that odor of water. They gulped great mouthfuls of the moisture-laden air, but it only made their thirst more acute.

"Straight ahead," said Demmy.

"What do you mean — straight ahead? How do we know we aren't headed back the way we've just come?" said Brant.

"I mean up—we'll follow the ridge. Whatever we do, we mustn't go down again."

They followed along the ridge, faltering now and then, but keeping on and on. It was nearly noon when the mist cleared away, but they were still in the big trees and could get no clear view. Then they came out into a little clearing walled with trees. There was the hum of a motor and they glanced up to see an airplane flying comparatively low. Demmy jerked off her leather coat and waved it wildly, though she knew they'd never see that drab thing. She glanced at the boys.

"Brant," she commanded, "off with your shirt!"

"Wha'at?" he gasped. She flung down her coat and ran to him, her hands fumbling at the buttons of his shirt. He fought her off.

"Richard," he said in a shaken voice, "the girl's gone mad."

"I'm not," she cried. "We've got to have something white to wave at that plane. They'll never in the world see us otherwise."

By the time that Brant got it through his head what she was talking about the plane had gone on.

"Take it off anyway," said Demmy. "That plane or another may be back again." She turned her back. Her throat was dry; her lips bled when she spoke and her eyes burned. She had forgotten that she had led the boys into this in order to choose the one who would make the best husband.

In midafternoon they reached the timberline and could get an unobstructed view. Ahead of them rose inaccessible bluffs, the rim, which now and then to the right and to the left thrust itself up into jagged peaks. One was Dummuns Peak, but which? From this elevation all the peaks seemed relatively the same height and there was no familiar contour about any one of them to distinguish it from the rest. Dummuns Peak might be any one of half a dozen—either to the left or right. One thing was sure, they could not go straight ahead. They must have come in from the left.

She turned to Brant and Richard. "It's not far to the summit now," she croaked, "and the searchers will have a camp there."

She gritted her teeth and rammed her hands in her pockets. "Let's go," she said.

BRANT struggled to a sitting posture, but Richard remained stretched out where he had flung himself when they emerged from the trees. Demmy shook him, but he refused to budge.

"Let me alone," he snarled, glaring at her out of red-rimmed eyes.

"Help me with him, Brant," she pleaded. "We can't leave him here."

Brant lay down again. "I guess Richard is right," he said. "We might as well pass out here as a mile farther."

She urged him, desperately, begging, pleading, commanding, jeering, but it was a futile effort.

"If you want to go on," Brant kept saying, "why, go on." And presently he was saying, "Go on go on go on go on go on," monotonously and without a stop.

"What shall I do?" Demmy cried to herself. "I can't leave them here. I can't go on. Oh, what shall I do?" She was tired, too, tired to death, and thirst was a ravenous animal that clawed at her throat, but she wouldn't lie down and die. She stood on a rock and beat her fists together. And then, when the sun was low and she had despaired of making any plan, she saw Norman, his red hair aflame in the sunshine. She brushed her eyes at first. Seeing things! She'd be as bad as the boys in a moment or two. But when she looked back, Norman was still there. He was shouting. She tried to answer, but her voice was gone. She jerked up Brant's shirt and waved it, uncertain as to whether Norm had seen them or not. He shouted and waved in answer, then broke into a dog-trot. Good old Norm! There were tears in her eyes. Well, she could afford to cry now. Norm was coming.

"They've found us," she said in her cracked whisper. Magic words! Brant sat up, and Richard stirred.

"Well, well, well! Babes in the wood!" said Norman lightly, but his eyes were anxious, and there were new lines in his face that spoke of worry and sleeplessness.

Demmy moistened her lips with water from one of Norman's fat canteens and let a few drops trickle into her parched mouth. Richard and Brant would have guzzled a quart if Norm had not restrained them.

"Mustn't be piggish," said he. "Besides, you'll make yourselves ill!"

He produced matches and soon a great column of smoke rose to the heavens. "There's a camp up there about a mile," Norman reported. "We'll have help in getting these fellows out in a little while."

Brant and Richard lay stretched out, utterly given up to weariness. With rescue, there was no further need of exertion. But Demmy stood.

"What time is it, Norm?" she asked.

"Just teatime in Twospot, Miss Blanchard. Do you take lemon or cream in your tea? Dear, dear, I'm all aflutter to know which you've chosen, the blond or the brunette?"

"What are you gibbering about?"

"It was you yourself who said you meant to announce your engagement at a tea this very Sunday afternoon, and particularly invited me. Well, this is the time, here are the prospects, and I'm the guest. Which one fits the color scheme—the dark or the light?"

She tottered on her heels and a mischievous sparkle lighted her eyes. Her voice was cracked but very decisive. "I've decided on a red-headed husband," said Demaris.

His unbelieving eyes found hers and perceived she meant it. He grinned.

"Now, isn't it lucky that I never dyed my hair?"

A lachrymose prowler held up Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pollard in the lobby of their San Francisco apartment and robbed them of $8. With the money in his hand, he suddenly put his gun away and burst into tears. The Pollards consoled him as best they could. He finally promised to try to get over the grief his conduct had caused him and left—with the $8. The Pollards refused to swear to a complaint.

Controlled or muffled?

HERE is the 7-check test for tone control. First, does it add vividness to entertainment, permitting you to hear any program exactly as rendered within the broadcast studio? In other words, has the set a control that enables you to regulate tone to its full value? When you turn the control to accentuate the bass, does it cut out the trebles badly, causing speech to become muffled and unintelligible?

Exclusive Grebe Colortone emphasizes the high or low frequencies, as desired, to meet your preference. To determine how much it adds to your enjoyment of radio, hear Colortone in operation—then compare with sets featuring different methods of control. Ask your nearest Grebe dealer to demonstrate—and for a 7-check test list.

STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG ON FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEBACLE OF 1929

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(P)— The stock market selected the first anniversary of its 1929 explosion for another demonstration of its ability, upon occasion, to advance.

Aided by the optimism that emanated from the meeting of the steel producers and from a statement by a prominent figure in the automobile industry, the market rallied progressively throughout the day, stopping only momentarily when a mail order house passed its dividend, and then accelerating its advance to a strong close. Gains ranged from 2 to 9 points on a turnover of 2,761,000 shares, 800,000 of which changed hands in the last hour.

All groups participated in the recovery. Rails regained yesterday's losses, industrials and utilities were strong. There may be further liquidation overhanging the market, but the shorts today did not appear so sure of this possibility and moved to cover in some force.

High grade domestic bonds steadied. Latin American issues moved up briskly on the Brazilian coup, which many observers felt would clarify the situation in that republic. Grains eased slightly. Coffee futures broke a cent a pound but recovered. Cotton was again higher, rising 9 to 19 points.

The steel men expressed the opinion that the bottom of the depression was at hand, although they saw little prospect of much improvement until the first of the year. Several said price stability was the industry's most pressing need and some found that progress was being made in that direction.

The statement on the automotive business came from John J. Raskob, of General Motors, who said conditions were slowly returning to normal and that substantial improvement would appear in 1931.

Earnings reports from a dozen railroads showed September net of 10.2 per cent above the August figures, but 13.8 per cent under September, 1929. Weekly summaries of trade revealed some improvement, chiefly in retail buying which had been stimulated by cooler weather. Dun's noted "a slow and steady trend toward betterment" and emphasized the influence of "sales" on buying sentiment.

Thus the news of the day was largely constructive and the market chose to be cheerful. Steel shares went vigorously upward. The Van Sweringen rails, so soft yesterday, led their group and most of the Thursday losses were regained. Nickel Plate, Erie and Chesapeake and Ohio, gained 3 points, Chesapeake Corporation 5, Missouri Pacific and Allegheny Corporation 1, and Pere Marquette, 8. Atchison and New York Central, with 5 point advances, were also prominent. Union Pacific and Northern Pacific rose 3 and Baltimore and Ohio, 2.

U. S. Steel pushed across 150 for a net gain of 4 points and American Telephone got above 200 again. International Telephone, in sympathy with the rallies in securities having Brazilian connections, advanced 3. General Motors' response to Mr. Raskob's statement was a 2 point rally. General Electric, DuPont, Westinghouse, Standard Gas, American Power and Light, American and Foreign Power and American Water Works were up 3 to 5. Allied Chemical soared 9, Auburn Auto and Ingersoll Rand 5, Bethlehem Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Tobacco B, 2 and Michigan Steel, 8.

Montgomery Ward dropped to the new low of 20 1-4 on the emission of the dividend. Prior to the directors' meeting Wall street opinion had been divided as to whether the payment would be passed entirely or cut, and the action brought out considerable stock. At the closing price of 20 5-8, the issue was off 3 1-4. Sears Roebuck sagged for a time but recovered.

The day's losses in wheat averaged less than a cent. Selling was based on light exports and a bearish Argentine estimate. Corn was also off fractionally.

Foreign exchanges firmed, with small advances in sterling, the French franc and the mark, and a sharp upturn in the Spanish peseta.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—(AP)— Treasury receipts for Oct. 22 were $3,434,525.95; expenditures $11,581,724.46; balance $244,196,572.32.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(P)—A burst of buying in the last hour of trading sent active curb shares substantially higher today.

An upward trend was maintained most of the day, but trading was sluggish until mid-afternoon. Total sales were only 506,700 shares.

Utilities again led the advance, and much of the late buying appeared to be for short account. Indications of the ending of the Brazilian revolution sent American & Foreign Power warrants and Brazilian Traction up more than 2 points. Electric Bond & Share, parent company of American & Foreign, gained 3 points in active trading. American Gas & Electric rose 4.

United Light A advanced 2 points. It was reported that control of the company had been lodged with Continental Shares, an investment trust sponsored by the Eaton-Otis interests of Cleveland. These interests have been dominant in the company for some time.

Vacuum was a buoyant feature in the oils, rising 3 points. Gulf also advanced 3 points, and Imperial and International rose about a point each. Price changes in the Standards were largely narrow, but a steady tone predominated. In the natural gas shares, Lone Star rose 3 points, and Missouri Kansas Pipe Line gained a point.

Industrials and specialties remained sluggish, although a few worked higher in light trading. Aluminum Co. recovered 6 points, Driver Harris and Mead Johnson, 2 points. Courtaulds and Gramophone, principal markets of which are in London, rose 1 and 2, respectively. Deere mounted a point. In the chain stores, Walgren sagged 2 to a new low. Investment trusts moved narrowly.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Latin-American issues received new impetus today from the news that the revolt in Brazil had been successful. Apparently interpreting the overthrow of the government as a step towards stability in the South American republic traders were very active on the buying side.

Brazilian government, state and municipal bonds registered gains ranging as high as 11 points. Other Latin-American issues participated in the advance to a more moderate degree.

Liquidation of domestic bonds dwindled and the best grade issues reflected a better tone, although the continued decline in railroad bonds gave an irregular appearance to the group. Much of the improvement was attributed to the strong recovery of the stock market.

Prominent in the advance were the same Van Sweringen railroad and holding company bonds that broke sharply in the previous session. Convertible issues were the largest gainers. Allegheny Co. bonds of 1944, 1949 and 1950 rebounded 6 to 8 points. It became known that the company has on deposit as collateral securities whose value is more than 200 per cent of the value of the bonds outstanding while the indenture requires only 150 per cent. Chesapeake Corp. 5s advanced 3.

Mortgage issues of the group were irregularly higher. Missouri Pacific 5s of 77, rallied more than 2 points, and the 4s gained 3-4. Chesapeake & Ohio bonds were firm. Nickel Plate and Erie bonds were mixed. Erie 5s of 1967 and Nickel Plate 4 1-2s A reacted to new 1930 lows.

While there was some question of how the fall of the Brazilian government would be interpreted in financial circles here, it proved a bullish factor as it was recalled that the revolutionaries had previously announced they would stand behind the obligations of the government to foreign creditors.

Brazilian governments were very strong. The 8s advanced 5 points to 80, up 19 from its year's low reached shortly after the revolution broke out. The 6 1-2s were up about 2. Rio Grande Do Sul 7s and 8s rallied 3 and 4 points. Minas Geraes 6 1-2s soared 10 1-2. Pernambuco, Rio De Janeiro, Antioquia bonds joined the advance. Sao Paulo 7s moved up 11 1-2 for the largest gain of the day.

Argentine, Chilean and Colombian issues were in demand. Peruvian governments reacted 1 point and Buenos Aires 6 1-2s sagged 5 to a new year's low. In the domestic list such issues as American & Foreign Power 5s, and International Telephone 4 1-2s, bonds of companies with large interests in South America, advanced 3-4 and 1 3-8 respectively.

European bonds were comparatively dull and most of the activity was concentrated in a few government issues. Italian 7s and German municipal and industrial issues were higher.

There was a moderate inquiry for prime bonds and many registered fractional gains. An easy tone influenced railroad issues ranking below the best. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s gained 1 1-4 coincident with the announcement of the president that funds for payment of interest charges due Nov 1, had been set aside. Stock privilege and speculative bonds reflected the better tone of the share market. U. S governments moved higher on active buying.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.— (AP)— Despite promising rallies at times, cereal markets today failed to hold gains, and finished at lower levels as compared with 24 hours previous. Reports of cheaper offerings of Argentine and Russian wheat had a late bearish influence, and so likewise did indications of good progress being made by domestic winter wheat crops, especially in Kansas. Official announcement was received that Argentine wheat acreage was 1,177,000 acres larger than estimates heretofore called for, and that Australia also has a bigger acreage than last year, with crop prospects in both countries excellent.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2a3-4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-8a1 1-8c down, oats 1-8a1-4c off, and provisions ranging from 2c setback to an equal advance.

Provisions held steady in line with hog values, considerable buying of lard was credited to packers.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY IN NEW LONDON ENTHUSIASTIC FOR DEAN CROSS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24. — Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democratic candidate for governor, was greeted on his appearance here tonight at a rally by the largest audience ever assembled in Bulkeley auditorium. Dean Cross was accompanied to the auditorium by W. C. Fox, candidate for congress; Alton T. Miner, candidate for secretary of state; Chairman Keefe, of the town committee, and representative democrats. The orchestra of Bulkeley school played "Hail to the Chief," and the whole audience arose as the leading candidate appeared.

Chairman Keefe introduced Alton T. Miner as the first speaker, he occupying about ten minutes in presenting the platform of the democracy. He said the purpose of the party was to reduce taxes and to have a government not ruled by a boss.

Mr. Fox, the next speaker, was very facetious. He alluded to his service in the legislature and to the law experience he had had, answering the objection of the republicans that there were not men of experience on the ticket. He referred to the removal of men from the sub-base on the Thames, declaring that the base was established here by a democratic administration, Woodrow Wilson, president, and Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy. He spoke for about ten minutes and referred to some things not done by the present congressmen that should have been done.

Dean Cross was greeted by a volume of applause when he was introduced. He began by alluding to the statement of the republican chairman at the rally at Harvard quarters a few weeks ago when Rorabak referred to "professor someone or other." He said since his nomination he had spoken in many places in the state, before a few thousands or a few hundreds. Everywhere he found the same evidence of enthusiasm for the democratic candidates and ticket and claimed that if the people voted as they said they would, there would be no doubt as to the election of the democratic ticket. He said that the state senator, representatives and congressmen must also be elected. He claimed the republicans represented that the democrats had no constructive policy and the republicans took the policies that the democrats were advocating. The campaign, he said, had been pretty free of abuse up to this time but anticipated he would commence next week. In conversation with a republican of state-wide reputation, the latter said, he would advise not to take the allusion of Mr. Roraback to "Mr. Somebody or other" too seriously, for Mr. Roraback had found out who he (Dean Cross) was. In Suffield, he said, the republicans sent out the propaganda "We'll have no cross to carry in this election." Dean Cross did not regard this as a happy allusion, for the Man we all worship has his cross to bear. He likened the opponents to a blind man in a dark room looking for a black cat. He said that they called him a farmer. He was brought up in the country and he was there a great deal. He said they jostled him a great deal about prohibition. He declared that he advocated the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, because he regarded prohibition as a miserable failure and stated so point blank; but he respected the man who thought differently. He had no respect for the party that did not have the courage to say where it stood. He wanted the manufacture and sale of liquor returned to the state. He said there was no man on the republican ticket who had experience in statesmanship; their training is in politics. He declared Roraback, the governor of Connecticut, candidates for that office are placed in the legislature and on the state ticket and finally moved up to the nomination for governor. Mr. Roraback failed to control Governor Templeton and the latter was nearly driven from his party because of his independence. The man in control of the republican party in Connecticut holds no elective office. He controlled the legislature; no governor could oppose his wishes. He controlled the lower courts and was at the head of the greatest public utility corporation in the state. He said he knew of no state where similar conditions existed. He could not believe the republicans wanted that sort of government but they did not understand all that was being done. The utility corporation of which Mr. Roraback is at the head furnishes electricity to three-quarters of a million people. The democratic party stands for constitutional government, not for government operated from behind the scenes; this state was the home of constitutional government. He said as time has gone on the state had seen many changes not thought of by our ancestors. He alluded to the institutions for the care of the mentally week and physically ill, men and women, and said that they had not been efficiently provided, alluding especially to tuberculosis. He declared that the statement that this state is paying more than New York and Massachusetts for the care of tubercular patients is untrue. In those states the cost was divided by counties. He said that in Connecticut patients had to wait three to six months for treatment and he referred to a conversation with a Bridgeport physician who invited him to his office where patients seeking admission to tubercular institutions were sent home. The hand of the dictartorship had even entered educational institutions. Commissioner Meredith, who resigned, was one of the ablest educators in the land, and Yale took him over for Saturday instruction of teachers. He declared that the office of governor is not a political position and that if he were elected he would be the governor of all the people and manage the affairs of the state to the best of his ability.

BOY WHO STOLE SPEED BOAT HELD UNDER BONDS OF $3000

Thomas Russell, a youth, residing at 32 New street, was presented in the police court this morning charged with theft. The accused was apprehended after he had stolen a speed boat and was operating it from its mooring in the Thames river. Probable cause was found and Russell was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. In default of bail of $3000, Russell was committed to jail to await trial. Russell went to the municipal pier last midnight and boarded the speed boat Banfield, owned by the Dumont Marine Taxi service. After starting the engine, Russell headed the boat towards the Thames river bridge. His act was discovered by railroad employes, who informed Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clyde Murphy. The officers got to the pier in time to sight the boat but a short distance out. The officers commandered a speed launch of U. S. S. Lansdale, which was about to leave the public landing and gave chase to the launch thief. The taxi boat was overtaken near the state pier and with the thief was returned to the municipal pier, after which Russell was locked up. An attempt was made several weeks ago to steal the boat, but the thief was unable to start the engine and in endeavoring to do so used all the power in the battery.

CAROLA ROBBED OF $35 SQUEALS ON DUSKY DAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24—May Barnes, Negress, proprietress of a resort at 25 Douglass street, was arrested this afternoon charged with conducting a house of ill fame, upon complaint of Joseph Carola, formerly of this city, now employed at Fishers Island. She was released upon providing a surety on her bond of $500 and will be in court tomorrow. Joyce Brown, 24, Negress who says she is a domestic and Jackie Davis, 23, also a Negress, who styles herself a waitress, were arrested charged with frequenting. They were held in bail of $200 each, which they furnished, they also will be in court tomorrow. The Barnes woman has been arrested ten times, nine for conducting houses of ill fame or disorderly houses and once for frequenting a disorderly house.

The raid upon the resort was made single-handed by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, upon complaint of Carola. The latter went to the resort about 2 o'clock and there enjoyed the companionship of the Brown and Davis women. When he left Carola discovered that he had been relieved of $35. He lost no time in going to police headquarters and when he told of what had occurred at the Douglass street home, Sergeant Smith went there and arrested the three women.

Mrs. Harry Hewitt and infant daughter, of Groton; Sand Fish, Mystic; Mrs. Harold Bolton and infant daughter, 489 Ocean avenue; Charles Cavanaugh, 196 Connecticut avenue; Harriet and Ray Maxson, 23 Starr street, Vallee Daniels, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Matthew McPhee, of Waterford, is a patient at Lawrence- Memorial hospital suffering from injuries sustained late yesterday. McPhee was at his home and in descending a flight of stairs he pitched head-long landing on his face, sustaining a compound fracture of the nose and contusions and abrasions of the head and body.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Williams, widow of Peter Williams, of 4 Fourth street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan, with Rev. James W. Roche deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon. The bearers were Henry Francis, Anthony Perry, Joseph Silva, Antone Sizer, Joseph Francis and Frank Perry. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John E. Angus

Mrs. Mary C. Angus, wife of John E. Angus, died this morning at her residence, 11 Fremont street. She had long been ill. Mrs. Angus, who was born at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, had resided in New London 12 years. She is survived, besides here husband, by a daughter, Miss Marie Angus, supervisor in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone company; three brothers, Joseph, James and Jeremiah Hynes, of New York and a sister, Mrs. Agnes Stockel of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The criminal term of the court of common pleas will convene in this city Thursday morning next at 10 o'clock. The docket comprises a large number of cases, for there are 58 men and women scheduled to be tried on various charges, principally for violation of the liquor law, violation of the state motor vehicle law and non-support.

Infant Son's Burial

The funeral of Fred, infant son of Frederick F. Horn, until a few days ago, stationed at the submarine base, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at 15 Masonic street. Chaplain R. W. Lewis, of the submarine base, officiated. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Four more drivers will not be allowed to operate cars for an indefinite period for today Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel suspended the licenses of Carl E. Burgess, 43 Henry street; Frank N. Redden, 361 Bank street; Harry J. Hicks, colored 28 Moore avenue, Douglass C. Wilbur 233 Montauk avenue. Burgess and Redden were convicted recently in the police court on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Hicks was driving an automobile at South Glastonbury a week ago, which overturned and fatally injured one of the passengers, Arthur Joseph, colored, of 88 Bank street. Hicks is now a patient in a Hartford hospital.

Protect Careless Merchants

The police last night discovered three more business houses unsecured because of carelessness of either proprietor or employes. Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty found the front entrance to the store of Peter Vong, 153 Main street, unlocked. Because the officer could not secure the building, Vong was summoned and locked the door. Patrolman Henry Hick found unlocked the entrance to the bicycle store at 453 Bank street, conducted by Robert N. Turner, Turner was advised of the unsafeness of the store and caused the door to be locked. Officer Hick found a window of the New London Fruit and Produce company, 376 Bank street, unlocked, but could not secure it.

Lieut. Lerbe, submarine base, reported to the police today that within a day or two a .45 Colt service revolver had been stolen from the base, it is believed, by a sailor.

The Japanese amusement store, 15 Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, was entered by a thief last night. This morning William Graham discovered that thieves had operated there. Entrance was gained by forcing a side window, but so far as could be determined none of the stock was stolen. The store was entered between 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 6 o'clock this morning for plumbers left the building at the former hour after shutting the water service from the store. The proprietor of the store suspended business several weeks ago.

Dr. Woodruff's Condition Unchanged

There is no change today in the condition of Dr. Thomas A. Woodruff, 44 Mott avenue, Ocean Beach, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital threatened with pneumonia.

Flynn, 8 Harrison street, reckless driving, second conviction; Max J. Race, 294 Willets avenue, improper markers; Leo McIntyre, Danielson, operating while under the influence of liquor; J. Howard Barnes, Miner avenue, Waterford, operating while under the influence; Lawrence L. Pratt, Railroad avenue, Essex, reckless driving; Stuart Long, Westbrook, operating while under the influence of liquor; Truman L. Bennett, Jr., Stonington, operating with improper markers; Joseph H. Hunt, Newport, R. I., overloading truck.

ATWOOD RESIDENCE IN NEPTUNE PARK SOLD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 24—William D. Holman of Hartford, has purchased the residence on Mott avenue, from Mrs. Ethel Atwood, of Wauregan, widow of J. Walter Atwood. The deed will be filed for record at the office of the city clerk within a few days.

This is one of the most pretentious and desirable residence in Neptune Park, on the sea wall and located on a double plot, for which the late Mr. Atwood paid about $12,000. Since his death the large house has been leased during several summers by Washington friends of Congressman and Mrs. R. P. Freeman, whose year-round residence is further along the sea wall. Mr. Holman the new owner married a member of the wealthy Hall family of South Willington, Conn.

At a meeting of the A. O. H. Auxiliary, last night in Moose hall, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Mary E. Maloney; vice president, Mrs. Ellen Spelman; recording secretary, Mrs. Catherine Dray; financial secretary, Mrs. Margaret Watterson; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth MacIninch; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Bridget Saunders; sentinel, Mrs. Josephine McQuillan; chairlady of Irish history, Miss Margaret Doran; standing committee, Mrs. Mary Sullivan, chairman, Mrs. Mary Dillenkoffer, Mrs. Catherine Horan, Mrs. Catherine Foss, Mrs. Mary Rowley and Mrs. Julia Murphy.

Unemployed Seek Lodging

Following the rain last night and early today and with lower temperature prevailing, there was a greater number of men occupying the tramp room at police headquartes tonight than in many months. The greater number of the men are without employment and are traveling from one city to another in search of work.

FOUR BOYS QUIZZED MANAGE TO PROVE ALIBI

Because of the large number of petty burglaries in New London and Groton recently, Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Griswold, the latter of the Groton police department, quizzed four youths today at police headquarters with a view to determining whether the youths had participated in any of the store breaks. Two of the four boys resided in Groton until recently. At the conclusion of the interview the youths were discharged for the investigators did not obtain any admissions that would warrant the belief that the boys had been implicated in any of the cases of stores entered and robbed, either in this city or Groton.

Skips From Reform School

Charles Tuttle, a youthful prisoner at the state reform school for boys at Meriden made his escape this afternoon and the New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for him.

At a meeting of Jared Avery camp, No. 20, Sons of Union Veterans, held last night, the election of officers resulted as follows: Commander, Alfred A. Gates; senior vice commander, B. W. Rogers; junior vice commander, Frank Keeney; patriotic instructor, Frederick Fall; camp council, William Nason, B. W. Rogers and Alonzo Greene; treasurer William Dow; secretary, Morgan B Haven; chaplain, Charles Davies; color bearer, Alonzo Greene; guide, William Dunbar; inner guard, George Stillman; outer guard, Emory Evans; musician, George Coates. The officers will be installed next Thursday night and the ceremony will be witnessed by members of the Daughters of Union Veterans and members of Sons of Union Veterans of other cities.

Lewis Siff, 356 Bank street, Mrs. Jefferson Duffy and infant son, Quaker Hill, Waterford, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Edward Risley, of Niantic, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Niantic Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. A. E. Darby. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Accepted Norwich Invitation

Having been invited to march in the Armistice day parade at Norwich, Nov. 11th, Hiawatha council, Degree of Pocohontas, at a meeting last night, accepted the invitation.

GALES FERRY

The former Webb cottage on the Bluff, owned by Mrs. Oley, of Hollis, Long Island, has been sold recently to Mr. and Mrs. Clark, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Howard Harris of the submarine base was one of the group transferred to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, Wednesday. Mr. Harris, who purchased Twin Oaks cottage some time ago, has made his home there with his wife and two children.

Twelve Qualify As Voters

The final meeting for making voters before the state election was held Saturday. William I. Allyn, town clerk, Frederick W. Burton and Joseph A. Clark, selectmen, and the registrars, Billings T. Avery and George A. Montgomery, were in session at the old school building in the second voting district from 2 to 5 p. m. Five in the district, George C. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, Fletcher Wilson and Joseph Maynard, qualified. But 12 of the 30 whose names were on the list to be made, qualified at the two sessions held in the town.

Mrs. Joab B. Rogers was in Hartford, Monday, and was a guest over night of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Beun, in Wilson.

Mrs. Nelson Main and daughter, Elsie, of Yantic, were visitors Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Main's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Amos G. Main, at Stoddard's Wharf.

Mrs. Anton Larsen returned to Boston, Monday evening, following a visit to her mother, Mrs. Marie Sorensen and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Miller.

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow has been spending a few days this week with Dr. I. W. LeBaron, principal of East Greenwich, R. I., academy.

Visit At Long Cove

Mrs Edward Woodin, her son, Edward, Jr., her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs Clayton Leete and son, Clayton, Jr., of Turner's Falls, Mass., and Mrs. Leete, of Belchertown, Mass., motored here for a week end visit at the home of Mrs. Woodin's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Turner, at Long Cove.

Mrs. Jennie M. Davis and daughter, Miss Jean Spencer, of Norwich, left recently for Jewett City after spending the summer at a cottage at Allyn's Point.

Attended Chicago Meetings

Mrs. Chester E. Dimick returned this week after a ten days' attendance at the National Council meeting of the Girls' Friendly society held in Chicago. Mrs. Dimick, a diocesan president of the society, led a discussion on the technique of organizing a branch at the conference of Diocesan presidents and secretaries, also led other groups in discussion on Goals and Financiers. Mrs. Dimick was also chairman of the resolution committee of the session.

Mrs. Russel Taylor and daughters, Jane and Dorothy, and Miss Charlotte Brand, of New London, were callers this week on Mrs. Taylor's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Turner, at Long Cove.

Mrs. Josephine Birch, of Norwich, accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Morton E. Ashcraft, and young daughter, Joan, of Quaker Hill, for a call Tuesday afternoon on her mother, Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins.

The Ladies' Aid society met Thursday for an all-day session at the M. E. church with 18 present for the basket lunch. Two quilts were tied and the members were occupied with work for the annual Christmas sale. Miss Alice Satterlee, the president, presided at the business session. Reports were given by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins. It was decided to hold another all-day session Friday of next week an to have a hot dog luncheon. It was decided to add $25 to the bank account of the society and the date for the Christmas sale was decided on.

Mrs. Latham E. Smith, of Roselawn farm, spent Thursday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen in Norwich.

Mrs. Arthur E. Sharp of Mystic, with her son, George Sharp, of the Naval Aviation service visited Mrs. Harold H. Critchlow at the parsonage, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. C. Alton Chapman and Mrs. Morton E. Crawford of the Lester district were hostesses at the session of the W. A. S. club, Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Chapman.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Coon Becomes Curious

Sometimes 'tis just as well for you
To know just what your neighbors do.

—Jimmy Skunk.

Bobby Coon found out a long time ago that a great deal is to be learned by watching his neighbors. It isn't supposed to be a very polite thing to do. No, sir, watching one's neighbors is not supposed to be a polite thing. But, as a rule, politeness has very little to do with the lives of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. Life very often depends on knowing what one's neighbors may be doing. So, some of these little people keep a very sharp watch of their neighbors.

Bobby Coon had had a very good fall so far. He was fat, for he had had good eating. The hunters with terrible guns had not found him. He had had plenty of corn while it was in the milk and, altogether, he was pretty well satisfied. Now he was beginning to think a little bit of winter. He was fat, but he wanted more fat.

"The fatter I am," said he, "the more comfortable I'll be and the better off in the spring. I can't get too fat."

"Huh!" said Peter Rabbit, who happened to overhear him. "If a dog should get after you one of these nights while you are on the ground, you will wish you hadn't any fat."

This didn't worry Bobby. He had a very good opinion of himself. No dog had found him so far this fall and he didn't intend that any dog should find him. "Peter," said he, "you don't know how to take life easy. What's the good of running around and worrying all winter as to where you are going to get enough to eat. Of course I don't know anything about it, but my guess is that you go hungry a good many times in the winter. This is the fat season. Why don't you get yourself fat, the way my big cousin, Buster Bear, and I get fat! And then sleep away the hard times—the lean times. That's the way to live."

"And miss all that is going on!" exclaimed Peter. "Say, Bobby Coon, I wouldn't miss being out and around every day for anything in the world. What fun is there in sleeping?"

Now, Bobby Coon had met Jimmy Skunk two or three times and each time it had seemed to Bobby that Jimmy was a little fatter than the time before It was quite clear that Jimmy was having good eating and plenty of it. It didn't seem to Bobby that Jimmy was spending much time looking for food, either.

Bobby Coon had had a very good fall so far

"That fellow will bear watching," thought Bobby. "I'll keep an eye on him and see where he goes and what he does. If he has found plenty to eat, I'll hint to him that he'd better share it with me, or else I'll walk right in and take it away from him. On second thought, I guess I'll be polite. I don't want any trouble—not any real trouble—with Jimmy Skunk."

So, for several evenings Bobby Coon watched for Jimmy Skunk; and each time Jimmy was on his way home. That meant that Jimmy had already eaten. It meant that he must go early. So, one afternoon Bobby Coon climbed a tree near Jimmy Skunk's home. To his surprise, the Black Shadows had only just reached the edge of the Green Forest when Jimmy Skunk appeared from his home and ambled away in the direction of Farmer Brown's. It wasn't really dark yet and it wouldn't be really dark for some time. It was so light that Bobby didn't dare follow. So he remained in the tree and waited. He waited a long time. It was quite dark when Jimmy Skunk came home, but Bobby could see him very clearly. Jimmy was licking his lips. Yes, sir, Jimmy was licking his lips. He had every appearance of having had a good meal.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Scotland Yard," forceful Fox Movietone drama of an imposter's attempt to usurp another man's place in society, including the affections of his wife, is to have its local premiere showing at Warner's Broadway theatre beginning today.

Joan Bennett and Edmund Lowe in the Fox Movietone drama "Scotland Yard"

Edmund Lowe is featured in a dual characterization in which he displays the full range of his celebrated acting ability. As "Dakin Barrolles," notorious thief, he brings to the screen a masterful portrayal of a smooth-working man of the underworld matching his wits with the cunning of Scotland Yard. As "Sir John Lasher," he is the personification of gentlemanly charm, culture and poise.

To Joan Bennett, as "Xandra," wife of "Sir John Lasher," falls the honors of the feminine lead.

William K. Howard, who directed Lowe so effectively in "Good Intentions," directed "Scotland Yard," with every attention to the subtle nuances that mark this unusual picture.

Palace Theatre

Clara Bow has made a bedroom farce and it comes to the Palace theatre today where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. "Her Wedding Night" is the hottest, peppiest, fastest production that the "It" girl has ever been seen in and there isn't one dull moment in the whole show. There isn't even one almost dull or serious moment and with Charlie Ruggles and Skeets Gallagher to make the fun the production could not be better.

Imagine Clara Bow as a red-headed film star in France, where, because she doesn't understand the language, she unwittingly becomes the bride in a ceremony in which the groom is masquerading under an assumed name. Thus she becomes by proxy, the wife of a man whom she has never seen.

And when they meet and when Charles Ruggles gets in his complicating comedy, and when Skeets Gallagher, the bridgegroom's proxy, gets through explaining, there's a diverting love story with Clara falling hard for her strangely acquired husband, Ralph Forbes.

Charlie Ruggles, who does much to add to the comedy of "Her Wedding Night" has a voice which is a combination of the British clipped words and the American pronunciation. He says that he has not recovered from the shock of hearing his voice for the first time and could not believe that he added so much to the script as he goes along. This comes from his old stage experience when he had to improvise many lines and words to keep up with the general trend of comedy.

Democratic Rally Monday Night

A democratic rally in Greeneville on Monday night is announced by the party town committee, under which rallies have already been held in Occum and Taftville. Speakers on the list are to be Edward G. Moran, William J. Fitzgerald and Irving Eisenstein, and it is also rumored that William C. Fox of New London, candidate for congressman, will address the gathering.

Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A., another splendid moving picture will be shown, and the adult public is cordially invited and youths 15 and over will be admitted.

On this occasion the first half of the well-known and popular feature picture, "Down to the Sea in Ships," will be shown. The main characters are Clara Bow and Raymond McGee. This is a vivid and remarkable story of the early whaling days in New England, about the middle of the 19th century, when New Bedford was astir over the whaling industry. Back of this vivid picture of daring is unfolded a stirring story of the everyday trials of these dauntless men and women, which is at once interesting and most impressive.

The music for the service will be furnished by Waldo Newbury and a brief talk will be given in line with the teachings of the screen production. A free will offering will be taken.

First Slater Hall Program

The program, finally decided upon with such numbers, added by request as the Mendelssohn Concerto and Chaconne by Vitali, as well as some of the lovely lighter compositions, has been received for the first of the Slater hall concerts, and is one which, played by the great Heifetz on Friday, Nov. 7 will be an opening for the 1930-31 series that will long be remembered in and around Norwich.

For lovers of ensemble music, the third concert, the one in January by the New York String Quartette, promises great enjoyment; while for those especially partial to the vocal numbers in the series, the concerts in December and February by George Meadon, tenor, and Kathryn Meisle, contralto, are being heartily anticipated.

The sale for course tickets for these four concerts will open at Cranston's Tuesday, Oct. 28, at 9 a. m. See advertisement for dates.

Christian Science Services

Reading room, 40 Main street, open every week day excepting holidays from 3 to 4:30 p. m.; Sunday from 11:15 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; Wednesday evening meeting at 7:45.

Next Week at Christ Church

Tuesday, Oct. 28—St. Simon and St Jude, Apostles: 10 a. m., holy communion.

Saturday, Nov. 1—All Saints' day: 7 and 10 a. m., holy communion. The usual Thursday celebration of the holy communion will be omitted this week.

Louisiana has nearly half the total rice acreage in the United States.

SOCIAL CORNER

with all the announcers. What wonderful voices they have. I wish I knew them all personally. I sometimes wish the announcers had to make a speech, it would be very pleasant to listen to them.

My letter is getting too long, but I didn't like the looks of the page last Saturday. You who have been writing are of the faithful few. Our thanks go to you. We appreciate your efforts. You have kept the page full of good letters. I have enjoyed every one of them. I hope we never have to lose our page. I like The Bulletin and have taken it for some time.

I wonder if there are among our readers any crossword puzzle workers? I am one. I just can't let one go by without trying to do it or be done by it which often happens. I have worked on one puzzle for hours at a time, then had at last to give it up and go to bed. Do you think there are mistakes made in the wording of them? I have nine here, have had them for ten years and I keep them and work on them thinking I might have a brilliant spell sometime and finish them all up in no time. I look for a cross word puzzle even before I look for the news. I like to work on them, it rests me, takes my mind from other things. Maybe if I went to the hospital I'd take along a load of those that I can't do, though maybe they wouldn't let me have them. If the brain is over-worked the patient does not do so well.

I like to read of the trips you members have had. I went to Mt. Tom. I liked it, only my two bunions and nine corns nearly got me after walking up that long hill. It was worth it. Such a wonderful view. The summit house burned down a few years ago, but another has been built to take its place, not so grand as the first, but perhaps more lasting. There are many places to visit not so very far from home. By packing your lunch kit you can go to Canada and return in time for supper these days, but I assure you little can be seen. It is better to camp over night in one of those little cabins, a dollar a head. It's a lark, you'll enjoy it. Well, I'll close with best wishes to you all.

It's taken me ten minutes to dash this off. Surely you can do as well or better. Come on everybody and write. LULAR WYLIE.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS WANTED

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: I had not read Oct. 11's (what a few letters) paper when I wrote last time.

Aries: Do hope you are feeling better.

Pernickety: Wish you could have seen the beautiful oaks, sumac, huckleberry and hazelnut bushes from my hill top. Am sure you would have said it was a gorgeous sight. Last night, Oct. 18, we had our first frost, I should say a freeze, for yesterday my tomato plants and winter squashes were in blossom but today they are gone. I found an inch of ice on a pail of water this morning.

Don't Worry: Are you gathering walnuts? Do you burn the shucks? I recently learned they made good fuel. Do your duties as president of P. J. take all your time?

Betsy Bobbet: I am with you. They were beyond me. How many did you do?

Sumac: Are you going to tell us about the lampshades in time enough for Christmas?

American Girl: My sister did enjoy making flannel, no felt dolls. Have you any more suggestions for Christmas? Have you been doing a bit of crocheting?

Beware of ghosts and witches on Halloween. WOODSIDE.

FREAKS OF NATURE

Dear Social Corner: 'Tis a true saying, we never miss the water till the well runs dry. And, oh! how we did miss the wonderful blessing of pure water to drink this summer. And how grateful we are to kind nature for sending rain recently. It does seem so good to see the pretty brook flowing on its way once more.

We now find our earth passing into sign Scorpio in the Zodiac. The sign Scorpio begins about Oct. 24 and ends about November 22, every year in our northern latitude. Scorpio is the eighth month or sign and governs males and marriages. The tribe is "Simeon," meaning, "He who hears and obeys." The ruling planets are Mars and the Asteroids. The colors are scarlet, brown and black. July and January are the most propitious months of the year and Tuesday the favorable day for people born in sign Scorpio. The best weeks are one beginning Feb. 19 and one beginning April 18th. We were glad to read so many interesting letters in last week's Social Corner page.

"Woodside" wanted us all to write about any freaks of nature. I dug a carrot that was the exact pattern of a "hot dog." Just as smooth and rounded at both ends. I have a half-grown kitten that nurses on the breast of my small dog. Both seem to be satisfied and agreeable.

Am wondering if Club No. 4 is to have a meeting soon.

We were grieved to read of the passing of "Effie M." Our sympathy goes out to her sorrowing family.

I would like to get some seed of the purple balm and purple plant that bears flowers similar to the sweet pea. Some ladies brought some of the flowers to decorate the tables at the Club No. 4 meeting at Dayville.

Best wishes to all from ARIES.

GREENEVILLE

On Tuesday evening a large audience which filled the guild room of St. Andrew's church was delighted with the pleasing and delightful entertainment of over 20 young people, directed by James Lockart. The whole concert was full of pleasing and laughable surprises, much appreciated by the large audience. At the conclusion, Rev. E. J. Norris, the rector, thanked the entertainers who Mr. Lockbart had brought, the audience and all who helped to make it such a success.

Mrs. Herbert E. Ring of Schenectady, N. Y., is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Riordan at 213 Central avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeLarm, of Toledo, O., who have been spending their vacation with relatives at Providence, spent a few days with Greeneville friends recently.

The Missionary society of the Third Baptist church met Wednesday evening in the chapel of the church with a large attendance. Mrs. Herisch had charge of the program. The topic of the meeting was Cuba. A quiz of the missions was held. During the meeting plans were made concerning Red Cross work. Recently the society sent a barrel to the Mathers school at South Carolina. A well attended supper was served by Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham which consisted of escalloped potatoes, meat loaf, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee.

The W. W. G. society of the Third Baptist church met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, of Preston, Wednesday. Regular business was transacted. Devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. Sebastian. Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bernard spent Wednesday at Boston.

TAFTVILLE

An audience of over 80 people enjoyed the play "The Honorable Guest" given by the members of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor Wednesday evening in the lecture rooms of the Taftville Congregational church. The playlet which was under the direction of Miss Mary Greenhalgh, depicted scenes of Japanese life. After the close of the enjoyable performance, which was warmly applauded, there was a game period, and refreshments of cake and coffee were served by the social committee of the organization, Miss Gladys Kinder, Miss Ruby Houston and Miss Mildred C. Yerrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Donat Cote have given up their house on Norwich avenue.

The Misses Elizabeth and Sadie Jackson have returned from spending a few days in Eagleville, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Danks and family.

DECLARES FUTURE OF ZIONISM MUST REST IN THE HANDS OF THE JEWS

"The future of the Jewish people lies not in the hands of England, but in the hands of the Jews," said Rabbi Theodore Friedman, senior student at the Jewish Theological seminary at New York, in a forceful sermon at the Friday evening service of the Norwich Community synagogue on Church street.

The subject of his sermon was "Zionism—The Beginning of the End," upon which the congregation entered into a general discussion, following the address.

Rabbi Friedman spoke as follows:

"The entire Jewish world has been stirred to the very depths by England's long awaited declaration of policy as regards the future of Palestine. Not even the most sanguine and optimistic Zionists expected any radically new and decisive stand on the part of Great Britain that would materially facilitate and expedite the upbuilding of a Jewish national home in Palestine in accordance with the pledge given to the Jews of the world by Great Britain in 1917 in the Balfour declaration. If nothing else it was confidently predicted that the status quo would remain. All hope of even Great Britain remaining active and passive in rendering aid to the accomplishment of Jewish objectives in Palestine has been utterly swept away. Great Britain now intends to make a quick and complete finish to further Jewish advance. Never before in the history of political Zionism has such a crisis arisen. The destiny of the Jewish people is being woven into new and unknown patterns. What shall they be? Two thousand years of hopes, prayers, sacrifices and achievements are in the crucible of fate. What will emerge?

"Man is the master of his own destiny; the future of the Jewish people lies not in the hands of England, but in the hands of the Jew. Fate will spin out the pattern we wish it to spin out, for it is we who supply the threads. This hour calls for Jewish solidarity and a reaffirmation of the faith of the Psalmist, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, may my right hand forget her cunning."

REPUBLICANS HAVE SERIES OF BROADCASTS PLANNED

Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee and Connecticut member of the republican national committee, will be heard in a radio address to be broadcast this (Saturday) evening over Station WTIC that is intended to be of particular interest to the women voters of Connecticut.

The address will be the second program in a series presented by the republican state headquarters and will be from 6.30 to 7.00 o'clock.

Other half-hour radio talks scheduled to be delivered over Station WTIC are announced as follows: Monday evening, Oct 27, 8.00 to 8.30, United States Senator Hiram Bingham. Saturday evening, Nov. 1, 6.30 to 7.00, Professor Charles M. Bakewell of Yale Monday evening, Nov. 3, 10.30 to 11.00, Lieutenant-Governor Ernest E. Rogers, republican nominee for governor.

FIRST OF MUSICAL SERVICE SERIES AT CHRIST CHURCH

The first of a series of musical services will be held in Christ church on Sunday evening at 7.45. Thereafter will follow regularly on the last Sunday of each month a similar service of worship and music. It is the intention of the rector and organist to make the services of the highest spiritual and musical character possible. All persons are invited to attend. The programme:

Joseph L. Gomes, superintendent, Flint, Mich., and Miss Teresa V. Leonard, clerk, 206 Hickory street.

John L. Paul, sailor New Canaan, and Miss Florence G. Champlin, 25 Platt avenue.

Against Unlicensed Insurance Cos.

Persistence of unlicensed insurance companies in seeking business in Connecticut and numerous inquiries from residents concerning the standing of these companies have prompted Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham to issue a warning to the public not to buy insurance of any kind from companies not licensed in this state.

In Honor of Massachusetts Guest

Mrs. William Bogue entertained the members of the May club and its auxiliary at her home on Broad street, Wednesday evening in honor of the visit of Mrs. C. J. Crabtree of Gardner, Mass. A very pleasant social evening was spent and the hostess served refreshments.

Organizing Young Men's Class

Judge and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown entertained at their home on Broadway a group of young men interested in starting a young men's class under the leadership of Mr. Blanchard at the Central Baptist church. The following committee was appointed to formulate plans for meetings and organization: Walter Block, Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., Courtland Whitney, and Ward Hunter.

NORWICH TOWN

PROF. REGINALD LAUBIN CONFERS WITH COMMITTEE

Prof. Reginald Laubin, of Providence, has been in Norwich Town this week in conference with Willard P. Haugh, president of Norwich Rural association, which is planning a big Halloween celebration in Norwich Town next Friday evening. Professor Laubin and his wife, Gladys Laubin, are to interpret a program of special dance numbers on Norwich Town Green that evening, unless the weather should be stormy, in which case, the celebration will be carried out at Samuel Huntington school. Prof. and Mrs. Laubin recently returned from New York where, Oct. 17, during the assembly period at Horace Mann school, in connection with Columbia university, they danced in a program of numbers, which took about 40 minutes.

The installation of the Intermediate and Junior C. E. societies of the Congregational church is to take place Monday afternoon in the chapel instead of on Tuesday, as usual. Members of the Intermediate society met Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Jessie E. Hyde, of Washington street, to make postcards in preparation for the poster contest, of all societies in Norwich C. E. union, in advance of the fall meeting to be held—Friday, Nov. 7, at Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church.

A committee meeting was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. John L. Browning, of Plain Hill road, chairman of the supper committee of the League of Service, which is formulating plans for a chicken pie supper in the Congregational chapel. Others on the committee are: Mrs. Walter T. Clark, Mrs. Oscar Heinrich, Mrs. Ernest Washington, Mrs. Charles Barber, Mrs. Harriet Barber, Misses Bernice Underwood and Margaret Chapin.

Paving blocks of rubber have been used in Great Britian since 1913.

NEW RESPIRATOR PROVES VALUE AS LIFE SAVER

Officials of the Backus hospital who have seen the operation of the "Drinker respirator," which is a new form of apparatus to produce artificial breathing, have looked upon it with interest and with envy of those hospitals which are fortunate enough to be equipped with this new means of saving life. One of these favored institutions is the Massachusetts General hospital where Dr. H. M. Pollock, formerly of Norwich state hospital, is superintendent.

That the respirator is a direct life saving measure in acute cases of infantile paralysis with respiratory failure is indicated by the fact that patients who have not dared to sleep for a night or two because of partial paralysis of the respiratory muscles have promptly gone to sleep when placed in the respirator and have eventually recovered.

Besides its use in poliomyelitis, the following are types of cases in which the respirator may be used for the saving of life: morphine poisoning, drowning, gas poisoning, electric shock, prevention of ether deaths after operations and asphyxia of the new born.

The respirator is a tank or chamber in which a partial vacuum is created and into which the body of the patient is placed, the head remaining outside. By means of an electric motor, the vacuum can be increased or decreased causing the outside air to enter and leave the lungs as in normal breathing.

Backus hospital officials would be well pleased if some friend of the hospital should have the inspiration to provide the funds, amounting to about $2,000, to secure such a respirator for the hospital.

Sign of Progress

Betterment. That is the watchword of American progress. As a nation we are not content to stand still. As individuals we cannot be content to disregard our opportunities. We know the importance of industrial activity, we know the need of good business and plenty of employment and we cannot disregard the stimulating effect of trade through putting money into circulation when it can be done to the advantage of all concerned.

Advertising is the sign of progress, the stimulant for it, often the source of it. Read the advertisements in The Bulletin. Study them. Profit by them. They will help you secure what you need and want for less money than you often expect to pay. Remember this is Confidence week and the merchants are offering some unusual attractions. Keep up with the advertising and advertising will help you keep abreast of the times. Advertising is not only the sign of progress—advertising is progress.

Strike the gait for better conditions. Be progressive. Follow the lead of The Bulletin advertisements.

Dancing continued until after midnight, with music by the Arcadian orchestra, and the following committee in charge of the arrangements: William Agnew, John Lyons, Donald Lillibridge, Leonard Royce, Norris Higgins and Leonard Johnson.

NAVY DAY INVITATION FOR NORWICH PEOPLE

The people of Norwich have been extended an invitation to visit submarine base at Groton Navy day, October 27th, Monday. A communication to this effect was received Friday by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins from Captain Wilson Frown, U. S. N., commandant at the submarine base. The commandant's invitation follows:

Following the custom followed since 1922, the secretary of the navy has designed 27 October, 1930, as Navy day.

During recent years the successful celebration of Navy day has aided materially in fostering a better understanding by the people of the United States of the organization of the navy, its traditions, and its importance to the nation's industrial welfare.

The purpose of Navy day is to afford the people of the United States a special opportunity to know more of their navy as it is and to give thought to the honorable services in the past. The history of our navy is an unbroken record of devotion to the country and loyalty to our institutions.

Navy day is the navy's day at home, when our citizens are invited to inspect our activities ashore and afloat.

Our shops, laboratories, school buildings, other activities will be open for inspection, and two submarines will be at the municipal pier to receive visitors from 9 a. m. to 5.30 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to you and the townspeople of Norwich.

Mayor Robbins replied as follows:

Thank you for your cordial invitation to me and the townspeople of Norwich to visit the submarine base on Navy day, Oct. 27th.

I am turning your splendid letter and cordial invitation over to the press in order that your message may reach all local citizens.

CONTINUANCE TO MONDAY ON EVADING CHARGE

Charged with reckless driving and evading responsibility, Archie Tait, 29, of Yantic, auto repair man, was presented in the city court Friday morning but trial of the case was continued until next Monday morning.

Thursday night the machine Tait was driving figured in a crash on Town street, near Harland corner, with a machine operated by George Hoffberg of Hartford. The Hartford man was driving in a northerly direction and Tait was driving in the opposite direction.

After colliding with the Hoffberg machine Tait's machine continued for 120 feet and stopped against a bank in the side of the highway. It is charged that Tait left the scene of the accident.

Constable Lucius A. Fenton, who investigated the crash secured a warrant for Tait's arrest. Later in the night Tait appeared at police headquarters to report the accident and was arrested.

Visited Uncas-on-Thames

The New London Hebrew Ladies' Aid and Educational society held a meeting at the Hebrew Institute building Wednesday night. The visiting committee reported a visit to Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich. Mrs. Harry Socol, president, conducted the meeting, which was largely attended.

Confirmation Class Beginning

A new confirmation class which is being started at the First Evangelical Lutheran church is to hold its first meeting this (Saturday) morning at 10 o'clock and will be continued on Saturdays afterwards. Children over 12 and young people are admitted to the class.

Teachers Attend Convention

The public schools were closed Friday while teachers were attending the fall conference of the State Teachers' association in New London.

At Norwich Free Academy the pupils had their annual "nutting day" holiday.

Scholastic Honors at Brown

In the announcement of scholastic honors at Brown university, Melvin O. Goodman and Saul Sussman of this city, with Marvin A. Chase of Killingly, won preliminary honors in the class of 1932, and Leo Kosowsky of New London won an award in the class of 1933.

SEDAN HITS POLE AND UPSETS IN THAMESVILLE

Three men had a narrow escape from death at 11:50 o'clock Friday night, when their Dodge sedan collided with a telegraph pole and turned over on its side on West Thames street at the trolley cross-over, near Shipping street. The machine, operated by George Henry Summers of Uncasville and Waterbury, Vt., was being driven in a southerly direction. Reaching the point in the highway where the trolley tracks swing from the center of the street to the extreme right hand side, the machine struck the pole, two or three feet to the right of the tracks, swung completely around and turned over on its side. Summers escaped injury but his passengers, Leo J. Cemlin, 26, of New London and Boston, and James Angell, 18, of No. 61 Oakridge street, this city, received cuts and bruises.

Summers was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and held in bonds of $200 for his appearance in the city court this (Saturday) morning. Sergt. John T. Casey and Officers Henry Davis, Peter Vuono and Patrick Shahan investigated the crash. The overturned machine blocked the trolley tracks and the New London trolley car due in Franklin square at 12:40 o'clock was held up until the wrecked machine was moved. The machine was badly damaged.

EXONERATES MOTOR DRIVER IN CYRUS AVERY DEATH

Coroner Edward G. McKay has exonerated Walter V. Small of Cranston, R. I., from criminal blame in causing the death of Cyrus Avery 87, late of Groton. The coroner's finding was announced Friday. The late Mr. Avery, brother of Treasurer Charles S. Avery of this city, was fatally injured, October 9th, when hit by a machine driven by Mr. Small on the Boston post road near Poquonnock Bridge. In the finding the coroner says:

At about 7.30 p. m. the said Walter V. Small was operating his motor vehicle in an easterly direction near the point of the accident. He had come from New Jersey and was going to Providence. When the said Walter V. Small passed over the bridge and started up the incline two other cars going in a westerly direction were approaching it. The lights of these cars were rather strong and interfered with his vision of the road. When the leading car was nearly abreast of him Mr. Small felt his car strike an object on his right side. He did not hear or see it. He continued on a short distance up to a light near the post office where he stopped his car. He examined the front part of his car and found that there was a dent in the mudguard and the right headlight was bent back. He asked three boys with flashlights to go back down the road to see if there was an obstruction on the road which he had struck. They returned and found the deceased lying on the shoulder of the road face down with his feet touching the edge of the cement. The authorities were notified and responded immediately. When the medical examiner arrived he found that the death had been instantaneous, due to a broken neck. The deceased was walking along the highway intending to attend a meeting at the town hall. There was no evidence presented just where he was walking on the highway and he was alone at the time. From the position in which he was found afterwards and the point of contact with the motor vehicle I would conclude that he was walking near the edge of the highway at the time that he was struck.

There were no marks made by wheels of the car at any place in the vicinity of the accident. When the car came to a stop near the boys it was going slowly and stopping gradually. This point was but a short distance from where the deceased lay. There was no evidence to show that the motor vehicle was being operated at a fast rate of speed. According to the evidence the motor vehicles going in a westerly direction passed the point of the accident just about the time that the Small car arrived at that point. There is no evidence in this case that the driver of the Small car was operating it in a grossly negligent manner.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Cyrus Avery was not caused by the criminal act omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

Ministers Will Discuss Programme

Having postponed its monthly meeting to Monday, Nov. 3, the Norwich Ministers association will at that time have a programme consisting of a discussion of the ends to be accomplished in the meetings and the programme of the coming year. The coming of Dr. Jefferson for the special meetings will also be discussed.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich and the surrounding country was suffering from drouth, a half century ago this week. The drouth was reported as "very severe," mills were running on part time, because of lack of water and springs were dry. Several political rallies and parades were held that week. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 18, 1880—General McCord received a telegram, yesterday, announcing that the grand democratic parade at New London, had been postponed from tonight, until Thursday, when the Hancock Pioneers of this city, will visit that place.

The drouth now prevailing is very severe. The mills in many places in this part of the state are running on short time for want of water, the springs are dry and the need of copious rains is everywhere felt. It is to be hoped that the earth may soon receive its regular fall drenching.

The democrats are boasting that they will give the Hon. W. W. Eaton of Hartford, a warmer and more enthusiastic welcome on Tuesday evening than any man ever received here. We shall see.

Tuesday, Oct. 19, 1880—The funeral services of Mrs. Harriet P. Williams took place at her late residence on Williams avenue, yesterday, at 2 o'clock, p. m. There was a large gathering of the first citizens of this and other towns in the county present to pay their respects to the memory of that estimable lady. The Rev. L. W. Bacon, D. D., spoke very impressively on the occasion. The remains were interred at Yantic cemetery.

There is considerable excitement existing in different parts of the town over the rumored presence of diphtheria in a malignant form. There is no occasion for nervousness. We are informed upon the best of authority that there are not four cases of the disease in the Central school district and that the aggregate number of cases in the whole town does not reach ten. The authorities are taking every precaution to prevent its spreading and are confident that it is now at its worst.

The Lovell Bros. began work on the addition to their store yesterday.

The health committee has decided that the Roath street soap house is a nuisance and has ordered its removal.

Wednesday, Oct. 20, 1880—During the past year 35 licensed liquor dealers of this place have been before the courts for violation of the liquor law. Their names and the charges upon which they were prosecuted have been filed in the office of the selectmen, and an urgent request made that such shall not be recommended for a license the present year.

The democrats, in convention assembled, nominated Charles W. Carter for the office of judge of probate yesterday, and the Hon. Benjamin Lucas for senator.

The republican parade and illuminations last night, exceeded in splendor and beauty all preceding turnouts and decorations, not only on account of the intensified feeling and enthusiasm as the result of the good news from Indiana, but also because the natural layout of the localities visited for making one of the most imposing and luminous demonstrations ever before witnessed in this city, are unequalled.

Thursday, Oct. 21, 1880—One of the gentlemen whose names were read as vice presidents of the Hancock meeting at Breed hall, Tuesday night, was filling a suit and carrying a torch with the Garfield and Arthur Tigers, when his name was announced. It is always well to consult men about the use of their names.

The Garfield Rockets, upon reaching New London, last evening, discovered that 1,000 cartridges which had been ordered to be sent to New London, had been sent by mistake to Norwich. They carried 800 cartridges with them, but were obliged to telegraph for the rest to be sent them, which was done.

The banner of the Norwich veterans, on which is painted a splendid representation in oil of "Yankee Doodle," is now on exhibition and attracting much attention in the window of C. D. Rice on Main street.

Friday, Oct. 22, 1880—The republican parade in Occum last night was a very brilliant and happy affair. The Taftville company, accompanied by the band of that place, the Second regiment of Greeneville and a delegation of young republicans were present from this city.

Joseph L. Barbour, Esq., of Hartford, will address the laboring men of this place tonight in Breed hall, taking for his theme, "Democratic Tariff for Revenue Only." Mr. Barbour is an interesting and fluent speaker and will without doubt make his address thoroughly entertaining. Let him have a rousing attendance.

On Wednesday at 12 o'clock m., Mr. William H. Jennings, Jr., a promising young lawyer of this city, was united in marriage with Miss Lucy C. Elliott, daughter of the late Captain William S. Elliott of Norwich. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, and was solemnized by the Rev. E. G. Selden of Manchester, N. H.

Saturday, Oct. 23, 1880— Assistant Superintendent Williams of the Burlington & Cedar Rapids railroad, a Norwich boy, has just named a new station on that line, "Norwich," in commemoration of his early home.

The Rev. Hugh Montgomery and wife celebrate the 15th anniversary of their marriage on Nov. 1st.

The welcome rain came yesterday.

The Rev. Alpheus Winter, secretary of the State Temperance union, will preach at Taftville, Sunday morning, and at the Sachem street church in the evening.

The board of selectmen qualified and swore in 76 freemen yesterday, making a total of 396 for three days days work.

RIFLE CLUB TO SHOOT ON JEWETT CITY RANGE

Members of the Norwich Rifle club are to hold a shoot for qualification Sunday morning on the Jewett City rifle range. They will leave the Norwich armory at 8:30 and members who have not yet qualified will shoot first.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock, the officers and members of the governing board of the Mohegan Rifle league will meet at Pioneer Hose Co. in Groton to get the indoor league shooting started for this season. Rifle clubs from Norwich, Coast Guard, Groton, East Lyme, Taftville, Mystic and Stonington, and Westerly will enter teams in this league. A field day this fall will also be considered. The Nutmeg league, composed of teams from rifle clubs in the central part of the state, has started its season.

At Dew Drop Casino Dance

Over 150 attended the weekly dance at Dew Drop casino Saturday night when there was round and square dancing with James Shea of Westerly as prompter. An interesting feature was furnished by Prof. El Martin's xhophone selections, which were received with great applause.

Officer Dwyer Recovering

Officer Michael J. Dwyer, who has been off duty for about six weeks and had an operation about ten days ago in a New Haven hospital, is reported as making encouraging progress towards recovery.

RESEARCH REVEALS GOOD OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS

National Business Survey Conference, in Summary of Economic Conditions, Pictures Bright Future of Business, Both Nationally and Internationally—Reports Large Amount of New Capital Provided For Productive Purposes and Evidences of Stabilization or Advancing Tendencies in Prices of Raw Material

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Optimism over the future of business, both natitonally and internationally, was expressed today by the national business survey conference in a summary of economic conditions for the first nine months of 1930.

The organization, set up a year ago by business and financial leaders in cooperation with President Hoover, has conducted a continuous study of business conditions.

"In the preparation of this summary several factors were apparent," the report, signed by Julius H. Barnes, chairman, said. "Among these were the large amount of new capital provided for productive purposes and evidences of stabilization or advancing tendencies in prices of raw materials. All such factors each business man will wish to weigh for himself."

Supporting this conclusion, it was pointed out that lending operations of banks had markedly increased; that capital issues for September were 80 per cent greater than those of August and that "a decreasing number of foreclosures and delinquencies reflected continued improvement in the field of first lien banking." No uniform trend, either up or down, was visible as to savings deposits.

Installment selling of automobiles and other items was said to be showing "no material increase in re-possessions." Some betterment exists in wholesale collections, with no change in retail collections. Life insurance selling increased in September over August. Premium income of fire insurance companies has declined.

For the first nine months of 1930, the report said, residential construction declined under last year's mark by $714,000,000, but public works and public utility construction was above last year's volume by $180,000,000. Paving contracts exceeded last year's total by seven per cent. Residential vacancies over the country were normal for September in six out of 17 districts of the United States.

Street railway traffic in September was eight per cent under that of the same month last year, but August records of such traffic were 10 per cent under last year's. Freight traffic on railroads was less.

Seasonal increases were noted in telephone communication and in radio sales. Postal receipts showed a decline in the previous rate of recession for September.

New capital investments in utilities continued to be above last year's records in most cases, the survey continued. Output of electrical equipment was above 1928 levels, though below that of 1929. Stocks on hand of petroleum products declined. Metal prices dropped, and output rates in steel and copper were lower than the average. September automobile production was 42 per cent below that of last year but inventories of auto tires have decreased.

Production of cotton seed products and industrial alcohol has been at high rates, the report said. September also "carried forward the seasonal improvement in the textile industry," with increased takings of cotton by mills. Consumption of silk markedly increased.

Export demand for apples was greater than last year and domestic shipments of fruits and vegetables remained at 1929 levels.

Milk consumption has held firm, but in "terms of consumer outlay," produce was said to have brought in 15 per cent less during September than over a five-year average. Stocks of ram sugar have declined and prices risen.

"A number of raw materials now show increases in price," the report noted, naming cotton, corn, wheat and coffee.

Foreign trade volume was said to have declined but the report added that abroad there were "promising signs of stable conditions and also of improvement in variety of industries, scattered through many countries."

FAMILIES SHOULD HELP RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)— A direct appeal to the individual American family to do its bit toward relieving unemployment was broadcast tonight by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee, in an address over a National Broadcasting company network.

"Let us all spruce up our homes," he said. "Make the little repairs that are needed, do that little job of painting that we thought about so long, fix up the odd corners of the yard, replace the worn out or broken parts that halt the smooth running of the household.

"Let us do the same thing in our communities. We can give work to hundreds of thousands by improving shabby playgrounds, unsightly vacant lots, dirty streets and by cleaning up all those community black spots that have annoyed us as conscientious citizens so long."

Col. Woods, who spoke during Collier's hour, said that if in the aggregate 24,000,000 families followed this program as far as means permitted, it would help to alleviate the present condition.

"Savings bank deposits show an increase," he added. "Certainly America has not become a hoarding nation afraid of its own future. The problem should be solved. It will be solved. There can be no compromise in its solution."

At another point, Col. Woods said: "Speaking as I am to you in your homes, I shall not talk to you of what the United States government, the state, the county, the city and other units of government can do to undertake public works and alleviate unemployment. Four hundred fifty million dollars of state and municipal bonds for public works entailing the use of labor and materials are now before the American people for vote on November 4."

TRANSCONTINENTAL FILGHT WITHIN 11 MIN. OF SCHEDULE

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26—(AP)—The first plane to start from Los Angeles on the new route of Transcontinental Western Air, Inc., arrived at Newark airport at 6:26 p. m., today with six passengers and ten packages of mail. The plane left the west coast at 8 a. m. yesterday.

The plane landed eleven minutes behind schedule. H. G. Andrews, pilot, said he bucked headwinds between Philadelphia and Newark. P. J. Russell and co-pilot of the tri-motored Ford ship.

The passengers were Hamilton Macfadden, a director of Fox Films; Elster Hilton, engineer on his way to India; Max Hart of New York; V. W. Conover, a safety director of the Westinghouse Electric company, whose home is in Elizabeth; S. O. Howell, of West Orange, and D. H. Wallace, of Leetsdale, Pa.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL AWARDED W. GREEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—The Roosevelt distinguished service medal will be presented to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Dr. Hastenings H. Hart, noted penologist, at a banquet of the Roosevelt Memorial association tomorrow night, the 72nd anniversary of President Roosevelt's birth.

Mr. Green receives the medal for his work "in the cause of industrial peace;" Dr. Hart, "for the promotion of social justice."

The association has awarded a third medal for 1930 to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, but a speaking engagement in Newark tomorrow night will prevent his attendance at the dinner the medal will be bestowed upon him at the meeting in 1931.

MYSTIC MAN KILLED BY AUTO DRIVEN BY STATE TROOPER

FOSTER, R. I., Oct. 26—(AP)—William H. Parkinson, 65, of Mystic, Conn., who had been working recently at Hopkins mills, was instantly killed today when he was struck by an automobile driven by Henry M. Mayo, a Connecticut state trooper attached to the Danielson barracks. The accident occurred on the Danielson pike near here.

Witnesses said Parkinson stepped from between two east-bound machines into the path of Mayo's car. Mayo had been in Providence on an official errand and was returning to Danielson. A preliminary report indicated Mayo was not operating in a negligent manner, Rhode Island state police said. He was not held.

President Machado signed a decree which temporarily prohibits the exportation of sugar from Cuba

18 FATALITIES FROM AUTOS IN THE STATE WEEK OCT. 12-18

HARTFORD, Oct. 26—(AP)—The week of October 12 to 18, was one of the worst so far this year from the standpoint of fatalities due to automobile accidents, according to the statistical department of the state department of motor vehicles. In this seven days sixteen automobile accidents claimed 18 victims, an increase of six fatalities over the same period last year. The total number of fatalities since January 1, is 326 as compared with 362 to the same date last year.

The state total of accidents in the seven day period was 422, of which 224 were within city limits, as compared with 471 accidents in all parts of the state and 234 in cities last year in the same period.

Ridgefield, North Haven and Waterbury each reported two fatalities during the week. Fatalities were also reported in East Hartford, Glastonbury, Greens Farms, Guilford, Hartford, Newington, Norwalk, New Britain, Rockville, South Windsor, Talcottville, Waterbury and West Haven.

JUDGE BURROWS PRAISED BY PRESIDENT HOOVER

HARTFORD, Oct. 26—Warren B. Burrows of Groton, republican nominee for attorney-general, is in receipt of a letter from President Hoover, accepting his resignation as judge of the United States court for the district of Connecticut, and expressing to the Connecticut man gratitude for "his fine service." Judge Burrows relinquished his appointment to the bench in a letter to the president following the completion of court matters pending before him.

Banker Believed To Have Been Kidnape[illegible]

Citizens of Galva, Il[illegible]used By Probable Ab[illegible]ction By Extortionists

GALVA, Ill., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Earl Yocum, bank president and Galva's wealthiest man, was believed kidnaped last night from his baronial estate on the outskirts of the town in a daring coup that has aroused this staid farming community to fever pitch.

Although his disappearance was veiled in mystery, Sheriff Carl Nash of Cambridge county, when told the banker was last seen leaving the grounds in the company of two strange men who had lurked about the estate through the evening, pronounced it a kidnaping for ransom.

Scores of armed civilians, accompanied by officers, combed the prairies, towns and highways of Henry county but were unable to find a trace of the banker or his purported abductors.

Mrs. Yocum, the banker's wife, told police her husband had driven his two small daughters to a moving picture show in Galva about 7 o'clock. He returned alone shortly afterward, she said, and as he left his garage was accosted by two men who asked the direction of a home in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Yocum said her husband gave the information and led the men down the driveway toward the street. When he had not returned at 9 o'clock she called the police.

The Yocum girls, questioned later, said a small, dark sedan containing two men was parked in the shadows near the Yocum estate when their father drove them into the town.

Yocum's family has not yet received a ransom note, but Sheriff Nash said that "for the time being we will work on the theory that Yocum was seized by members of a kidnap gang that has headquarters in Chicago or St. Louis and has engineered extortion plots in the midwest recently."

Yocum, who is 50 is president of the Yocum State bank of Galva and owns extensive property in Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska.

Business associates said he had no enemies and they could ascribe no reason for his disappearance other than abduction.

HINDU PRAYER CALLS FOR BOYCOTT OF BRITISH GOODS

BOMBAY, Oct. 26—(AP)—A slogan calling for a boycott of British goods has been made part of the Hindu early morning prayer.

The idea originated in this city and leaders of the congress party are endeavoring to spread it throughout the country as part of their program to gain independence. In their prayer the Hindus include, "Let boycott of British goods be my creed," and "Let not my body be polluted by anything foreign."

H[illegible] Payne Whitney [illegible]ies InHis 58th Year

Famous Sportsman and Capitalist Had Been Sick For Several Days

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)— Harry Payne Whitney, multi-millionaire sportsman and capitalist, died unexpectedly tonight at his home in Fifth avenue. He was 58 years old and although he had been ailing several days, the illness was not considered serious.

He was a member of one of the wealthiest families in the world and the wealth he inherited and produced in mining and real estate was devoted in part to development of turf sports.

He was the son of William C. Whitney, who served as secretary of the navy under President Cleveland. The father built up a great fortune and at his death in 1904 left his son a legacy estimated then at $24,000,000.

Harry Payne Whitney was a brother of the late Payne Whitney, financier, philanthropist and sportsman, who gave millions to charitable and other institutions. When he died while playing tennis on his country estate in 1927 he left an estate with a net valuation of $178,893,000, the largest in the history of the transfer tax bureau here.

Through Thomas J. Regan, the financier's secretary, the Whitney family issued the following statement tonight:

"On Tuesday last, at his residence in New York, Mr. Whitney was taken ill with a slight cold, with fever, from which pneumonia developed, which was apparently not severe until Saturday morning, when there was a rapid extension, and he died Sunday evening at 9:35 o'clock (EST.)"

At Mr. Whitney's bedside when he died were his wife, his two daughters and sons-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. McCulloch Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Barklie McKee Henry, and his son, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

The widow, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, is prominent as a sculptor and in social welfare and relief work. She and Mr. Whitney were married at Newport in 1896.

Mr. Whitney's racing stable was known the world over.

As a poloist Mr. Whitney was one of about a dozen men in the country to hold the maximum handicap of ten goals and was a member of the famous "Big Four" in 1909 which established American polo as the equal to any in the world by winning back the international polo cup from Great Britain.

A graduate of Yale and Columbia Law school, he gave up the law to join the American Smelting and Refining Co., in which his father was interested. He also took part in the work of the Guggenheim Exploration Co.

He was president of the Whitney Realty Co., and a director of the Guarantee Trust Co. and the Metropolitan Opera Co.

VARGAS INVITED TO BECOME THE PRESIDENT OF BRAZIL

Military Junta Controlling the Federal Government At Rio De Janeiro Has Extended a Call to the Generalissimo of the Brazilian Revolutionry Armies to Assume the Presidency—Order For Cessation of Hostilities Has Been Given by Chief of Staff of the Insurgent Army

PONTA GROSSA, Brazil, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the Brazilian revolutionary armies, was invited today to assume the presidency of Brazil. The invitation was from the military junta controlling the federal government at Rio De Janeiro.

Vargas was the liberal candidate for president in the national Brazilian elections early this year, but Dr. Julio Prestes was declared the winner. Prestes, who made a pre-inaugural visit to President Hoover in Washington, and also was received by high officials in England, France, Spain, and Portugal, was due to take office November 15. Since the downfall of the Washington Luis government last week, he has been held virtually a prisoner in the state executive palace at Sao Paulo.

Col. Goes Monteiro, chief of staff of the insurgent army, informed The Associated Press correspondent today that "the revolutionary movement is ended. The order for cessation of hostilities has been given and the revolution has won a complete victory."

Insurgent troops are advancing without interference upon the city of Sao Paulo, Brazil's commercial metropolis.

Col. Paez Andrare, commander of the federal soldiers in the Itarare region, today signed a paper surrendering the territory and placing his soldiers under the command of the revolutionary generals. Announcement of the federals' surrender was made yesterday, today's events being a formal confirmation of the act.

General Miguel Costa, commanding the insurgent vanguard, has become miliary commander of the city of Itarare. General Da Cunha has taken command of all air forces in the region.

Rebel soldiers under General Joao Alberto have taken possession of the town of Capella Da Ribeira and its vicinity Other forces are concentrating at Apiahy, southeast of Itarare.

BRAZILIAN SHELL KILLED 27 PERSONS ON GERMAN STEAMER

HAMBURG, Oct. 26.—(AP) —Official information received today from the German legation at Rio De Janeiro said 27 persons had been killed when a Brazilian fort shelled the German steamer Baden last week. The dead included one German citizen.

Twenty-five persons, including three German passengers and three German members of the crew were seriously injured. Thirty-three others were slightly injured. Most of the others aboard were Spanish. The German killed was a stoker.

The rear mast of the Baden was shot away by the guns of the fort. The ship will remain in Rio De Janeiro for repairs and then continue to Buenos Aires.

Hamburg-American line officials were still without direct word from the ship's officers tonight, and assumed that all private and commercial messages were being held up by censorship.

GAMING HOUSE RAIDS IN WESTPORT BY STATE POLICE

WESTPORT, Oct. 26.— (AP)— Two gaming houses, one described as an elaborately appointed one, were raided by state police here today.

One was on State street, which, police said, James Delmonte and Miner Moore were operating. They were held under $500 bonds for a hearing in town court tomorrow morning. Twelve frequenters were held under $50 bonds each.

Police said a roulette wheel and other gambling appurtenances were found in the State street house which was sumptuously furnished and well guarded.

In the other raid, Joseph Castall was arrested and charged with conducting a gaming business. He was held under $100 bond for a hearing tomorrow. Several patrons were held under $50 bond each.

BOMB THROWN AGAINST SIDE OF CHURCH IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A black powder bomb was thrown against the side of Trinity Methodist church, South, early today, and broke several windows in the church and surrounding rooming houses.

Police said the bomb apparently had been hurled from an automobile. Skid marks on the pavement in front of the building showed the car evidently had been traveling fast, had slowed suddenly until the bomb was thrown, then speeded up again.

The bombing, police believed, was retaliation for radio statements made by the pastor, the Rev. Robert P. Shuler, whose utterances have caused him considerable publicity. Last week the radio commission granted Mr. Shuler's station, KGEF, a 30 day permit pending an investigation.

SAFE ROBBERS GET AWAY WITH $1,000 IN DANBURY

DANBURY, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Burglars drilled open a safe in the J. D. Plaut and Brothers dry goods and millinery store, on Main street last night, and made away with approximately $1,000.

They rifled a safe in the adjoining store of J. Howard Burr, but found no money in it.

Entrance was made by ripping off an iron bar on a rear window of the Plaut store. Once inside the burglars, apparently professionals, in their line, employed an electric drill to open the safe.

A connecting door on the inside was forced to enter the Burr store. There was no light with which to work, so the burglars wheeled the Burr safe in the Plaut store and opened it with their drill.

FLASHLIGHT PROTOS OF MEN CAUGHT IN SPEAKEASY RAIDS

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The "flash light raid" something new in official police visits to speakeasies in this section, was introduced today, when blue coated raiders visited two suspected places of illicit beverages.

At one place, 18 employes and guests were compelled to line up against the bar and submit to flashlight photographs. Not once, but six times a police cameraman pulled the trigger of his flash gun as the alleged customers posed in front views, profiles and otherwise Twelve men went through the same ordeal at another place.

Captain Jeremiah Gallivan, who introduced the system, said it was for the purpose of giving the courts specific evidence that the places had been visited and inspected.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—(AP) —The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad reports a surplus for the month of September, 1930, after all charges including peferred dividends and guarantees, of $962,607, a decrease of $1,041,271 from that of the same period in 1929.

Surplus for the nine months ended September 30 was $7,683,579, a decrease of $3,684,005 from that of the previous year. Operating expenses decreased $1,380,808 for the month and $8,736,453 for the nine months.

NEW WOMEN'S RECORD FOR CROSS-COUNTRY FLIGHT

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Oct. 26 —(AP)—With a smile on her wind-burned face, Mrs. Keith Miller of Australia set her "bullet" plane down at Curtiss-Wright airport at 3:02 p. m. today, thereby establishing a new women's speed record for west-east transcontinental flight. It was her second record in a few days, for she recently flew to the Pacific coast faster than any other member of her sex.

Her total flying time from Los Angeles to New York was 21 hours and 47 minutes, almost four hours better than the record of 25 hours, 35 minutes recently set by Miss Laura Ingalls. But it was far behind Captain Frank Hawks' best time of 12 hours, 25 minutes.

Recently, the Australian aviatrix flew to Los Angeles in 25 hours, 44 minutes.

In her record smashing flight to the east coast, she made several stops, the last at Columbus, Ohio, where she stayed last night. Taking off at 10:53 a. m. today without breakfast, she conquered cross winds which blew her far to the north of her scheduled course and arrived here four hours and nine minutes after the takeoff. That meant an average speed of about 120 miles an hour.

KING BORIS AND BRIDE START HONEYMOON ON YACHT

BRINDISI, Italy, Oct. 26. —(AP) — King Boris of Bulgaria and his queen, the former Princess Giovanna of Italy, left today aboard the Bulgarian royal yacht Czar Ferdinand for the Bulgarian port of Varna to the farewell cheers of 60,000 persons.

Giovanna appeared deeply affected as she bade good-bye to her sister, the Princess Mafalda, and her brother, Prince Humbert of Piedmont. The princess, who cried during her marriage ceremony yesterday, again broke into tears. Her sister's eyes were moist and her brother was visibly moved.

As the ship pulled away from shore, however, she smiled just as she smiled yesterday after her tears. She gave the cheering thousands lining the docks the Roman salute, and King Boris doffed his cap.

The populace continued cheering and ships in the harbor continued saluting until the two ships with their escort of four Italian scout cruisers passed out of sight.

DRY AGENT KILLED IN RAID AT INDIAN'S HOUSE

BANNINGTON, Cal., Oct. 26.—(AP) —Death joined the solemn dance to the dead on the Morongo Indian reservation four miles from here, today, and brought a week of fiesta to an inglorious end.

Condio Hopkins, federal prohibition agent, and Oscar Olsen, a special officer, invaded the fiesta, walked past the grotesque effigies of departed ancestors and went to Indian John Hyde's house in search of liquor.

A dozen Indians were in the house. They resented the intrusion of the white man. Olsen backed out. A shot was fired and Olsen dropped, wounded in the heart.

Several Indians were arrested as material witnesses. The department of justice took charge of the investigation.

AIR PILOT AND A STUDENT AVIATOR KILLED IN CRASH

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Oct. 26 —(AP)—A pilot and a student aviator were killed today when their plane nose-dived to the links of the Cold Stream Golf club, near here.

Major Philip Watson, an army reserve officer, and Julius Nester about 34, were the victims. They were flying in a biplane about 100 feet above the links when the machine got out of control.

Major Watson, who was flying without safety straps, was thrown from the plane as it fell. Nester was thrown out when the machine struck the ground. He died about two minutes after Horace H. Nance, a golfer reached the wreck. Both victims had skull fractures and internal injuries

NO. WINDHAM FIRE DEPT. BURNS ITS MORTGAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 26.—"A burning of the mortgage" celebration in which some 100 Windham and local residents participated, was held by the North Windham fire department Saturday night. The honor of igniting the paper was accorded to Alfred Peck, of Hartford and North Windham, who is an honorary member of the department by virtue of his interest in its welfare. The celebration began with a supper and was followed by a program of music, dancing and informal addresses in the fire house. Chief Wilber G. Stevens was master of ceremonies and general arrangements were in charge of former Chief Richard Wright. Since its organization a few years ago the department has constructed an attractive two-story fire house in which a motorized chemical wagon and a patrol wagon are kept. The department, with 28 active members, is functioning with a high degree of efficiency.

Town Building Remembers Two.

Pending his retirement on the second Tuesday in January, 1931, as town clerk, a position he had held for 31 years, Frank P. Fenton was agreeably surprised Saturday noon when office heads and assistants at the town building presented him with a fine white gold, 17 jewel watch, chain and knife. Judge Valentine L. Murphy made the presentation on behalf of the 26 persons, both republican and democrats, who contributed to the gift. The presentation came as a complete surprise and brought appropriate response from the retiring town clerk. The inscription on the watch reads: "To Frank P. Fenton from friends, October 25, 1930." Judge Murphy said in part: "Frank P. Fenton, we have gathered here today to attest our friendship to you, we, who have come in personal contact with you from day to day. You have shared our joys and helped in our differences. We have had able assistance from you many times, and we, too, have a token for you which we hope will give you pleasure as it ticks the passing time."

Joseph T. Ellis, engineer of the town building for the past 13 years was also remembered with gifts. The police department through Officer Arthur M. Hurley, presented him with $25 in gold while Town Clerk Fenton and his assistant, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton, gave him a five dollar gold piece. Engineer Ellis made fitting response to these evidences of gratitude and friendship.

MANSFIELD CENTER CONG. CHURCH OBSERVES ITS 220TH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 26.—Former pastors and many old friends returned to Mansfield Center for the two-day commemoration of the 220th anniversary of the Congregational church of Mansfield, Saturday and Sunday. The celebration was in the nature of an "Old Home Week-end" and proved a most inspiring event.

The celebration began Saturday evening with a public supper at 6.30 o'clock. The program of music was as follows: The Nichols' trio; selections by the choir, The Dearest Spot On Earth; children's program; mixed quartet; organ solo, Mrs. L. B. Tenney; duet, Rev. Edward and Mrs. Ayer; group song, Should Old Acquaintance Be Forgot. Instrumental music was by an orchestra consisting of R. Crane, J. Inman and D. Nichols, violins, and L. Nichols, flute.

This morning and afternoon there were special services with former pastors and friends taking part. Music was from the "Memorial Pipe Organ," and a large choir of past and present choir members, conducted by Mrs. John Jacobson. Mrs. Grace Homer presided at the organ. The guests were received by the pastors, Rev. Florence and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones. The historical sketch was delivered in the afternoon by Horace J. Fenton, a native of Mansfield and retired as professor of the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, Md.

Among former ministers of the church to whom invitations had been sent were: Reverends Finis Deizell, Clarence Pike, Walter Lanphear, Edward Ayer and Roy Pavy.

The program: Sunday at 11.30 a. m., organ prelude; invocation and Lord's prayer; call to worship; doxology; hymn No. 38, Mighty God While Angels Bless Thee; responsive reading No. 81, and the Gloria; male quartet; scripture, Luke, 9 verses, 18 to 27; prayer and response by the choir; anthem, Give Thanks Unto the Lord, Carrie B. Adams; greetings from former pastors; vocal solo, Mrs. Edward Ayer; offering and announcements; hymn, No. 298, Holy Spirit, Truth Divine; sermon, Rev. Roy Gilmour Pavy, M. A. B. D.; hymn, O Jesus, I Have Promised to Serve Thee to the End; benediction; postlude.

Sunday, at 3.30 p. m.: Organ prelude; doxology; hymn, The Church's One Foundation; prayer and response by choir; male quartet; greetings from sister churches; anthem, O God, Thou Art My God, Carrie B. Adams; announcements; organ solo, Mrs. Louis B. Tenney; historical sketch, Horace J. Fenton; hymn, My Country, 'Tis of Thee; benediction; postlude.

The church was resplendent in a profusion of yellow and white chrysenthemums sent as gifts from the following members and friends: Archibald W. Buchanan, Jr., and Miss Annie Buchanan; Mrs. Peck McAneeny of Detroit, Mich., and North Windham; Ladies' guild, Ladies' Aid society, Christian Endeavor and the Sunday school.

Rev. Mr. Pavy, who delivered the Sunday afternoon sermon, was ordained in the Mansfield Center church ten years ago. He is now a resident of Westfield, Mass. The members of the male quartet heard in several selections during the celebration were: Edwin F. Cross, Leslie Nichols, Robert Stearns and Axel Erickson.

The First Congregational church of Mansfield Center was founded in 1710 by Rev. Eleazer Williams, who, with nine others signed the covenant and the pledge of faith.

About 1761 it was voted to construct a new church. This structure was in the process of construction for 10 years, according to the manual. In 1764 the old church was abandoned and occupancy of the new building began, although it was not as yet completed. This church was destroyed by fire in March, 1866, and steps were immediately taken for the construction of the present splendid edifice.

Founded in a town that has pioneered in many forms of governmental, industrial and educational progress, the Congregational church of Mansfield has, throughout two centuries, continued to exert a strong influence of righteousness and goodwill in a community of hardy, but God-fearing men. Within its roster are to be found the names of men who declared the independence of the town from sovereign rule years before the colonies united in a declaration of independence. Mansfield men founded the silk manufacturing industry in America, invented and first manufactured the buzz-saw and otherwise displayed Yankee initiative and resourcefulness that paved the way for the present greatness and power of the nation.

COLCHESTER

CAPT. MAYNARD DEVISES A NEW TYPE CONDENSER

Captain Clarence H. Maynard and Augustus Carlson, of East Haddam, were calling on Mr. Carlson's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius H. Chapman, Saturday. Captain Maynard, who is well known throughout this vicinity as a result of his widely conducted radio experiments, is planning to leave soon to spend the winter in New York. The captain is working on a new type low wave condenser which he expects to try out on some long distance reception during the coming weeks.

Past Master and Mrs. Frank H. Browning were hosts to about 32 local grangers and their friends at a Halloween party Friday evening at Grange hall. Games, music and dancing were followed by a delicious luncheon of salads, rolls, cheese, doughnuts, cake and coffee. The hall was effectively adorned with orange and black streamers and the table was decked with lighted pumpkins and flowers.

Schools were closed Friday, as a number of the teachers attended the State Teachers' convention at New London.

WEDDING

Mentan—Sablitz

Miss Julia Sablitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sablitz, of Colchester, and George Mentan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mentan, of Elizabeth, N. J., were united in marriage at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the local Baptist church by Rev. D. Matysuk, of New York. The best man was Vincent Shurley, of Colchester; the bridesmaid was Miss Helen Winarski, of Elizabeth, N. J., and the maid of honor was Miss Mary Mentan, of Elizabeth, a cousin of the groom. Stanley Shurley, of Colchester, was usher. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin, wore a lace veil and carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore green satin and carried yellow roses, while the maid of honor wore pink satin and carried yellow roses. About two hundred friends and relatives were present, including people from Elizabeth, N. J., New York, Philadelphia, Hartford, New London, Salem, Chesterfield and other places. Following the ceremony, a dinner and reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, on the old Middletown turnpike. After their return from a wedding motor trip to Atlantic City and vicinity, Mr. and Mrs. Mentan will reside at 847 Gibbons court, Elizabeth, N. J.

Irving Strick, Samuel Berman, I. Cohen and Representative Samuel Freedman witnessed the Yale-Army football game at New Haven, Saturday.

Irving Strick and Max Seger went as delegates of Oliver Woodworth lodge, No. 51, K. of P., to the meeting of the Grand lodge held last week at Stamford.

Mrs. Frank H. Browning is making several days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Myron R. Abel, of Liberty Hill, Lebanon.

HEBRON

Leslie F. Ward, of Hebron, was in Waterbury, Thursday, to attend the Steel-Treaters' meeting and banquet at the Auditorium of the Bristol Co., Waterbury.

William B. Ward, father of Leslie F. Ward, returned to Norwich Saturday afternoon, after visiting his son and family for the past two weeks.

Most schools of Hebron were closed Friday, when the following teachers attended the State Teachers' convention: Hebron Center primary teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Porter, at Hartford; Hebron Center grammar rooms, Miss Lillian Dagnon, at Hartford; Miss Pamelia Brousseau, of Amston school, at Hartford; Miss Josephine Ruby, of Jones Street school, at New Haven.

The White district school, Hebron, has been supplied since Tuesday by Mrs. Mary C. Foote, because of illness of the teacher, Miss Alice Doran.

Finds Ring After 23 Years.

ORONOCO, Minn., Oct 26—(AP)—Twenty-three years ago Mrs. Rudolph Grossback, a farmer's wife, lost her wedding ring in a tub of water in which she was washing clothes. The water was thrown on a garden outside the house. This year she found the ring in the garden. It had been ploughed in and ploughed out of the ground for 23 years.

Stafford Springs

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Oct. 26.—The First Methodist Episcopal church of Stafford Springs began the celebration of its 100th anniversary at the Sunday morning service and will hold special exercises during the present week. Bishop William Anderson, of Boston, was the preacher Sunday morning and dedicated the bronze commemoration tablet containing the names of members of the church for over 50 years. The tablet measures 24x19 inches and occupies a place on the wall on the right of the pulpit. The following inscription appears on the tablet: "To the glory of God, commemorating the centenary of Methodism in Stafford Springs, Conn., Oct. 26, 1930."

Those who have belonged to the church for more than 50 years and whose names are on the tablet are: Sarah A. Brown, Carrie E. Eaton, William Lee, Maria E. Chase, Esther W. Eaton, Carrie S. Orcutt, Julia Comins, Lucy A. Ellis, Freeman F. Patten, Nettie A. Comins, Charles P. Hodgson, Charlotte O. Willis, Alvarado Howard.

The musical part of the program was in charge of Mrs. Ethel Hilda Mosley and Miss Ethel Moore. The soloists were Percy L. Cooley and Alfred Long. At the evening service, Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, district superintendent, delivered an inspiring sermon on "Taking Measurements in Religion." The Congregational churches of Stafford Springs and West Stafford and the Federated churches of Staffordville all sent delegates to the centennial and this, together with the large attendance from Stafford Springs, filled the church. The pastor of the church for the past seven months has been Rev. T. Arthur Mosley, who is a very active worker among the members of his flock.

State police are looking for two Stafford Springs girls who left town on the last day of Stafford fair. It is thought that the young women went away with some of the show men.

Fifteen tables of whist were played at the American Legion room, in Warren Memorial hall, Friday evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Paul Stoetzner and Joseph Morin, Mrs. Edgar Young and Donald Depeau. The whist was under the auspices of the auxiliary to the Legion and dancing followed. Music was furnished by Italo Tiziani, banjoist, and Philip Sartori on the accordion.

Officer Charles Dailey has returned to his duties at the local state police barracks after a week's vacation.

A meeting of the Catholic Daughters of America is to be held this (Monday) evening in the Knights of Columbus rooms. Following the meeting there will be a social hour. Miss Margaret Foley is chairman of the committee.

Goes to New Hampshire

Miss Florence Kimball, who has been on the staff at the Johnson Memorial hospital for the past two years, has resigned and is at the Manchester, New Hampshire, hospital, where she is taking a course in x-ray and laboratory work. Miss Dorothy Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, of High street, succeeds Miss Kimball.

Roger Pownall, employed in New York, has been spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Lottie A. Pownall.

Miss Irene Moore, freshman at Willimantic Normal school, was a recent visitor with Stafford Springs friends.

Miss Esther Ansel, who has been giving a course in Girl Scout training, left Saturday for Hartford, where she will spend a week.

Work on the construction of the high tension lines between Stafford Springs and Willimantic is progressing. A stretch of nine miles from Coventry to Willington Hill has recently been completed.

Senior Booth Nets $450

The senior class of Stafford High school realized about $450 from their booth at Stafford fair. This sum will help considerably to increase the fund for the Washington trip.

The light snow and rain of Saturday morning did not prevent local football fans from attending the Yale-Army game at the Yale bowl.

Percival Partelo, of Baltic, was a recent visitor with relatives in town.

The Dramatic club of West Stafford Congregational church will meet this (Monday) evening in the vestry.

Mrs. Charles Irish, of Somers, is a patient at Johnson Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Briggs, of Curtis Corners, Me., has been the guest of Mrs. James

MONTVILLE

John Pappas, who has conducted a store in the old Pappas building at Uncasville for a number of years, moved his stock and fixtures to the new Uncasville Auditorium block, Saturday.

Maple camp, Royal Neighbors, will hold a rehearsal this (Monday) evening for the comedy, "Always In Trouble."

New Assistant At St. John's.

The four masses in St. John's Catholic church, Uncasville, were conducted by its pastor, the Rev. Father Thomas F. Lynch and his newly appointed assistant, Rev. Terence J. Finnegan, of Norwich. This is Father Finnegan's first appointment, as he was ordained in the spring.

There will be a meeting of Pequot council, K. of C., this (Monday) evening.

In this parish confessions will be heard Friday afternoon and evening for preparation for receiving holy communion on Saturday morning at 5.30, or 7.30 mass, on All Saints' day. The Children of Mary and the Rosary and Scapular society will go to confession Saturday afternoon and evening and will receive holy communion in a body at the 8.30 mass Sunday. The young ladies of the parish will sponsor a Halloween masquerade social in the new Uncasville auditorium.

Baptist Church Interests.

The Rejection of Jesus, was the theme of the 10.45 Sunday morning sermon in Union Baptist church, Palmertown, of the pastor, Rev. Raymond F. Bates. Making America Christian was the subject of the 6.30 p. m. C. E. society meeting with Albert Edwards, leader. The 7 p. m. Glad Hour, Mrs. Jerome Reed Dixon, director of children's work for the Connecticut Baptist convention, was the speaker. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week those who are interested in Sunday school teaching and Bible study are to attend the sessions of the teachers' training classes to be held in the Central Baptist church, Norwich, under the supervision of the Norwich council of religious education. During this week the young men of the church will put on a special Halloween supper.

At Uncasville M. E. church the pastor Rev. Otis Lee Monson, gave a brief sermon on Religious Education and the Personal Life.

Friends of Francis A. Williams, of Watermont Farm, Uncasville, are pleased to hear that he is resting comfortably in Backus hospital at Norwich. He underwent a surgical operation Thursday.

The assessors of the town of Montville, Fred R. Perkins, Jos. T. Church, and Wm. R. Tinker, will hold their final session this coming week at the town hall in Palmertown.

Constantine Pappas, George Stepanick and Walter Morosky, have returned from a business trip to New York.

Peter S. Gauthier, and son, James, have left for Clinton, Conn., where they will be employed for the winter.

Ray Chester motored to Middletown, Sunday, and spent the day with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCue, of Waterford, have moved to one of the J. B. Martin houses, at Pequot.

The first snow of the autumn early Saturday morning melted as soon as it struck the ground and later turned to rain.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Fruits and vegetables were steady and found prices unchanged as a rule. Large solid heads of cauliflower were scarce and selling at good prices. Cabbage was moving rather slow. Potatoes were holding steady and unchanged. Maine shippers were reported as holding stock firmly for top prices. Apples continued liberal and unchanged. High grade Macs were in fair demand but all others were draggy.

Supplies of native eggs are still on the decrease and market firm on good size stock with price advances. Offerings of poultry were liberal and demand generally slow.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON ANXIOUS TO GET NEW SUNDAY PAPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 26—Wait a minute, dear people—please wait a minute! This paper is going to issue a Sunday edition. The initial one comes next Sunday, Nov. 2. It will be good, too; that's assured. This particular item is inspired by the fact that at the very lowest estimate 200 persons walked into a news store here this particular and quiet Sunday morning and asked for a copy of the paper that has not appeared as yet, though seemingly destined to make eastern Connecticut history.

This is not propaganda; it is a fact. The forthcoming edition of The Bulletin's Norwich Sunday Record is an assured success in this part of the territory from the minute it is made available for subscribers. The estimate is, on orders from dealers, that the circulation here next Sunday morning will be at least 800 copies. No paper published, no matter what its prestige, no matter where published, approaches this figure. Boasting! Not at all. A mere recital of facts.

The delivery plans for the Bulletin's Sunday edition (The Sunday Record) in Danielson calls for them to be available for all subscribers at their homes prior to 7 a. m. No other paper offers such a service. No other paper, no matter the number of its pages, will bring so complete an eastern Connecticut news service; in fact, none does now, and never has.

In addition the paper will carry the latest Associated Press despatches, color section, pages of the most up-to-date news, latest stock market quotations, a page of highly interesting photographs dealing with live, current events and will include many other features.

Dowe's Inc., are to be general distributors here for the Bulletin's Sunday Record. The thousands here and hereabouts who read The Bulletin every week day may arrange during the present week for delivery at their homes of the new Sunday paper, beginning Nov. 2. It is going to be a worthwhile newspaper, and original copies are almost certain to be prized later.

As to an advertising proposition for local business men, it is incomparable. It will cover all of eastern Connecticut thoroughly, and with a circulation many thousands of copies in excess of any other publication appearing in this field.

AUTO DRIVERS WARNED ABOUT RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 26—Chief John McFarland said this morning that he has received complaints relative to operators of motor cars being reckless in the operation of their machines in the vicinity of St. James' school on and in the vicinity of Franklin street.

Several hundred children attend this school, all of them of grammar school age. Going to lunch at the noon hour and again heading for their homes afternoons, when studies for the day are completed, many of them have to cross the trunk line highway at the corner of Franklin and Water streets.

Sisters of St. Joseph, and other mentors, do their best to see that all of the little folks get across this dangerous thoroughfare safely. They go with the children and, by their presence, try to impress motorists coming along at the time that a safety first effort is in progress. All of this care means little, it appears, to some drivers. These drivers ignore all the protective measures and breeze their cars through the danger zone without regard for anybody or anything.

Chief McFarland said today that he is instructing all persons acting as protectors for the children on their way to their homes from the school to take the numbers of cars of the drivers who do these reckless sort of things, and turn them in, with a promise of prosecution to follow.

Nearly 500 children are daily endangered in the area mentioned by careless drivers. Incidentally, whoever it is up to, there are no signs in either Water, Franklin or Dyer streets warning of approaches to this large school, just off a trunk line highway. Yet, out in country districts hereabouts, near tiny schools, there are signs aplenty to warn motorists of their presence.

Arrested for Drunken Driving

Isadore Aubin of Attawaugan comes to court Monday morning in Killingly for what is alleged to be a bit of indiscretion in which he indulged this afternoon. He will be charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant. Scheduled to appear with him is Philip Grifcuwicz, who will be charged with intoxication. They were over at East Killingly today when the truck that Aubin was operating shaved some of the fixings off the frontage of Robert Sleath's store. State Officer John Murphy went out to see what it was all about, and ordered the men into court.

To those who do not like the activities of County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield there is an answer. He, and his deputies, are not hunting law-abiding citizens. He, and they, are chasing lawbreakers—deliberate violators of the fish and game laws, numbers of them defiant, if you will.

This particular item is given birth through the fact that "Jack lighters" are out hunting deer in this and nearby towns about every night. This class of hunters are not only cheating the law, but cheating the deer. They give no one a chance.

It is more or less well established that these hunters are working commercially. They hunt for money. It's a business with them. They eat, and buy gas for their cars, by their perversity.

The average human being holding a hunter's license isn't that sort of a man. But having the other sort about, all who hold hunting licenses come under suspicion, and because Warden Daniels and his deputies are active, trying to prevent violations of the law and prosecuting violators, a great howl goes up.

Warden Daniels and his deputies may not be loved too well by hunters who like to "pull stuff," but they have jobs to fill, for pay, and appear to be filling them, if all the squalling that is going on means anything. No honest hunter squalls.

Miss Phyllis Kenworthy and Miss Janis Kennedy, students in Providence institutions, were at their homes here over the week end.

Only a little more than a week to the biennial state election, one it so happens this year that needs the attention of voters, no matter what their views about this and that pertaining to political affairs.

Five deer were observed being lugged through here Saturday morning on the running boards or at the rear of three cars bearing New York registrations. Nothing at all wrong about it. The drivers and the members of their parties had been up in Maine on a successful hunt.

Charles F. Alexander, recently returned here after a stay of several months in Los Angeles, on a business mission, is among, at this writing, the many hundreds of thousands of persons who insist that particular Coast city is a marvel from about any viewpoint.

Held up by rain the past two days, the borough sidewalk building crew is gradually extending walks through Furnace street, and, with good weather will have the job complete within the next few days.

Mrs. F. E. Storer and Mrs. W. A. Musgrave spent the week end at Wellsfleet, on Cape Cod, where they have cottages for the summer season.

State highways and the average dirt road in this section are in condition for the cold weather season. This does not mean that perfection has been attained, but it does make record of the fact that the average highway is in much better condition at this time of year than was the rule a few years ago.

It was regarded as a possibility today that reports will be received during the coming week on the stomach of Francis Socquet, whose sad death the past week has led to an investigation, following an autopsy, as to the causes for his sudden departure from this life.

Dr. and Mrs. Warren A. Tanner were at New Haven Saturday to attend the Yale-Army game.

The attention of property owners within the town of Killingly is called to the fact that this is the final week for filing lists of taxable property. Lists may be filed with the assessors at the town hall building.—Adv.

Miss Rose Heneault, Killingly High school graduate and student at the present time at Mt. St. Vincent college, is, because of an attack of illness, at the home of her father, Armand Heneault, in Dayville.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Neandrin of New Bedford were visitors with friends in Danielson over the week end, returning to their home today.

Night Officer Laird Winchell was among the Danielson people who were at Boston Saturday to witness the Harvard-Dartmouth game. In his place here Special Officer Hosea Greene was on duty.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

LOCAL CHURCH TO UNITE WITH CONG. CH., PLAINFIELD

A special meeting of the North Plainfield Ecclesiastical society was held in the vestry Friday evening. Edward C. Tillinghast was chosen chairman. Rev. William C. Prentiss opened the meeting with prayer. It was voted to ratify the resolutions adopted by the Plainfield Congregational church at a recent meeting, viz.: That the Central Village church unite with the Plainfield Congregational church until Jan. 1, 1931, Rev. Mr. Prentiss serving the two parishes. The preaching service is to be at Plainfield Sunday morning at 10:30 and at Central Village at 11:45.

It was voted to have the Every Member canvass Sunday, Nov. 16, the pledges to be made to cover a period of 15 months, that is, until April 1, 1932. This was done in order that the Every Member canvass may take place in March, instead of this season of the year. Stuart Ellsworth was elected director of the canvass.

The matter of renting the parsonage was left in the hands of the Society committee. It was deemed advisable to rent the property, instead of allowing it to be vacant.

Mrs. Sheridan Walker, of Newburgh-on-the-Hudson, who has been spending several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Davis, has gone to the Lafayette Inn, Plainfield, for a stay.

Mrs. Meta Hall has returned to her home in Boston, having spent several days with Mrs. Cora Day.

PLAINFIELD

MAIN OFFICE LAWTON MILLS MOVING HERE FROM BOSTON

Two announcements of interest were made last week concerning the Lawton Mills Corp., of Plainfield. The first is the resignation of S. Harold Greene as treasurer of the company, the second, the removal of the main office of the corporation from Boston to Plainfield.

Mr. Greene has been with the Lawton Mills Corp. for about twenty-three years, and aside from the capable and efficient manner in which he discharged his duties he had a very human side which stood out in ideals of love and service toward his associates and employes. One has to but look at Plainfield village to know that the management behind it stood not only for making cloth, but for making people happy and contented.

At the Lawton Inn Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Greene were guests of honor at a farewell dinner as told in The Bulletin Saturday.

Willard Staples, who succeeds Mr. Greene, is from New Bedford where he has been assistant treasurer of the Wamsutta mills since 1926, although he has been with the company since 1917.

SECOND MEMBER OF PHILA. BROKERAGE FIRM SUICIDES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Sidney F. Tyler Brock, member of the brokerage firm of Reilly, Brock and Company, committed suicide today, police said, by shooting himself in the head.

His senior partner, George K. Reilly, took his life in a similar manner last Thursday.

The authorities expressed the belief that business worries had led both men to take their lives and were seeking to determine whether the double tragedy was the result of a suicide pact.

Brock shot himself through the brain in the bathroom of a suite he had rented only a few hours earlier in a central city apartment house.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT IN COLCHESTER, VT., LAST NIGHT

COLCHESTER, Vt., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Frank D. Gallagher, of Arlington, Mass., was killed in an automobile accident here duing the night. Edward Bright of New London, Conn., suffered a broken neck and Robert T. Lewis of Malden, Mass., received severe injuries in the same accident. The trio was in an automobile which left the highway and ploughed 100 yards across a field before it was wrecked against a stump. Bright's condition is critical.

ONLY TWO REPUBLICAN TOWN OFFICE HOLDERS RETAINED BY THE DEMOCRATS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 26.—In naming democrats to important town posts, when making the annual town appointments Friday evening at a special meeting, the democratic-controlled board of selectmen broke down the last of the political barriers set up by the local republican organization, which was subjected to a stinging defeat at the polls this year.

The most important act of the board was the ousting of Harry Hill, as superintendent of the town farm, and appointing in his place, Albert Langellier, 320 South Main street, as his successor. Mrs. Antonia Langellier, wife of the new superintendent, received the appointment of the board as matron of the farm. Selectman Edward F. Girard, chairman of the board, said this afternoon that the new town farm appointees will supplant Superintendent Hill's administration on Nov. 1.

General surprise was indicated in the appointment of Dr. Philias Tetreault of Providence street to replace Dr. Bernard P. Murphy as town physician. Although a drastic change of the slate of town appointive offices was anticipated it was not expected that the coup would affect this post.

James E. Barnes, for the past few years personal tax collector under republican control, will be relieved of his duties this year, as the selectmen have announced the appointment of Mrs. Estelle Delisle of Woodstock avenue to this office. Mrs. Delisle, well known in this city, is active in local democratic women's circles.

Armand Farley, democrat, of Providence street, was appointed town sealer of weights and measures and will succeed William Pechie, republican, who failed for re-appointment.

The only men holding office under the republican administration, re-appointed by the new board of selectmen, were Attorney Howard C. Bradford, re-appointed as town counsel, and Peter A. Gardner, re-appointed as town health officer.

Mr. Langellier, new superintendent of the town farm, was highly recommended to selectmen for appointment to the position which he will assume next month. He was employed for seven years as an expert poultryman at the Ream estate in Thompson and for a time was foreman on a large dairy farm in Danvers, Mass. At Dudley, Mass., he superintended the Chester Uppham market gardens and subsequently had charge of a large poultry farm in New Hampshire. Mrs. Langellier is experienced in the administration of a number of farms where her husband was formerly employed. Her new duties at the local town almshouse will be along the same lines as those she has performed in the past. Mr. and Mrs. Langellier will remove their personal effects to the town farm upon the assumption of their duties there.

In retiring from the superintendency of the town farm, Superintendent Hill takes with him an enviable record which until this year met the satisfaction of the selectmen and won re-appointment for him. His consideration for those in his charge won the respect and admiration of the farm inmates, who wish him success in his new field of endeavor.

JEWETT CITY

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE TO AID IN UNEMPLOYMENT

A committee of public-spirited citizens of the town of Griswold was formed during the week end, to aid the unemployed of this town and to help men and women secure work during the present hard times; also to assist and help needy families. The committee has chosen Thomas McBroome, selectman from the first district, chairman of this committee, which consists of the following: Rev. John J. McCabe, Rev. Giles F. Goodenough, Rev. John W. Carter, Edmond Jodoin, O. Frank Durfey, Ray W. Greene, Earl E. Gilbert, James Q. Dolan, Frank E. Robinson, John Welsh, Dr. George H. Jennings, Charles Ruszenas, Andrew McNicol, Walter S. Richardson, Arthur M. Brown.

The committee intends to canvass the town and various mills to secure work for those unemployed and to help needy families over the present crisis.

All citizens are requested to assist in whatever way they can to help the committee and to report to the chairman or other members of the committee names of any families in want.

It is hoped that the people of Griswold will get behind this movement and render aid where it is most needed.

SHORT BOBS GONE AS LONGER LOCKS MARK SMART MODE

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—The short bob is a thing of the past and longer locks mark the coiffure chic of 1930.

At least so says Charles Bock, New York hairdresser who numbers the smartest society women and actresses among his clientele.

"You can't have that short-short hair and be smart any more. The new feminine clothes won't stand it," he explains. "That doesn't mean you must cultivate the modes and methods of the Sutherland Sisters, but you certainly must have longer hair.

"How long? That depends on you and your face, but certainly not longer than shoulder length—even when it's long."

Debutantes, actresses and young society matrons are going in a big way for a hairdress parted on one side, waved softly around the face, coiled in a flat chignon that extends from ear to ear, and pinned close to the back of the head.

This hairdress, which requires locks almost brushing the shoulders is particularly adaptable to the new berets and tricornes of this year's hat mode.

For those who cling fondly to the bobbed coiffure, there is one, softly waved and ending in a turned-up curl, and fitting close to the nape of the neck that Paris has stamped as the last word.

The same coiffure may end in small, flat turned-up ringlets if milady prefers—an effect far removed from the short-clipped bob of yesterday, since it gives the effect of long hair.

"Look to your face before you select your coiffure this fall," Bock says. "Uneven features need more curl than clasic ones. blondes take more than brunets. lively eyes get away with a fluffier effect than quiet ones.

TO ATTEMPT THREE-WAY BROADCAST THIS MORNING

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—A three-way broadcast, originating in Tokyo, London and Washington, is to be attempted by the two nation-wide chains tomorrow morning. It is to be a special program in connection with the ratification of the London naval treaty.

Speakers will be President Hoover, talking from Washington; Premier MacDonald from London, and Premier Hamaguchi from Tokyo. The broadcast is to start at 9:50 a. m. (EST) and continue until about 10:35.

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting company will present the feature, which, if it succeeds, will be the first direct pickup of a radio program from Japan.

PUTNAM

OPPOSITION TO USE OF PUTNAM FIELD BY OUTSIDE INTERESTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 26.—The action of the town school committee at its meeting last Tuesday evening, in granting permission to the board of managers of the Putnam "Bulldogs," semi-pro football team, to stage games on Sundays on the Putnam High school athletic field, has given rise to considerable opposition which is being registered chiefly by those residing in the immediate vicinity of the high school grounds. When the fact became generally known that the school board had favorably acted upon the "Bulldogs'" request, Chairman John H. Bulger of the school board building committee was besought by several residents of upper School street, who made oral protest to the board's action. Upon being informed by Mr. Bulger that little could be done until the next meeting of the board in November, when an opportunity would be given to all desiring to appear before the committee and state causes for their objection, certain instigators of the opposition movement circulated a petition among upper School street residents, with the result that only a small number honored the document by affixing their signatures.

Until this year staging of Sunday sporting contests on the high school campus has been prohibited. In view of the fact that the request to remove the ban was made by local young men in behalf of an organization, the membership and supporters of which are representative of Putnam's most reputable men and women, the board, after long deliberation during which the question was thoroughly debated, decided in favor of those seeking permission to arrange Sunday contests.

The first Sunday afternoon grid classic of the year was played this afternoon before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans whose conduct, in the opinion of several members of the school board witnessing the game for the purpose of surveying conditions brought on through the lifting of the Sunday sports prohibition act, in no way warrants the assertions made that athletic meets of this type are "public nuisances."

Despite the fact that public opinion throughout the city rests with the school board, certain members who supported the movement for a repeal of the act prohibiting Sunday sports on the high school campus have been targets for severe criticism expressed by the minority group opposed to the ban lifting.

Judge Newell Jennings, presiding over the September term of superior court, civil session, now sitting in Willimantic, has made the following case assignments for next week: Tuesday, Oct. 28: James F. Carmody vs. William C. Raill; Elizabeth Marsden vs. Alfred J. Bousquet; Violet Baldwin vs. Alfred J. Bousquet. Following the scheduled jury cases, on Tuesday, Judge Jennings has assigned the following cases: Alfred J. Baldwin vs. Alfred J. Bousquet; Gregory Swelki vs. Byron M. Lewis; and for trial on Monday, Nov. 3, at Willimantic, the case of Romulus Paquin vs. Maude A. Starr and Robert Starr has been assigned. Announcement of assignments was made Saturday by Curtis N. Dean, clerk of courts.

Edward F. Girard, chairman of the town democratic committee, stated today that the county's biggest democratic rally of the campaign will be held in this city Friday evening, when Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democratic candidate for governor, and other prominent democrats will speak. Others who will be on the platform with Dean Cross will be William S. Fox of New London, Alton T. Miner of New London, David A. Wilson of Hartford, democratic candidate for attorney general, Dan J. Leary of Waterbury, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Senator Napoleon Fournier of Moosup, candidate for county sheriff. Representatives Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox, candidates for reelection, and Mrs. Dorothy Jones Bartlett, candidate for state senator from the 28th district, are also expected to speak.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary M. Wilson

A shock suffered on Friday morning proved fatal to Mrs. Mary M. Wilson, widow of James Wilson, of 153 Walnut street, who died at 2 o'clock Saturday morning at the Day Kimball hospital. She was in her 71st year.

Mrs. Wilson was widely known in this city, where she had lived for more than 40 years, and her sudden death deeply affected a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who held her in high esteem.

Mrs. Wilson was found lying prostrate on the floor of the kitchen of her home on Walnut street, Friday evening, in an unconscious condition, by Mrs. Joseph Schmanscha and a neighbor. A physician was quickly summoned and after a hurried examination she was rushed in the Day Kimball hospital ambulance to the hospital, where all efforts to revive her were to no avail. Mrs. Wilson had lived alone since the death of her husband about four years ago. Until Friday she had been active and, according to close friends, evidenced no indications of the apparent physical strain she was working under. Early Friday morning, a neighbor went to Mrs. Wilson's home to telephone. She appeared to be in good health and informed her caller that she was about to have breakfast. Mrs. Schmanscha became alarmed when Mrs. Wilson failed to communicate with her at any time during the day and, shortly before 6 o'clock, she went to the Wilson home to investigate. That Mrs. Wilson was stricken early in the morning and had been lying unconscious throughout the day was seen in the fact that her breakfast food was untouched when neighbors at length discovered her.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Clinton, Mass., in 1860, the daughter of Patrick and Catherine McCaffery. She was married to James Wilson of this city who, until his death, worked in various textile plants in this section as a department foreman. Mrs. Wilson was a devout communicant of St. Mary's church and was a member of St. Mary's church Rosary society. Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Johnson of Providence, and Miss Margaret McCaffery of Oakdale, Mass., and a brother, Edward F. McCaffery, of Clinton.

School superintendents of eastern Windham county will attend the New England School Superintendents' convention to be held in Boston on Nov. 13 and 14.

Jason Cutler of East Killingly was graduated from the state trade school Oct. 17, having satisfactorily completed 4,800 hours trade and related education subjects.

Alfred Barber of Springfield, Mass., spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Elvira Barber, of School street.

Winter's first touch was received in Putnam Saturday morning when snow accompanied cold winds that followed close on the heels of Friday night's rain storm. The flakes quickly melted when more rain began to fall. In Thompson and towns north, snow flurries were heavier, although the precipitation of later rain washed out all traces of the squalls.

EVERYTHING IS SHIPSHAPE FOR NAVY DAY CELEBRATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Everything was shipshape in the United States navy tonight in preparation for the annual celebration tomorrow of Navy day.

An "open house" policy will be in effect for the occasion and many persons were expected to take advantage of the opportunity to go through the ships which would protect this country in the event of war.

Navy officials, including Secretary Adams, will deliver addresses telling of the work of the department, some of which will be carried by radio.

Explaining the purpose of the celebration, Walter Bruce Howe, president of the Navy league, said tonight it was intended to "afford a special opportunity for the people of the United States to know more of their navy as it is and to give thought to its honorable service in the past."

"The sponsors of Navy day," he added, "point out that it is the anniversary of the birth of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and as such is intended to commemorate his devotion and understanding of the American navy."

COUNTER REVOLUTIONARY SOCIETY IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The secret police today announced the discovery of a secret counter revolutionary society called "The Industrial Party," which it accused of attempting to create crises in various soviet industries.

Leaders of the party were said to have confessed that they carried out instructions of a White Russian organization in Paris known as the "Trade and Industrial committee," which was headed by former Russian manufacturers and capitalists.

The leading members of the society, mostly engineers and technicians, will be tried soon by the supreme court.

UNLAWFUL REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN N. Y. ALLEGED

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Allegations involving 50,000 voters in unlawful registration for the November elections will be placed before the county grand jury tomorrow by Harold Riegelman, special assistant attorney general.

About 400 persons already have been subpoenaed to appear and those indicted will be arrested at the polls, Mr. Riegelman said, if they try to vote. Of the 50,000, he said, 15,000 were innocent of wrongful intent but the rest he believed guilty of fraud

20 PERSONS KILLED BY FLOODS IN SMYRNA

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Twenty persons have been killed by floods in Smyrna, delayed dispatches announced today. Hundreds were injured.

Train service has been discontinued, bridges have been destroyed, ambulances were unable to operate, owing to the condition of the streets.

The rain ceased this morning, but torrents continued to pour down from the upper city and flood the crowded lower districts. The American university, situated on high land outside Smyrna, was believed undamaged.

JUNIOR ALTITUDE RECORD FOR LIGHT AIRPLANES

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Paul Clough, 16-year-old errand boy at Roosevelt field, today soared to what he claims to be a junior altitude record for light planes.

In a tiny monoplane with a 30-horsepower motor—really a power glider—Clough climbed until the plane could go no higher. His altimeter read 11,800 feet. He also carried a barograph which will be sent to Washington for calibration. It is believed that no record had been established previously for such a flight.

Clough, who recently obtained a flier's license, is the son of a Garden City real estate man. After school he works at this field, his chief task being to obtain the names of occupants of planes taking off and landing

SUCCESSFUL IN SECOND ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The persistence of William Servick, 25-year-old factory worker and violinist, won for him that which he desired most—death.

He was found dead in bed at his boarding house last night, with a tube attached to a gas jet showing the means he took. One end of the tube was placed under the bed clothing which Servick had carefully tucked over his head.

Only a week go, he tried suicide by inhaling illuminating gas. A fellow boarder, however, smelled the gas in time to save him. After a day in a hospital Servick was discharged.

One day this week Servick met the man who had broken up his plan of death and said: "Next time don't bother me."

No motive has been discovered.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

There is presented above the republican state ticket and the nominees for office in congressional and senatorial districts in this part of the state, as well as the candidate for high sheriff, the representatives from this town and the judge of probate.

The ticket is headed by Lieutenant Governor Rogers, who has had years of service as a state official, who has had valuable training that fits him for the governorship and of whom it has been fittingly said by Congressman Freeman that he has stood the test of years and is known as fair, honest, industrious, steady, and has achieved success in everything he has undertaken.

Others on the state ticket have likewise had experience in guiding the ship of state, a training that is invaluable in connection with further service, with the exception of Messrs. Wilcox and Burrows. Treasurer Spencer is entitled to a promotion, while the retention of Dr. William L. Higgins as secretary of state means the continuance of an able official in a responsible post.

New London county is well acquainted with Judge Burrows, a native of Groton, who has been prominent in legal circles for many years, a prosecutor and judge of merit and who is qualified to make an efficient attorney general.

For congress, the second district has received such constant and considerate service from Richard P. Freeman that there could be no other thought than to send him back to Washington. Years of experience, close touch with district conditions, a prestige that comes only with long service in the halls of congress, give assurance of the continuance of effective attention and desired results through his re-election.

For high sheriff, New London county knows well the high grade of efficiency that can be expected through the election of George H. Bradford to succeed himself. Sheriff Bradford knows the county thoroughly, knows its problems to an unusual degree and is eminently fitted to administer the duties of this responsible post. His record in this and other offices is outstanding evidence of his fitness for public service.

Charles W. Cassidy, who has been nominated for state senator, has had two years in the house as training for the senate chamber. Able and qualified by training, none knows better the requirements of the district and through his election its interests would be carefully taken care of. Nominations by the republicans in the other senatorial districts in this end of Connecticut display a keen regard for men of ability and integrity who can be relied upon for conscientious and fruitful service in meeting district and state needs.

The importance of having Norwich send representatives to the legislature who will be of the majority party ought to be recognized. In the selection of Messrs. Greenstein and Knowles, there are reasons for confidence in their ability to furnish constant, effective and valuable service.

The nomination of Judge Ayling on both tickets assured his election, and the fact that the office has thus been eliminated from political combat again this year is an evidence of fine judgment on the part of the voters of the probate district as well as the highest commendation of his administration of the probate court.

HELPING NICARAGUA AGAIN

If there was appreciation on the part of the people of Nicaragua of the work done by the United States in supervising the election there in 1928, the best evidence of it is probably furnished by the fact that they are desirous of having a similar service performed again this year.

Two years ago, at the supervised election, the executive of Nicaragua, half of the deputies and a third of the senators were chosen. This year the election calls for the selection of half of the deputies and a third of the senators.

This election comes next Sunday and Captain Alfred W. Johnson of the United States navy, head of the American electoral commission, points out that the purpose is not "to make or execute the laws of Nicaragua, but to see that the legislative and executive branches of the government—which make and execute the laws—are freely and fairly elected." This statement is, of course, in accord with the sentiment of both countries. The United States is willing to give this aid because of the need which exists for it and the desirability of encouraging the proper respect for and confidence in elections.

Though this country was asked to serve two years ago, there were those disposed to feel that it was a step which ought not to be taken, that Nicaragua should be allowed to have its election fights and bloodshed, and selection of officials by bullets instead of ballots. The changed conditions in that republic must have created a different impression. Certainly Uncle Sam rendered an invaluable service there and it is gratifying that the country wants it repeated and it is to be sincerely hoped that it will be followed by equally pleasing results to such an extent that it will definitely mark a permanent policy on the part of Nicaragua, so far at least as the insistence upon full and fair elections are concerned and the determination as soon as possible to so conduct them without the help of outside supervision.

NAVY DAY

That cordial invitation which has been extended to the people of Norwich to visit the submarine base today by Commandant Brown should get a hearty response.

Today, October 27, the birthday anniversary of Former resident Theodore Roosevelt, has been designated by the secretary of the navy as Navy day and a time for throwing open the navy yards of the country for inspection by the people and the creation of an opportunity for getting in closer touch with what is being done through the various branches for the proper defense of this country.

The navy is and has long been regarded as the first line of defense. In this vicinity special interest is centered upon the submarine service, the improvements which are being made in the underwater boats and the protective devices which are being provided for the crews in case of accident. Likewise there is interest in the system that has been devised for training the men in the use of such devices in case of an emergency.

It is possible for the centers of naval activity to permit the public to go through the yards, the vessels, the schools, the shops, at all times. On Navy day special privileges are extended and it is the desire that each and everyone should avail himself of the chance to see and ask questions and learn those many things about which uncertainty exists and questions are being asked.

It is desired that the people should get thoroughly interested in the navy that its importance may be fully appreciated and its needs equally well understood, and certainly there could be no more fitting occasion for Navy day than the birthday anniversary of the president who was such an outstanding champion of the navy.

We rely to no small degree upon the navy in case of trouble and we should make the most of the chance to find out more about it, what it is doing, what is planned for it and what it is prepared to do as a protector in time of peace as well as war.

DAMAGED STREETS

Much satisfaction is felt by a community when it has contributed to the betterment of its streets by completing a new and much-needed pavement. At the present time efforts are being mdae to give such attention to pipes and conduits underground in the streets that it will not be necessary to disturb the new construction, but it isn't long before a break or a new development makes it necessary to break through and patch up the former surface. If the job is done properly there is little ground for complaint, but where holes are left it means an uneven and an irritating roadbed.

But pipes and rails and conduits are not the only causes for breaking down pavements. Out in Tulsa, Okla., there was a visitation from a circus. Much money had been spent on paved roads but the day after the circus was there there were plenty of evidences of the damage that had been caused by the heavy circus wagons. In that Tulsa had no different experience than many other cities, but it was not content to see such a transient enterprise carry away so many dollars and pay nothing for the damage it did to the paved streets. Tulsa put in a claim against the big show, set forth its claim in such a manner that it was recognized and it is now rejoicing over the fact that it has received a check for $1,120 for the repair of the damage.

While this represents only part of the reconstruction cost, it establishes a precedent in that city, and sets an example that may be given more attention by others suffering in a similar manner.

PLANNING THE GARDEN

The annual catalogue of a well-known seed house having arrived that day by mail, Betty, enthroned in an easy chair in the living room, was now coming its alluring pages.

"Don't you love nasturtiums, Bob?" she asked her husband, who was dividing his attention between the evening paper and a pipe. The "Umph, umph" which constituted his reply Betty considered sufficiently encouraging and questions or comments were forthcoming as she gazed at blooming and brilliantly colored asters, phlox, foxgloves, giant snapdragons, prim zinnias and other flowers with which the catalogue was profusely illustrated.

"Wouldn't it be nice to have a real old-fashioned garden?" Without waiting for the usual answer she went on: "I believe I'll make a list." Jumping up, Betty procured a sheet of paper and a pencil from the desk and was presently writing and "thinking aloud." "Lavender, of course; no old-timey garden would be complete without lavender. Clove pinks, petunias, verbenas; rue, rosemary and columbine—reminds me of the Shakespearean bed that Aunt Lucy had! Quite a task; still, a lot could be learned planning it!"

Scanning and taking notes, Betty turned page after page. "Marigolds!" she exclaimed. "Seems odd, but I don't care for them! Easy to raise; just put the seeds in the ground, presto! up they'll pop! No matter, if neglected they will fairly mock one with their hardy, saucy blossoms. Do you like them, Bob?"

"Umph, I guess so."

"Well, a few of the orange ball variety wouldn't be so bad."

By this time Bob, having finished pipe and paper, exclaimed: "Let me see that catalogue."

Going through the floral department in short order, Bob came to that part of the book devoted to vegetables and was soon as deeply engrossed planning a kitchen garden as Betty had been with the old-fashioned blooms.

"Here's a new sweet corn!" he cried. "Sounds great!" reading aloud, "Indian Gold; rich, buttery flavor with broad, deep grains. The skin thin; filled with juicy pulp. Makes a vigorous growth with two, sometimes three, ears per plant."

"And those are just the lima beans to go with it!" cried Betty. "Oh! oh!" she ejaculated as Bob turned the page. "What delicious tomatoes! Yellow ones, too! Wonder what they're like?"

"Isn't that a perfect picture of a watermelon?" inquired Bob; "makes your mouth water just to look at it!"

"Root crops!. Let's arrange an alphabetical table! Asparagus, beets, brussels sprouts; brussels sprouts are aristocratic vegetables. Carrots, cucumbers! O Bob, here's a whole page of salad plants! Could anything be more attractive than a pretty glass dish of jolly, round, red radishes?"

Bob continuing to read, "Prize yellow onions, parsnips, parsley—"

"We mustn't forget an herb bed with plenty of caraway!" cried Betty. "My grandmother used to make caraway seed cookies that—"

"Parsley," Bob repeated, "peppers, spinach—"

"Spinach to be sure!" exclaimed Betty; "no home is considered properly conducted these days without spinach at least once a week!"

"Turnips—"

"That brings us down to the winter vegetables."

"Yes," assented Bob, "guess that's about all."

Silence reigned in the living room for several moments; Betty was intently studying one list, Bob the other.

At last Betty broke the silence by inquiring, "How much ground would it take?"

"I suppose a couple of acres for the vegetables."

"And the flowers—?"

"A quarter of an acre more."

Betty sighed; brightening presently, however, she exclaimed, "O Bob! I have an idea! We might raise a few pots of petunias in the dinette window and couldn't we plant some radishes in a box on the back porch?"

"Umph!" grunted Bob, dubiously, "perhaps!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander
By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow, together with their off-spring and their illustrious son-in-law, Colonel Lindbergh, may all have planned campaign activities in behalf of Morrow's aspirations to be a senator.

In fact, the public prints reported that Mrs. Morrow, at least, was again to take the stump in Grandpa Morrow's behalf, as she did, very effectively in his primary campaign. Nothing was said of the part the daughters Morrow were to play, or of son-in-law Morrow, or, for that matter, of what grandson Morrow might contribute to the cause.

Yet they all have had an important part in the strange story of the remodeling of Morrow, one time Morgan group banker, into Morrow the diplomat, politician and possible presidential nominee.

Signs And Portents

Getting back to the New Jersey senatorial campaign, however, there are signs here in Washington that Morrow himself regards it as already all over but the actual presentation of his credentials to the senate.

A month or more before election day Morrow was in Washington yielding up his diplomatic job, doing a nifty bit of behind the scenes work to insure selection of Reuben Clark to be his successor in Mexico City, and otherwise closing out his diplomatic line as he had previously closed out his banking career.

Later, however, it developed that he had found time while in Washington to go house hunting also!

He was picking a residence for Senator-to-be Morrow, apparently in supreme confidence that a mere formality stood between him and the new title.

Why not?

A primary victory of such rousing proportions as that Morrow rolled up in his first political set-to would be warrant enough for confidence. It would be hard for him to conceive of defeat in November in the face of the elation he must have felt over those primary returns.

If local rumors have it right, Morrow expects to live out among the "cliff dwellers" of Georgetown in a revamped house more than a century old.

Fashion

That is a great thing to do in Washington nowadays. All these wealthy young bloods of the state department have snapped up old, near colonial homes on the hilly streets of Georgetown.

Fortunes have gone into modernization and artistic restoration.

The ample old house Morrow is supposed to have under consideration as his senatorial home is even now undergoing the process. If he bids it in quickly enough, or even negotiates a lease, he could have a hand in the restoration job himself.

The outstanding idea, however, is that Morrow seems to expect definitely to make his future home in Washington.

Is he also sort of tentatively looking over that famous White Mansion, No. 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, while he's about it?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No Bigotry or Hatred

Mr. Editor: Nobody, (least of all the men who fought them) have any bigotry or hatred towards Germans, as such. I have several good friends who me down in various ways, just as I tried my darndest to do them in. probably shot at me, and tried to do That's war! Curse it! And that German, French, English, American, has nothing on me as far as mixed blood goes. But the fact that the German people repudiated the old imperial outfit themselves, can not be denied, and the best element in Germany today are still repudiating him and all his works. For there are good and bad in all classes and in all nations, and the bad ones surely put Germany through a vale of tears as well as the rest of the world, and would again if they could. Are the people fighting each other in Germany today Germans, or what? I have some cousins there who are so anxious for peace that they are willing to go to war again to get it, Not war with France or England, but war with Germans who want the old order in Germany with all the royal push trimmings.

I'm always willing to oblige, or almost always, a person who likes good Germans, but tries to make all Germans into Goethes, Kochs and Steubens and forgets the Von Bissings, who shoot nurses and a lot of others. Shakespeare said, "The evil that men do live after them. The good is oft interred with their bones." There must be some pretty light funerals in Germany, when some of those women and children killers check in at the pearly gate, who sent over bombing parties to blow up unfortified and undefended towns. I was there and saw it done. I spent several hours with a squad of wounded men picking up mangled and mutilated bodies of girl nurses, killed by a bomb dropped on a hospital miles beyond the fighting lines, and was blown out of bed myself with lots of other wounded. Can 100 Per Center, and Reader laugh that off? I couldn't, and can't yet. And yet "Reader" says Germany, or that part of Germans responsible for such deeds, didn't receive any consideration in war times. It's a fact that they didn't. Not even from their own men, who rebelled and shot some of the worst ones according to history, but couldn't get the kingpin, but did scare him over into Holland for sanctuary. Read the book by German chief of staff, on how the kaiser got the "wind up," (that's army talk for getting scared stiff.), and how he was frantic to get across the line, and away from his own men, who after four years of war, had found him out for what he was. Just an Imperial Sham. If that is "Abusive Invictive" blame Winston Churchill for it first, and certainly no one could accuse him of "jumping at throats."

And I'm still of the opinion, as an American of no particular percentage, that any sane person, either 100 per cent American or 1½ per cent German, who still worships his imperial niblets is not, and can not be anything 100 per cent except a blind bigot. And I'm still of the opinion that anyone who advocates the tearing up of treaties made with the United States, or any other nation, or anyone else who advocates or tries to foment anyother war, either by words or deed, is in urgent need of some "consideration" from the U. S. authorities, on a good husky, strong armed sheriff.

Golfers Trin To Laugh Off Trouble
Nerve Balance Restored

By Cary T. Grayson, M. D., President, Gorgas Memorial Institute
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Golf, poker, hunting and fishing are sports that offer tests with which to judge the true measure of a man. All these tests call for nerve control, and afford times when the real man stands revealed. It is, then, no wonder that too few people do these things. Many of us are so modest that we do not care to be seen in our true light, but prefer a cloak of mystery to hide our funny little ways—self consciousness. It takes real nerve, at least for some of us, to play golf, to come out in shirts and knickers, with which no tailor under the sun can hide disgraceful curves and angles—one reason why beach bathing is good for self-consciousness.

In golf it also takes nerve to link up with a stranger in a two-some, or to form one-fourth of a four-some. But all is good treatment. These tests make or break an over-nervous individual; one might as well be broken as expecting to be every minute. The coolest golf player said one day, when talking over nerves and golf, "I am called an iceberg as to nerves, when it comes to playing golf. Well, right here I want to state to you—what I won't admit to others—that I sit on the lid of my box in which my nerves are stored so they won't get out, but I am deathly afraid that they are going to escape at every turn." His way only excellent control of that which he knew he had—nerves.

In a recent tournament a 10 handicap man shot his qualifying round in 96. He freely admitted that he had come out with the avowed purpose of winning the cup, but failed to get in the first flight, all on account of over-confidence, which received a terrible set-back on the third hole (a par 3) when he took a snappy 9. He recovered his nerve only after making a horrible example of himself, along about the 14th, and played the remaining 4 holes in 2 under par. He said, "I've learned a lesson, and that is never to be too confident, and never to let my temper get the best of me at golf, but to just laugh off trouble." We are forever learning. That is why golf is a most efficient teacher.

There is a reason for the million or more bona fide golfers of the United States. It tells the story that they are gettting more out of the game than simply spending time and money; that they are receiving lessons in fortitude and discipline and a training in how to take the "rubs" on fairway and green, which are very apropos of those of life. Golf is a constant reminder that life is not a bed of roses, that it has its uphill struggle and is a contest against heavy odds all of which makes life really worth living.

Lack of control of the nerves is nervousness. There are those who think that they "must let the nerves out of the box" every once in a while, and some twice in awhile. Such folks are not only trying to excuse themselves, but are putting themselves in a bad way practising non-control, getting the habit of continually losing their nerve balance.

None of us can be perfect as to nerves all of the time—it's not human, few of us can be perfect a sufficient amount of time, even at golf.

Norwich 100 Years Ago
From
THE NORWICH COURIER

"We are happy to see that the measure which originated with one of the school societies of this town is receiving so generally the approbation of our citizens," says the Norwich Courier of October 27, 1830, 100 years ago today. "Papers in all parts of the state have noticed the proceedings in this town and recommend their general adoption by the different school societies" the article continues.

Shortly before the appearance of this article in The Norwich Courier one of the school societies in Norwich appointed a committee to petition the state legislature to pass a law obliging school societies to raise by tax an amount at least equal to what they received from what was called the "School fund." The objects of such a law were two fold. One was to give a more adequate compensation to instructors — the other to excite more interest in common schools, among those who paid the tax.

Under the heading of "Fire Places" the century old issue of The Courier says; A new mode of preparing kitchen fire places has been introduced in this city (Boston, Mass.). It consists of a grate for coal and a space above, like a square oven, with iron shelves for baking. Roasting, boiling and baking can go on at the same time. The aperture to the flue is above the space. The whole, except the grate, is, when necessary, closed, or partly closed, by a sliding shutter of sheet iron. Not only is cooking done excellently in this mode, but the smoking of chimneys is effectually remedied.

An interesting advertisement in the issue reads; Miss Moore has just returned from New York with the latest fashions of ladies hats, dresses and habits. In Bozrah on the 18th of October, 1830, Davis Austin Fox of Lebanon and Miss Sally Waterman of Bozrah were united in marriage.

An announcement calls attention to the fact that the school visitors of the second school society in Norwich would meet for the examination of school masters for the several districts on the Tuesday evenings of the month of November, at the office of J. A. Rockwell.

Gilman and Ripley offered for sale, "at the lowest prices for cash or approved credit," 100 tons of iron, including an "extensive assortment of Russia, Old Sable, Swedes, English and American, Bars, Bolts and Braziers' rods, cart, wagon and chaise tires, horse and deck nail rods, shoe shapes, Spanish hoops." etc. The same concern also announced that they had "just received, per sloop Maria, a large addition to their stock of paints, oils, dyestuffs, window glass" and other merchandise.

CHILD TRAINING

Diversity Of Interest
Marion Brownfield

"Mother, look at the roots of that tree!" The little boy on the street car pointed to a tree in a parkway, whose sprawling surface roots had uplifted the sidewalk.

His mother nodded indifferently. This might have been excusable had she been making cake or doing anything else which required her full attention. The point is, however, that she lost an opportunity to educate her child.

Too often, nowadays, we lament the fact that our children don't care for anything but amusements—entertainment that costs money. Often, too, we apologize for ourselves saying that we haven't the education we wish we had; but a broad education consists in having a diversity of interests and knowledge.

Nearly all children have, naturally, a diversity of interests. The world is all sparkling new to them, from the fluffy kitten to the gleaming stars of night. That is why they ask so many questions. The school teacher is paid to answer some of these, but most parents ignore as many as they can.

After awhile, children stop asking questions of persons who give them no satisfaction. They get their information from questionable sources, or in time, they settle down into the boredom of narrow ruts of thought.

Consider how narrow the interests of the average parent become. The father must concentrate the greater part of his time on the work that brings the family income; the mother must occupy herself with the routine of housekeeping, and mend, if not make, the children's clothes. Both probably enjoy music via radio and conscientiously devote some time to religion. If they are fortunate they may have a garden to be interested in; the chances are that the family "flivver" takes more of the father's time.

And children are interested in art, science, nature, history, literature, sport, biology and people. Of course, not many children read a history of art, or know that the science of insects is called entomology. But most of them want to know the name of a picture and they may become absorbingly interested in watching ants. Now of course the best intentioned parent can't be a walking encyclopedia. But far better than buying a "Book of Knowledge" for a child's birthday—and that is good—is the patient every day understanding and personal help which it is possible for a parent to give. Hardly any great success has been achieved, whether by a painter or statesman, but can be credited to early encouragement.

And such encouragement should be spelled with a capital, for it is the opposite of discouragement of childish questions! Encouragement rather than training is really what a child needs to keep up the diversity of interests that will make him a broad-minded, educated person all of his life. Encourage children to be interested in everything! Only in this way will they sort out the worthwhile, develop judgment and "find themselves."

MOTION PICTURE CASES BEFORE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Two cases in which rules and regulations surrounding the distribution of motion pictures are attacked will be argued before the supreme court tomorrow.

Watched with keen interest by producers, distributors and exhibitors who operate the approximtely 25,000 motion picture theaters in the United States, the suits charge conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce on the part of some of the leading picture corporations.

They were brought by the government under the Sherman anti-trust law and were tried in New York city.

The government lost one and won the other.

DO YOU KNOW CONNECTICUT?
By Conn. Chamber of Commerce

A new question and answer series entitled "Do You Know Connecticut?" will appear regularly in Monday, Wednesday and Friday editions beginning herewith.

Our readers who are interested in important trends in Connecticut, such as manufacturing, banking, insurance, transportation, and other similar factors, as well as historical and other interesting facts, will wish to follow this new series completed by the Connecticut chamber of commerce.

Q. To what country did Connecticut once belong by right of discovery?

A. To Holland. Accounts of the voyages of Henry Hudson in 1609 and of Adrian Blok in 1614 give the first description which history records of this region.

Q. When does the Connecticut legislature convene?

A. On the Wednesday after the first Monday of January in odd years.

Q. What is the value of Connecticut livestock?

A. Approximately $20,000,000.

Q. What are the leading exports from Connecticut?

Q. How many retail groceries are there in the state?

Q. How many newspapers are there in Connecticut?

(Answers to these questions will be published in Wednesday's paper.)

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Coon Makes a Discovery

Don't tell your neighbors all you know;
Or what you do, or where you go.
—Jimmy Skunk.

It was dusk. Jimmy Skunk was ambling along in that easy-going fashion of his. Bobby Coon was following him. Bobby was glad that Jimmy was fat and that naturally he never hurries, for Bobby was himself quite fat and he had no desire to hurry. Jimmy paid no attention to his back trail. He didn't once look behind him to see if he were being followed. You see, Jimmy has so long been independent that it does not concern him much what other people do. So Jimmy didn't know that Bobby Coon was following.

Jimmy shuffled along down through the Old Orchard straight toward Farmer Brown's house. Bobby Coon followed. When Jimmy reached Farmer Brown's dooryard he didn't stop; he ambled straight across that yard toward the back of Farmer Brown's house. Bobby Coon, how-
"Where can that fellow be going ever, did stop.
now?" muttered Bobby Coon. "Bowser the Hound or Flip the Terrier is likely to show up any minute. Jimmy Skunk is crazy! Yes, sir; he's crazy!"

Then Bobby happened to remember that Jimmy was afraid of no one. He remembered that everybody respected Jimmy's little bag of scent. It probably was safe enough for him to cross that dooryard. It wouldn't however, be safe for Bobby to cross—at least, not if Bowser the Hound or Flip the Terrier happened to be around.

"I'll just climb a tree here and see what I can see from there," muttered Bobby, and immediately acted on his own suggestion. He found when he got up in the tree, however, that

"Hello, Jimmy Skunk," said Bobby

Jimmy Skunk had disappeared. He had disappeared over there close to Farmer Brown's house, and, though Bobby looked and looked, and his eyes are pretty good in the dark, he could see nothing of Jimmy. Bobby waited for some time. At last he heard a little noise down below him, a rustling in the leaves. He looked down and could see something white. He knew right away that Jimmy Skunk was there. What he saw was the white part of Jimmy's black-and-white coat.

"Hello, Jimmy Skunk!" said Bobby.

"Hello, yourself!" replied Jimmy Skunk. "What are you doing up in that tree? Getting apples?"

Bobby pretended that he didn't hear this. "What are you doing away over here, Jimmy Skunk?" said he. "My goodness, how fat you are! You must be getting a good living."

Jimmy licked his lips and grinned. He knew that Bobby couldn't see him grin. "It's a fair living," said he. "Yes, sir, I can say that it's a fair living."

"Where do you get it?" asked Bobby.

"Ah!" replied Jimmy. "That is the question—where do I get it?"

"Why don't you invite me to go with you?" inquired Bobby.

"Because," replied Jimmy, "you wouldn't dare go with me if I invited you."

"Just try me and see," replied Bobby.

"Well," replied Jimmy, "supposing I invited you to go into Farmer Brown's house."

"I'd refuse," replied Bobby. "And you'd refuse if I invited you to go in there."

"Perhaps," said Jimmy, "perhaps." And, grinning slyly, he ambled along toward the Old Orchard and home.

BRITISH ATTITUDE ON TARIFFS CONDEMNED

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The veil that has shrouded the deliberations of the imperial conference since its opening session was ripped aside tonight by Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand, who declared that the attitude of the British labor government on tariffs left "little hope of real progress."

Premier Forbes is head of the government which staunchly stands for higher imperial tariffs.

"We simply seem to be drifting and not getting anywhere," he said in an interview tonight.

"The whole question is wrapped up in that of food taxes. Mr. Snowden says distinctly that there will be no food taxes—well, you can't get beyond that.

"Instead of food taxes, the government is suggesting theoretical problems. We are practical people in the antipodes. We know things which will work and have worked, but we look upon theoretical things with some suspicion.

"The attitude of the government therefore leaves little hope of real progress. We cannot force them to change their views. We can only put forward our side.

"The people of New Zealand, I know, will learn with regret that little advance has been made so far in the effort to promote greater trade with the motherland.

"In adopting Mr. Snowden's views of preferential tariffs, the government has in my opinion precluded any hope of real progress."

EFFORT TO GET IN TOUCH WITH STEAMER INVINCIBLE

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 26.—(AP)—New Jersey state police today invoked the aid of the radio, a seaplane and a government cutter in an effort to get in touch with the steamer Invincible, which sailed from Philadelphia yesterday bound for New Orleans.

Police said they believed two stowaways were aboard the Invincible whom they desire to question in connection with the killing of J. W. MacCausland, a paymaster, in Salem, N. J., last Friday in an unsuccessful attempt to rob him of $2,000.

Captain W. J. Carter, commandant of the South Jersey barracks, said the men he desired to question were Charles Fithian, Bridgeton, and Henry Green, Salem.

Efforts to reach the Invincible by radio were unsuccessful.

FATALLY INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNED

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—George Thomas, of Detroit, Mich., was fatally injured in Northford, near here, today when an automobile in which he was riding sideswiped two others and overturned in a ditch.

Joseph Marshal, 27, and Edward Madison, 42, both of New York city, were seriously injured and were taken to a hospital here.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Dunbar Brothers Company, Bristol.

The Dunbar Brothers company is one of the Bristol group of spring manufacturers. The business was established by Colonel E. L. Dunbar in 1845. It was continued as a family institution until 1907, doing a highly successful business, with many of the large and successful concerns throughout the country.

All through the years since its establishment, this concern has stuck to the manufacture of mechanical springs, and as mechanical springs are used in almost every conceivable kind of mechanism, this company, consequently, has been identified in some way, with all the mechanical progress of the last three-quarters of a century.

In 1907, the business was incorporated under the laws of Connecticut as The Dunbar Brothers company. While the facilities of the plant were enlarged at that time, it was not until the World war that the company greatly expanded its manufacturing activities.

In 1923, The Dunbar Brothers company became affiliated with The Wallace Barner company, but because of the vast amount of goodwill and reputation it had built up during the three-quarter century of its existence, it has continued to operate as a separate concern and is constantly increasing its position in the field of high grade spring manufacturing.

Of largely local interest is the Dunbar curfew bell that rings every night at nine o'clock. The actual bell that now rings was formerly used at the Bristol copper mine, an almost forgotten industry of that city. Nightly, at nine o'clock, visitors and residents of the south side of Bristol hear, just as past generations have heard, the solemn warnings of this bell that the proper hour for retirement has arrived.

The present officers of the company are: Fuller F. Barnes, president; H. C. Barnes, treasurer; W. H. Graham, assistant treasurer; J. E. Andrew, manager; J. S. Barnes, secretary.

OBITUARY

Joseph Romano

After an illness of a year and a half, Joseph Romano, 64, died Saturday morning at his home, No. 1 McKinley court. Mr. Romano was born February 13, 1866, in Italy, where he spent his early life. For a number of years he had made his home in this city and he was a member of the Central Baptist church.

Surviving are his wife; one son, Basil Romano of New York, and four daughters, Miss Giannatta of this city; Mrs. Angelina Vasington, also of Norwich; Mrs. Filomena Rizzi of New York and Mrs. Marie Amedeo, in Italy.

Mr. Romano was well known, popular with and highly respected by his many friends who sincerely mourn his death.

Mrs. D. Nicholas Lathrop

As the result of a fractured hip and a cerebral hemorrhage, Mrs. Ada Lathrop, 70, widow of D. Nicholas Lathrop, of 3 Stanton avenue, died Saturday morning at about 5 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital. Mrs. Lathrop had been at the Buckingham Memorial, Friday evening, and was on her way home about 10 o'clock, when she fell near her home. Neighbors heard her cries for help and she was taken into her home. Dr. John W. Callahan was called and ordered her taken to the hospital.

After her death Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve conducted an investigation and pronounced death due to a fractured hip and cerebral hemorrhage. Mrs. Lathrop practically all of her life was a resident of the East Side section of the city. She was the last of her immediate family being survived only by a niece in New Haven. Mrs. Lathrop was well known, especially among the older people of the city and town and her death is deeply mourned by her many friends and acquaintances.

Edward Murray

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 24 — Edward Murray, for over 50 years a resident of Ashaway, died Friday after three weeks illness. He was born in Versailles, Conn., Nov. 10, 1861 and about 40 years ago was married to Miss Mary J. Kennedy.

Mr. Murray was a carpenter, up to two years ago, when he entered the garage business with his son, Andrew Murray, at Potter Hill.

Besides Mrs. Murray he leaves two sons, Joseph and Andrew Murray of Potter Hill; three daughters, Mrs. John Briody and Mrs. William Donovan of Potter Hill, and Mrs. Harry McCarroll of Seymour, Conn.; two brothers, James Murray of Providence and John Murray of Potter Hill, and three sisters, Mrs. James Burne of Somerville, Mrs. James Kenny of Potter Hill and Mrs. Erwin Kenyon of Wickford, and nine grandchildren.

Joseph Bradford

Joseph Bradford, 84, well known retired bookbinder, died Saturday afternoon about 4:45 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Tefft, of No. 85 West Thames street, after an illness of about two years. Mr. Bradford was born Aug. 4, 1846, in Brooklyn, N. Y., youngest son of Richard and Maria Fowler Bradford, formerly of Leeds, England. He was the last of his immediate family.

Mr. Bradford learned the bookbinding trade with his brother, Richard Bradford, of the firm of Beckett & Bradford of New York city. About 1881 he came to Norwich to take charge of Charles Burnham's bookbindery on Main street. He also was employed by Batten & Taylor, who bought out Mr. Burnham and he, in turn, about 1887, purchased the bindery, continuing the business until he retired in 1923.

April 29, 1868, Mr. Bradford was united in marriage with Elizabeth A. Marsh of Portchester, N. Y. Her death occurred June 21, 1878. Surviving are three children, Joseph F. Bradford of Boston, Mrs. J. William Spicer of Laurel Hill avenue, and Mrs. J. H. Tefft of No. 85 West Thames street, with whom he resided. There are also 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mr. Bradford was an attendant at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. He was highly respected for his many sterling traits of character by his numerous friends and acquaintances.

Saturday Snow and Rain

Between 6:30 and 8 o'clock Saturday morning the weather man gave the city a sample of snow, which was followed by rain until the late afternoon.

HARVEST BASKETS DISTRIBUTED FROM CHURCH HARVEST SERVICE

Products of farm and garden, enough to make 15 brimming baskets, were piled on the pulpit at the Central Baptist church Sunday evening at the harvest home service for which these contributions had been made so that distribution might be made to needy families afterwards. The variety of vegetables and fruits that went into the baskets included potatoes, turnips, cabbage, pumpkins, carrots, parsnips, spinach, peppers, celery, onions, grapes and bananas.

Members of Norwich grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, attended the service by invitation of the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, there were two appropriate anthems by the church quartette, and the pastor's sermon was upon the theme, The Harvest of the Spirit.

In beginning his sermon, Dr. Pitt learned, through a show of hands, that over half of those in the congregation had grown up in the country and he went on to call attention to the great transformation that had taken place in country life through good roads, the automobile, rural free delivery, telephones, radio, improved schools and union high schools. Everything but the rural church seems to have been getting along well, yet the country church at its best has been the seedplot of the finest things in our national life. The country church, the country school and the country home have constituted an environment from which so many leaders have been produced.

Dr. Pitt pointed out that illustrations from country life and from nature abound in the four gospels Jesus used such illustrations constantly. What is the most precious crop that any farmer raises anywhere? Paul gave answer to that question when he said the fruits of the spirit are love, joy, peace long suffering, kindness, faithfulness, meekness, self control. There is the really important crop, no matter how large or how small other crops may be. Does the new humanism produce any finer harvest than this first of the spirit?

In conclusion the pastor told his congregation that in our daily life we either represent or misrepresent the religion in which we say we believe. Those watching us judge from the fruitage they see in our lives. What kind of fruitage are they finding? Is it the Christ-like character? We can do no better service for our fellows than to illustrate in our lives the harvest of the spirit when Jesus Christ comes into our lives.

Dr. Pitt announced an armistice Sunday evening service to be held on Nov. 16, which is to be attended by the American Legion and at which the speaker is to be Rev. John M. Moore of New York city.

CATH. PARISH INTERESTS— CONFIRMATION NOV. 2

It was announced at the four masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday that the sacrament of confirmation would be conferred by the bishop the coming Sunday afternoon, at an hour which will be definitely made known next Sunday. The children who are to receive the sacrament will go to confession Friday, the parish school pupils at 10 and children of the other schools at 4 p. m. The adults who are being prepared for confirmation are to meet this (Monday) evening, at 7:30. It was recommended that all candidates spend the week in spiritual retreat—that is, making it a period of special prayer, self-denial and good works.

At the 7:30 mass, read as usual by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, a delegation of the Holy Name society, Patrick M. Coleman, president, was among the large number receiving communion from the rector and his assistant, Rev. John J. Reilly.

The Holy Name society has requested a month's mind mass Tuesday for Fireman Patrick J. Brennan. The Rosary society has arranged for a memorial mass Wednesday for Miss Margaret T. Burns. Friday, there will be a fifth anniversary mass offered for Michael J. Foley.

Nov. 1, feast of All Saints, is a holy day of obligation, to be kept with the solemnity of Sunday, consequently masses Saturday morning will be at 5:30, 7 and 8 o'clock. The Feast of All-Souls, Nov. 2, falling on Sunday, the solemnity of the feast will be advanced to Monday.

Preaching before a crowded auditory at the 9 o'clock mass, the junior curate, Rev. James E. Dargan, read the gospel for the day, the 20th Sunday after Pentecost, John 4:46-52, narrating the restoration to health of the son of the ruler of Capharnaum. Father Dargan is delivering a series of sermons on the Ten Commandments—given by God not alone to the Jews of the Old Testament but to the followers of Christ for all time. On previous Sundays he has considered the first commandment from its positive side, in the matter of God's requirements and His insistence on the homage and worship of His creatures; Sunday he took up the negative side, the fact that men are commanded to avoid all false worship and superstition.

The hymns at this service were sung very pleasingly by the junior choir, directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. The beautiful flowers in the sanctuary were from those sent to the funeral of Miss Margaret T. Burns.

RECEIVER'S FEE ALLOWED IN FAIRGROUNDS CASE

Compensation for the receiver and his attorneys was fixed by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the case of Martin E. Jensen against the New London County Agricultural society at the short calendar session of the superior court at New London, Friday morning. The receiver, Gilbert S. Raymond of Norwich, was allowed $1,180.95 and the attorneys, Perkins & McKay of Norwich, were allowed $1,500.

A motion for a more specific statement in the case of Minneapolis Milling Co. against Jones was denied.

An order accepting the receiver's summary of orders was entered in the case of Clarence M. Shay against the Niantic Menhaden Oil & Guano Co.

Motions in several other cases went off the list or were continued.

The court then took an indefinite recess due to the uncertainty as to when Judge Avery will be able to sit again because of the necessity of his attending court at Bridgeport.

RED CROSS FOSTERS WATER SAFETY PROGRAMME

If the 8,000 drownings which have occurred annually during the past several years, were to happen on a given day, or during one week of the year, a disaster of major proportions would be recorded and the sympathy of the nation would be aroused. This fact emphasized by the American Red Cross in its water safety programme has done much toward arousing the interest of communities and making citizens aware of their laxity in not providing proper training in life saving.

During the past year 52,798 candidates successfully passed the rigid Red Cross tests, an increase of 5,900 persons, or 12 1-2 per cent over the previous year. There are now more than a quarter of a million persons in America, who are expert live savers, entitled to wear the Red Cross insignia. In Connecticut alone there were enrolled 1,404 new life savers last year, making a total enrollment in the state of 6,422. These life savers do duty at municipal pools and beaches, and also act as volunteer patrols.

PAYS COURT FINE ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

George H. Summers of Uncasville paid a fine of $25 and costs, a total of $35.50, in the city court Saturday morning when found guilty on the charge of reckless driving.

Summers was the driver of an automobile on West Thames street Friday night about 11:50 o'clock on his way towards Uncasville, when the machine struck a telegraph pole, turned completely around and then toppled over on its side across the trolley tracks at a point south of Dunham street. James Angell, 18, of 61 Oakridge street, and Leo J. Cemlin of New London, who were riding in the automobile, received scratches and bruises, but Summers was unhurt.

NORWICH SUNDAY PAPER SHOWS PROGRESSIVE CITY

Announcement that Norwich is to have a Sunday morning newspaper with the publication of the Sunday Morning Record, beginning Nov. 2, is hailed as the signs of a progressive city by three well known Norwich citizens, Judge Nelson J. Ayling of the probate court, Adelard Morin, vice president of the Plaut-Cadden company, and Miss Mary Bundy, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

In a communication to The Bulletin company, Judge Ayling says:

"When I read the notice that we are to have a Sunday paper published right at home in our own Norwich, I was surprised and proud of the men willing to make the venture.

"I know of no city, the seize of Norwich, maintaining a Sunday paper; the lack of transportation facilities makes it still more of an undertaking. It is doubtful if many local people realize the additional burden and expense put upon The Bulletin company to distribute its daily paper since trains were discontinued. This enterprising company distributed all through eastern Connecticut before bus traffic begins, a paper with later news than the New York papers and unequalled for its number of news items and dispatches published by any paper in any city twice the size of Norwich.

"Therefore, I feel certain that this energy expended in keeping Norwich on the map will make a success in this new venture for the welfare of this community, and I trust the united support of eastern Connecticut will at once be extended you."

Vice President Morin of the Plaut-Cadden company makes the following statement:

"The forthcoming publication of a Norwich Sunday newspaper is a progressive step deserving of the commendation and cooperation of everyone and marks an era that promises bigger things in newspaper service to the public. The Sunday Record, with a policy that will command public attention and interest, will meet a need long felt by those desirous always of keeping up with the times locally and everywhere.

"The Bulletin company has done much in the past to promote any civic, industrial and mercantile growth of Norwich and eastern Connecticut and by providing this additional medium for the future the publishers render a still greater service to the community they have served so long.

"Backed, as is this new undertaking, by sound judgment and fostered by a spirit of cooperation and determination its success is assured and its possibilities unlimited."

Miss Bundy, the chamber of commerce secretary, voices her commendation of the Norwich Sunday paper as follows:

"The Bulletin company is to be congratulated on its new and additional publication of a Sunday paper.

"One's first impression of any city having a Sunday paper is "live-wire city," wideawake town, progressive community, etc., therefore our local paper has put our city in this category.

"For the Norwich merchants it will provide a wonderful opportunity for more outstanding advertising and an excellent chance to place before 100,000 people who comprise the shopping center population of eastern Connecticut their numerous commodities.

"Please be assured that the Norwich chamber of commerce will help in any way it can to make this Sunday paper an outstanding one."

INJURIES FATAL TO DUNHAM ST. RESIDENT

Matti Hytti, 43, of No. 122 Dunham street, struck by an automobile in Thamesville early last week, died early Saturday morning at the W. W. Backus hospital where he had since been a patient. According to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, death was caused by internal injuries.

Mr. Hytti was hit last Tuesday night by an automobile, operated by John G. Lukasozwicz, of No. 23 Carpenter street. His injuries included a fractured right leg, fractured right arm, seven broken ribs, and internal injuries. It is understood that Hytti stepped in front of the machine which was being driven along West Thames street. Undertaker C. A. Gager was given charge of the body.

Mr. Hytti came to this city from New York about six weeks ago, and made his home with a cousin, Vaino Nurmi, of No. 122 Dunham street. He was born in Finland May 1, 1887, and was the son of Elis and Valpur Hytti. About 20 years ago he came to this country and was united in marriage in Springfield, Mass., Feb. 5, 1927, with Imbi Randa.

Mr. Hytti was employed at the garage of the Norwich Auto Body and Welding Co., at No. 190 West Thames street, conducted by his cousin. He was a mechanic and was at one time employed at the Rolls Royce factory on Long Island, N. Y. He is survived by his wife, his parents who are in Finland, a brother, Simo Hytti, in Finland, a step-daughter, Miss Imbi Bloom of Hartford, and several cousins.

HOOVER GRATEFUL FOR JUDGE BURROWS' SUCCESS

Warren B. Burrows of Groton, republican nominee for attorney-general, is in receipt of a letter from President Hoover, accepting his resignation as judge of the United States court for the district of Connecticut, and expressing to the Connecticut man gratitude for "his fine service." Judge Burrows relinquished his appointment to the bench in a letter to the president, following the completion of court matters pending before him.

President Hoover's letter, given out at republican headquarters in Hartford, follows:

"I have your tender of resignation as United States district judge for the district of Connecticut dated October 15th to become effective October 20th.

"Your resignation is hereby accepted effective October 20, 1930.

"I thank you for the fine service which you have rendered in this position which you now relinquish.

"Faithfully yours,
"Herbert Hoover."

WONDERFUL FOR NORWICH TO HAVE SUNDAY PAPER

Max Hanover, president of the Hanover-Curland company, who has been in New York city for eight weeks, assisting his son to open a new drug store and luncheonette, returned here Sunday, and was prompt to declare his delight when he learned that Norwich is to have a Sunday paper, the Norwich Sunday Record, which is to be issued for the first time next Sunday.

"That's wonderful news," exclaimed Mr. Hanover, "and will be a wonderful thing for the city. I haven't heard anything for a long time that has pleased me so much."

WHITE LEGHORNS WINNERS FOR 9TH CONSECUTIVE YEAR

For the ninth consecutive year White Leghorns have won the Storrs laying contest. In the 19th annual event that ended October 23, a pen of ten pullets entered by Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., finished first with a score of 2795 eggs. Arriving at Storrs on the first of November, this pen attracted little or no attention for the first three weeks. For the next fortnight they were thought to be pretty fair, but in the sixth week they hopped into the lead and were never headed.

During the last 19 years 20,000 hens from all over this country, Canada, and England have been sent to Storrs for an accurate check-up, a sort of public accounting as it were, of the number of eggs they laid. In all these years the record of this Pennsylvania pen has been beaten but twice. In 1928 a Connecticut pen set the mark at 2969 eggs and in 1929 an Oregon pen was under this total by only 24 eggs.

Edward N. Larrabee, of Peterboro, N. H., is entitled to nearly, if not quite, as much credit as the winner of the contest. His pen of ten pullets finished first in their class, trailed the winners by less than a baker's dozen, and beat the best previous pen record for Reds by more than 126 eggs. This pen of Reds from New Hampshire laid a total of 2785 eggs in 51 weeks and thereby set up what is believed to be a world's record for the breed.

Perhaps the most signified record though maybe not the most sensational is the flock average of 206 as compared with the previous record of 204.9 eggs per bird. This average is for the entire 100 pens of ten birds each or a total of 1,000 pullets that participated in the project.

Barred Rock pullet No. 24 from California not only qualified for the exclusive 300-egg club, but has also been declared the elitest of the lot. Her individual score of 329 eggs beats the best previous record of her breed by more than two dozen eggs and has been exceeded only twice in the last 19 years, once by a Rhode Island Red with a record of 334 eggs and by a Leghorn that laid last year 336 eggs.

For the last four years The Locusts at West Cornwall, have held the best Storrs record for White Wyandottes with a record of 334 eggs and by a same owner has now hung up a new record for the breed with a score of 2402 eggs.

Another new breed record was made by White Rock pullet No. 167 owned by Davison Bros., of Upton, Mass. This pullet laid 296 eggs as compared with the best previous White Rock record of 281 eggs made in 1924. Rhode Island Red pullet No. 55-K from New Hampshire and White Leghorn pullet No. 856 from Pennsylvania were best individual performers in their respective classes. Each laid well over 300 eggs.

Summary By Breeds.

All pens taken together laid a grand total of 206,974 eggs. The subjoined table shows the number of birds in each of the principal varieties, the average individual egg yield for the duration of the contest, and the general average for all breeds that competed:

20 Australorps and Giants 196.3, 60 White Wyandottes 190.6, 120 White Rocks 163.7, 140 Barred Rocks 213.3, 280 Rhode Island Reds 210.6, 380 White Leghorns 214.3, 1000 average all varieties 206.0.

The following list shows the 20 best pens in the order of their performance:

Small High Street Fire

An overheated smoke pipe set fire to the lath around the chimney thimble at 42 High street about 3 o'clock Saturday morning. The fire department responded and put out the blaze. The building is owned by Mrs. Esther Studd and is occupied by Mrs. Abraham Scott.

Lake Street Chimney Fire

The fire department had a call for a chimney fire at 30 Lake street at 10:21 Sunday morning, using three gallons of chemical to extinguish the blaze. Engines 1 and 3 and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan answered the call. The house is owned by Joseph Guastamachi and is occupied by John Zuercin and others.

Garage Fire Quickly Extinguished

A telephone call to the central station Saturday morning at 11:35 brought the fire department to a garage, occupied by C. A. Gager and owned by The Bulletin Co. in the rear of 72 Franklin street. The blaze was put out before the firemen could get there and there was no damage.

TWO BURGLARS CAPTURED BY WATERBURY POLICE

WATERBURY, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An end to the sensational series of store burglaries that for weeks have baffled the best efforts of police and detectives, was predicted by police authorities today with the capture of two men and the recovery of loot valued at more than $5,000 stolen from nearly a dozen different stores in the city. One of the men, Joseph D'Amico, 33, this city, was arrested in New Haven early this morning after he had eluded local policemen raiding his home by a daring leap of two stories down an air shaft and escaping from there to his car through a ground floor window.

SEVERAL SURPRISES ON EASTERN GRIDIRONS IN SATURDAY'S GAMES

(By Ted Vosburgh, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—Football truth far stranger than fiction was written into the records of the game in the East today as a result of a sensational Saturday marked by brilliant victories, tight games and assorted surprises.

If anyone before Saturday had predicted that Knute Rockne's Notre Dame array would roll up 35 points against Pittsburgh's undefeated Panthers in little more than a period he would have been laughed at.

If anyone had offered to wager that the Navy would turn back Princeton by five touchdowns he could have had the whole Princeton student body as takers.

But one of the greatest of all Rockne teams, with the canny Carideo at the helm swept the powerful Panthers off their feet in a 35-19 triumph and the twice-beaten Navy handed proud Princeton its worst defeat of modern times, 31 to 0.

Three of the finest backs in the east were carried off the field with severe injuries—the great little Albie Booth of Yale, knocked out by Army tacklers in his first play of the game; Charlie Devens of Harvard with a broken leg, and Jim Murphy of Fordham with concussion of the brain.

Yale supporters credited themselves with a moral victory in holding the formidable Army eleven to a 7-7 tie although minus the services of the Eli quarterback and principal offensive threat.

The 192-pound Murphy, runner-up for eastern scoring honors, put the New York university game on ice for Fordham with a touchdown in the first two minutes of play and stood out as his team's best backfield bet until he was laid low by a swarm of N. Y. U. tacklers after taking a forward pass for a 25-yard gain in the third period.

Winning 7 to 0, Fordham maintained its record of nothing worse than a tie since 1928 and ranks as one of the leading contenders for eastern honors.

One of the numerous safeties of the day enabled Harvard to escape a shutout at the hands of Dartmouth. Had the bounding ball been in the end zone instead of two feet past it when Captain Ben Ticknor pounced on it after Vic Harding had blocked a kick, the Crimson might have had a touchdown and a tie instead of a 7-2 defeat.

Most of the safeties were traceable directly to cold hands and resultant fumbles or to smashing defensive line play. This somewhat unusual type of score figured prominently in the 2-0 victory of Bates over Maine; Villanova's 8 to 7 triumph at the expense of Temple's hitherto unsullied record; Carnegie's 40 to 8 rout of Western Reserve, and St. Francis' 8 to 6 decision over St. Bonaventure.

Of the six unbeaten and untied teams remaining in the east, Cornell had an open date, Western Maryland smothered Loyola of Baltimore, 40 to 7; Allegheny overwhelmed Adrian, 31 to 0, and St. John's of Brooklyn beat Washington college Friday night, 33 to 0. The others are Fordham and Dartmouth the Army and New Hampshire have suffered no worse than a tie.

New Hampshire's unusually strong team swamped Vermont, 59 to 0, and in other games remarkable for the size of the score rolled up, Rutgers routed Delaware, 40 to 0, Colgate smashed through Penn State 40 to 0; Bucknell crushed undefeated Gettysburg, 26 to 6, and Colby walloped Bowdoin 29 to 7. Penn outclassed Lehigh, 40-0, and Syracuse won a hollow victory over St. Lawrence, 34 to 6.

Most of the other games were close. Among those that ended in ties were Amherst-Wesleyan, 19-19; Franklin-Marshall and Muhlenberg, 0-0; Providence-Canisius, 0-0, and Union R. P. I., 0-0.

Boston college gave the east a 15-6 inter-sectional victory over Dayton and Rochester followed suit by turning back Kenyon of Ohio 13-6.

In other important games, Brown downed Holy Cross 13-0 and Columbia eked out a 3-0 victory over a small college rival, Williams, which was expected to prove easy.

Washington and Lee, of the southern conference, was upset, 7 to 0, by St. John's of Baltimore.

DARTMOUTH AND FORDHAM OUTSTANDING EASTERN TEAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—Only eight teams in the east remained undefeated after yesterday's games, and of these Dartmouth's White Indians and Fordham's Rams had the most impressive records. Each has won five straight games. Army, Cornell, Western Maryland and Allegheny have won four apiece but Army has been tied.

Dartmouth's speedy and powerful backs have piled up a total of 232 points against two for their opponents to lead the east in scoring. Colgate, although defeated once in five games is second with 225 points to their rivals' 14. Carnegie Tech also has passed the 200 point mark, scoring 204 points and having 37 tallied by its rivals.

Only Fordham can boast an uncrossed goal line. The Rams have tallied 160 points while holding their rivals without a point.

FRIEDMAN EXPECTED TO WIN OVER FICUCELLO

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—(AP)—Ralph Ficucello, Brooklyn Italian heavyweight, who holds knockout victories over George Hoffman and Marty Fox, meets Al Friedman, rugged Boston Jewish heavyweight contender in the star bout at the Arena, here tomorrow night. Ficucello a former national amateur heavyweight champion, has won four of his last five bouts by knockouts and in the fifth, he recently outpointed decisively Ted Sandwina, rugged German. Friedman, with the more impressive record, is favored to win.

Leo (One Punch) Williams, who knocked out George Courtney at Holyoke in his last New England start, meets Tiger Thomas, of Dover, N. H., in an eight round semi-final at 175 pounds. In a special eight rounder, Lou Bogash, veteran Bridgeport light heavyweight, returns to the ring after an absence of three years due to an injured arm, meeting Maxie Goldberg, of Brooklyn.

BOOTH WILL BE ABLE TO PLAY AGAINST DARTMOUTH

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—(AP)—Yal's most important hospital patient, little Albie Booth, is "doing well," his physicians reported tonight.

The midget quarterback, who was smeared on the first play after he entered the Yale-Army game yesterday, will remain in the college infirmary tonight and possibly until Tuesday. No one seems willing to say when he will leave.

His injuries are described as "blows on the head, mouth and back."

Serious and painful as they must be, Yale officials state that Booth will be able to play against Dartmouth next Saturday.

Lindenberg, left end, hurt in the Georgia scrap also is expected to be available for Dartmouth. A wrenched ankle has kept him out of action for two weeks.

The remainder of the Yale squad, disregarded aches and bruises, came through the Army fight to a peace without victory in good shape.

LITTLE OF INTEREST IN BOXING THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—Searching for a head-liner on the nation's boxing programme this week is a rather difficult task but if there is an outstanding bout scheduled it is probably the Young Stribling-K. O. Christner ten rounder in Boston on Friday night.

The Georgia heavyweight and Christner originally were slated to tangle in Newark last week but K. O. developed knee trouble, when it appeared the financial returns would not be sufficient, and so the bout was shifted to the Boston arena.

Except for this bout the class of fights scheduled might be classed as mediocre. The Chicago coliseum features Tuffy Griffiths but his opponent is George Neron, an unknown who calls Greece his home.

With the rodeo running full blast, boxing in Madison Square Garden will have an off week.

PLANNING FOR TRIALS FOR OLYMPIC SKATING

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—The American Skating union, here today laid plans for the tryouts for the speed skating events of the 1932 Olympic games but did not settle the disagreement as to whether the American or European system of running off the events will be used.

Each district of the union is to stage regional trials this winter and the finals will be held at a place to be determined later sometime before February 20. Both the American system of heats and finals and the European style of sending the skaters off in pairs are to be used in the trials.

Loayza Wins Chilean Title

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 26—(AP)—Stanislau Loayza, who has done most of his fighting in the United States in recent years today won the lightweight championship of his native country, Chile, getting a technical knockout over Luis Vicentini in the final round of their ten round bout. A crowd of 25,000 paid about $20,000 to see the title fight.

MACALUSO TAKES LEAD IN EASTERN SCORING

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—Scoring 28 points against Penn State, Leonard Macaluso, Colgate's plunging fullback, jumped into the lead Saturday among the eastern football cohorts.

The four touchdowns and four points after touchdown sent Macaluso's total points for five games soaring to 70 points, assembled by means of nine touchdowns and 16 extra points.

Jim Murphy, who led the pack a week ago, counted Fordham's only touchdown in the New York university game, but trailed the Colgate star by four points, his 66 points having been gained by 11 touchdowns. With Cornell idle, Viviano dropped back to third place with 60 points while Tanquay, New York university sophomore ace, continued to press the leaders with 59 points.

Macaluso's total of 16 led the high scorers in booting points after touchdown. Hewitt of Columbia joined Scalzi of Georgetown and Booth of Yale as the only top notchers to kick a field goal.

BEARS WIN THROUGH PLAY OF BRUMBAUGH

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—(AP)—With Brumbaugh leading the attack by his long end runs, the Chicago Bears defeated the Frankford Yellow Jackets in a National league football game today, 13 to 7.

Nagurski went through tackle for 22 yards to score the Bears' first touchdown in the opening period and Sternaman drop kicked for the extra point. Frankford scored in the second quarter when Crabtree took a long pass from Rengel on the 30 yard line and raced the ball over. Halikie place kicked for point.

The final Bear touchdown came in the third period after a steady march down field to the six yard line. The Yellow Jackets held for three downs and then Brumbaugh crossed the goal on a wide end run. Chicago almost scored again in the closing quarter, but Brumbaugh fumbled on Frankford's two yard line.

FOX HUNTERS FUTURITY STARTS IN KENTUCKY TODAY

CRAB ORCHARD, Ky., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The 37th annual meeting of the National Fox Hunters association will begin here tomorrow at daybreak, when the tenth chase futurity for a $1,000 purse and trophies will be cast.

The futurity has drawn a field of 175 hounds, and more than 100 have been entered in the all-age stake to be run later in the week. Stable room has been provided for 200 horses to be used in the horse show, steeplechase, and in following the hounds.

Most of the 400 expected guests arrived today. The association meeting will continue all this week.

Cool weather and light rains in the past week have practically assured ideal weather for the meeting. Last year's meeting was conducted at Nashville.

GIANTS SHOW LITTLE MERCY FOR STEAM ROLLERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—The New York Giants remained in running for the National Professional Football league pennant today by trouncing the Providence Steamrollers 25 to 0 at the Polo grounds.

With Bennie Friedman, former Michigan star, on the sending end, the Giants scored all four of their touchdowns by passes. Burnett, once of the Emporia, Kans. Teachers, counted twice, once in the second and again in the fourth period. Wilson went over in the third quarter and Badgro in the fourth.

AMHERST TEAM LOSES FIVE BY INJURIES

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The first "little three" game with Wesleyan was costly to Amherst, as five players were lost to the squad by injury. Two of them may be out for the season. They are George Cadigan, back, and Lyman Westfall, guard. The former is temporarily paralyzed in both legs while the latter sustained a broken leg. Captain Tener, Quarterback Greenough and Halfback DePasqua were all badly shaken up but may be back in time to play Massachusetts Aggies, Saturday.

PACKERS WIN SIXTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 26—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers won their sixth straight game in national professional football league competition here today, defeating the Minneapolis Red-Jackets, 19 to 0.

The Bays scored in each of the first three periods, while Minneapolis threatened but once, when Pederson intercepted a Packer pass and carried the ball to the Bay 10-yard line. The Packer line held and the Jackets' chance of scoring passed.

FEW UPSETS IN MID-WEST AND INTERSECTIONAL GAMES ON SATURDAY

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The season of football upsets, which went unchecked through mid-October, received a serious setback in the games of the last Saturday of the month, and with it, the supremacy of the mid-west in intersectional clashes was modified to a large degree.

Upsets were exceedingly rare in the important games throughout the nation unless some suprisingly big scores by favored teams can be placed in this classification. The Ramblers of Notre Dame, again rambling toward a claim for a national championship, gave a great example of this kind of upset when they gave the powerful Pittsburgh eleven a sound trouncing by a score of 35 to 19.

The triumph of the Rocknemen in the only important east-west battle, brought the only triumph for the westerns over eastern teams. In lesser clashes, Carnegie trounced Western Reserve 40-8, Boston college defeated Dayton, 15-6, Allegheny swamped Little Adrian 31 to 0 and Rochester beat Kenyon 13-6.

Two other mid-western teams were victorious in intersectional games. Nebraska went into the Rocky mountain conference to defeat Montana State, 53 to 7, and Northwestern beat Centre, 45 to 7. Chicago and Mississippi battled to a scoreless tie while Indiana received a 27-0 setback down in the southwest at the hands of Southern Methodist. Centenary made it even against the southwest conference by defeating Baylor, 7-2.

In the east, the big games in general were close, Yale and Army tied at 7 to 7 as Albie Booth was lost to the Yale cause by an injury on his first play. Dartmouth fought over a rain-soaked field to defeat Harvard, 7 to 2. Undefeated Fordham capitalized a break to beat New York university 7-0 and Navy showed unexpected strength in trouncing Princeton 31 to 0.

Purdue caused the great disturbance in the Big Ten by gaining a 7 to 6 triumph over Wisconsin, a favored title contender. Michigan easily kept its place in the race by defeating Illinois, 15-7.

The south saw one big upset as little Furman gave Florida a 14 to 13 setback in a game that was supposed to be a "breather."

Alabama's Crimson tide was triumphant over Vanderbilt, 12 to 7, in the struggle of the undefeated leaders. Georgia stayed in the running for the title by whipping Auburn 39 to 7 and Kentucky trounced Virginia, 47-0. Tulane won its first conference game from Georgia Tech, 28-0. Tennessee had a close call against North Carolina, winning 9 to 7.

Out where the war clouds roll over the Big Six conference, Kansas continued to show the way even without "Jarring Jim" Bausch, winning an easy 20 to 6 decision over Iowa State. Oklahoma inserted a 49-yard run by Mills into a defensive battle and beat Kansas Aggies, 7 to 0. Missouri went out of the conference to win its first game of the year, beating Drake 14-12.

Rice caused a serious disturbance in the southwest conference by defeating Texas 6 to 0, while Arkansas beat out Texas Aggies 13 to 0. Texas Christian rested while beating Texas Tech 26 to 0.

Utah rolled up another big score to show the way in the Rocky mountain conference, defeating Denver by 59 to 0. Colorado beat Colorado Aggies, 7 to 0; Colorado Teachers downed Colorado Mines by the same score; Utah Aggies defeated Wyoming 13-8, and Brigham Young trounced Western State 25-0.

The slackening of the upset season failed to affect the Pacific coast conference, where Southern California threw the standing still more into a turmoil with a smashing 41 to 12 victory over Stanford. Starting in the first three minutes, the Trojans turned the big game into a rout. Washington scored another triumph for the northern section over the south by handing California another setback, 13 to 0. Oregon defeated Idaho, 20 to 6, and Washington State, the leading title contender through its two major victories, routed Montana, 61 to 0, in other conference games.

COOPER WINS SALT LAKE CITY OPEN GOLF TITLE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, Los Angeles professional, won the $5,000 Salt Lake City open golf tournament here today with a 72-hole score of 283. He toured the last two 18-hole rounds in par 72s today.

Olin Dutra, of Delmonte, Calif., won second place with 285. He smashed par figures on both rounds today, going around the first 18 in 68 and the second in 71.

George Von Elm, Detroit "business man" professional, and Craig Wood, professional of Bloomfield, N. J., tied for third with 290 each. Von Elm, making his debut in his new classification, finished the last 18 holes in 68, low for the afternoon round. Wood made the last round in 71.

Cooper, who has led the field since the start of the tournament, won the $1,500 first prize and Dutra received $1,000 second money.

The remainder of the first ten players finished as follows:

Al Espinosa, Chicago, fifth, 293.
Abe Espinosa, Chicago, sixth, 295.
Ray Mangrum, Dallas, seventh, 297.
Harold McSpadden, Kansas City, eighth, 298.
Jimmie Thompson, Colorado Springs, ninth, 299.
Harold Long, Denver, tenth, 300.

PEACE BETWEEN TEXAS AND BAYLOR IS MADE

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Resumption of athletics between Texas A. and M. college and Baylor university, severed in the fall of 1926, was authorized in a joint statement signed by President T. O. Walter of A. and M., and President S. P. Brooks of Baylor and announced here today.

Athletic teams from the two institutions have not met since their football game at Waco four years ago, which was followed by a student clash.

There was no indication today when the first game between the schools would be scheduled.

NEVERS STARS IN CARDINALS' VICTORY

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—(AP)—Ernie Nevers and the Chicago Cardinals dealt the pro football title aspirations of the Portsmouth Spartans a ruinous jolt today.

With Nevers scoring 17 points, the Cards hid a comeback to chalk up a 23 to 13 triumph at Comiskey park. Nevers plunged for two touchdowns, place kicked a goal from the field and added two points after touchdown and heave a pass to Cobb Rooney for the other score.

Mayes McLain and Tiny Lewis scored the Spartan touchdowns.

SMALLER TEAMS START QUEST FOR N. E. GRID CROWN

BOSTON, Oct. 26—(AP)—Three gridiron wars for important New England college championships opened yesterday on scattered and muddy fronts.

The first major engagement in the "little three" campaign ended with Amherst and Wesleyan deadlocked at 19-all. The Lord Jeffs were the favorites but Wesleyan gave them a battle every second of the game. Williams, the other member of this trio, journeyed to New York for its 18th annual game with Columbia. The Purple held Lou Little's Lions scoreless until late in the final period when Ralph Hewitt of Lawrence, dropkicked Columbia's three big points.

Colby was the outstanding outfit in the opening battles for the Pine Tree state title, defeating Bowdoin, 20-7. Bates continued in the championship quest by scoring a safety against Maine for a 2 to 0 victory.

Middlebury started the action for the Vermont college title by smearing the Norwich cadets by three touchdowns. Vermont was the 58 to 0 victim of New Hampshire at the Lions' homecoming day celebration at Durham.

The New England Jesuit teams split even. Boston college trounced Dayton, 15 to 6, in the Eagles' first intersectional fray and Holy Cross again bowed to Brown. Providence played a scoreless tie with Canisius at Buffalo and the Rhode Island Staters upset the Coast Guard academy, 26 to 0.

A three year tradition was blasted when Springfield defeated the Boston university Terriers, 20 to 0, on the latter's home gridiron. Tufts trimmed the Connecticut Aggies, 25 to 0, at Storrs and outplayed the Nutmeggers in every department of the game. Worcester Tech edged out the Massachusetts Aggies by a single touchdown and Lowell Textile was upset by that same margin by the Rider team from New Jersey.

RECOMMENDS THE OPEN SUBSIDIZATION OF ATHLETES

PARKVILLE, Mo., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Dr. Frederick W. Hawley, president of Park college, where a tramp athlete is just a tramp and a gridiron only a cooking utensil, recommends open subsidization of college athletes.

Park college does not engage in intercollegiate sports and all students are required to earn at least part of their college education by performing menial tasks about the campus.

"The rules," he said in commenting on the qualified expulsion yesterday of the University of Kansas from Big Six conference sports, "are untenable, cannot be enforced and should be abolished."

"Subsidization, which exists now, should be openly recognized and controlled."

Charges of recruiting and questioning of the eligibility of James A. "Jarring Jim" Bausch, backfield star, who sells insurance for pay, led the faculty athletic council meeting in Columbia, Mo., to bar Kansas at the close of the scholastic year.

"If Big Six athletic rules," Dr. Hawley remarked, "were applied to other college ventures, it would be virtually impossible for many youths to get an education.

"I see no reason an athlete should not be permitted to use his special abilities to earn his way through school. It is no worse and no better to capitalize your athletic prowess throwing hash or booting a football.

"Students who excel in their studies are given scholarships. There are scholarships in all kinds of professional and trade schools.

"Why not similar ones for athletic factories?"

ROCK'S SHOCK TROOPS OUT IN CARNEGIE TILT

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—For the first time in several years Rockne abandoned his "shock" troop gridiron strategy when he kept his first-string men in most of the game against Carnegie Tech. Notre Dame won, 21 to 6.

Toward the close of each half Notre Dame made many substitutions, but only when the enemy seemed to be well in hand. In virtually all of the big games of four or five years Rockne has used two or more complete teams.

In 1926 Carnegie rudely shocked the shockers, quickly piling up 19 points to win by that margi

UNIV. OF KANSAS TO MAKE OWN INVESTIGATION

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 26—(AP)—Evidence resulting in the virtual ostracism of the University of Kansas from Big Six conference athletics on charges of alleged recruiting and subsidization of athletes, was presented to the school athletic board today, which then announced it was making its own private investigation.

In a formal statement, the athletic board said that George C. Shaad, Kansas member of the Big Six faculty advisory group, had reported evidence leading to the conference order was inadequate. After the meeting Dean Shaad said that James Bausch, star K. U. football player named in the complaint, would not be barred from competition.

The only initation of the course of future action of Kansas university was contained in one brief sentence: "The University of Kansas athletic board has taken measures to secure information for its own guidance."

Conference action against Kansas was taken yesterday at a meeting in Columbia, Mo. It was announced that Big Six members would not be allowed to schedule additional athletic contests with the Jayhawkers.

W. A. Tarr, Big Six faculty member from Missouri, preferred the charge, citing the case of Bausch, a letterman in three sports, and Phil Borello, freshman from Kansas City, as evidence of the alleged violation of conference rules.

HOLLYWOOD WINS PACIFIC COAST BASEBALL TITLE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26—(AP)—Hollywood won its second consecutive Pacific Coast league championship today, defeating Los Angeles, 8 to 4, in the deciding game of the play-off series.

The Angels won but one contest in five starts. The score:

Hollywood	8	9	1
Los Angeles	4	8	2

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Two conference games were slated for Saturday, but only one was played, in which Stonington and Chapman Tech battled to a tie, the third tie in the conference for Stonington this year. Windham and Bulkeley, who were supposed to have played at New London, had the game called because of the bad weather and they will tangle this afternoon at Mercer field.

Former Academy Baseball Coach Earle E. Brigham, in writing to a local friend, states that his work as athletic director of Worcester high schools has taken him down around Boston to witness the workings of the high school football camps around there. He was greatly impressed with it all. Incidentally, Mr. Brigham, who gave the Academy winning team on top of winning team during his stay here from 1924 to 1930, inclusive, has found his new position very pleasant, but still has a feeling for the Rose City, which may become a little more pronounced as spring rolls around again.

The age limit for high school athletes was changed from 21 to 20 years at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Interscholastic conference held at Hartford last week. Twenty other states adopted this rule before the Connecticut officials brought it into effect, and the law becomes effective in September, 1931. This change had been discussed for some time and of late there has been so much feeling in a trend toward younger boys that some wanted the limit put at 19. It will not affect the Academy for none of their players are close to the limit.

In answer to an inquiry Albie Booth did not play against the Academy as a member of the Hillhouse baseball team. The Booth in mind was probably the one that played the outfield for Bulkeley around 1924-25. The Academy did not begin to play Hillhouse until 1927, whereas Booth left Hillhouse in '26 and took a year at Milford Prep.

The Academy's successful cross-country squad gets its next test Friday on the local course with the formidable Chapman Tech harriers. Tech boasts a close victory over Bulkeley and also made a great showing in the Troy Polytech meet. The Wildcats, with first and second teams, have won their four meets so far, each outfit having two decisions. In Johnny Lyons Wood and Mahoney, the Academy seems to have three of the leading barriers among the Eastern Connecticut schools.

The Academy is going to get back to work this week in preparation for a conference game with Windham Saturday at Willimantic. The team's work so far has been disappointing. Starting out with a rush that promised great things, the locals, after winning from Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley, hit Harding down in Bridgeport and were whipped to the tune of 28 to 0. Since then, they have been little good, due, maybe, in some measure, to the heavy injury list which resulted from their little engagement with Harding. Little Fitch came up and trimmed them, 8 to 0, and then Westerly ran them ragged in the second half last Friday to win, 25 to 6.

That game Friday was a strange contest to watch. The two teams started cautiously and there was little to choose between them for the first quarter. Suddenly, in the second period the Academy started from their own 20-yard line and reeled off a couple of first downs in succession, then punted and when Westerly fumbled, Stockwell recovered around the Westerly 20-yard line. It took the Red and Whiters only a short time to put it over, working some beautiful short passes.

Almost with the whistle in the third quarter, however, the Academy was pushed into discard as Westerly, playing wideawake football, seized every opportunity which included three intercepted passes, and made them into touchdowns. They were a weak Class D team in the second half, whereas they played like champs before that.

So far, the Academy has won two and lost three. With four games left to play, and, excluding ties, they must take three of these to get an even break on the year.

There and Here . . Middletown has cancelled its football schedule because of the infantile paralysis epidemic. . . . Bull Hertz, Academy tackle last year and the year before, is on the freshman tea mof New York university. . . Westerly fans claim Mudge, their star halfback is the best in this section. . . If his work against the Academy is usual style, then the Academy boys will say so. . . . Lynn, (Mass.) junior high school pupils are not allowed to play real football but must be contented with the "touch" version of the popular fall sport. . . Billy Schofield's Crosby high eleven seems to be headed for high honors in state ranking this year, for Saturday's victory over Torrington, 25 to 6, gave the former Connecticut Aggie star and later Killingly high coach, a big boost. . . Fitch, after beating the Academy made a real community celebration out of it by inviting Bulkeley over. . . Hartford high football team is bothered by fraternity politics. . . Where have we heard of this before?

MYSTIC

HARRIS BRADY AND BRIDE GUESTS OF ASHAWAY GRANGE

The young people of Ashaway grange gave a Halloween party and reception to Mr. and Mrs. Harris Brady, who have just returned from their wedding trip. Mrs. Brady was Miss Betty Pendleton, of Mystic. The good time was held in the Grange hall Saturday evening with a very large attendance. They received many gifts. Cake and ice cream were served. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pendleton and daughter, Miss Mildred Pendleton, attended.

Party For Twins

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford J. Desley gave a Halloween party for their twin children, Jack and Jean, at their home in Old Mystic, Saturday afternoon. The children were in costume and Billy Kennedy and Dolores Tift were judged as having the best costumes. They played games and had refreshments of cake, jello with whipped cream, and cocoa. Those attending were Billy and Jean Kennedy, June and Dolores Tift.

Farewell Supper

The Woman's society of the Methodist Episcopal church gave a farewell party for Mrs. Jacob Dick at her home on Holmes street, Mystic, Saturday evening. Supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Dick leave Tuesday for Ossining, N. Y., where they will make their home. Those attending were: Mrs. R. J. Chrystie, Mrs. Ellery Burdick, Mrs. Robert Adamson, Mrs. Charles Crouch, Mrs. George Wallace, Mrs. Ira Decker, Mrs. Charles and Mrs. George Gremley, Mrs. John Payne, Mrs. Alice Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Board, Winfred Dick from Ossining, and Mrs. Dick's two daughters and their families.

Twenty-six tables were in play at a whist given by the Triple Link Aid association in Odd Fellows hall. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Albert Wilson and Charles Schroder and Mrs. Ostigny and Lawrence Gremley. Prizes at straight whist went to Mrs. Joseph Howson and J. K. Simon, Mrs. Lillian Barden and Charles Anderson.

The Religious School of Education will meet Tuesday evening in the Congregational parish house, with Rev. W. G. Fagan and Rev. R. J. Chrystie, Ph.D., giving one in their series of talks.

Ira H. Noyes, assessor for the town of Stonington, was at A. A. Haley's store in Old Mystic, Saturday, receiving property lists of the residents.

Guests Came Up Cellar Stairs

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford J. Desley, of Old Mystic, entertained at a Halloween party Friday evening. Those attending were masked and they entered the house by the cellar, the stairs being banked with foliage with two "dummies" standing guard and pumpkins furnishing light. Upon reaching their destination upstairs, they were told to line up and their costumes would be judged. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desley and they decided that Clifford Desley and Miss Flora Kennedy had the best costumes. The evening was spent in music and fortune telling. The hostess served sandwiches, cake, doughnuts coffee and candy.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burrows received word Saturday of the illness of their daughter, Mrs. Seth N. Barron of West Brighton, Staten Island. On Sunday, Mrs. Burrows left for her daughter's home.

John L. Hood, chief gunner on U. S. S. Wyoming, stationed at Philadelphia, spent the week-end with his wife and son, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Walbridge, at Old Mystic.

The meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Mary S. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Herring, of Groton Long Point, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Wheeler.

Mrs. John LeBeau is recovering from illness.

Miss Grace Medberry and Thurman Jahns, of Norwich, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Ashcroft.

Mrs. Estella Whipple has returned home, after a few weeks' stay in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Allyn, Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Allyn and Mrs. Bessie H. Ludwig attended the meeting of the Mayflower society in Hartford recently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main, Miss Hazel Main, Mrs. Ellery Burdick, Miss Evelyn Burdick, Miss Marie Patterson and James W. Pollard were in Groton Friday evening and attended the meeting of the grange.

Mrs. Albert Neff, Jr., was in Northampton, Mass., a few days last week. On Saturday, she and Mr. Neff, who is employed there, came to their home in the village, Mr. Neff returned to his work Sunday evening.

Miss Lucy Randall has returned to Waban, Mass., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Allyn.

At Classmate's Funeral

John B. Grinnell was in Norwich Friday, and attended the funeral of William W. Collins, held in the Central Baptist church. Mr. Grinnell and Mr. Collins were classmates, graduating the same year from Brown university.

A communication of Charity and Relief lodge, A. F. and A. M., will be held this (Monday) evening.

OBITUARY

John H. Johnston

John H. Johnston, 82, of Grove avenue, Mystic, died Friday at Middletown, following a long illness. He had lived in the village for the past 42 years and was well liked by all who knew him. He was born in Cool Springs, Del., Jan. 22, 1848, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Johnston. In his youth he was a marine engineer, holding an unlimited license. He made three trips around the world aboard yachts. He was a member of the Marine Engineers' association, also of Union lodge, A. F. and A. M., of New London, Palestine commandery, Knights Templar, New London, Pyramid temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Bridgeport, the Rose Croix chapter of Masons at Norwich, and a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason. He is survived by a son, Charles H. Johnston, of Mystic, and a sister, Mrs. Winnie McHenry, of West Philadelphia. Funeral services were held Sunday at 2:30 at his home, with Palestine commandery in charge of the services. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery.

Visited Roosevelt's Grave

The following Boy Scouts were at Oyster Bay, L. I., Saturday, to visit the grave of Theodore Roosevelt: Thomas Donnelly, Walter Reed, Arthur Griswold, Russell Fenner, Carlton Sherburne, Francis Garuffy, Arthur Taylor, Charles Strihl, Walter Prescott and Russell Tift. They were in charge of Assistant Scoutmaster F. W. Taylor and had a very enjoyable time.

Mrs. William Krome, of St. George Staten Island, Miss Elma Rice, R. N. and Mrs. Adela Gunderson, of Norwood, Mass., have been visiting Mrs. Krome's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Meyer.

Miss Betty Coe, physical instructor at Mystic academy, spent the week end at her home in Litchfield.

Walter Potter, of Bradford, R. I., spent Sunday with his son, Russell W. Potter, and family.

Charity and Relief lodge, F. and A. M. will meet this (Monday) evening

SPAIN'S PRINCE FINDS HEALTH AND ROMANCE

Persistently rumored in Spain is the romance of the crown prince (inset) and Princess Maria Esperanza whom he met on his first trip after his health improved.

MADRID, Oct. 26—(AP)—Rumors of a royal romance between the heir to the Spanish throne and one of the prettiest princesses of his realm are persistent.

They are given credence in some well informed palace circles and doubted in others—but everywhere they afford topic for speculation.

The beautiful 16-year-old Princess Maria Esperanza, of Bourbon and Orleans, may become the bride of the Prince of Asturias, eldest son of King Alfonso, if the reports are well founded.

But an official announcement may not be made for a year, if then, because it is planned that the princess spend that time in France continuing her studies.

The crown prince, greatly improved in health after having been an invalid 18 of his 23 years, did two things after he was convalescent: began to travel and—if report be true—fell in love.

The romance is supposed to have flowered when the prince was on the first extensive trip he was able to make after his long illness. This was to sunny Sevilla last spring.

The princess was at a nearby country estate of her family and they were thrown considerably in each other's society.

This autumn they met again in Barcelona, where the princess' father is captain general, when the prince visited there on a Spanish battleship.

The princess is named Maria de la Esperanza Raniera del Rocio Luisa Gonzaga de Borbon y de Orleans. But naturally that is too much for ordinary use and she is called the Infanta Maria Esperanza for short.

In her family and to intimates—maybe now or later to the prince—she is "Esperancita" or "little Esperanza," which is a use of the affectionate Spanish diminutive. "Esperanza" means hope.

Maria Esperanza, spirited, vivacious, charming, carefully educated, loves outdoor country life, as does the prince, and is a singularly good horsewoman. She is fond of riding in the becoming costume of her native Andalusia—the bolero jacket like a bullfighter and the stiff, wide-brimmed, high-crowned hat.

She wears with great grace, as often as the occasion permits, the charming headdress of high comb and lace mantilla, with "manton" or gay silk shawl fringed and of finest fabric, thrown over her shoulders.

The princess is the youngest daughter of the Infante (Prince) of Spain, Don Carlos of Bourbon, by his second marriage which was with the Princess Luisa Francisca of the French branch of the house of Orleans.

Don Carlos is a descendant of the Bourbon kings of Naples and is a captain general, the highest military rank in Spain. Thus, the Infanta Maria Esperanza, while not a princess of a reigning family is a princess of royal blood on both her father's and mother's side.

She has spent much of her life at the great country estate of her family at Villamanrique, not far from Sevilla, where she was born June 14, 1914.

After being tutored in childhood her education was continued in Paris at the convent of Sacre Coeur. She is versed in languages, music and literature.

SHORT FUR JACKETS BRING LONG GLOVES

PARIS, Oct. 26—(AP)—Long black gloves with short sleeved coats of black fur are going to be worn in the afternoon throughout the winter, stylewise shoppers here believe.

The all-black ensemble is having a tremendous vogue with Parisian women.

Many of them are already wearing short jackets of black fur, preferably astrakan. Many of the jackets have sleeves which fall by six inches of reaching the wrist.

MARRIAGE OR DIVORCE BANNED FOR TEACHERS

HENDERSON, Ky., Oct 26—(AP)—Teachers in the rural schools of Henderson county will avoid both marriage and divorce if they wish to retain their jobs.

Their new contracts with the county board of education carry this clause:

"It is further agreed by said teacher in case he or she marries or is divorced after date of appointment said act shall automatically place in the hands of said board his or her resignation to be acted upon at the next regular meeting."

Ohio Woman Employs Men.

OTTAWA, Ohio, Oct. 26—(AP)—Fifty idle men were given work by Mrs. Maude Martin, a newspaper reporter, who won the county contract for mowing weeds.

It's a Woman's WORLD

ANNA E. E. SCHNEIDER

When Anna E. E. Schneider was getting ready for life she studied art and music—neither, she admits, the most practical way of starting a business career.

But now she's the only woman miller in America, and she finds that her earlier training is more valuable in business than one might think. On her desk she keeps a row of good books, and when things get too tense these provide relaxation.

Her mill, in Baltimore, is almost an heirloom. Her father for years operated a small mill for the family in their home. Out of that grew her enterprise, now more than four years old.

W. C. T. U. TO REPORT ON "COCKTAIL WAR"

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 26—(AP)—The result of a year's effort to ostracize the "society cocktail" and to popularize the punchless punch bowl will be told at the annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, Houston, Tex., November 14 to 19.

A year ago Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the commissioner of industrial alcohol, was named chairman of a new W. C. T. U. department, that of "non-alcoholic fruit products." Her aim, largely, was to encourage the use by hostesses of non-alcoholic cocktails, punches and other society drinks. Mrs. Doran will report her results.

The convention will pay particular attention to discussions of results of government control of liquor in Canada.

A Halloween Dinner.

Jack o' Lanterns
Broomsticks Harvest Crop
Golden Balls Blackcats
Halloween Salad Spooky Wands
Individual Pumpkins
Witch's Brew

Jack o' lanterns are orange shells filled with diced fruit. Broom sticks are veal squares placed on skewers. Harvest Crop are buttered peas, carrots and browned potatoes. Golden Balls are egg rolls.

Blackcats are small dishes of grape jam. Halloween salad is gelatin salad. Spooky wands are twisted cheese sticks. Individual pumpkins are small pumpkin pies. Witch's Brew is coffee.

Broomsticks (Serving 8) 2 pounds veal steak, cut 1-2 inch thick, 8 slices bacon, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon salt 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-4 teaspoon celery salt, 2 cups rolled dried bread or cracker crumbs, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons lard, 1 cup water, 8 wooden meat skewers.

Cut veal in 1 1-2 inch squares. Cut bacon in small pieces. Alternate pieces of bacon and veal squares and stick on skewers. Beat eggs and add water, salt, paprika and celery salt. Dip filled skewers in egg mixture and then roll in crumbs. Place in baking pan. Dot with butter and lard. Add water. Cover and bake 1 hour in slow oven. Turn several times during baking. If desired gravy can be made from drippings left in pan after meat sticks have been removed.

Halloween Salad—1 package lemon flavored gelatin, 1 2-3 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup diced celery, 1-2 cup chopped green peppers, 1-4 cup chopped pimentos, 2 hard cooked eggs diced.

Pour boiling water over gelatin mixture and stir until dissolved. Cool and add other ingredients. Mix well. Pour in small round molds rinsed out of cold water. Chill until stiff. Unmold on lettuce and spread with thick mayonnaise. Mark features with slices of pimientos, almonds and bits of green pepper.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To make a slice of ham exceptionally tender, soak it in milk overnight.

To remove brown rings that come on tea and coffee cups rub with salt moistened with water. They will soon disappear.

The bread box should be washed and dried in the sun twice in the summer time to prevent mold on bread or a stale taste.

Cornmeal used in puddings or mush should be thoroughly mixed in a little cold water before hot water is added. It will not then be lumpy.

Dust your waxed floors or wipe them off with a damp cloth wrung out of cool water. When soiled use cool sudsy water made with pure castile soap.

To remove clinkers from a stove-lining place oyster shells over the clinkers and build the fire as usual. When the fire has burned down you will find the lining clean.

When sending choice cut flowers a long distance, cut slits in raw potatoes and fix the stems firmly in the openings. The flowers will keep from 10 to 14 days.

When flies are troublesome in the sick room try placing sweet peas in the room. The odor of them is so offensive to the flies they will not remain where it is.

A fine knitting needle is excellent in testing whether baked or boiled fruits and vegetables are sufficiently cooked. It does not break them or leave unsightly marks like a fork.

To freshen faded rugs, go over them with a cloth to which ammonia has been added in the proportions of one tablespoonful to a quart of water.

Small pieces of toilet soap that accumulate in the bathroom should not be thrown away. Add water enough to cover them and put on stove until dissolved. This makes an excellent soft soap.

When baking in a gas oven, if a recipe calls for a moderate oven, reduce the flame one-half at the end of 10 minutes. For a quick oven keep the burners turned up during all or nearly all of the baking.

KITCHEN CONVENIENCE

A decorated bread-board has a depression just deep enough to hold the bread-knife, so that there will not be the usual hunt for it each time the bread to be sliced.

GOOD POINTS TO KNOW

Mustard mixed with milk instead of water will not dry out but will keep moist until it has all been used.

Never throw away bones left from a roast or shoulder. Put them on in cold water, and if cooked several hours a good soup may be obtained with the addition of diced vegetables.

If you want pastry to be light and flaky roll in one direction only. If rolled first in one direction and then in the other it is sure to be tough.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A teaspoonful of table salt to a pint of water is the usual proportion for an eye wash. It may be applied with an eyecup.

Ground pumice stone moistened with peroxide may be used for under-the-nail stains. Scrub with a brush. Cigarette stains may be removed this way.

To prevent irritation under the arms after removing hair apply cold cream. If you do this at night the cream may remain on overnight.

Working in the garden makes the hands grimy and hard. About half a teaspoon of ordinary sugar, moistened and rubbed into the hands with a soapy lather, will clean them and leave them beautiful and smooth.

TRIMMED WITH PETIT POINT

Smart little mules are of black satin with decorations on the toes of genuine petit point embroidery done in colors.

BATHROOM BOTTLES

Stunning bottles for the well equipped bathroom are of cut glass, with large polka-dots of deep blue over the surface. The effect is most striking.

CROSS STITCH

An unusual tea cloth is made of oyster color linen separated into squares by lines of embroidery. In the center of each square is a grotesque animal or man done in very fine cross-stitching. Four napkins complete the set.

DAINTY APRONS

Maids are always appreciative of daintiness in their uniforms and are sure to delight in aprons of fine ecru—net in round or square mesh, with collars and cuffs to match. A bit simpler are those of fine lawn inset with bands of rick-rack braid.

FOR THE BATH

Bath salts that are put up in packages holding just enough for one bath in each are convenient and pretty as well, since they are covered with colored organdy and tiny flowers. Other packages consist of soap shaved very fine.

WHITE OR BLUE

Take your choice for either shade is warranted to make a perfect setting for your sun tan. These are the colors that smart young things back from the resorts are choosing for evening—and—not in chiffon or crepe but in shimmering satin.

WAX FURNITURE LEGS

If the bottom of the legs of furniture are waxed they will not scratch polished floors when moved around on them.

CLEANING OVENS

In cleaning gas ovens put a little ammonia in the water. They can be cleaned more easily, as the ammonia prevents them from turning brown.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Sleeping pajamas have short over-blouses rather than tuck-ins.

Leather gilets are interesting worn with sports suits and gloves to match.

Lace-trimmed slippers are being shown to conform to the demands for lace-trimmed negligees, among which may be mentioned lace-trimmed pajamas.

A black soft felt fall hat, with cushion brim, has a rear ornament made of black and white pastel ostrich feathers.

A frock that will do very well for immediate wear is of black satin with a pert little cape of black velvet attached to it.

Among the fashions for formal afternoon wear are dolmans of rich hued velvets trimmed with the most costly furs.

PRINTED FABRICS IN FALL DESIGNS

The question of whether or not prints would continue to be popular after their reign of the summer is at least partially answered by the appearance of clever tailored prints for fall. Small designs in white and colors appear on canton crepe. The patterns include the popular dot in new versions and small plaids are to be found.

GOWNS WILL ACHIEVE SIMPLICITY

Whether it is a sport frock or a formal gown, it is apt to have a gored skirt. Intricate cut and seaming to achieve the effect of simplicity are features of the new fashions that naturally give emphasis to the gored skirt. In some instances pleats are arranged between the gores, giving a graceful flare to the hemline.

THE NEW FURS

There is a suppleness and flexibility about the new fur coats that achieves the effect similar to that when fabrics are used. Skirts are somewhat circular and flare slightly, there are belts and little bolero jacket effects and the result is a chic never before achieved in the handling of pelts. One coat of sleek brown pony skin, is belted at the natural waistline and has a bolero in back only.

VELVET IS SHOWN

Velvet runs the gamut of the fall mode and is smart in all of its guises. Velvet afternoon dresses mostly in black, some velvet suits with metal or satin blouses, velvet evening wraps which are short in front and down in back, velvet evening dresses and velvet hats draped in tam and beret styles are smart aspects of this vogue.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Grease stains will always yield to applications of alcohol.

If white clothes have turned yellow, place a slice of lemon in the boiler in which the clothes are boiled and they will come out white.

To remove old tea and coffee stains, cover with glycerine, let stand three hours, then wash with soap and cold water. Repeat if necessary.

When sprinkling fine blouses or baby clothes it is difficult to distribute the dampness evenly. Dip a towel in water, wring it out, place the blouse in it and roll it up tightly. Leave for 10 minutes and article will be evenly dampened all over and ready for immediate ironing.

SO LUXURIOUS

Sheets of palest pink crepe-de-chine are double hemstitched at top and bottom. There are pillow slips to match, and these come in two sizes, one regulation, and the other very small.

REMOVE THE SHINE ON CLOTHES

Shiny clothes will lose their polish if soaked or sponged with cider vinegar before pressing. It will remove the shine, retain the original color of the garment, and no odor of the vinegar will remain.

CHINA TOASTERS

Now that toasted sandwiches have become such a regular part of a Sunday night supper or a mid-night meal on any other day the toaster occupies a most important place. Beside the metal ones there are others made of a lustrous china, that is said to be impervious to heat and comes in several attractive colors.

MILDEWED CLOTHES

Mildew may be removed from white clothes with the following solution: To each quart of boiling water dissolve one tablespoon of chloride of lime. Put the clothes in and stir them continually till the mildew disappears, then put them through several waters and dry in the sun.

CURTAINS ADOPT PASTEL COLORS

Pastel colors are now quite as fashionable for glass curtains as the more familiar white and ecru shades. Hangings of soft, sheer materials such as gauze, net, voile and casement cloth in delicate shades of apricot, salmon, green and lavender are now being made for use under window draperies.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Poland now has 50 policewomen.

Six women are practicing law in Ireland.

Women's dirt track motorcycle races are to be held in Europe.

The mayor of Lake Milton, Ohio, is Mrs. Pennola Jones, aged 63, and a grandmother.

Miss Cassa Dimon, aged 49, of Mills, Mass., is learning to fly an airplane. She is a member of the New England Women's Wing and Prop club.

A portrait of Agnes Mosjoukin, member of a poor family, will be used on a series of new bank notes of Russia. Artists who made the election for the model said that she had "a beauty with struggle in her eyes."

GLASS CHICKENS

Chickens made of glass are amusing ornaments for the dining table. They are large enough to form the only decoration if one so desires.

ASH-RECEIVER

For the feminine smoker, a square box of green enamel, ornamented on top with a heart, makes an excellent ash-receiver, which is not out of place in the boudoir.

FOR THE DRESSING TABLE

A charming and luxurious chair for the dressing table is a small swivel one covered with a greenish-blue material with bouquets scattered over the surface. The chair itself is painted a dull green and has a loose cushion for added comfort.

RECIPES

Cauliflower and Tomato: Soak one head of cauliflower in cold water and then tie it carefully in a piece of cheesecloth and put it to cook in boiling salted water. Cook until tender, but not so long that it will fall to pieces. Take from the water, remove the cheesecloth carefully and place the cauliflower in a vegetable dish. While the cauliflower is cooking, prepare the sauce by melting two tablespoons of butter in a double boiler, adding two tablespoons of flour, half a teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, and stirring into this two cups of heated strained tomato made by forcing canned or stewed tomatoes through a sieve. Cook until the sauce has thickened and then pour over the cauliflower in the vegetable dish. Serve hot.

Cheese Straws: Cut one cup of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, four tablespoons of fat, a pinch of cayenne pepper and half a cup of grated cheese together with a biscuit cutter until the mass is well blended. Add three tablespoons of water and mix well. Toss onto a slightly floured board and roll two or three times until the dough is smooth. Sprinkle on one-fourth cup of grated cheese and roll again. Repeat this, using another one-fourth cup of cheese. Roll all out until about one-fourth inch thick. Cut into strips half an inch wide and six inches long. Place the strips on a baking sheet and bake until a delicate brown in a moderately hot oven.

JEWELERS JOIN DRESSMAKERS SHOW GEMS WITH NEW GOWNS

PARIS, Oct. 26—(AP)—Jewelers have crashed the gates of exclusive dressmaking circles and now exhibit their models with the costumes for which they are designed.

Half a dozen of the leading dressmakers and jewel houses have come together for composite expositions of their work.

At showings of new winter models going on in most of the leading houses, expensive jewels are included with many evening toilettes.

Most of the jewelry selected for the dressmakers' exhibitions is new in design and modernistic in type.

Large pendants on jeweled chains are particularly favored, the pendant of gems which form a splashing design on the dress.

Paris is showing many brilliant jewels with gowns of white

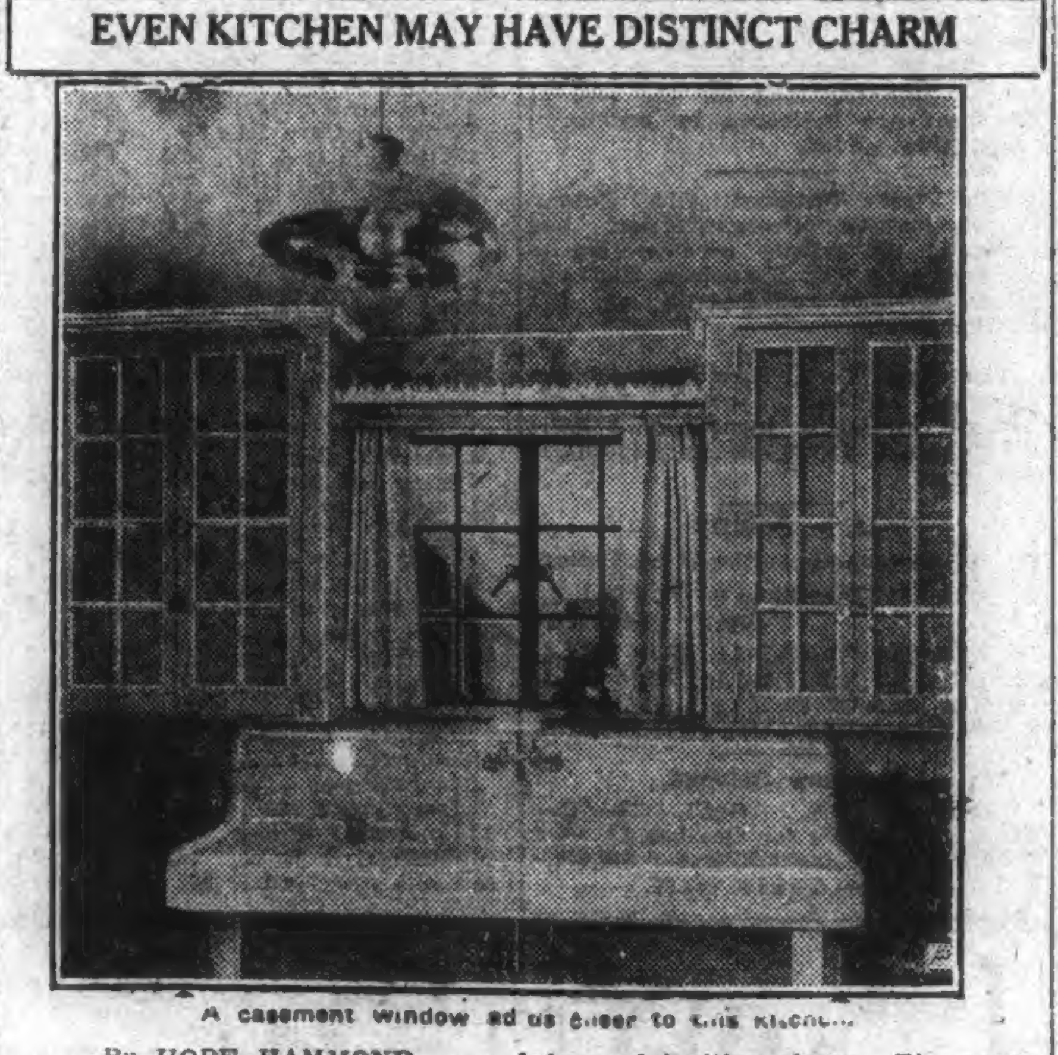
Slipper heels of the color of one's jewels are very new and much approved by the high and mighty [illegible] dressmakers and their clients

Bow-ties for the tailored woman are turned out by a well known sports clothes designer here in jabot form.

They are made of cravat silk, preferably polka dotted. A cascade of flat tabs, each a little longer than the first, fits up closely under a turnover collar.

Paris makes the cravats in dark satin for pastel colored wash satin blouses.

EVEN KITCHEN MAY HAVE DISTINCT CHARM



A casement window adds cheer to this kitchen.

By HOPE HAMMOND

Science and modern invention keep adding to the extent of our horizon, and nowhere has their progress been more striking of recent years than in the heart of the house, the food workshop.

Only a few days ago I saw a most delightful and inviting kitchen. Perhaps its most striking novelty was its sun-swept casement window, with glass-doored cupboards on either side, above a sink whose creamy charm was almost uncanny.

Over the window, on a frosted glass shelf quaintly edged with pointed wooden border painted blue like the valence board beneath it stood an electric clock. If its regularity was for an instant affected, a tiny red signal instantly gave warning. At night, tubular lamps concealed in the glass shelf shone directly on both sink and clock.

A white metal ceiling fixture was the main center of the room's artificial light, spreading equal radiance to all parts of the room. The bottom of its 100-watt bulb was aluminum painted for eye protection.

There was no drudgery in this kitchen. Practical, easily-washed, light-tinted surfaces produced an atmosphere of inviting charm. The enameled woodwork was in mellow peach, and peach oil-coated cloth, patterned with delicate blue, was used for the walls.

The window curtains were made of the same material as that which covered the walls, and were lined with non-fadable blue swing under a narrow valence board painted blue.

The ceiling was plain peach oil-coated cloth and the floor was covered with the same pattern of marbleized blue linoleum as the breakfast alcove, which opened out of the kitchen.

The kitchen table was of the popular trestle type, finished with waterproof varnish. In the alcove a gate-leg table was hinged to a wall shelf, with electrical table appliances making possible the easy serving of quick hot breakfasts.

Dishes of the breakfast service were of American stone china decorated with flowers in pastel shades. There was glass of simple lines and silver-plated flatware of graceful proportions.

For linens at breakfast my hostess had discovered that nothing is prettier with peach walls and blue patterned curtains than a lilac set made of hemstitched coarse dress linen.

GIRL WINS CHINA'S HOMAGE BY PERILOUS TRIP TO TIBET

NANKING Oct. 26—(AP)—From an obscure student of medicine to a national heroine in less than two years is the history of Liu Man-ching, a 24-year-old girl from the wilds of Tibet.

She walked half way across bandit-infested China enduring weeks of hardship to help save her people from communism, a mission that few men in Cathay would have dared attempt.

Two years ago, she was a nobody, today she is one of the most valued diplomats in the service of the national government.

Miss Liu was engaged as secretary of the national government two years ago because of her knowledge of Tibetan affairs.

The new regime in China was anxious to patch up century old differences with the outer tribes and here was a young woman with a college education willing to do what she could to bring her people into the nationalist fold. So she was sent.

According to her own story, she had always wanted to help the Tibetans, principally because her mother was one, and at the age of 14 had travelled alone to Peiping in search of schooling.

She eventually took up the study of medicine but was forced to leave school because of a religious clash among the students.

HOUSEWIFE'S TASK STUDIED BY ECONOMIC EXPERT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP)—After eliminating thousands of steps for farm women Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, assistant director of President Hoover's white house conference on child health and protection, is studying the problems of the apartment housewife.

How to minister to the needs of a family in the confines of a modern city kitchen is something which this expert on home economics is trying to solve.

Miss Van Rensselaer was the first person to work out a scheme for saving the steps of a housewife. As county commissioner of schools in Cattaraugus county, New York, she visited many farm homes, driving a horse and buggy.

She attached a pedometer to the ankle of a farm woman in whose home she stayed and found that the woman covered 14 miles in three days just walking around her kitchen. By rearranging the kitchen and introducing some time-saving devices the kitchen traveling was reduced to seven miles for three days.

Seeing the hard lot of many farmers' wives, Miss Van Rensselaer sent out leaflets asking farm women if they wanted help in their problems. She received 2,000 affirmative replies.

For 30 years Miss Van Rensselaer has been trying to help women solve their economic problems.

Miss Van Rensselaer will have a prominent part in the white house conference Nov. 19, which will be attended by 1,200 child welfare experts.

Brown And Paisley

PARIS, Oct. 26—(AP)—For redheads an authoritative dressmaker here promotes a costume of brown with touches of Paisley.

The Paisley is used as insets on brown caps that are more shallow than berets.

Incrustations of Paisley form a yoke and deep foresleeves on a plain brown dress.

Red Homespun Worn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(AP)—A suit of red homespun trimmed with black and tan fur is one of the many travel costumes in the wardrobe of Louise Harrison Gwynn, who is taking a year of travel in Europe in preference to making her debut this year. A beret of red homespun, black suede gloves and black shoes complete the ensemble.

Restaurant Frock

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP)—Mrs. Gibson Thompson's latest frock for restaurant dining is of the new wool lace in a beige shade, cut with very short sleeves and a bateau neckline. A black moire belt and shoulder flower, black suede gloves and slippers and a sheer black tulle hat complete her ensemble.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Posture.

Never does nagging fail more conspicuously than as a means of correcting bad posture.

The child who is constantly reminded to stand or sit straight seldom improves. He perhaps dutifully straightens up when he is told, only to slump automatically the moment his conscious attention is directed to something else.

Bad posture is, of course often due to bad nutrition, faulty structure and improper distribution of weight. In such cases, of course, the remedy is in the hands of the physician, and the mother carries out his orders.

Most often, however, the cause of bad posture is not simply physical. It is even not physical at all. It is a response to emotional attitudes and conflicts. A child crushed by harsh treatment or who feels himself to be inadequate often unconsciously expresses these feelings in his dejected carriage.

Although all of us unconsciously take into account a man's posture in making our estimate of his personality, we have perhaps not thought of posture as expression of personalty when we must it as a problem in our children.

When we think of posture as an expression of personality we at once see the futility of nagging and are ready to deal with the problem for what it is, and as a part of the entire adjustment of the individual.

Given incentive for exercise and play with others, interest in games and sports, a feeling of success in the world of his fellows and security in his home a child will, unless he is imitating the bad example of someone he loves, develop the physical pose which we all desire for him.

FURTHER UNEVEN PROGRESS NOTED IN THE BUSINESS WORLD LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Business reports of the past week indicated further uneven progress across the valley of depression.

Furthermore, some prominent executives believed the foothills through which the highlands of prosperity may be reached were at hand, although they acknowledged that the valley had been wide, and the highlands might not be quickly attained.

The most encouraging statistical exhibit of the week came from the building industry. F. W. Dodge corporation reported daily average of building contracts let in the week ended October 17, was about $1,600,000 above that first nine business days of the month.

The weekly steel trade reviews indicated that the industry was about holding steady.

The automobile industry continued to work at about 50 per cent of capacity, although plans to increase operations and employment in various plants within the next few days were announced.

Freight car loadings as reported for the previous week again turned downward, touching the lowest level for the period since 1913. Further moderate pick-up was reported in the textile industry, and various manufacturers of miscellaneous merchandise were said to be a little more active. The shoe trade, however, was quieter. The petroleum and copper industries were troubled with further price weakness.

Leading farm commodities were a little firmer, however. The grain and cotton markets in particular showed a better tone.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—New municipal financing scheduled for this week amounts to $17,373,664, compared with offerings of $66,019,000 last week. The largest single issue scheduled for award is a foreign one of $4,300,000 for the province of Nova Scotia. Chicago will be in the market with $3,000,000; state of Oregon, $1,500,000; King county, Wash., $1,250,000; and Cameron county Texas, $1,000,000.

Business is doing somewhat better than during the slow summer months, "which will probably pass down in history as the bottom of the 1930 depression," says the review published by the Bank of America National association.

"The improvement, however," the review adds, "is disappointingly slow and the outlook indicates a long drawn out recovery. In many lines the increase in activity has been only of a seasonal nature. In others the improvement has been more marked, while some lines still continue to lag behind."

Dividend requirements for the entire fiscal year on the preferred and Class A stock of Godchaux Sugars, Inc., have been earned in the first eight months of this year, officials of the company said. Net earnings up to the end of September applicable to dividends and reserves totaled $436,545, and prospects for continued high earnings for the rest of the year are indicated by orders in hand, they added.

The First National Old Colony Corps., investment organization, has extended its private wire system to connect with San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle on the Pacific coast.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad reported September net operating income of $2,041,828, against $3,209,739 in September last year.

POETRY

Psalm 29

Let all ye mighty hosts acclaim,
Let Heaven praise and bless.
The strength, the glory, of God's name,
And kneel in holiness.

God reigns upon the raging sea,
The thunder is his voice,
His voice resounds with majesty;
Rejoice, ye hosts, rejoice!

His thunder breaks the cedar trees,
Yea, trees of Libanus,
Which bow before his stormy breeze,
His voice so glorious.

God's thunder cleaves the lightning's flame
And shakes the desert sand;
Men praise the honor of his Name
Within his temple grand.

Above the flood God reigns on high,
A King that shall not cease;
He strengthens us afar and nigh,
And gives his people peace.

—By Charles Nevers Holmes.

As On A Ship

As on a ship that skirts some shore
Of mystic and unmemoried lore,
The drifting autumn moves along
Phrased in the mystery of a song.
The honey of her eerie spell
Distills its amber through the dell;
On hill and slope her elfin feet
Leave prints of magic fancy-sweet.

There is no clock of time to say
The passing hour; time drifts away
On wings whose magic is not known
Except in beauty's Orient zone.
The forest whispers through the pine,
The lanes reply in speech of vine;
The honeyed cells of ripening fruit
Find ev'n the pasturing bees are mute

A fox cried on the hill last night;
An owl was whooing; on the tide
September moon in garments brig
Was out to take a mystic ride.
And then far off in echoing note
Of mournful magic—what a thrill!—
I heard the summer's one, lone in Immortal whippoorwill.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"So your daughter speaks Esperanto."

"Yes, fluently, and without accent, just like a native."—Lustige Zeitung.

Fair Young Thing (at her first boxing match)—What a cowardly lot of chaps those seconds are. As soon as any trouble starts they step out of the ring.—Bristol Observer.

"Sweetheart, do you think your father will object?"

"No, John, I'm certain dad won't interfere with our marriage. He always gives in to my worst whims."—Exchange.

Lougumia—Some burglars got into my house last night, bound me to a chair and gaged me.

Pudinga—Then what did you do?

Lougumia—Why, I sat up all night and chewed the rag.—The Pathfinder.

"And are you comfortable here in prison my good men?"

"It has its drawbacks, of course but I don't have to get up in the middle of the night to see if the door is locked."—Everybody's Weekly.

One evening when Mary's suitor was more ardent than before, she cried: "If you don't stop, I'll call the chaperon."

"Do," answered the young man. "You call her and I'll call my friend and then we'll have a regular party."—Arizona Kitty-Kat.

Inquiring Lady—How much does your cow give a day?

Truthful Boy—'Bout eight quarts.

Inquiring Lady—And how much of that do you sell?

Truthful Boy—'Bout twelve quarts, lady.—Good Time Jokes.

"Don't you ever feel sick going up and down in this lift all day?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," said the boy.

"Is it the motion of going down?"

"No, ma'am."

"The motion of going up?"

"No, ma'am."

"Is it the stopping that does it?"

"No, ma'am."

"Then what is it?"

"Answering questions, ma'am."—Punch.

With the purpose of furthering economic co-operation between the two states, Austria and Hungary have each appointed a special commission of five experts to survey the needs of each country. They will keep in mind at all times that Austria, though primarily industrial, has certain agricultural interests which must not be damaged; and that Hungary, though primarily agricultural, has in mind an industrialization program which can not be ignored.

A natural ice well, 172 feet underground from which crystal clear blocks of ice can be cut in hottest weather is occasioning much interest at Rapid City, S. D. The well is located at the gypsum plaster mill at Black Hawk seven miles north of Rapid City. In digging for gypsum at the plant, workmen sunk a shaft at the end of which a large hole was excavated in taking out gypsum. This filled with water to a depth of eight feet which freezes in summer and is coated with thick ice.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Clara Bow, the "It" girl of the screen is now making an appearance in Norwich in "Her Wedding Night," a comedy which will be shown at the Palace theatre for the last times today and tomorrow.

Clara is all dressed up in Paris gowns for this production which is her first real farce.

The story opens in Paris with Clara preparing for her flight into the south of France. On the train ride she is mistaken for an eloping bride married to Skeets Gallagher, in spite of herself, and, as he is already traveling under an assumed name, Clara really is married to a man she has never met, Ralph Forbes. Then Charles Ruggles complicates the situation with his droll humor and a bevy of beauties and things start to happen. The finish is a great love scene with Clara and her strange husband on a honeymoon in Venice.

Those intimate things which take place within the walls of a beauty salon are revealed in full detail in "Her Wedding Night," which sizzles with Clara Bow and action. It is filled with merry mad moments as enticing as the title. It's farce at the top speed. In it, Clara Bow has the kind of a role that made her the "It" girl.

On Wednesday the Palace will present a double-feature showing "One Night at Susies" with Billie Dove and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Here is a vivid drama of love and a sacrifice with Billie Dove at her best. Combined with this is "Ladies Must Play" a sophisticated society drama with Dorothy Sebastian, Neil Hamilton, John Holland and Natalie Moorhead.

From 1920 to 1930 enrollment at the University of Southern California increased from 4,260 to more than 18,000.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

If Edmund Lowe were to return to Santa Clara university for post graduate work, he might easily major in applied criminal psychology. for his intensive research into the habits and mannerisms of the underworld gentry for screen purposes has made him somewhat of an authority on the subject.

In fact, so popular have Lowe's smooth-working, clever screen criminals become, it is somewhat of a surprise to learn that in his latest Fox Movietone thriller, "Scotland Yard," he departs from the usual long enough to portray a polished, clear-spoken English banker and gentleman.

A dual role, the first Eddie has done since the days of the old silent pictures, gives him this unparalled opportunity to depict both a hard-boiled gangster and a dressed-up man-about-town.

"The two characters haven't bothered me a bit," Lowe explained while the picture was being filmed. "In fact, I am perfectly at home in either, and if a choice were to be made, I really don't know which I would prefer to do."

"Scotland Yard," which is currently showing at Warner's Broadway theatre, was directed by William K. Howard from Denison Clift's stage success. The cast includes Joan Bennett in the feminine lead, with Barbara Leonard, Donald Crisp, David Torrence and Lumsden Hare in prominent roles.

Withdrawal In Damage Suit

The $5,000 damage suit brought by Abraham M. Lahn of Boston, Mass. against George O. Murphy of Pawcatuck has been withdrawn from the docket of the superior court without costs to either party, according to papers filed with Clerk John H. Walker. Lahn sued for personal injuries sustained in a garage owned by the defendant company, on Nov. 7, 1929. He claimed that while they were fixing his car an explosion occurred and he was injured.

Surplus nitrogen will be bought up and held for a favorable market by the international nitrogen cartel.

$354,000,000 IN FIFTEEN YEARS

For 15 years, Republican administrations have been in charge of Connecticut's government. During that time, there has been collected and disbursed, $354,000,000. A few of the major items comprising the disbursements follow:

Construction and Maintenance of Highways	$127,600,000
For Charities, Hospitals and Treatment of State Charges	66,800,000
For Education	51,600,000
General Government (Executive, legislative, judicial, administration)	27,700,000
Protection to Persons and Property	24,000,000
Conservation of Health and Sanitation	16,500,000
Development and Conservation of Natural Resources	7,300,000
Care and Treatment of Veterans	7,000,000

The amount above includes the funding of $11,000,000 of indebtedness, inherited in 1915 from the last Democratic administration.

TODAY—

1. General property taxes are lower in Connecticut than in 45 other states.
2. We stand first among states in money spent for communicable disease (tuberculosis).
3. We are third in money spent for hospitals, charities and corrective institutions.
4. We eliminated former Democratic yearly deficits by the "pay as you go" method.
5. We stopped issuing bonds — We are now out of debt.
6. The State is rendering admirable service to its citizens.
7. We are the leader of states in financial management.

Shall we continue sound management of our state affairs in Connecticut, or take chances with Democrats who have no experience with state affairs, and who advocate more activities and in the same breath assail expenditures. ALL the republican candidates on the state ticket are experienced in state managment. We, the people, pay the bills!

REBECCA LEATCH, NEW LONDON, DIES STRUCK BY CAR OF PAWTUCKET GUEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—Rebecca Leatch, about 65, residing at 43 Thames street, was fatally injured Saturday night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Mullen of 228 Broadway, Pawtucket, R. I. The woman died from her injuries six hours after the accident, at Lawrence Memorial hospital. Mullen was arrested by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Motorcycle Officer Thomas Cavanaugh, charged with manslaughter. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,000 and will be in the police court tomorrow.

Miss Leatch, who is employed by a family at the Pequot, left her home about 6:30 o'clock and went to a point about 55 feet south of Thames street where she awaited the arrival of a trolley car. As the car was passing Thames street, Miss Leatch walked from the sidewalk to a position to board the car. About the same time, the automobile in which was Mrs. Mullen, speeded by the trolley car and was being driven to the Pequot also. While Miss Leatch stood about five or six feet from the trolley car, the auto hit her. The woman was knocked down and could not regain her feet. Passing autoists went to Miss Leatch's assistance and it was evident that the woman was seriously injured. The ambulance was summoned and Miss Leatch was taken to the hospital where an examination revealed that among other injuries she had sustained a fracture of several ribs and possible internal injuries, the fracture of both legs and a fractured wrist. From the time that the woman was admitted to the hospital her life was despaired of and she died about midnight. Mr. Mullen is a former resident of New London and came here Saturday to spend the week end with relatives.

WATERFORD WOODS FIRE THREATENS LOCAL HOUSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—The New London and Waterford fire departments were given a hard battle for three-quarters of an hour this afternoon to subdue a woodland fire which threatened to communicate with residences on Bank street. Shortly before noon residents south of Fay street observed great clouds of smoke in the woods and within a few minutes a volume of flame was noticed, indicating that a serious fire was in progress. The wind was strong and the fire burned rapidly for the flames gradually approached the houses. An alarm was sent in from Box 413, corner of Bank and Fay streets. Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded, together with the Waterford department for the fire in reality was in Waterford, but some of the residences threatened are in New London. Three streams of water were necessary to subdue the flames. The houses were prevented from igniting.

AL SMITH TO SPEAK FROM TRAIN FOR CANDIDATE CROSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—Al Smith, former governor of New York state and defeated candidate at the last presidential election, will be in New London for a brief time tomorrow and will deliver an address in the interests of Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democratic candidate for governor against Ernest E. Rogers, of this city. Mr. Smith, who will be en route to Providence, will be a passenger on the New Haven express that will arrive in New London at 4.04. During the five minutes' station stop he will devote that time by telling the voters of New London why they should vote for Dean Cross. Mr. Smith will do his stumping from the platform of the rear coach.

Miss Charlotte Whiton, daughter of Ernest L. Whiton, 557 Montauk avenue, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan charged with parking on Pearl street, which street is restricted to traffic at all times. Miss Whiton was released, with a warning to heed the regulations in the future.

HARKNESS GIFT REPORT WAS LONDON FAIRY TALE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—Announcement was made in a press dispatch sent out from London, England, last night that Edward S. Harkness, multi-millionaire and a summer resident at Goshen Point, Waterford, had made another contribution to England in the sum of $25,000,000. When interviewed at the Goshen Point mansion this afternoon, where Mr. Harkness is stopping for a few days the philanthropist denied any intention of making the gift stating that the report was a ridiculous one, and that he could not understand what prompted the announcement from England.

A laborer with a police record of having been arrested 16 times, was taken into custody this afternoon by Patrolman John Burgess, charged with vagrancy and intoxication. He was making a nuisance of himself on North Bank street and will be in the police court Monday.

An old offender, who has been employed for many months as a farm hand in Waterford and Montville, was arrested on Golden street tonight charged with intoxication and will be presented in the police court Monday. He has been arrested more than 40 times, principally for intoxication.

George Ramsey, of Waterford, was arrested in Lyme Saturday night by State Police Officer Eric Swanson, charged with driving without a license. He will be in court there Monday.

Navy Day Program.

Navy Day will be observed in New London tomorrow and already arrangements have been completed for the annual naval celebration. Launches will make frequent trips to and from the municipal pier for the purpose of conveying visitors to the base, were chief petty officers will act as guides for the visitors on the reservation, besides explaining the various performances and operations of undersea craft. Two submarines will also be berthed at the municipal pier throughout the day. Two United States Coast Guard destroyers, which have been in port the past two days, will remain there until after the observance of the day.

DECKHAND ADMITS THEFTS FROM WRECKING CO. EMPLOYE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—Joseph Mayer, 30, of 20 Tilley street, married and employed as deckhand and cook by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with theft and will be in court tomorrow morning. He is locked up tonight in default of a surety on his bond of $1,000. An official of the wrecking company last Thursday made complaint to the police that two of their employes had been robbed. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh upon going to the wrecking company's plant, 292 Pequot avenue, was informed that John Vaughn, engineer of the tug Chaser, had been robbed of his overcoat, $96 and two bank books, one issued by the Fidelity bank, 17 Battery place, New York, showing a deposit of $230, and another of the National Bank & Trust Co., of Mamaroneck, N. Y., showing a deposit of $3,000. Vaughn also had been robbed of his overcoat. It was also reported that the deck hand, Mayer, had been robbed of his overcoat and shoes. After an investigation of two days suspicion pointed to Mayer as being the thief, even after he had assisted Vaughn in dragging the river-bottom near the boat and finding a burlap bag in which all of the stolen articles had been deposited excepting $30, together with 20 pounds of nails to make the bag drop to the river-bed, had been recovered. Mayer was the only person, other than Vaughn who was on the tug when the money and clothing disappeared. When he was questioned at length yesterday afternoon, he broke down and confessed. In explaining the failure to find the $30, which was separate from the other money found in Vaughn's clothing, Mayer said that when he realized that he was suspected of being the thief, he massed the money tightly and dropped it from the side of the tug.

ABOUT 125 LOCAL SCOUTS GO TO ROOSEVELT'S GRAVE

Included among the more than 4000 Boy Scouts, who assembled at Oyster Bay, N. Y., Saturday afternoon at Christ Episcopal church for the 11th annual Roosevelt memorial pilgrimage, under direction of Col. Daniel Carter Beard, national scout commissioner were about 126 scouts from New London. Led by the American Legion band of Quentin Roosevelt post, the marchers presented a colorful array on the four-mile march from the center of the town to the grave in Young's Memorial cemetery. While the thousands of youths stood with bared heads, Rev. Dr. S. MacKenzie, of Flushing Reformed church, read the invocation. Following the opening ceremony, Col. Beard placed a wreath on the former president's grave and after Taps had been sounded the assemblage was dismissed. Among the wreaths placed upon the grave was one from the National Scout officers, one from the Theodore Roosevelt troop, No. 21, of Detroit, and many individual tributes. The New London scouts made the trip on one of the United States Coast Guard destroyers stationed at this port.

Mrs. James Black and infant son, of 33 Cottage street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Hunter Shot Himself

Santo Ceravola, 17, of Center Groton, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from an accidentally self-inflicted gun shot wound. Ceravola went into the woods adjacent to his home Friday afternoon and after discharging the shotgun, he reloaded it to be prepared for the appearance of game. In handling the weapon, which was cocked, it accidentally exploded and Ceravola received the charge in the thigh. Ceravola succeeded in making his way to the highway where a passing autoist conveyed him to the office of a physician in Groton. After emergency treatment, Ceravola was taken to the hospital.

Goozey—Keenan

Sidney Goozey, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Goozey, of Providence, and Miss Evelyn Keenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias A. Keenan, 141 Winthrop street, were married last Wednesday at St. James' Episcopal church by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. George Hinch was best man and Miss Helen Gregowski was bridesmaid. The ushers were William D., George F., and Joseph P. Keenan.

Mrs. Philip Z. Hankey, of Montauk avenue, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. George L. Todd, of Rochester, N. Y.

Overcome by Gas

Louis Gaetano, 11 Pequot avenue, was partially asphyxiated by inhalation of gas fumes while at his work Saturday and is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. He will not be under treatment there long, however, for his condition is not regarded as serious. Gaetano was at work on a gasoline engine in Mystic and inhaled the fumes, with the result that he was rendered partially unconscious. Fellow workers went to his assistance and had him brought to the hospital

Hunter Shoots Companion

Henry Britt, 183 Montauk avenue, a warrant officer in the navy, was accidentally shot by a fellow huntsman while in woods of Lyme Friday afternoon. He is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from multiple wounds of arm and face. His condition is serious. Britt and Charles Tourtelotte, of this city, went to Lyme early in the afternoon and in their search for game the hunters became separated. When Tourtelotte observed Britt seated in the distance, he mistook his companion for game and, leveling his shotgun, fired. Britt received the major portion of the contents of the shell and a few seconds later, Tourtelotte realized that he had shot his friend. Tourtelotte assisted Britt to the latter's automobile and he was rushed to this city and taken to the hospital.

Stolen Car Abandoned

A Studebaker coach, owned by Michael F. O'Hara, 30 Waller street, was parked on Woodbridge street at 8 o'clock Saturday night. When the owner returned about three hours later the car was missing. Its theft was reported at police headquarters by O'Hara's son. An hour afterwards the auto was found by Patrolman George Laboue, abandoned on Bank street.

William P. Steward, 48 Ocean avenue, today made complaint to the police that vandals are destroying flowers, especially dahlias, in the gardens of residences, including that of complainant.

The New London police Saturday night were requested to be on the lookout for a New York registered Ford automobile containing three young men, for it is believed that the trio has been guilty of a series of burglaries in Webster, Mass. When the car was last recognized, it was headed towards New London.

H. J. Pettis, Waterford, was arrested Saturday night, charged with parking his automobile in such a manner as to block a driveway on Bank street. The arresting officer was Patrolman George McCaskey. Pettis posted a bond of $2 for his appearance in the police court Monday.

Wayne Whitcomb, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Whitcomb, 46 Terrace avenue, was hit by an automobile driven by Mrs. Charlotte Whittle, of Mystic, Saturday afternoon. The boy, who was on Main street, near Williams, was attempting to run across the street when knocked down by running in front of the auto. Mrs. Whittle drove the boy to his home. He sustained only lacerations and bruises.

Walter Robbins, a machinist and residing at 54 Cutler street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sergeant William Babcock, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, and will be in court Monday. Robbins drove from Maple avenue to Pequot avenue at a time when the officer was driving to Howard street. When Robbins' auto preceded the sergeant's car, Babcock observed the course taken by the machine Robbins was driving and it was a most irregular one, as the officer realized, for he could not pass the car ahead of him. At Howard and Bank streets a traffic signal caused Robbins to stop his auto and, when he did so, Babcock made an investigation which revealed that the former was intoxicated.

A Packard touring car carrying Connecticut registration, issued in the name of James B. Pickman, submarine base, was found abandoned on a street in Willimantic today. It later developed that Pickman is a member of U. S. S. Bushnell, en route to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, with submarines that will be decommissioned. It is not known whether the auto was stolen.

Mrs. John Burke and infant son, of 76 Lincoln avenue; Clifford Winters, Waterford; Miss Catherine Murphy, 91 Garfield avenue; Mrs. Richard Wade and infant son, 42 Maple avenue; Mrs. Edward Fields, 38 Coit street; Mrs. John Scanlon, 45 Fourth street; Mrs. Richard Roberts, Eastern Point, Groton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

William Geise and Antonio Ouillette, the latter a sailor, were in the police court Saturday, charged with the theft of chickens. Geise pleaded guilty and assumed all blame for the theft of the poultry, so he was fined $25 and costs and the charge against Ouillette was nolled. The two men went to the market of Isaac Merran, 36 Truman street, about 2 o'clock Saturday morning, where Geise was formerly employed. Geise had knowledge of where a flock of chickens were quartered and with Ouillette, went to the roost in the rear of the market, and strangulated 30 of the birds in a very few minutes. He summoned a taxicab and the chickens were loaded into it and conveyed to a building designated by Geise. When the trip had been concluded Geise did not have money to pay for the cab, so the driver was tendered two of the chickens, which he accepted. When the driver returned to the taxi stand, State street, Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clyde Murphy observed the pair of chickens and upon questioning the driver surmised what had taken place between the cab driver and Geise. The officers went to where the delivery of chickens had been made and there found Geise and Ouillette, who were arrested.

May Barnes, colored, proprietress of a black and tan dive, on Douglass street, was charged with conducting a house of ill fame. Joyce Brown, 24, and Jackie Davis, 28, both colored, were charged with frequenting. The Barnes woman pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. The Brown and Davis women also pleaded guilty and each was penalized $25 and costs. The women were arrested Friday by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith upon complaint of Joseph Carola, of this city, employed as a laborer at Fishers Island, who claimed that he was robbed of $35 on a visit to the resort.

The continued case of Martin Oski, charged with breach of the peace, was disposed of by a nolle being ordered. Oski was arrested Sept. 24 when he was intoxicated on Eastern avenue. To make a nuisance of himself, Oski amused himself by hurling stones at Julia and Mary Sousa, residents at 47, some of the stones hitting and bruising the young women.

Another continued case, that of Frank Meyers, colored, charged with breach of the peace, was nolled. Meyers was arrested Sept. 22 when he deliberately hurled a bottle into the highway and the fragments of glass were scattered in the path of automobiles.

Edward Burchard, a youth residing in Rhode Island, was charged with vagrancy. He was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and was returned to his home. The boy was arrested Friday night when found loitering about the streets. He had been in the city several days and was without funds or a place to sleep.

Joseph Barry and William E. Anderson, strangers, were charged with trespass and were given suspension of judgment. They were arrested Friday night by Lieut. David Marks and Officer Harold Swanson, of the New Haven railroad force of special agents when the men were detected stealing a ride on a freight.

James Zeppiere, 135 Fairview avenue, Groton, charged with reckless driving, had the charge nolled. Zeppiere was driving an automobile owned by Charles Zamza, also of Groton, on Pequot avenue on the afternoon of Oct. 12. Roger Staindow, 4, of 97 Arundel avenue, Hartford, who had arrived at the Colonnade hotel earlier in the day with his parents, and who had left the hotel unobserved, attempted to cross the highway at a time when the automobile was passing with the result that the child was hit and knocked down. The child sustained a fractured skull and was discharged from Lawrence Memorial hospital only a few days ago.

The police Saturday afternoon discovered that the cottage at 75 Park street, Ocean Beach, owned by William Vogel, 193 Main street, Hartford, had received the attention of a crook recently, for the front entrance had been attacked with a "jimmy" or similar instrument in an endeavor to force it.

TO DYNAMITE RUM RUNNER IF IT CANNOT BE FLOATED THIS MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 26—The 67-foot power boat Helen of Newport, R. I., a rum runner riddled by gun-fire of coastguard boats and driven on Watch Hill bathing beach near Napatree Point in the early hours of last Friday morning, has been stripped of all valuable material by the coastguardmen. The work of salvaging all valuable movable parts was completed and on Sunday Capt. George W. Streeter of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station, removed the guard which has stood by ever since the craft was driven upon the sandy beach. Among parts taken off by the government men were the compass, mast, spars, lights, blocks, falls, steering wheel, windows, bells, starter and signalling instruments and oil coolers. The heavy Speedway motors were about all that was left in the craft as it lay piled-up on the sandy shore.

Monday morning at high tide, about 11:00 a. m., according to Capt. Streeter, an effort will be made to float the boat which in his opinion has large holes in the bottom gained when the boat crossed the reef at Watch Hill. Should the boat stay afloat long enough it will be secured between two scows or pontoons and taken to the Coast Guard base at New London. Should the coastguardsmen fail to start the boat off the beach sticks of dynamite will be placed in the craft and then the hull of the motor boat blown up.

While the transfer of nearly 1000 cases of whisky was being made from the beached craft to the coast guard ship the shore did not lack for spectators. Some of the cases broke open and the coast guard men immediately broke the bottles over the side of the ship. The coast guard men had orders to arrest anyone who attempted to obtain any of the liquor. Some 963 cases by actual tally were transferred so that the original estimate, taking into consideration the broken cases, made at 1000 cases proved to be correct. When the burlap covered cases were removed from the after compartment of the rum runner a hole made in the hull of the craft was plainly visible.

Although Watch Hill coastguardsmen were almost certain that three men were taken from the Helen, there proved to be four members of the crew of the "Helen," who submitted to capture when their craft ran up on the beach, were at first taken to New London, and then to Providence, to await arraignment before a U. S. commissioner on several charges involving prohibition law violations.

They gave their names as Ed. Green, 243 45th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., Robert Hanson, 2 Second Place, Brooklyn, William Velke, 25 Ryerson street, Paterson, N. J., and William Rice, 742 East 180th street, New York city.

It has been said that the C. G. 290, in command of Boatswain A. C. Cornell, which assisted in the capture of the "Helen" early Friday morning, was formerly the "Black Duck," aboard which three men were killed and a fourth badly wounded by the raking machine gun bullets of a Coast Guard patrol boat in Narragansett Bay last December.

The C. G. 290, is one of the fastest rum chasers in New England now, and without her assistance in the chase here, the "Helen" would probably have escaped. Officials at the New London base refused to confirm this report, however.

Apparently the news of the capture of the Helen travelled quickly, for at the C. G. base at Conn. state pier in New London, a "flock of lawyers" were reported as anxious to get in touch with the captured men. In Stonington there was a story that a large N. J. plated automobile at Stonington point when the firing began, hurriedly left the waterfront and sped rapidly through the borough streets to the Boston Post road.

WESTERLY VOTING OFFICIALS PREPARING FOR ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 26—Rhode Island state election day will occur on Tuesday, Nov. 4th when congressional and state senators and representatives will be elected to office. There will also be three Rhode Island referendum votes taken, one for a third Providence court house loan bond issue, a second vote on state absentee voting and a third vote on the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States "Shall it be retained?" The last vote is the one on which the most interest throughout Rhode Island has been taken, and will probably be the first count made by the various election officials throughout Rhode Island, so that an early report may be given and in many cases this count will be made before those for the various candidates for public office.

As in past years, the Westerly polling place, for the two Westerly voting districts will be the Westerly Town hall auditorium, that for the first district, the northern section of the town on the east side of the hall or the Elm street side, while for the second voting district the side of the Town hall next to Union street will be utilized. In the first Westerly voting district Everett A. Kingsley will be the moderator and Carl E. Burdick, clerk. Supervisors will be republican, James H. Hodgson and Merton L. Stott; democrat, Edward M. Campbell and Dominic P. Turco. In the second voting district Lewis Stanton will be the moderator and Miss Mabel A. Saunders, clerk. Supervisors will be republican, Russell L. Slocum, John Smith; democrat, Charles M. Dowd and William E. Foley. The supervisors were appointed at a recent special meeting of the Westerly town council on the recommendation of the various town committees.

Real Estate Transfers

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Oct. 23. Horace E. Gavitt to Lucy M. W. Foster a certain lot or parcel of land with dwelling house and other improvements and bounded westerly by land of Amy I. Anderson, northerly and easterly by estate of Charles Perry and southerly by Wells street; being the land deeded to the grantor on Jan. 29, 1904 by William E. Spear.

There was an audience of some 400 gathered in the United theatre on Sunday afternoon to hear democratic spellbinders who came to Westerly to give the voters the "facts" in the present political campaign from democratic standpoints. George A. Dolan, chairman of the Westerly democratic town committee acted as chairman and introduced the speakers.

Among those seated on the platform with a background of a large American flag were two women, Mrs. Margaret W. Perry of Westerly, democratic candidate for state senator from Westerly and Mrs. Susan Sharp Adams recently defeated for office. When introduced by the chairman they arose and bowed, while other speakers on the platform remained standing. Moderator Dolan said that he had a letter from "Al. Smith" stating that previous engagements prevented him from being present.

Principal speakers were U. S. senatorial candidate, Peter Goelet Gerry, Representative Ambrose Kennedy, Westerly Representative John M. O'Connell, and others.

Although Rhode Island Teachers' institute in Providence occurrs the last of this week sessions of the Westerly High school, according to Superintendent of Schools Willard H. Bacon, will be resumed this (Monday) morning. Due to the damage done by Thursday afternoon's fire there have been no sessions of the High school since that time.

On Saturday afternoon in New York city occurred the wedding of Miss Alice Dunning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Dunning of Summer street, Westerly, and Theodore C. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taylor of 148 Powell Lane, Stonehurst, Pa.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray.

After considerable investigation by Westerly and Pawcatuck police departments a young man was taken into custody on Saturday night by Pawcatuck Police Patrolman Simeon R. Shortman and held for further examination in connection with many recent breaks in Westerly and Pawcatuck. On Sunday afternoon he was held at Westerly police station for a careful checkup and when questioned said his home was in a nearby state, but that he had been living in Westerly since last July. He had been unable to get steady work. From information obtained the police are inclined to believe he is implicated in recent breaks that have resulted in the loss of hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise from local stores.

He probably will be fingerprinted and photographed Monday by state authorities and may be held until his fingerprints have been classified, as the police believe he has a record. The young man was picked up by Patrolman Simeon Shortman of the Pawcatuck police on information furnished by Chief Thomas E. Brown of Westerly. Lieut. George E. Champlin and Patrolman Charles Patton searched the room where the young man has been staying but did not make public the result of their investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Maxson, who have passed the summer season at Mr. Maxson's home on Main street, returned by auto on Saturday to their winter home in Montreal, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Snyder, who have been motor tour vacation visitors the past week in Washington, D. C., returned to their Westerly home on Saturday. They were accompanied on their return trip to South Manchester, Conn., by Mr. and Mrs. William McBride, a sister of Mrs. Snyder.

Judge William A. Wilcox of the Stonington Town court was confined to his Pawcatuck home the past week end suffering from an attack of gall stones.

Neil Ryan and son of New York, formerly of Norwich, visited on Sunday with friends in Westerly.

John Hartigan of Providence, former Misquamicut summer visitor, was a Westerly political caller on Sunday afternoon.

Raymond Eccleston has returned to Westerly from a visit with friends in Orange, Mass., the past week.

Oliver R. Portelance was a Westerly visitor in Taftville on Friday evening.

J. Howard Alger of Pittsburgh, Pa., was the week end visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis H. Alger, in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hughes were Westerly week end motor visitors in New Bedford, Mass.

Miss Agnes Conway was a Westerly automobile visitor in New Haven on Saturday.

H. P. Parrock returned to Westerly Sunday afternoon spending the past few days in Brookline, Mass.

Miss Dorothy Larkin of Pawcatuck was a visitor in New Haven over the past week end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jessop were Westerly automobile visitors in New Bedford over the week end.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BATTERY OF SPEAKERS FOR DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Announcement was made Sunday night that William C. Fox, of New London, democratic candidate for congressman from this district, will address a rally to be held this (Monday) evening at Union hall, in the Greeneville district. Mr. Fox is considered a very capable speaker.

The democratic town committee feels that it was fortunate in securing Mr. Fox to speak at the rally, and it was announced that arrangements are being made to handle a capacity crowd.

Other speakers on the program are John F. Hennon, of Jewett City; William J. Fitzgerald, candidate for state senator; Irving Eisenstein, candidate for representative, and Edward G. Moran, local attorney, who, as candidate for mayor, spoke before a Greeneville audience in the same hall last June.

The Violins of Heifetz

Heifetz, whose concert, the first of the Slater Hall series of four, will be on Friday, Nov. 7th, owns several celebrated violins known to connoisseurs and collectors the world over His favorite, however, are his Guaruerius and his Stradivarius, both of which accompany him on all his concert tours.

The Guaruerius, which Heifetz plays the more frequently, is dated 1742, and valued at a fabulous price. It formerly belonged to Wilhelmj, the great German artist who toured this country in the days of our grandfathers. Before that it was the property of Ferdinand David, a famous violinist of the last century. He was the teacher of Wilhelmj and gave it to his pupil in his old age. At one time, too, it came into possession of the Spanish virtuoso, Sarasate, who played it for years. It is known as the "David Guaruerius" and is listed in all catalogues of historic old instruments.

The Stradivarius, made by the master in the year 1730, is a beautiful violin in excellent condition.

To hear this great artist play on his favorite instrument will be the privilege of subscribers to the Slater Hall Concert Course in less than two weeks.

The sale for the course tickets will open Tuesday, Oct. 28, 9 a. m. at Cranston's Store.

See Advertisement for dates of the four concerts.

TAFTVILLE

OBITUARY

Arthur Trembley

Saturday morning the useful life of Arthur Trembley, highly respected and well known citizen of the village, came to a close at his home on upper Merchants avenue, following a short illness. Born in St. Luque, Province of Quebec, Canada, on December 29, 1855, and married in that place, he came to Taftville 44 years ago, and had been for many years in the employ of Ponemah mills as a stone mason. He was a member of Sacred Heart church and also of the St. Jean Baptiste society, one of the organizations connected with that parish. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Peter, of Northfield, Vermont, and Philip and Henry, of Taftville; and two daughters, Mrs. Henry Faucher and Mrs. Adelard Adams of Taftville. There are 15 grandchildren.

The funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. James was held Saturday morning at the home of her parents on South C street. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike. Undertakers Dougherty Bros., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

A delightful surprise miscellaneous shower was given by a number of friends Friday evening in honor of Miss Therese Lussier, at her home on Terrace avenue, observing her approaching marriage to Arthur Trudelle. The bride-elect was showered with many beautiful gifts including linen, cut glass and silver. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed and later in the evening a buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Octavia Phaneuf, Mrs. Arthur LeClair, Mrs. Edmond Trudelle, Mrs. Alphonse Lussier and Miss Viola Michon.

Among the guests at the affair were the Misses Bernadette Sevignie, Rita, Cecile, Annette and Beatrice Morin, Jeanne D'Arc Derosier, Diana Ducharme, Jeanette Senecal, Medore Gagne, Alma Tremblay, Lucienne Therien, Diana Gouin, Mabel Gouin, Cecile Girard, Mabel Germain, Cecile Larose, Gloria Larose, Agnes Trudelle, Diana Heroux, Lauria Heroux, Claris Lavallee, Angeline Couturier, Marie Louise Couturier, Rose Daigneault, Leonie Daigneault, Anna May Raymond, Clara Raymond, Annette Hense, Lucienne Coutu, Vallenne Racette, Cecile Legare, Anita Savageau, Diana Belisle, Donalda Coutu and Irene Durand.

Also the Misses Cecile Lussier, Therese Lussier, Viola Michon, Marie Ange Lussier, Beatrice Michon, Mrs. Corinne Leboeuf, Mrs. John Derosier, Mrs. Eva Reguin, Mrs. Emile Girard, Mrs. Sylveste, Mrs. Camille Lablanche, Mrs. Anna Lablanche, Mrs. Harvey Caya, Mrs. John Michon, Mrs. Alfred Lavallee, Mrs. Joseph Trudelle, Mrs. Frank Gaudreau, Mrs. Daigneault, Mrs. Alice Bennette of Norwich, Mrs. Tetreault, Miss Doris Sylvia, Mrs. Alma Joli of Norwich, Mrs. Guertin and Miss Irene Guertin of Spencer, Mass., Mrs. David Lussier, Mrs. Gustave Phaneuf, Mrs. Edmond Trudelle, Mrs. Alphonse Lussier, Mrs. Francois Michon and Mrs. Joseph LeClair. The guests dispersed at a late hour extending to Miss Lussier their wishes for a bright and prosperous married life.

MEMBERSHIP GROWTH BY GIRLS' CITY CLUB

Twenty-nine members attended the regular weekly Friday night meeting of the Girls' City club under the auspices of the Woman's City club at their clubroom, 9 Washington street. It is pleasing and interesting to the girls' work committee that new girls continue to apply for membership and there has been a steady growth since the opening of the fall activities.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Irene Combles. The club director, Mrs. W. C. McKean, donated 29 books to the club, the nucleus of a circulating library for club members. Miss Dorothy Woods volunteered to act as librarian. Following the business session there was a period of singing during which several new songs were learned and also instruction in folk dancing by Mrs. McKean.

Last Tuesday night the class in sewing held its regular session and a group of girls attended the lecture at the Woman's City club and were accompanied to the lecture by Miss Constance Raymond, chairman of the girls' work committee.

The Halloween party scheduled for next Friday night is eagerly anticipated by the girls. The club room will be appropriately decorated and two prizes will be awarded, one for the prettiest and the other for the most unique costume.

HANOVER BOY WINNER OF STATE POULTRY TITLE

Raymond Allen of Hanover has been chosen as the state champion 4-H club poultry member in competition with a large field of 4-H club members from various parts of the state, which was recently held at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. The award is made in a national contest for economical production of poultry products and gives the winner an educational trip to the ninth national 4-H club congress at Chicago, Nov. 28 to Dec. 5.

Officials in charge of the state contest considered the poultry records of the contestants over a period of one year and, in addition, required each boy to submit a report covering his work with the 4-H project.

The state champion has a flock of Rhode Island Reds at his Hanover home. When the contest opened Oct. 1, 1929, the flock numbered 750 birds. Due to rigid culling in order to maintain high economical production, the flock showed 244 birds at the end of the contest year, Sept. 30, 1930. During the one-year period the Allen boy's flock produced a total of 93,229 eggs.

WOMEN'S STATE FEDERATION TO MEET IN ENFIELD

At the annual autumn meeting of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's Clubs which is to be held at the Enfield Congregational church next Wednesday, with meetings at 10:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m., speakers are to be E. W. Butterfield, state commissioner of education, who will speak upon "Trends in Education," and Miss Julia K. Jaffrey, who will speak upon "Our Prisons."

In the afternoon session, which opens at 2 o'clock, the programme will include the following:

"Motion Picture and Radio Activity in Rhode Island Federation," Mrs. George C. Harrison, R. I. chairman of motion pictures; address, "Public Welfare in Connecticut," Julius J. Hadley, executive secretary of Connecticut public welfare department; address, "Club Women as a Civic Force," Rev. John Phillipps, pastor of Center Congregational church, Hartford.

NORWICH EAGLES HAVE BIG INITIATION CLASS

Norwich aerie of Eagles, No. 367, opened the initiation season Saturday night with a class of 31, one of the largest in the history of the aerie. The degree work was by the Meriden team, which won first prize in the ritualistic work at the state convention last June. There was an attendance of over 200 members at the initiation.

Among those present were Thomas Murphy of Boston, deputy grand organizer, William Kelly of Naugatuck, deputy organizer for New England, and John Moran of Meriden, state secretary. All spoke in advocacy of a state old age pension and in regard to unemployment. A fine dinner was served by Jack Neil. The next class for the aerie will be on Thanksgiving eve and a drive for 50 more candidates is to be taken up for that class.

Fish Transferred From Reservoir.

With the aid of set nets a large number of black bass and perch have been removed from Fairview reservoir and liberated at Gardner lake by men in the employ of the state department of fish and game. The catch included several bass weighing in the neighborhood of four pounds apiece and perch of good size.

GIVES PERSONAL RECOLLECTIONS OF HERIOC WORK OF CHRISTOPHER THURBER

J. J. Handsaker of Portland, Oregon, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, was a recent visitor to Norwich. When The Bulletin learned that Mr. Handsaker had been a close friend of Christopher C. Thurber, the request was made that he relate some of his impressions of Mr. Thurber.

"Whoever named him 'Christopher' must have had rare foresight," writes Mr. Handsaker, "for 'Christoper' means 'one who carries Christ about with him' and I have known few men who have exemplified more of the life of Christ than he did.

"I first heard of him in 1921 when in company with other Near East Relief directors I was crossing the Black sea en route to Armenia. One day, the chief of our party, C. V. Vickrey said, pointing to the coast of Turkey, 'Down there, a few hundred miles inland is C. C. Thurber. He is cut off from us by war between the Greeks and Turks, but he is a very capable man and we feel that the thousands of children in his care are safe.' Not until several years later when he was invalided home and he spent some weeks with me, did I learn how well our confidence in him was justified.

"I presume that his friends who spoke at the memorial service in Christ church told the main incidents of those terrible years, how the Near East Relief, due to decreasing funds, had said that no more children should be taken in. Thurber told me that dead against orders he took in thousands of children when 80,000 to 90,000 war refugees were driven by his place, not ten per cent of whom lived to get through. Out of that sea of human misery Thurber gathered thousands of children who otherwise would have died by the roadside. The first child he took in was a little boy who asked to be given shelter only until he died for he feared he would be killed if the Turks found him. The adoring gratitude of this lad and thousands of others into whose starved lives went the riches of the life of Thurber can be only faintly realized.

"It was at the time of his imprisonment for failure to pay an unjust and impossible income tax that Thurber nearly died of typhus, and Annie Allen, for years a most devoted Congregational missionary, died in trying to relieve him and the other imprisoned relief workers.

"It was after he was imprisoned in Constantinople, and after his release and subsequent service to the refugees there, in the midst of all the typhus, typhoid, small pox, scurvy, the sorrow and the death that he was invalided home.

"While he was in my city of Portland, Oregon, some physicians gave him not more than six months to live. He calmly told me of this death sentence and pledged me not to repeat it to the Near East Relief which he felt would not send him back if they knew he was going to die. 'I have worked for the Near East Relief four years,' he said. 'I have saved up $300 and that will bring me home, especially if I come back in a box.' Instead of six months he lived six years and he did not come back in a box, he sleeps in the soil of Greece, the land to which he gave his life. I know he impoverished himself for the children and the Greek government honored itself as it did his memory when they gave him such honors as they had never before given a foreigner at his death.

"The constant burden of his letters was the welfare of the children, especially the ill or otherwise handicapped. One day he asked me to try to create a fund of $1,000 for a home for crippled girls. I told the story of his life and of this appeal to eight members of the Church of England in Victoria, B. C., and in a few weeks they had raised the fund. Another time he wrote of a most promising lad, who was condemned to a life of mediocrity unless $100 could be raised to send him to school in France. The day after the letter, a friend called to say that he was unable to make any contribution to the Near East Relief. I read him Thurber's letter and he said, 'I'll give $10 and as he started to leave he said, 'Oh, I'll make it $20.' These were only two cases of many where his influence was felt by those who had never known him.

"Some of my most treasured possessions are his letters. It seems to me that some one in his own city of Norwich should write the story of his great life as a challenge not only to boys and girls of Norwich but to boys and girls of all lands. I should count it a privilege to contribute what information I have to such a project for I am convinced that if we are to break the world's age long habit of war we must honor the hewe are to break the world's age-long honored the heroes of war. No one is better entitled to that term of 'hero' than Christopher Thurber and the children of this and succeeding generations are entitled to the inspiration that comes from such a great life."

FITCHVILLE ENTERTAINMENT BY MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion, under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers association of Fitchville, gave a very pleasing entertainment Friday evening in Palmer hall, Fitchville. The pianist for the evening was Miss Mary Bentley and Mrs. Mary Edwards was the soloist. The programme was as follows: Opening chorus, entire company; Springtime in the Rockies; Two Little Girls in Blue, Margaret Mehrholz and Helen Ericson; Pal of My Cradle Days, by Mrs. Sourbier and Nora Willett; Good-bye Dolly Gray, Helen Ericson and Margaret Mehrholz; Little Annie Rooney, by Nora Willett and Margaret Comire; Where Did You Get That Hat, Mary Edwards; The Parson's Fee, Mary Edwards and Nora Willett and Margaret Comire; My Gal's A High Born Lady, Mary Edwards and Margaret Comire; Reveries of a Bachelor, Mary Edwards, Margaret Mehrholz, Helen Ericson, Nora Willett and Margaret Comire. A short playlet entitled, A Summer in the Country, by the following cast: Mrs. Leo Grand, Margaret Comire, Mrs. VanDuser, Mary Edwards, Mrs. MacPherson, Emma Beaver, Mrs. Henri Meade Snythe, Helen Ericson, Mrs. Podger, Minnie Smith; Jeff, Margaret Mehrholz; Hiram, Teresa Watters; closing chorus, Loves Old Sweet Song. The entertainment was voted a great success. After the entertainment cards were enjoyed, the prizes being awarded as follows: Ladies' first, Nellie Gribbin; consolation, Catherine Gribbin; gentlemen's first, Mrs. Nadelson; consolation, Charles Miner. The scorer for the evening was Mary Baron. Mrs. John Beswick was in charge of the tickets.

Refreshments of sandwiches and coffee were furnished by the Parent-Teachers association and served by Mrs. Blondshine, Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Beswick. Mr. Nadelson announced each number as it was put on. Courtesies were extended by Silberman Furniture Co., L. L. Chapman's, Cummings and Ring, Mrs. G. Crocker, Earl Rawlinson, Miss Ruth DeGrenier, Mrs. J. Beswick, Mrs. Dibble and Mrs. W. Kelley. Charles Miner had charge of the curtain. Mrs. Michael Sweeney was chairman for the card party and Teresa Watters, chairman for entertainment. A very good sum was realized.

GRAND MARSHALL PITZER TO VISIT UNCAS LODGE

Edmund Pitzer of Stratford, Conn., grand marshal of the grand lodge, will be the guest of Uncas lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., this (Monday) evening at Odd Fellows hall, when it works the third degree upon a class of candidates. He will be accompanied by District Deputy Grand Master Leslie W. Fowler of Norwich.

The degree work will be exemplified under the direction of Degree Master Fred N. Amburn and will be done in full form with new floor work. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock, after which the lodge will be called to order by Noble Grand Charles H. Fuller.

Visiting brothers from Willimantic, Montville, New London, Jewett City and other surrounding towns are expected to be present at the meeting.

FINISHING CO. MANAGER AT STERLING PLANT

Harold D. Mowry has been succeeded as resident manager of the Sterling plant of the United States Finishing company at Sterling, Conn., by his son, Harold M. Mowry. The elder Mowry entered the employment of the finishing company at Norwich, in 1886, and subsequently served in New York as purchasing agent. He has been resident manager at Sterling for the past 30 years.

CHARGED WITH ALLOWING MINOR SON TO DRIVE

Nicholas Fatibene, of North Franklin, was arrested in this city Sunday afternoon by State Policeman Dygert on a charge of allowing his 14-year old son to drive an automobile. The North Franklin man will be presented in the city court.

SMALLEST INCORPORATED SPOT IS FENWICK

It isn't likely exeryone in Connecticut knows it, and many may not have the information that the smallest incorporated community in Connecticut has only six persons. That place is Fenwick in Middlesex county and calls to mind the time when the late former U. S. senator and governor, Morgan G Bulkeley, made Fenwick a summer colony. It is the point of land at the mouth of the Connecticut river in Old Saybrook. The census bulletin just issued notes Fenwick as the smallest of 41 boroughs incorporated between 1920 and 1930, with 2,135 persons. The largest unincorporated town is West Haven with 25,808.

Tolland county with the smallest population has the smallest population density. New Haven county has 768.6 inhabitants to the square mile and Fairfield 612.8.

The most rapidly growing county is Hartford with Fairfield second. New Haven county is most populated with 463,449 and Hartford is second with 421,097.

The census bulletin giving the final figures with those carried out to show the count is wards of the cities and borough has been issued in Washington.

FIND RELATIVES OF AGED NIANTIC MAN

Following his death in Niantic last week, relatives were found in three towns of Edward Francis Risley, who had lived alone in Niantic for many years and was not known to have any family connections. These relatives included Mr. Risley's aunt, Mrs. Sarah Risley of Hartford, who is over 90 years old; a nephew, Cassius E. Risley, of Hockanum; a cousin, Mrs. Matilda Snow, of Old Saybrook.

Mr. Risley was in his 84th year.

The captain, as he was called, was taken to the hospital in New London on June 27, suffering from diabetes and heart trouble. He had been a resident of Niantic for the last 35 years. For the last few years he ran a parking space at Crescent Beach during the summer.

The funeral services were held at the Niantic Baptist church at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. A. E. Darby officiated and the bearers were old friends of the deceased, Edwin Crittenden, Elmer Russell, Charles Thompson and F. A. Beckwith. Interment was in Center cemetery.

ZION CHURCH COMPLETES CAMPAIGN FOR $500

Through the assistance of their Norwich friends, the A. M. E. Zion church on McKinley avenue has completed its fund of $500 for needed repairs in the church and parsonage property. The church chimney and heater have been repaired, the parsonage papered and painted where needed inside and out and a much-needed veranda built at the entrance from Grove place.

Great gratitude is felt by Rev. W. H. Harvey, the pastor, the committee and members of the church for the comfort that is theirs for the winter. Contributors since those previously acknowledged are the following:

Mrs. A. T. Almy, A. H. Abbott, Dr. J. H. Allen, Charles P. Bushnell, Mrs. Frank Browning, A. M. Brown, H. B. Becket, Harold Burt, Albert Boardman, Mrs. D. Bailey, Allyn M. Brand, H. E. AUTOMOBILE LOST WHEEL; RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

Marcus J. Burns of 78 Roath street is to be before the city court this (Monday) morning on a charge of reckless driving, having been arrested on North Main street near Roath street, Saturday afternoon after his machine had been in collision with another which lost a wheel in the crash. The car with which the Burns machine collided belonged to a man named Patterson, from New London. The arrest was made by Officer Patrick Murphy.

AUTOMOBILE BROKE POLE ON MILITARY HIGHWAY

An automobile operated by Lieut. Niel Phillips of the submarine base at Groton, crashed into a telegraph pole on the Military highway at 3.30 o'clock Saturday morning, snapping it off at the base and badly damaging the machine. Lieut. Phillips, who escaped injury, reported that the lights on the machine went bad previous to the accident, the vehicle then shot across the highway and collided with the pole, narrowly escaping plunging over the embankment. The accident happened about one mile south of the base, to which the officer was returning.

Navy Day At Sub Base.

Today (Monday) the birthday anniversary of President Theodore Roosevelt, is Navy day.

It will be observed with open house at the submarine base, at Groton, where visitors will be welcomed and shown the points of interest about the reservation. The visiting hours are from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5.30 o'clock in the afternoon. Part of the program at the base calls for exhibition dives by the submarine in the waters of the Thames river.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD STARTED BY A QUEEN IN WAR-TIME

The Norwich branch of the Needlework Guild of America is to hold its annual meeting this week. The guild was started by Queen Alexandria to aid Belgian orphans during the war. A branch was organized in Norwich about 1917, largely through the efforts of Mrs. James A. Bidwell, who was its first president for a number of terms. The members would meet and sew, there being one captain for each 10 members and one money member.

Since the war, the work has gone on. The members collect all sorts of garments, sheets, pillow cases, towels, warm underwear, stockings, etc., all of which are new. Each captain, soliciting from the ten members of her team, goes about and collects the articles, takes them to the annual meeting, when they are sorted and apportioned to the Backus hospital, Rock Nook home, County home, Sheltering arms and Riverside home. With the money donated by money members supplies are bought and more articles purchased. All this work is done by the members and auto squads take the articles to their different destinations.

The officers of the Norwich branch are: Honorary president, Mrs. Frank L. Woodard; president, Mrs. Flint Brayton; vice president, Miss Jane McG. Aiken; secretary, Miss Ruby Vaughn; treasurer, Mrs. F. Russell Smith. There are in Norwich thirty teams engaged in this benevolent work.

BRINGS REPLEVIN SUIT TO GET COWS BACK

A replevin suit has been brought in superior court by Michael Demis of Lebanon against Samuel Schwartz and Co., and the East Haddam Coal and Lumber Co. Demis is suing for return of 11 cows, in possession of the defendants, which he claims belong to him. Pending the disposition of the case, Demis is now in possession of the cattle by virtue of a sheriff turning them over to him. Besides asking for a court order giving him legal possession of the cows, Demis asks for $600 damages.

CHARGED WITH USING SLING SHOT IN THEATER

On complaint of the proprietors of the Strand theatre, Adam Matulewicz, 17, of 132 High street, was arrested Sunday night on a charge of breach of the peace. Matulewicz, it was claimed was shooting small pieces of metal from a slingshot in the theatre to the annoyance of the patrons. The youth is one of several boys who were engaged in the same dangerous practice. He was released on bonds of $25 and will be presented in the city court this (Monday) morning.

NORWICH TOWN

WORLD TEMPERANCE SUNDAY OBSERVED AT M. E. CHURCH

Sunday morning World Temperance Sunday was observed in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, preaching a temperance sermon on the theme, "Carry On." The vested choir under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang the anthem, "In the Secret Place." The many flowers in baskets and vases were arranged by Mary Waters. At the church school session the opening was in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter's class. The subject at the C. E. meeting was "Making America Christian," the leader, Mrs. Richard Carter, gave an interesting talk. "Early Indian Trails," was the subject of the stereopticon lecture given by the pastor at the evening service. The stereopticon machine was operated by Ralph Smith, who showed nearly 50 pictures during the lecture. The pastor conducted a service and preached a sermon at nine in the morning at Norwich state hospital.

SCOUTS PAY TRIBUTE TO RICHARD R. CORMIER

John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church, held a meeting Friday evening with an attendance of 18, in charge of Patrol Leader Leon Ladd. The contests were judged by Earl Pike. The Scouts voted to hold their meeting next week on Thursday evening on account of Halloween being Friday. They also voted to hold an overnight hike the Friday following Thanksgiving to Clayton Rose's cottage, at Lake Oxoboxo. The Scouts voted to assist in every way possible at the Halloween party and parade to be held on Norwich Town green. The winners in the checker tournament games, which are played previous to the regular meetings, were Harry Pavey, Clayton Rose, Albert Eyberse and Woodruff Sullivan. In the interpatrol contest the Stag Patrol scored 25 points and 42 points were added for hikes. The Flying Eagle Patrol scored 25 points. In the closing period of the meeting Bugler Edward Jordan played Taps, while the Scouts stood at salute with only the glow of the campfire lighting the hall. The Scouts repeated the Scout benediction then every head was bowed as the Scouts remained for a moment in silent prayer for the life and influence of Richard E. Cormier, formerly a member of the troop.

The scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter, had charge of the business period and made a number of announcements.

Wolf Cubs' Indoor Dog Feast.

The Wolf Cub Pack connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church were prevented from having their hike either Friday or Saturday, an account og the rain. The regular meeting was held Saturday morning at their headquarters, with a large attendance. The meeting was in charge of the cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter, with assistants, Edward Jordan and Frederick Ross. The camp fire stunts were in charge of Frank Jordan and John Gibbs. The singing period was in charge of the two assistant cubmasters. In spite of the rain outside the Cubs sat around the camp fire and enjoyed a feast of hot dogs in rolls with cake and pie for a dessert. After the usual closing ceremony as the Cubs stood in a circle around the campfire Bugler Ellis Bentley played Taps, then every head was bowed in silent prayer for Richard E. Cormier, who was for a number of months a much loved and respected assistant cubmaster of the pack.

CONG. PASTOR PREACHES ON SABBATH SIGNIFICANCE

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Wilfred M. Wilton, preached on The Significance of the Sabbath. Rev. Dr. Wilton pointed out three reasons why the Sabbath is significant. First, as historical, second, the Present Day Value, and thirdly, Sunday as a Day of Rest, is a fundamental significance of the Sabbath. The text referred to was Exodus 16-23. And he said unto them, this is that which the Lord hath said, tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath unto the Lord, bake that which ye will bake today and seethe that ye will seethe, and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning. Emphasis was laid on the first lines of this scriptural paragraph.

Several from the Norwich Town Congregational church are planning to attend the meeting of the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers, to be held Tuesday, October 28th, at Park Congregational church.

Under the heading The Bible As a Book of Developments, the theme for discussion at the Congregational midweek service of conference and prayer, will be The Developing Idea of God.

Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery will be the delegate from the Norwich Town church to the annual conference of Congregational churches, to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 4th and 5th, at Willimantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Browning and Miss Florence Browning, of Plain Hill road, had as guests Thursday, Mrs. Margaret Miller and daughter, Mrs. Arthur D. Barrett, of Ledyard.

ARMISTICE IN BRAZIL WITH ARMIES STILL MOBILIZED

Hostilities Have Ceased Pending Negotiations Between the Military-Naval Junta and the Leaders of the Revolt—Vargas and Other Rebel Chieftains Are Preparing to Go to Rio De Janeiro For Conference With Leaders of the Provisional Government—Insurgents Are to Demand Positive Accceptance of the Revolutionary Program

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The understanding here today was that the Brazilian situation at present is only an armistice.

On the one hand is the military-naval junta which on Friday ousted President Washington Luis at Rio De Janeiro and has formed a provisional government. On the other stand the leaders of the revolt which began Oct. 3, who have been asked by the junta to negotiate for a permanent government with Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the revolution, as president. Vargas and other rebel chieftains now are preparing to go to the federal capital, but their armies still are mobilized, moving upon Sao Paulo and Rio De Janeiro, to protect the aims of the revolution.

The junta asked Vargas to take the presidency after southern revolutionary authorities and the rebel government of Minas Geraes had sent ultimatums to the military and naval leaders in Rio De Janeiro, declaring that before military operations were suspended they must be given guarantees of positive acceptance of the revolutionary program.

Captain Juarez Tavora, leader of a northern rebel army, made the same demand.

In the meantime General Miguel Costa, commander of the revolutionary forces which have operated in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector for three weeks, has obtained the surrender of the federal troops at Itarare and is preparing to move his men northward.

Revolutionary officers have gone ahead to arrange billets for their men in this city and various towns of Sao Paulo, pending the march upon the two great Brazilian cities. A few troops already have reached Sao Paulo.

General Costa also issued a proclamation to the people of Sao Paulo today, advising them to remain calm and return to work, but the situation still is not entirely cleared. Commercial houses were practically closed today, awaiting developments, while banks also were closed. The banks expect a decree which will declare a moratorium.

The rebel commander also has deposed all municipal authorities in the state, local representatives of the liberal alliance—the Vargas party—relieving them temporarily. It is expected that Dr. Morato will succeed General Hastimphilo Moura, who took over the provisional presidency of the state Friday.

Arrangements were made today for the trip here by railroad of Getulio Vargas and his staff. After reaching Sao Paulo he will speed on to Rio to work out the new government.

OUTBREAK OF COMMUNISTS IN RIO DE JANEIRO QUELLED

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 27.—(AP)—An outbreak, allegedly begun by communists here this afternoon, was quelled by police and troops after casualties which probably will exceed 100, were inflicted.

For a time the outbreak threatened to become a menace to the military junta which on Friday ousted President Washington Luis and set up a provisional government, in the meantime awaiting the arrival of Getulio Vargas, rebel generalissimo, to take control.

The military police regiment started the conflict and took over the central police station. Firemen and city police at first were called to combat the revolters, their ranks quickly augmented by armed civilians.

Soon forces of the regular army arrived. They threw up barricades of sacked flour, beans and sugar around the ministry of war, the central police station and the foreign office, and also in the gardens along the bay near the Gloria hotel.

Soldiers, sailors and marines manned the defenses, while military airplanes flew overhead, some of them acting as observers and others bombing the barracks of the revolting military police.

The communists, who attempted to lead riots protesting the city's food supply, obtained firearms and joined in the general melee.

A number of the casualties were plainclothes policemen who attempted to leave headquarters to combat the trouble.

DEAN CROSS PRESENTED BROWN DERBY BY AL SMITH

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Wearing the brown derby he made famous, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today presented Dean Wilbur L. Cross with a duplicate of his own well-known headgear while a throng gathered about the rear platform of the New Yorker's train and cheered.

About 400 enthusiastic Connecticut democrats crowded about the train as it stopped in the New Haven yards, cheered Smith's appearance, and pressed up to shake his hand. The former governor paused here for five minutes en route to Providence, where he is scheduled to speak tonight. Dean Cross accompanied him from New York, and swung off as the train departed after the ceremony.

"I would like to see Connecticut modernize her ideas of state government as we have done in New York," the former governor told the audience. "Nothing can be expected from the republican party, but I do believe this state will receive the same benefits from a democratic administration that New York has received."

Presenting the derby, he said, "It is a symbol of luck. I have carried it through my state in five campaigns and won in four of them. And I should have won the fifth."

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN RALLY IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The republican campaign for victory at the November electings, was carried into the home town of the democratic standard bearer, Dr. Wilbur L. Cross here tonight.

J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, republican gubernatorial nominee and other chieftains of the state party addressed more than a thousand men and women of the faith at a dinner in the Hotel Taft.

Mr. Rogers spoke on the development of Connecticut's highways under republican administrations.

Others who spoke were Congressman John Q. Tilson, candidate for reelection from the third district; Samuel H. Spencer, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Roy C. Wilcox, candidate for state treasurer; Dr. William L. Higgins, candidate for secretary of state, and Judge Warren B. Burrows, candidate for attorney general. Mayor Thomas A. Tully welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city.

SHOT HIMSELF DEAD IN BROKERAGE BASEMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27. — (AP) — Robert L. Zoll, 52, shot himself to death late today in the basement of the stock brokerage firm of Charles H. Bean & Co.

Members of the firm said that Zoll had been a member of the firm of Charles H. Bean and company for about a year. They expressed the belief that Zoll ended his life because of personal financial difficulties and said the firm's affairs were not involved.

KING BORIS AND QUEEN BRIDE ON YACHT IN STORM

SOFIA, Oct. 27.—(AP) —The Bulgarian royal yacht Czar Ferdinand, bringing home King Boris and Queen Giovanna of Bulgaria after their marriage last week at Assisi, has been caught in a great storm in the Mediterranean and officials here tonight were unable to communicate with her. The government has telegraphed for news to the port of Piraeus, Greece.

FIVE POWER NAVAL TREATY DOCUMENTS DEPOSITED

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The naval treaty born of the five-power conference held early this year rested complete tonight in the archives of Downing street.

A simple ten-minute ceremony of depositing the instruments of ratification by the signatory powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—was carried out at noon in the Locarno room of the foreign office, with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain presiding. Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and Ray Atherton, counselor of the American embassy, represented the United States, while Ambassador Matsudaira was present for Japan.

Mr. MacDonald characterized the occasion as the culmination of the world's second successful effort in naval disarmament, the first having been the Washington conference a decade ago.

Nine instruments of ratification, by the three main signatories and the British dominions, were formally handed in.

BRISTOL WOMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE BY SHOOTING

BRISTOL, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth B. Lloyd, 35, committed suicide today in her home by shooting herself in the head.

Mrs. Lloyd suffered a nervous breakdown last summer and was treated at a Hartford sanatorium. She returned home a week ago, apparently much improved.

Her husband, William J. Lloyd, reported that his wife seemed in normal condition when he returned to work this noon. The body was found by their eight year old daughter, Marian, as she came home from school.

Medical Examiner Arthur S. Brackett issued a verdict of suicide.

SNOW AND RAIN IN A LARGE AREA OF EUROPE

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Gales, torrential rains and heavy snowfalls swept over a large area of Europe today, blocking roads, interrupting communications and causing widespread damage.

From Istanbul to southern Germany, reports have come in of flooded rivers, broken telegraph and telephone lines and blocking of roads by impassable snowdrifts.

Austria reports the worst weather experienced in 70 years. Damage from floods in the Vienna district is estimated to be extremely heavy.

CORD WOOD GOING TO WASTE IN STATE FORESTS

HARTFORD, Oct. 27.—(AP)—There may be some unemployment the coming winter but State Forester Arthur F. Hawes says there is little reason for the unemployment to suffer for lack of fuel. In his opinion 50,000 cords of wood are going to waste in state forests which could be distributed to those who will cut and remove it.

BANK ROBBERY BY LONE BANDIT IN KNOXVILLE, TENN.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A man walked into the bank of South Knoxville this afternoon, forced George Cross, cashier, into a small closet along with two women clerks, Miss Grace Hurst and Mrs. C. A. Johnson, and escaped with $6,000 to $8,000 in currency, silver and gold coin.

The bank is near the center of the city business district.

Dismissal Of Police Officials In Detroit

Grand Jury Also Ordered Raid of Machine Gun Distributing Terminus

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Wayne county grand jury today brought about the removal of three high police officers and orders a raid on the Detroit terminus of an alleged machine gun distributing organization in one of the most eventful sessions since it was impanelled two months ago to investigate local crime conditions.

Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox appeared before the jury during the morning in an effort to learn why it had recommended last Friday the immediate removal of Robert A. Macpherson, deputy chief of detectives; Detective Lieutenant Max Waldfogel, and Norval Marlett, head of the blackhand squad. Less than an hour after interview the commissioner acted on the jury's recommendations and ordered the men to leave their posts.

A detail of state and city police working under orders of the grand jury raided the offices of the Capital Coal Company, Inc., today, served two subpoenas, made one arrest and seized all the records of the company. The officers said this company was headed by Angelo Meli, alleged leader of a gang of Sicilians.

They also said this company formed the Detroit branch of a New York-Detroit-Chicago organization which furnished firearms to gangsters. Charles Jones, found in the coal company's offices, was arrested for investigation, Adolph Nedela, a bookkeeper, and Sam Lafata, secretary-treasurer of the company, were ordered to appear before the jury. Meli was not present. The company's records were loaded into a truck and taken away by the police.

The jury's recommendations regarding the three officers was the first definite indication that it had been investigating internal affairs of the police department along with its sifting of Detroit crime conditions.

Throngs Of Visitors Boarded Warships

General Observ[illegible] of Navy Day by th[illegible]ed States Fleet

WASHIN[illegible] Oct. 27.— (AP) — Navy day [illegible] served by the United State fl[illegible] while a new naval treaty to [illegible]nate competitive building of arm[illegible]ents was going into effect.

Warships rode at anchor in seaports along the coasts of the country, thronged by visitors throughout the day enjoying open house in a sailor's home. Far inland, where thousands of citizens have never seen a warship, the navy sent its ambassadors—admirals, captains, commanders—to tell the land-locked of guns and men protecting their homes.

The Navy day ceremony centered at Washington, where Secretary Adams tonight spoke to a nationwide radio audience on past and present glories of the sea forces of the United States. Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, spoke on the same program.

Far above the broad avenues of the capital, the Los Angeles, navy giant dirigible, cruised majestically in a courtesy visit to the navy department. Past the capitol, the white house and the navy department, the big air liner glided to dip its nose in reverence over the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National cemetery.

Rear Admiral William L. Rodgers, former chairman of the navy general board, delivered a radio address on "Our Navy."

The United States Navy band orchestra gave a concert.

Speaking programs were carried out in several cities, including Atlanta, San Francisco, New Orleans, Akron, Richmond, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Columbus and Des Moines.

Admirals of long naval service addressed audiences in various parts of the country. They included Admirals Hugh Rodman and R. E. Coontz, and Rear Admirals T. P. Magruder, W. C. Cole, William A. Moffett, W. S. Crosley, F. B. Upham and Wat T. Cluverius.

MUSSOLINI EXTOLS THE FASCIST DOCTRINE

ROME, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini sounded a vigorous call for all Italy to fight for fascism in a speech today extolling the fascist doctrine before his federal directors.

The duce said that throughout the world a "war of calumnies and infamies" had been launched against fascism but that fascism had become a universal idea and Italy would stand as the only nation of young men while the rest of Europe would be "decrepit."

The premier said "indirect war" was being made constantly "on the kingdom, in preparation for military war." He declared his speeches last summer in Tuscany were intended to unmask "this hypocritical Europe which talks about peace at Geneva and prepares for war nevertheless."

CITES MODEL PROGRAMS TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

Methods Undertaken by 15 Large Cities Recommended by Col. Woods—Outstanding Feature of the Program is the Principle That the Unemployed Man Should Be Given a Job Instead of Merely a Loaf of Bread

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(AP)—Programs to combat unemployment already undertaken by fifteen large cities were held up today as models for the rest of the country by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the president's emergency committee.

He urged other cities to study the programs already worked out by New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Toledo, Salt Lake City, Flint, Mich., St. Paul, Minn., Seattle, Wash., Milwaukee, and Hartford, Conn., in the belief that they might find in one of them the plan that would best meet local conditions.

The outstanding feature of the programs he outlined was the principle that the unemployed men should be given a job instead of merely a loaf of bread.

Until the time that every man competent to work has a job there must be relief, he said, but the real problem is to find the job. And he suggested that it ought to be a job that really needs to be done, not one that is artificially created.

Col. Woods is not pessimistic about the outlook. He believes conditions are better now, taking the country as a whole, than they were in 1921, when he headed President Harding's employment commission. But in spots, conditions are worse, he believes. He considers the middle western lake states New York and Pennsylvania to be the hardest hit.

He said that figures furnished him in Washington showed an estimated 3,500,000 persons out of work.

"We hope to shave that figure later." he declared.

Col. Woods continued today to gather around him experts in various lines, many of whom helped him in his campaigns in 1919 and 1921. In the former year he aided in finding jobs for returning World war veterans.

Two new appointments to his committee were announced—John B Blandford, Jr., of Cincinnati, to coordinate programs for relief undertaken by municipalities, and Edward L. Bernays to handle publicity for the committee. Both men are serving without pay.

Mr. Blandford is head of the bureau of municipal research of Cincinnati, whose permanent committee on employment is pointed to as a model other cities might well follow. Industrial, municipal and business programs are planned there a year ahead of time and the unemployment situation is said to be less acute than in many smaller cities.

While Colonel Woods was outlining his program of country-wide cooperation, the City of New York was busy putting its program into effect. Eight hundred men started to work tidying up the city's parks, drawing their pay from funds raised by a local employment committee. As soon a sfunds are available 2,000 more will be added. The pay is $3 a day. Charitable organizations also speeded their efforts.

Figures obtained in the police poll of unemployment up to Saturday night were announced today as 15,164, but Commissioner Mulrooney explained this does not represent the total unemployed in the city by many thousands. The police are continuing their checkup. He also issued a warning against imposters, who, he said, were taking advantage of the situation to collect funds for mythical relief organizations.

NO ONE IS GOING TO FREEZE OR STARVE THIS WINTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.— (AP) — President Hoover was told today that human suffering was appearing in the large industrial centers where the hands of willing workmen were idle in the unemployment crisis.

After a country-wide study of the situation, Allen Burns, executive director of the National Association of Community Chests and Councils, reported to the chief executive that steps were being taken to prevent anyone freezing or starving during the winter.

"Already," he told Mr. Hoover, "there is much human suffering in large industrial centers. Through the efforts of the several governments and relief organizations no one is going to freeze or starve this winter."

Financial programs of 220 cities having community chests have been increased about seven per cent to care for the larger number of the needy, Burns said. About $55,000,000 is to be raised, and he explained collections indicated the campaign would be successful.

BINGHAM ADDRESS WAS BROADCAST LAST NIGHT

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 27—The "ability, integrity and devotion to the interests of our state" of the candi-sufficient reason for their election, dates of the republican party are United States Senator Hiram Bingham declared in an address broadcast tonight through station WTIC.

Speaking of Connecticut's highways and institutions, Senator Bingham said "They are paid for and maintained by the people who use them. We have not got all of the attractive buildings that we would like to have. Very few families have as handsome houses or as many conveniences as they would like to have. The wise family lives within its income. So does the wise state."

Senator Bingham prefaced his address with an outline of the development and history of popular government. Speaking of the republican nominee for governor, Ernest E. Rogers, he said, "There are few people in the state who have had a longer or more practical experience in the duties of government, both the town government and state government."

RACE FOR FISHERMEN'S TROPHY CANCELLED

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 27—(AP)—Word was received here today from the trustees of the international fishermen's trophy at Halifax, N. S., that because of the lateness of the season the planned race for the trophy between the Gertrude L. Thebaud, of Gloucester and the schooner Bluenose of Lunenburg, N. S., had been cancelled.

Announcement of the development was made from the office of Captain Ben Pine, skipper of Thebaud, champion of the Gloucester fleet. Although no decision had been reached as to what action would be taken here, it was evident that the fishing folk hereabouts had their hearts set on seeing the two boats clash for the trophy. Racing was scheduled to start before November 10 off Halifax and Thebaud was ready to leave here next Thursday.

[illegible] G. GIBBS OF NEWTON, MASS., ARRESTED AS SUSPECT

DENVER, Oct. 27—(AP)—A piece of carpet believed by police to be from the automobile of Ray Sutton, New Mexican prohibition officer missing for two months, caused the arrest today of Harold G. Gibbs of Newton, Mass.

The carpet was found in Gibbs' possession here. The police said Gibbs boasted to companions that he was a fingerprint expert sent from the east to investigate Sutton's disappearance.

Police fingerprint experts said records showed Gibbs has many aliases and was charged with robbery at Seattle, Wash., where he was known as Harold Davis.

Sutton's car, covered with brush, was found abandoned in a New Mexico arroyo a few days ago. Federal officials have expressed the belief that he was slain and his body hidden. How the carpet was identified was not disclosed.

OBITUARY

G. P. Rixford

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 27.—(AP)—G. P. Rixford, nationally known horticulturist, died today from injuries suffered when struck by a Southern Pacific train at the Los Altos station. He was 92 years old and former publisher of the San Francisco Bulletin.

REBELLION OF NORTHERN CHINESE WAR LORDS CRUSHED

NANKING, Oct. 27—(AP)—The seven months' rebellion of northern war lords appeared crushed tonight. Nationalist armies, the government announced, drove rebel troops of General Feng Yuhsiang out of Honan province, pursuing them into mountains of Shansi and Shensi.

Worn by continual battering in Honan and Shantung provinces and weakened by heavy casualties, the insurgents who threatened overthrow of the government, began to give away when Governor Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria intervened for the government.

Pouring down from Mukden, the Manchurian armies late in September ousted Yen Hai-Shan from Peiping, where he had set up a rebel government and thrust out his troops.

One million men fought in the civil war, the government estimated. Of these, 600,000 were nationalists and 400,000 insurgents. The government estimated 200,000 died in battle or afterward because of poor facilities for wounded. The nationalist loss was placed at 150,000, being greater due to offensive operation on a long line.

An active campaign has been promised by the government against bandits and communists with 200,000 nationalist troops released from fighting rebels.

CONN. SHOWS INCREASE IN INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(AP)—Less income by individuals was indicated by the internal revenue bureau as the major cause of a decrease of $148,286,-721 in income tax collected by the treasury during the first nine months of 1930 as compared with the same period of the previous year.

Total collections for the period were $1,779,382,127 as compared with $1,-927,668,848 the year before. Individual taxes dropped from $971,828,269 in the first nine months of 1929 to $838,355,855 this year and corporation taxes decreased $15,314,318 from $356,340,589 in 1929 to $341,026,271 in 1930.

The five districts which showed increases in individual income tax collections were Connecticut, from $18,-[illegible] to $19,240,637; Delaware, from $8,247,683 to [illegible]; eleventh Ohio district, from $[illegible],686,740 to $2,841,719; South Dakota, from $232,628 to $356,-201, and Washington, including Alaska, from [illegible] to [illegible].

BRITISH LABOR PARTY NOT TO SEEK ELECTION

LONDON, Oct. 27—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald tonight disposed of persistent rumors that the labor party would seek an early general election to clear up the confused parliamentary situation in England.

He told guests at a reception organized by the National Labor club that the government might be turned out by one of the other parties but its intention was to continue with its work.

KING CAROL HAS BEEN MADE MARSHAL OF RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 27.—(AP)—King Carol was made a marshal of Rumania by the war minister today at the conclusion of the autumnal army maneuvers. The fifty thousand troops assembled cheered as the king was invested with his new rank and was acclaimed as the first Rumanian king who was born in this country.

The previous kings, King Carol's father and uncle, were Germans.

TOWN CHAIRMEN FOR HOSPITAL DRIVE BEING NAMED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 27.—In the organization of the surrounding town divisions for the fund of $500,000 for the construction and equipment of the new Windham Community Memorial hospital in this city, it was announced today that R. L. McBee had consented to act as chairman of the Willington division. Dr. Frank E. Guild, chairman of the Windham division, has named Isaac H. Johnson and Ellsworth E. Weeks as vice-chairmen to have charge of Windham and South Windham and North Windham, respectively. Other neighboring town chairmen who are already engaged in listing teams of workers are: Merritt Welch, Chaplin; Louis A. Kingsbury, Coventry, and Charles E. Burnham, Hampton.

Some 700 gallons of fine "Italian" wine were dumped into the sewer at police headquarters this afternoon, Capt. Frank McLean and Officers Arthur Hurley and Joseph Lariviere being engaged for a considerable time in pouring the rich red liquid out of casks and barrels. The wine was taken in a raid staged some months ago and was contained in nine casks of 55 gallons each, four barrels of 38 gallons each and two smaller barrels of 20 gallons each. The containers were later trucked to the city yard to be used for firewood.

When struck by an automobile that broke loose from a tow rope on Mansfield avenue Sunday evening, Fred Leiss, eight-year-old son of Michael Leiss of 26 Mansfield avenue, suffered contusions and abrasions and a fracture of the right ankle. He was treated by Dr. Charles A. Jenkins at the Willimantic General hospital. The towed car was in charge of Tony Salveggio, also of Mansfield avenue.

Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of this city will be a speaker at the republican rally to be held in St. Anne's hall on Park street, Hartford, Tuesday evening. His appearance is expected to draw a large attendance of French-Americans, among whom he is a prominent and popular figure in many sections of the state.

A meeting and banquet of the Workmen's circle No. 145 and the local Ladies' club, its auxiliary, was held in the Al-Pierre Tabarin Sunday evening to receive subscriptions to operate the Hebrew children's school which was started by the circle a month ago. There are 33 children already enrolled in the school. The banquet was attended by 150 persons and Isadore J. Heller was toastmaster. Among the speakers were: Joseph Boardman, Joseph Epstein, Louis Sweedlow, William Sack and Mrs. Hyman Shapiro, all of Hartford. Music was by the Hartford mandolin quartet of Circle No. 15. There were a number of guests from Norwich and New London. The affair was in charge of the following committee: Isadore J. Heller, chairman; I. Rosen, Meyer Rosen, Mrs. Joseph Peck, Mrs. Louis Sternlieb, Mrs. Abraham Borodach, Nathan Schilberg, Carl Zenchoff, Mrs. Carl Zenchoff, Mrs. Isadore J. Heller, Mrs. I. Berkowitz and Mrs. Jacob Chus.

Gold Star post No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is to sponsor a bugle and drum corps to be recruited as far as possible from sons of veterans between the ages of 7 and 12 years. An effort will be made to have a corps of 26 members and provide them with uniforms. The corps committee consists of Lewye N. Gerry, William R. Clark and Victor Brunnelle.

While crossing the highway in front of Green's Filling station in Eagleville Sunday evening, Walter Adams of that place, a clerk at the Windham National bank, was struck by a car driven by John L. McIntosh of 1 Forest street, Hartford. Adams sustained concussion of the brain and abrasions of the leg. He was taken to the Willimantic General hospital for treatment. Adams had parked his own machine and started across the road when struck.

Police Court

Joseph Gennette of Hampton was fined $100 and costs for driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, at the police court session today. He was arrested in the business district at 2 o'clock this morning after having been warned not to drive his car because of his condition, according to testimony given by Officer Ralph Burchnall. A Hampton man, riding with Gennette, was fined $10 and costs for intoxication. Four local intoxicants, one of them a woman, were given suspended 30-day sentences and placed on probation for three months by the court. A local man was fined for breach of the peace and a transient, charged with intoxication, was sentenced to 30 days at the county jail in Brooklyn.

In a collision with a tree on lower Main street this forenoon, a car owned and driven by John Koecranick of Mansfield Center was slightly damaged. Koecranick had turned from his course to avoid an impending collision with a car owned by Austin Connor of 3 Oak street and driven by Thomas Connelly of 84 Oak street, which had turned to the left to pass a truck coming out of a side street. This car came to a stop but the Mansfield Center machine had defective brakes and collided with the tree. Koecranick admitted responsibility in reporting the accident to Officer Arthur Hurley.

A dwelling occupied by Ernest C. Burkamp and owned by Mrs. Louise Sondregger in South Coventry was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars in a blaze that broke out near the chimney about 10 o'clock Sunday night. Volunteers were summoned by telephone and the fire was extinguished in about one-half hour. The property is insured.

Members of A. C. Tyler auxiliary who attended the reception to the national president of the auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans, Edith Bird of Toledo, Ohio, at Hartford Sunday, were: Mrs. Minnie Flynn, past department president; Rachel Gallagher, Mary Benoit, Marcelline English, Emily Jollie and Henrietta Judge.

A machine driven by Henry P. Karoll of R. F. D., Norwich, struck George Rioux of 916 Main street on the highway at Perkins' Corner Sunday night, inflicting a bad cut on the ear and a deep gash on the head. Rioux was taken to the Willimantic General hospital, where Dr. C. A. Jenkins took seven stitches to close the scalp wound.

WEDDING

Macht—Newberry

Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents in the Hop River district, Miss Ethel Grace Newberry was united in marriage with William Macht, Jr. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Howell, of Waterbury, a former pastor of Columbia church, under a green and white floral wedding bell, in the presence of about 40 relatives and friends. The wedding march was played on cornet and piano by Mr. and Mrs. John Rising, of Windsor, Mrs. Rising, a sister of the bride, also singing "I Love You Truly." The bride's gown was rose tan crepe trimmed with dark brown; she carried chrysanthemums to match. The maid of honor was Miss Yvonne Marrotte, of Willimantic, who wore pumpkin crepe, trimmed with black. She carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridegroom was attended by Howard Newberry, brother of the bride. The bride's mother wore Yale blue crepe, trimmed with rose tan, and the groom's mother wore dark green flat crepe.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a hand carved rose pendant and the groom's gift to the best man was a cigarette lighter.

Following the ceremony, lunch was served, two large wedding cakes made by the bride's mother being cut. Mr. and Mrs. Macht left in the afternoon on an automobile trip. Mrs. Macht wore a dark blue tricotine dress with hat to match and a short fur coat. On their return they will make their home for the present with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Macht, of Columbia. Both bride and groom attended Windham High school, and the groom was a student for some time at Mt. Hermon. The bride received many gifts.

The young bride, during the past week, has had three showers given by friends Tuesday afternoon a miscellaneous shower was given her in Windsor by her sister, Mrs. Rising, and Tuesday evening, also in Windsor, a personal shower was given her by Miss Vivian Sandberg. Wednesday evening at her home in Columbia she was given a shower by Mrs. Lynde Porter, about 40 being present.

BITTER BATTLE AT THE POLLS IN WINDHAM COUNTY IS EXPECTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 27. — With hardly time to recover from the hard-fought town elections earlier this month, the political machinery is again humming at rapid pace for the state and county elections Tuesday, Nov. 4. Windham, the largest town and therefore the largest county taxpayer in Windham county, is in the political pot up to its ears.

Charles A. Gates, the only town-of-Windham man seeking a Windham county office, is offering for approval an enviable record of 15 years of service as high sheriff of the county in seeking re-election. This man, who defeated the strong John O. Fox in years gone by, faces opposition this year from Napoleon J. Fournier of Moosup, who was state senator from the 29th district during the past term. The battle for the office of sheriff has taken a most important place hereabouts.

For state senator, the democrats of the 29th district have named Benjamin Eisenberg, a local merchant making his first venture into politics, to oppose Andrew T. J. Clarke of Canterbury. Candidate Clarke is somewhat of an "old line" politician, having served as representative from Canterbury in the general assembly of 1891, 1923, 1925 and 1927. The senatorial district comprises the towns of Brooklyn, Canterbury, Chaplin, Hampton, Plainfield, Pomfret, Scotland, Sterling and Windham.

No small amount of interest is manifest in the candidacies for judge of probate of the Windham-Scotland district. Valentine J. Murphy, who has been incumbent during the past two years, faces opposition from Attorney John E. Harvey, young local lawyer, who has not been in the political field heretofore.

Another aspect of the forthcoming elections which is strictly local in character rests in the race for representatives from the town of Windham. Charles B. Pomeroy, a veteran of this legislative body, and Alderman-at-Large Cyril A. Lamoureux are the republican candidates, while the democrats have renamed the incumbents of the past two years, Frank M. Lincoln and Joseph Lefebvre, to succeed themselves.

This pre-election week is to be rally week for both parties. Next Thursday evening in the town hall the republicans will gather in a rally. There will be four speakers, one of whom, Philip Erard of Springfield, Mass., will address the audience in the French language for the benefit of those who have difficulty in following a rapid flow of English. The other speakers scheduled are: Attorney Benedict M. Holden of Hartford, chairman of the state veterans' commission; Mrs. Frances E. Roth of New Haven, who will speak on State Institutions, and C. J. Jordan, secretary of agriculture for the state of Pennsylvania.

The democrats have arranged for a rally to be held in the town hall Friday evening with Dean Wilbur L. Cross of New Haven, democratic candidate for governor, heading the list of speakers. William J. Fox of New London, candidate for congress in the second district, will be another orator of the evening. Others will be Alton T. Miner of New London, candidate for secretary of state; David A. Wilson of Hartford, candidate for attorney general, and Napoleon J. Fournier of Plainfield, candidate for county sheriff.

Stafford Springs,

The Stafford chamber of commerce, which elected temporary officers several months ago, will hold a meeting for permanent organisation at the Springs House Wednesday evening. All members have been asked to be present at this hour so that they may attend the supper. The temporary officers are: Anders Jacobsen, president; Bernard C. Hanley, secretary; Herbert R. Wightman, treasurer. At the meeting Wednesday evening a constitution and by-laws will be presented for approval and the amount of dues to be paid will be determined.

Principal Witt Recovers

Earl M. Witt, principal of Stafford High school, has returned to his duties after several weeks' absence. Chester E. Baston substituted during Mr. Witt's absence. Mr. Witt was operated on for appendicitis about six weeks ago. His friends are pleased to learn that he has made a good recovery.

James Senechal is spending several days with his mother, Mrs. A. Senechal, at her home on East Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Brick were recent visitors with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swedburg, in Walpole, Mass.

Miss Helen Reinhardt has been spending several days with her sister in Deerfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Genholt have moved from Keefe Plains to their newly erected home near Ellithorpe's Crossing.

Mrs. Ernest Fontanella and Mrs. Pietro Panciera were recent guests of Medway, Mass., relatives.

Andrew Peltier and Mrs. Ella Edson, of West Haven, have returned, after spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edson.

Edmund D. Jones, of West Stafford, has been confined to the house by illness for several days.

Invited to Tolland

Stafford grange has been invited to attend the meeting of Tolland grange in Tolland town hall on the evening of Oct. 29. It is expected that Stafford grange will furnish a part of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hewett were recent visitors with Rockville relatives.

GOSHEN

One of the finest entertainments ever given here was that on Thursday evening when Miss Pauline Mayo, of New York, gave a program of miscellaneous readings, mostly of a humorous nature. The appreciation of the audience was manifested by peals of laughter. There were a number of selections of splendid music rendered by the Norwich union, C. E., orchestra of five violinists and piano.

At Breezy Hill farm at the summit of Goshen Hill on the farm of S. Lubetsky, there is a well over 25 feet deep that does not go dry. This well is daily supplying water for over 20 head of stock, besides to people of the neighborhood.

Saturday with its intermittent showers seemed like a day in April. The strong wind from the northwest brought with it later snow flurries which seemed more like winter.

Another freak has been added to the collections at Maple Hill farm. This time it is a sweet potato that resembles a miniature sea lion.

Wild game is scarce this fall and hardly any gray squirrels are seen, or partridges. A flock of very handsome winter birds, the juncos, was seen Oct. 27 in the door yard. There were 50 or more of them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Randall entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hyde and Miss Clara Hyde, of Lisbon, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Hyde and children, Ellsworth and Myrtice, of Jewett City. The event commemorated five birthday anniversaries of those present, all occurring within a short period of time.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman, of Westerly, R. I., are guests of George H. Thomas.

William and Archie Curry, of Springfield, Mass., were at the home of their father, W. T. Curry, Sunday.

Deacon J. Y. Thomas, who has been ill for more than a week, remains about the same.

Mrs. Frank E. Hyde returned here Sunday, after several days' visit with her sister at Maple Hill farm.

A Ladies' Aid society sale was held in connection with the entertainment Thursday evening, two quilts, fancy articles, cake, ice cream and candy being sold.

The Halloween social is to be held by the boys' club of the church on Friday evening. Each girl has been asked to bring a box lunch for two.

A big dirigible was seen Monday at about 11 p. m., traveling toward the northwest. The ship looked like a big whale or a monster fish, as it was seen to make three circles over Colchester before it disappeared to the westward.

Mrs. E. L. Waterman has sold her large farm to a Norwich purchaser.

COLCHESTER

Joseph Dember and Nelson Stern, members of Colchester fire company, have completed their inspection of the chimneys about the borough. About twenty-five were found unsafe and in need of cleaning. At the request of the inspectors nearly all of these have been cleaned the past week and Messrs Dember and Stern report fine cooperation from local property owners in helping to make this fire preventive measure a success. There have been only four chimney fires with a borough property loss of $50 since the beginning of the year. The local fire department has been sponsoring this chimney inspection work with the object of keeping the borough fire loss at the present low figure during the coming months.

George M. Case, rural mail carrier to the Gardner lake section, is having a few days' vacation. Substitute Carrier John H. Conrad is covering the route.

Saw Navy Airship

Flags were displayed in front of many houses and places of business Monday, in observance of "Navy day," also the birthday of President Roosevelt. Much interest was manifested in the appearance about 11:30 a. m. of the navy non-rigid airship J-4 which circled over the village several times before continuing on its trip from Lakehurst, N. J., to Hartford and return. The dirigible presented a fine sight as it floated about over the house tops, its bright gray body sparkling in the sunlight and coming so low that the inscription "U. S. Navy J-4" could be plainly seen on its side. Several housewives rushed to their dooryards and waved flags as the dirigible gracefully dipped its bow in salute.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton G. Miller, of Middlefield visited Sunday with Mr. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Miller.

Eugene P. Beebe, clerk at E. R. Holmes' store has been having two weeks' vacation, Lucius H. Stebbins has been substituting.

A quilt on which is embroidered a picturial history of California's gold discovery days, completed by Miss Geraldine Youd, of Concord, Cal., after two years' work, will have a place of honor at the California state fair. There are thirty-six pictures worked on the quilt, each characteristic of some phase of early California life and each picture has the embroidered signature of a pioneer.

City Benches

The people seek the benches in the heat
Of summer's drought and merciless, blue cold
Of winter's plague, for benches mutely hold
Their human freight. In any park or street
The seekers find them. Night and day they meet
With blank, suspicious glances. Papers sold
A week before take on the worth of gold
As avid eyes anticipate each sheet.

A heavy mother sinks beside a thief,
And neither one resents the other there.
A rabbi and a priest sit down, belief
Forgotten for the while. The thoroughfare
To God is lined with benches knowing grief
In every tongue. One language covers care!

—Sonia Ruthele Novak, in the New York Sun.

East Wind

You are the winged herald of the rain,
And touch our foreheads with your fingers damp,
And as you tread among the ripened grain,
The little, scuffling field mice soon decamp.

You send small rivulets through the furrowed field,
Cold as of springs that well beneath the ground,
To hurry gathering of the harvest yield,
Clothed with the mists that hover all around.

You are the harbinger of the nights of frost,
And with the clammy feel of cold and dread
You nourish nothing— tell of summer lost,
And cheer no garden where the flowers lie dead.

—Clarence P. Milligan, in Detroit News

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"My wife is prolonging her holiday. I need her at home, but it seems useless to write suggesting that she return."

"Get one of the neighbors to suggest it, my boy."—Pathfinder.

"Does your wife obey you?"

"I'll say she does! Ten years ago, when we were married, I told her to run the house just as she pleased And she has!"—Christian Science Monitor.

Hortense—And have you seen the working of her splendid heart?

Montrose—Well—er—practically — now that she is wearing such extreme gowns.—New Bedford Standard.

Antonio—I never could understand why a fellow should not be allowed to have more than one wife.

Pistachio—Well, after you are married you'll realise that the law protects those who are incapable of protecting themselves.—The Pathfinder.

"Call these prize cattle? Why, they ain't nothing to what our folks raise. My father raised the biggest calf of any man around our parts."

"Don't doubt it," remarked a bystander, "and the noisiest."—Tit-Bits.

A Negro boy was trying to saddle a fractious mule, when a bystander asked, "Does the mule ever kick you, Sam?"

"No, suh, but he sometimes kicks where I'se jest bin."—Robstown Record.

"Gerald, dear, why are some women called Amazons?"

"Well, my dear, you remember the Amazon river has the largest mouth—"

But she went out and slammed the door before he could say any more. —The Pathfinder.

A school inspector said to a pretty teacher:

"Do you teach observation?"

"Yes."

"Then I will test the class. Now, children, shut your eyes and sit still." The inspector made a slow, chirping sort of noise and followed with: "Now, children, what did I do?"

One little boy piped out:

"Kissed teacher."—John Bull.

Oklahoma mothers are going to school to learn how to care for children. A course for mothers at Oklahoma A. and M. at Stillwater has twenty students.

French children spend too much time over their school books, an investigating committee appointed by the minister of education reports. More outdoor play was recommended for pupils of all ages.

Every boy likes to whistle, but there is probably only one youth in the world who can whistle and eat at the same time. He is Gerald Kay, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Kay, of Newman, Ill. Gerald is a throat whistler, and specialists have informed his parents that he has an extra set of vocal cords, known as the "bird" or "robin" cords. There are five known throat whistlers in the world, but Gerald seems to be the only one with ability to satisfy his appetite while he whistles. Scoffers are convinced when they see him eat crackers and hear him whistle at the same time.

A&P ESTABLISHED 1859 "WHERE ECONOMY RULES"

(Personal)

The easiest way to keep track of last minute food prices, in these days of rapid changes, is by dropping in at an A & P store. There you can always get the latest news on the subject.

The reason is simple. A & P buys the best at the sources of supply, and its margin of profit is always about the same — as little as possible. Its customers get all the saving when prices go down.

DANIELSON

OVER 3500 ENTITLED TO VOTE IN COMING ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 27.—The record number, for Killingly, of 3503 voters, men and women are entitled to vote in the state election here on Nov. 4. Statistics compiled by D. Fred Kenworthy of the board of registrars of voters show that there are 1247 men and 918 women entitled to vote in the first district of the town, which includes Danielson. In the second district, the Dayville, Goodyear, Attawaugan, Ballouville area, there are 576 men and 404 women voters. The third district, which includes East Killingly, has 219 men and 147 women voters.

Never in Killingly's history of nearly 225 years have so many persons been listed as voters here. The fact forecasts a record high vote in the coming election.

MAN KILLED BY AUTO TO BE BROUGHT HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 27.—The body of William H. Parkhurst, 65, who was killed in Foster about dusk last evening when struck by a car operated by State Officer Henry M. Mayo of the Danielson barracks, is to be brought from Providence on Tuesday to the home of his sisters, Misses Mary and Nellie Parkhurst, in Dayville.

Mr. Parkhurst, whose home was in Mystic, was for many years a resident of this town and lived on what was long known as the Parkhurst place, on the Danielson-Wauregan highway, near the Dyer property.

Recently he has been employed on a state road job in Rhode Island, east of here on the Danielson-Providence trunk line highway. He was so engaged yesterday, though it was Sunday. The work is being rushed to completion. He had been working on the shoulders of the highway. The accident in which he met his death was an unfortunate and unavoidable one, as he could not be seen by State Officer Mayo until after he had stepped out from behind a car directly into the path of the state officer's machine.

Mr. Parkhurst was born in Uxbridge, Mass., a son of George Horace and Roxie Pratt Parkhurst. He passed his 65th birthday in May of this year. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Jessie Green Parkhurst, of Mystic, and in addition to his sisters in Dayville, a brother, Pardon, of Danielson.

Tuesday night will be Brothers' night at the meeting of Killingly grange. The program for the evening is being arranged by Archie Ennis and W. H. G. Herklots. A speaker will be heard during the evening and there will be other features of special interest.

There was a delightful Halloween party, an annual parish event, at St. Alban's parish house this evening. The interior was transformed with appropriate decorations, the orange and black colors of the season predominating. And there were witches, and candles and pumpkins and all sorts of spooky things to making a fitting setting for the occasion. The table decorations were especially attractive. Members of the Girls' Friendly society were in charge, and had the assistance of other of the women's organizations of the church in working out the program. Numbers of those attending came in masquerade. Stunts were included in the varied program of the evening, during the course of which refreshments were served. The affair was a very gratifying one to the members of the parish.

Ballot boxes in Killingly are to be open on election day, Nov. 4, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. In the first district the voters will cast their ballots in the town hall. In the second district they will vote in N. P. Gingras' old store building, next to the post office, in Dayville. The third district voters will deposit their ballots at Shippee's hall in East Killingly.

Formal notices of the election published by the selectmen and appearing elsewhere in this paper today, set forth the areas making up each district.

William C. Fox, New London, candidate for congressman in this district, on the democratic ticket, in opposition to Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, republican member of congress, is coming to Danielson Tuesday evening to make a sort of an informal visit. He is not scheduled for a speech. He is to be at democratic headquarters in the Berris building to greet and confer with members of the party in Killingly.

Dr. Cecil R. Garcin is leaving Friday for Montreal, where he will attend a congress of the Canadian Medical association. Dr. Garcin, an alumnus of McGill university, will remain in Montreal for about two weeks, during which time he will attend a number of clinics at the university.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Lucy Poirier

From the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Cusson, in Wauregan this morning the funeral of Mrs. Lucy Poirier was held, with a high mass of requiem at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant of the mass. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Taftville, where Mrs. Poirier had lived for many years. The committal service was conducted by Rev. F. R. DesSureault and Rev. Donat Jette. Bearers were Edward, William, Joseph, Archille, Arthur and Ernest Poirier. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Arrangements are going forward for the annual Red Cross roll call, which will open here Nov. 11, and continue through the remainder of that month. The organization is being carefully built up, and it is expected to function as efficiently as was the case last year. Mrs. Marjorie Waller is director of the roll call work.

The Killingly Woman's club will be represented at Moosup Thursday of next week when the Federation of Women's clubs of Windham county plan to hold an all-day meeting at the Baptist church there. Interesting programs have been arranged for both the morning and afternoon sessions. A luncheon is to be served at 12:30.

There was very little response in Danielson today to the suggestion that Navy day be observed by a display of flags. Only a very few flags were to be seen in the business section, and the same was true through the residential areas of the borough.

The Danielson Rotary club has reestablished this fall its practice of the past two years, that of taking a class of local boys to Plainfield once each week for swimming lessons at the pool in the Community house. Club members use their cars to transport the boys, who are very appreciative of the attention being shown them.

Saturday, Nov. 1, is the final day for filing tax lists in Killingly. Assessors are receiving lists at their office in the town hall building.—adv.

There will be attendance from Danielson on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the general conference of the Congregational churches of Connecticut in Willimantic.

A. L. James of Santa Monica, Cal., has arrived here for a visit of about 10 days with relatives, joining Mrs. James and their daughter, Katherine, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. James of Oak street.

In the town court this morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $100 and costs on Isadore Aubin of Attawaugan, for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence. Philip Grifcuwiz, riding with Aubin, had an intoxication charge nolled upon payment of costs.

The final drive for voters for various candidates is on in Killingly for the election of a week from Tuesday. Voting in Killingly in this election will be by districts.

Members are to be received into the Westfield Congregational church next Sunday, which will be Communion Sunday.

A very considerable demand for overcoats is being made on Miss Miriam Boomhower, visiting nurse, and it is a rather strange fact that the majority of these requests have come recently from people from out of the state—Rhode Island and Massachusetts points, by men wandering through this section.

George Stone, of Hawkins street, remains a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. He is one of the original class graduated from Killingly high school, more than half a century ago.

Henry Gilbert motored to New Britain today on a business mission.

JEWETT CITY

GEO. A. ROSS PREPARING FOR ABUNDANT WATER SUPPLY

George A. Ross, at his home in Lisbon, is preparing to be prepared for any such future dry summer as the last, which has caused much inconvenience on account of water shortage. Following the digging of a well which will get its feed from a perennial spring supply, he is laying about an eighth of a mile of pipe to bring the water to his farm buildings. The circulation is to be established on the siphon principle. After the pipe is laid and is tight, the system will be pumped full from delivery to supply, then one of the primary hydraulic laws will do the rest. Mr. Ross has occupied this Bucklyn Mathewson homestead since 1876 and in all that time there has been no shortage at the north spring which now, at considerable expense, he proposes to utilize. Charlie Spicer is handling the job.

The weekly calendar of the First Congregational church of Pachaug carries this item: As we enter into the communion service next Sunday may we do so with hearts that are prepared because of our meditations and prayers this week, and thus be able to receive the greatest possible amount of the special blessing which this service brings.

Ingenious Posting Machine

Through the courtesy of Earl Robinson, clerk at the Jewett City Savings bank, visitors from Providence were conducted through the institution, witnessing a demonstration of the bank's new posting machine. Not only does this marvellous piece of mechanism do the additions and subtractions of a day's business of deposits and withdrawals, but it promptly balks at any error in any account that may have been made, and shuts off on everything, refusing to function further till the various entries are reconciled.

The granolithic circular walk has been completed in Sylvandale, where Sylvandale street is to leave the new bridge approach. Within this arc there is made a small plot which will be beautified in accordance with plans of the state highway department.

This borough is now well over the last handicap that caused the least concern, when Jewett City was divorced from its one time railroad passenger service. For a little while the mail service, especially the first morning dispatch, was causing some complaint from borough manufactories. Postmaster William T. Crumb reported all irregularities to William J. Stoddard, chief clerk in the railway mail service, with offices at Boston. Today, with the contract being handled by Adam Rojeske, a local man, the service is a vast improvement over anything the railroad could possibly accomplish during the long period when the mail car was operated on a mixed train, which was generally from thirty minutes to two hours late at the local station.

A flock of juncos was seen in the vacant lot on East Main street. When in flight the two white feathers in their tails tell who they are. Many know this species and call them snow birds.

People passing through Sylvandale Monday were entertained by a handsome gray squirrel that was seen burying nuts on E. F. Burleson's lawn.

It is expected that very soon the new Tadpole bridge will be opened to traffic, which will remove the S-curve menace from the state highway.

It is already assured that something over 200 of the new Norwich Sunday Records will be handled in Jewett City. There still remains five days during which time it is expected that others will express their desire to receive the new papers. In addition to those which will be delivered by Harold Frink, the regular Record boy, the news stands expect to have them on sale.

Recovering At Hospital

Mrs. Carrie Waters and Mrs. Minnie Hobart, who were so badly injured in the recent automobile accident on the River road, are slowly recovering at Backus hospital, where they will be obliged to remain for two weeks more, at least.

Married Local Girl

An Associated Press item in Monday's Bulletin told of the death of William H. Parkhurst of Mystic, who was killed at Foster, R. I., when hit by an automobile driven by H. M. Mayo, a state trooper from the Danielson barracks. Mr. Parkhurst was the husband of a Jewett City girl, Miss Jessie Green. Her father was the late John E. Green and his mother lives here, on Palmer avenue. Her two brothers, Lemuel and Leland Green are also residents of the borough. The name in the A. P. dispatch was Parkinson which was misleading to local friends.

At Holyoke, Mass., Otto W. E. Schultz went for hunting in his back yard armed with nothing more than a blanket. The cloth weapon, however, proved entirely adequate when he used it to bag a two-months-old fox that had been hanging around the neighborhood all day.

PUTNAM

BLIMP TO LAND HERE THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 27—The airship Neponset, New Bedford's merchant marine of the air, will include Putnam in the list of northeastern Connecticut cities to be visited Tuesday during its goodwill flight. Vice President Alexander Gilman of the Putnam Airport corporation stated this afternoon that representatives of the owners of the blimp visited the local airport this afternoon on the Pomfret road and after inspecting facilities of the field it was announced that a landing will be made there by the ship after its arrival over the city. The Neponset, Mr. Gilman said, probably will arrive here shortly after noon Tuesday and time permitting the public will be invited to make an inspection of the blimp.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Mary M. Wilson

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary M. Wilson who died early Saturday morning from a shock, were held this morning at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. A large number of relatives and friends attended the solemn requiem mass celebrated by Rev. Joseph D. Casey. Miss Rose Metras, church organist was in charge of the special service of music sung by members of the male choir. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's. The floral remembrances were magnificent. The bearers were Thomas P. Ryan, John Lynch, William Reardon and John O'Toole, of Clinton, Mass.

Although Putnam democrats are planning on ringing up one of their greatest victories this year, there is one factor which local political analysists believe will serve to narrow the expected democratic majority and that is the fact that the name of Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic will appear on he ballots. In years past, Putnam has always favored Sheriff Gates with overwhelming majorities. The situation this year does not appear to be changed, despite the fact that the democrats hold the balance of power within the confines of the town. Sheriff Gates is widely known in this city and has numerous supporters in both parties who are working for his reelection and the fact that his cause is being quite convincingly presented to the voters regardless of party standing indicates that his chances of carrying the community are as good as those of former years.

Senator Fournier of Moosup, democratic candidate for sheriff is to make his first public appearance in this city Friday night when he takes the stump at a democratic rally to be held in the Victory theatre. He will be on the platform with Dean Wilbur L. Cross and other prominent democratic candidates and party leaders.

The tel-type system of communication now installed at the state police barracks at Danielson is serving many purposes, other than those concerning the quick apprehension of law breakers. Among the messages recently received on the typing telephone was one that had to do with the finding of luggage which was lost by a tourist while traveling through Connecticut. The matter was reported to the state troopers and cooperation of all officers on patrol duty was immediately secured through the facilities of this modern system of communication. The lost articles were recovered by troopers, later reports indicated.

Through the courtesy of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at Danielson barracks, municipal police within the territory being served by the Danielson station, are benefiting by the presence of the tel-type. Messages forwarded by the local police organization are quickly relayed over the system, and then over the New England municipal police tel-type system.

Five hundred or more enthusiastic football fans went into the making of an orderly and well behaved crowd that atended the game played on the Putnam high school athletic campus Sunday afternoon between the Putnam "Bulldogs" and the Mac-Bends of Worcester. The contest resulted in a scoreless tie. The crowd was the largest ever assembled on the field and proved conclusively, the desire of the townspeople for Sunday sports on the school campus.

Franklin Perry, post graduate, and Hugo Saglio, '30, students at Amherst college, Amherst, Mass., visited today with Mrs. Edith Perry of Grove street.

Mark Gallant of Church street has returned from a Canadian hunting trip. During his stay Mr. Gallant visited with friends and relatives in Moncton, New Brunswick.

Herbert Lepire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lepire of Mechanics street, returned to his studies at a Providence business institute today after spending the week end at his home.

Francis H. Murphy, star backfield player and triple threat of the Putnam Bulldogs semi-pro fotball team was injured in Sunday's game.

A campaign for funds is now going on among members of the Putnam high school athletic association and members of the alumni association.

Harry Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer of King street is the only Putnam young man who will take the competitive examinations for an appointment to the United States Military academy at West Point, which will be given in February. Thayer was a member of the class of 1930, Putnam high school and is preparing for the exams at a private school. His brother, Lieut. Allen A. Thayer, U. S. A., was graduated from the academy in 1928.

Leon A. Walker of Grove street, was among the group from this city to attend the Yale-Army game, played in New Haven Saturday.

Mayor Charles A. Richard was guest of honor at the dedication exercises marking the opening of the new home on Providence street, of Polish Freedom club, which were held yesterday. Dual exercises were held since the day marked the 50th anniversary of the Polish Alliance.

NORWICH GIRL HURT WHEN AUTO HITS TRUCK NEAR WAUREGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 27.—As the result of an accident in which his car figured on the Wauregan-Danielson state highway near the Wauregan schoolhouse today Edward Drydol of 49 Elliott street, Hartford, will appear in the Plainfield court Tuesday, to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

Details of construction work are still in process in connection with the recent building of the new concrete highway at the point where the accident occurred. A truck was parked there today when Drydol came swiftly along following another car. The car ahead of him swung out to get around the truck, the driver so signaling his intention, eye-witnesses of the affair say. This move is believed to have confused Drydol a bit and his car crashed into the truck.

Miss Estella Graginsky of 11 Tyler avenue, Norwich, who was riding with Drydol, was slightly injured. She suffered minor abrasions of the forehead and some injury to her right leg.

State Officer H. Theodore Strand, who investigated the circumstances surrounding the accident, ordered Drydol to appear in court.

DAYVILLE

GINGRAS-STOMSKI WEDDING AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

At St. Joseph's church Monday morning, Miss Anna Stomski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stomski, and Mr. Joseph Gingras, son of Mrs. Mary Gingras were united in marriage. Rev. Ignatius Kost, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony and bride was atended by her sister. Mrs sang the nuptial high mass. The Stella Barry as matron of honor and the bridegroom had his brother, Alfred Gingras as best man. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of old ivory satin, and wore a tulle veil with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies-of-the valley. The matron of honor wore a dress of flesh colored canton crepe and carried tea roses.

Following the ceremony breakfast was served at the home of the bride and an informal reception was held, atended by guests from Worcester, Webster and Putnam.

The bride received many beautiful gifts. Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Gingras left for a wedding trip to Boston, Pittsfield, and Hartford.

Deacon Frank Barnett and Rev. William Swanson have been elected delegates to represent the local church at the state conference of Congregational churches at Willimantic, Nov. 4th and 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Spaulding of Plymouth, N. H., have returned home. They were accompanied by Mrs. Spalding's mother, Mrs. A. E. Dawling who will spend the winter with them.

Several Halloween parties are scheduled for this week.

Mrs. E. C. Ricclous of Providence, was a recent visitor at he home of Miss Clara Law.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brearly and a party of friends motored to Worcester Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brearley and family of Hanover, spent the week end here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wakefield and family spent Sunday in Norwich.

Harry Whidden of Brooklyn, is at work repairing and painting the property owned by Mrs. Ruth Pierce.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Miss Ruth Mathewson spent the week end with relatives in Grafton, Mass. She spent Monday in Boston, where she was formerly employed for two years.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kendall have been at Mohegan.

Miss Mary Mullen spent Saturday in Providence.

Miss Duli Herbert of New London visited her sister, Mrs. Albert Tillinghast Sunday. She expects to leave soon to spend the winter in St. Petersburgh, Florida. Miss Herbert formerly lived here.

Miss Margaret Reid spent the week end with friends in Providence.

The Boy Scouts of the local church and the Plainfield church are to meet Wednesday evening in Plainfield at the home of Ernest Plassman.

A duet "In My Garde of Roses" was well sung by Miss Marjorie Mc Donald soprano and Miss Harriett White, alto at the morning service at the church. They are high school girls and proved very helpful in the service.

The members and friends of the church and Sunday school have been invited to attend a Halloween social in Plainfield Friday evening to be given by the young people of that place. A short drama will be presented: "Priscilla's Room." As the two churches will have the same pastor the remainedr of the year, the older and younger people, of both churches, will have much in common with each other.

Perley Fullerton was in Hartford Friday to attend the teachers' convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Dona Despatie and baby have returned to their home on Main street having been at the home of Mrs. Despatie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Plouff in Palmer's Court, since early in September.

A meeting of the Red Cross committee, Mrs. Cora Day, chairman, is to be held this (Tuesday) evening.

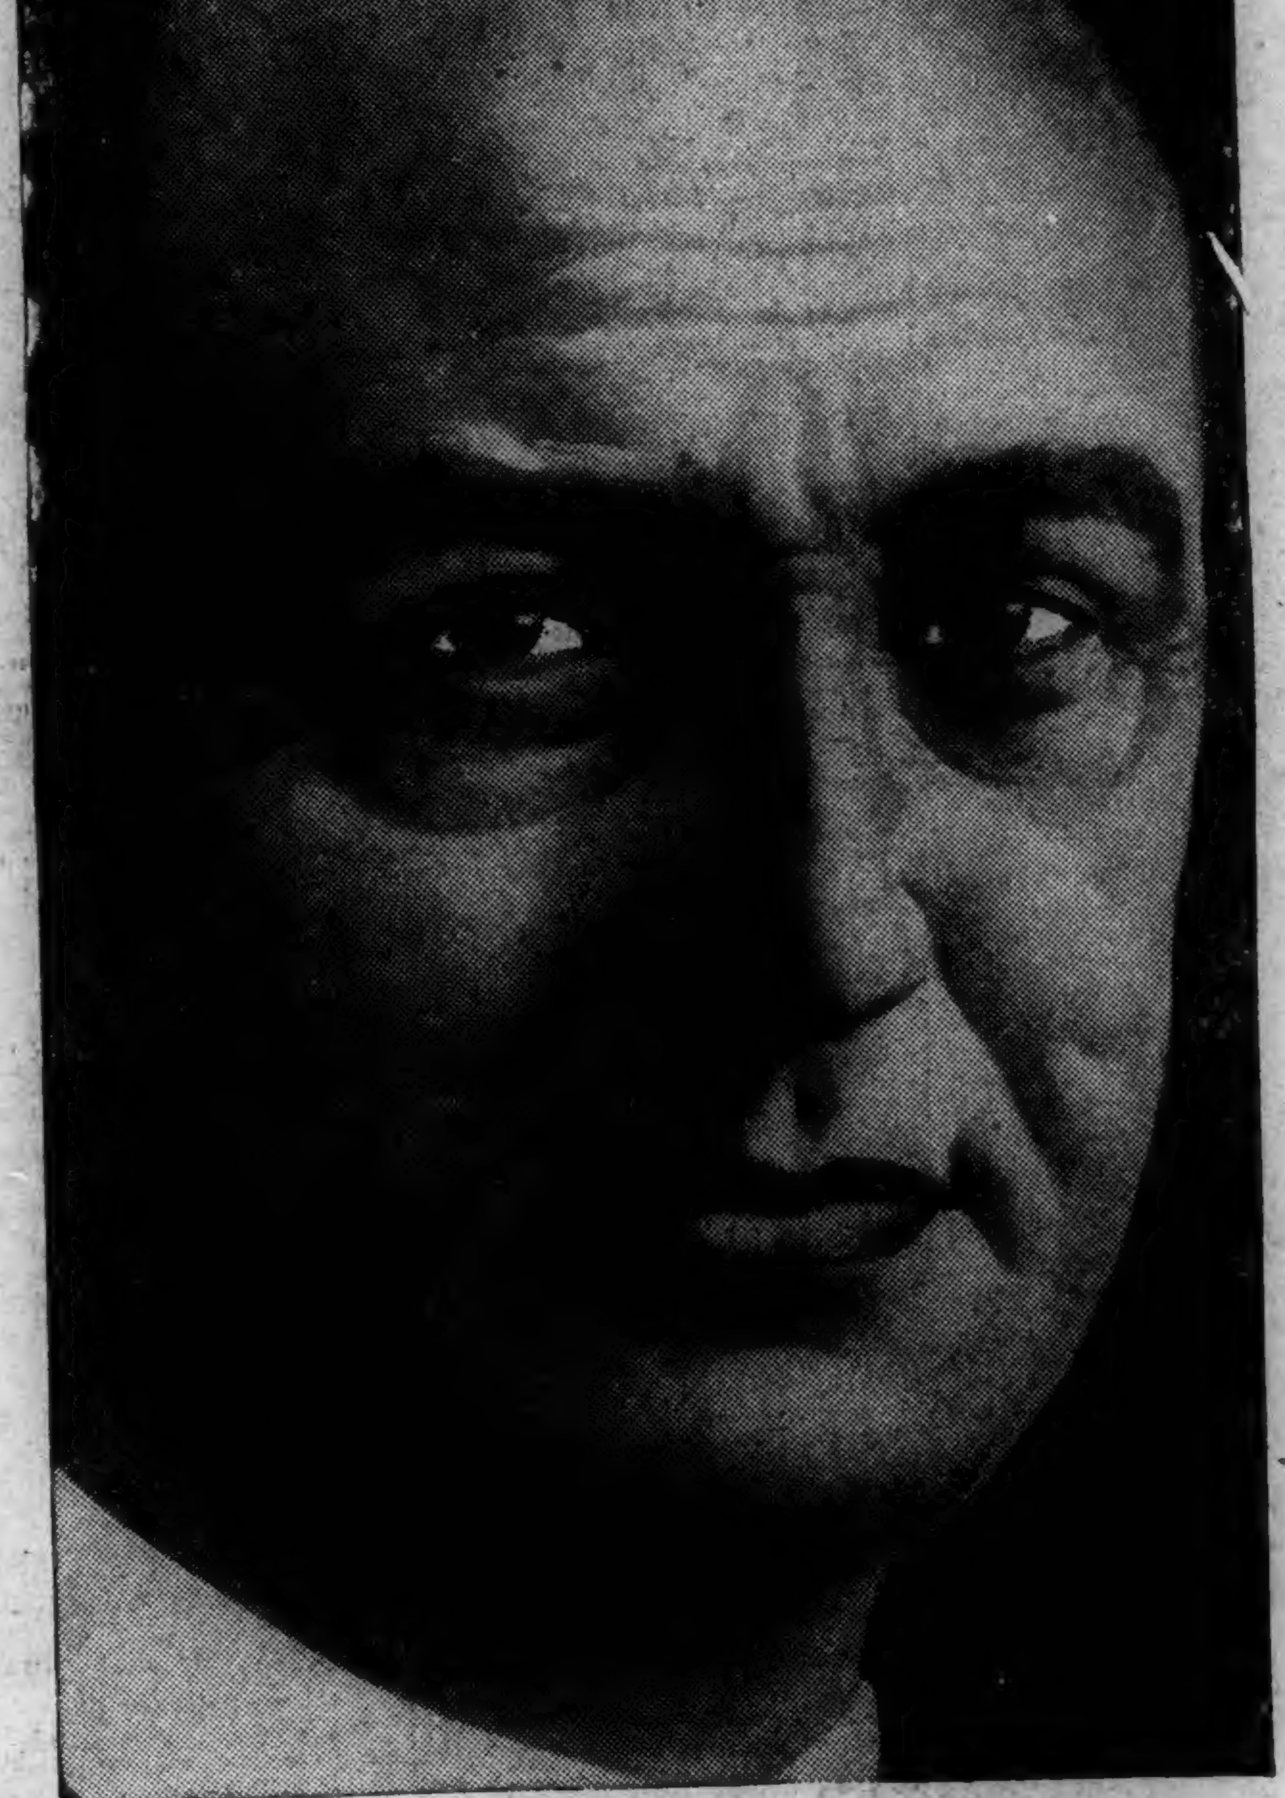
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Briggs and family have returned to their home in Ashaway, from Misquamicut, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Lloyd Briggs, from Quonochontaug.

There was no school in Ashaway Wednesday, that the teachers might visit other schools. The schools in town will be closed Thursday and Friday of this week on account of the teachers' institute in Providence.

JAMES A. FARLEY

Says

"Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the Toasting of LUCKY STRIKE ranks with the many other great contributions to the health and comfort of millions."



Here is the complete statement as authorized by

JAMES A. FARLEY

President, General Builders Supply Corp.; Chairman, New York State Athletic Commission; Chairman, New York State Democratic Committee

"I am certain that without the use of modern, scientific methods the skyscrapers for which our country is so justly proud would never have been possible. I am equally convinced that your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the Toasting of your LUCKY STRIKE Tobaccos ranks with the many other great contributions to the health and comfort of millions and that it is responsible for the skyscraping sales of your famous brand."

LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. James A. Farley to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Farley appears on this page.

THE TERRIBLE TOLL

Up to the 18th of this month there had been 36 less fatalities than in the same period last year. This gives the impression that there has been more care used this year and a greater effort to avoid accidents and fatalities until we stop to read that during the week ending the 18th fatalities occurred at the rate of nearly three a day. Eighteen deaths from auto accidents in one week in Connecticut is a heavy toll. It reads like the record of a much larger state and gives the impression that there had been an abandonment of careful driving.

If there are many more weeks like that of Oct. 12-18, Connecticut will be exceeding the record of last year long before the end of the year is reached. It is a distressing prospect. We display much alarm over thoughts of war and deplore the terrible drain upon the nation in the number of casualties, but there we seem to stop. We do not seem to give much consideration to the fact that 33,000 lives are being wiped out yearly by auto fatalities and hundreds of thousands of others are being injured.

The auto accidents are not a product of the war. They are an accompaniment of peace. They are not stationary, but are increasing yearly, and yet there appears to be neither the desire nor the interest to place such a check upon them that there will be a decrease instead of an increase.

When the fatality list includes those who have driven carelessly and without regard for regulations there is removed one of the highway menaces. But the process of elimination through such a method is slow, and it would seem that for each one who is thus taken away there are plenty of others to take his place.

There is to be noted in most of the fatal auto accidents that there is a tendency to drive too fast under dangerous conditions. There is a disposition to insist upon the right of way, or to crowd the other fellow, when a moment's yielding would prevent trouble. There is a growing disposition to hog the road, jump signals and disregard markings and signs. The driver who is steadily cutting in and out adds to the complications while bad equipment plays its part in many instances. The indifferent driver, who cares for no one but himself, and the intoxicated driver are responsible for endless trouble, while pedestrians still treat lightly the death-dealing force that is involved in a motor vehicle. But if the heavy death toll isn't sufficient to correct conditions what can we expect in the way of fatality figures during the coming months and years!

BRAZIL'S TROUBLES

From all indications the situation in Brazil is headed for adjustment. With the calling of the revolutionary leader to become the head of the government it is evident that the revolution has succeeded. The coup came so suddenly and unexpectedly that many have been led to feel that the United States picked the wrong side in the revolt when it permitted the Brazilian government to buy munitions in this country and placed an embargo upon the sale of war materials to the revolutionists.

There was no attempt to pick the winner by this government. The United States acted only as it was to be expected it would. It kept to international law and it carried out the policy of the government toward friendly governments. Should the liberal party government get recognition and carry out Brazil's obligations it can be expected that it will get similar consideration should a revolution develop against it. The course of action under such circumstances is not to try to pick the winner but to stand by the constitutional and friendly government. That is what the government at Washington did and it is only what it should have done under international practice.

That the liberal leader is disposed to take the presidency of Brazil, but not under a military dictatorship, has been declared. At the head of a provisional government there would probably be little difficulty in getting confirmation from the country. What he proposes to do will be awaited with keen interest at home and abroad. That he faces a man-sized job is no secret. None should know that better than himself. With the country saved any further effects of civil war the restoration will be minimized but such a change in government will be expected as to end the effort to control states such as proved the undoing of the deposed president. In addition there must be tackled the coffee valorization plan in which all Brazil is deeply concerned and there is that deplorable and needless killing of passengers on the German ship which calls for apology and recompense.

When the new government gives evidence of control there are reasons to expect that the United States will extend recognition even as it has in the case of other South American countries where revolutions have succeeded.

WASTE WOOD FOR FUEL

Recently the statement was made that there was much wood going to waste which could doubtless be obtained by those in need if there was a willingness to make the effort to get it and cut it up.

State Forester Hawes calls attention to the fact that there are 50,000 cords of wood going to waste in the state forests which could be distributed to those who will cut and remove it. He not only sees where those lacking employment do not need to suffer from a lack of fuel but where the removal of such wood would improve the growing conditions of the state forest land.

In sending letters to mayors calling attention to this chance to obtain fuel, the state forester is contributing a valuable suggestion to the existing situation. He appreciates the fact that many cities are not far distant from such forests, but it is believed that there is much other woodland, not owned by the state, from which the owners would willingly see much firewood removed for the relief of those out of work as well as for the benefit of the land.

Land where there are dead and fallen trees offer a chance for such efforts. Where such is near the homes of the unemployed, there should be little difficulty in solving the fuel situation, provided there is an understanding between all concerned. Where the transportation problem arises there is a different situation, but with efforts being made to assist the unemployed the opportunity of turning those efforts to meeting transportation requirements for the fuel should be recognized.

The offer of the wood in the state forests, as made by the state forester, should serve as an inspiration to others in a position to make similar offers. It is not probable that the 50,000 cords will be taken out of the state forests but in view of the much greater quantity of similar waste wood throughout the state not in state forests there ought to be no section lacking for fuel.

FALL RIVER'S TROUBLES

Some years ago a doctor argued that all over 40 should be put out of the way. An expert on property has been looking over conditions in the city of Fall River and after his study informed the real estate board that after a complete survey of idle tenement and business property there should be a ruthless campaign of destruction of that found to be obsolete. His point was that there would be eliminated much that is not now bringing a return to the owner and which is not a credit to the city and there would be an increased demand for the property that remains.

The situation in Fall River has been created by the decreased population owing to the textile conditions. Those who occupied the houses have gone. No others have come to take their place. They are an expense, they figure in the tax list and there are those which furnish a fire hazard because of dilapidation and lack of repair.

Such a remedy as is suggested means that those whose property would be demolished would be making a substantial sacrifice for the benefit of the owners of modern property who are expected to benefit. There would be a better demand for the better property and not improbably a better return from such property in time. If it so happened that an investor owned some of each he might see his way to carry out such a plan, but the owner who has experienced plenty of loss already may not see eye to eye with the fellow whose property stands to be greatly benefited.

What the expert did was to take a community view of the entire situation. What the property owners are likely to do is to take an individual view of the matter. There is a decided difference whether the pocketbook is hit or inflated.

Fall River has experienced plenty of difficulty from its fire, the depression over a long period in the textile business and political conditions. It is trying to get back onto its feet and in its efforts it is looking at the situation from all angles and particularly the community standpoint.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—If you were ambassador to Great Britain, which would you do to meet the emergency of court dress? Would you don knee breeches and silver buckles on your shoes, or would you "beg the king to graciously permit" you to wear the customary evening clothes of the United States, and make that request through the Lord Chamberlain, and with a lot of red tape? You must do one or the other under British court inflexible rules, or it will be in vain you knock at the door of Buckingham palace. And if you don't knock at the door in your best official manner as ambassador from the United States, you will offend the entire British realm, for it would be regarded as an affront to the king, and the United States would be held guilty.

The American people, democratic in their tastes, are quite apt to poke fun at an American ambassador, or plain citizen, who dons knee breeches when attending the court of St. James, or in fact any other royal court, where rules of formal dress for men, is strictly enforced. As a matter of fact, our diplomats need sympathy, not derision.

Way back in 1854 the king of Sweden made the situation quite clear when he had written to our department of state that he "would be willing to receive the American minister in audience for business, in any dress his government may prescribe, but in the society of my family and on occasions of court no one can be received but in court dress in conformity with established customs."

There you have it in a nut-shell. You must wear the biblical "wedding garment," or you cannot attend, is the rule. And the same applies to all kingdoms, although on specific request exceptions are sometimes made, and our ministers and ambassadors permitted to attend court functions in the evening dress of this country. But such exceptions are notable. So its knee breeches and buckles, or not attend. And not to attend state functions at the court to which you are officially assigned by the president and the senate of the United States, is so great an offense, that it might even be the cause of severing diplomatic relations between the countries. Kingdoms have been drawn into unpleasant relations if not actual warfare by affronts of less seriousness, as regarded over sea where kings and queens rule.

A full dress military uniform is accepted at such functions and often saves the day, if the ambassador or ministers is an army or navy man, even reserve officers count as "making good." At one time, James Buchanan, minister to Great Britain solved that question by wearing American evening clothes, and a sword, which dangled at his side. He did so, as he afterwards stated, "so to be distinguished from men, who in the eyes of the British are merely wearing the clothes of an upper servant of the American household."

The queen approved the choice he had made, and for a number of years it was held as the proper state costume of our forein representatives at courts.

The court requirements as now in force in England are "a suit of black clothes, with white neck-cloth, sword, and cocked hat, and at full dress occasions, breeches and buckles."

So when our ambassadors and ministers do not desire to comply they must beg permission, through the mediation of the Lord Chamberlain, and a lot of red tape "to be graciously permitted" to appear at court in the full dress costume of the United States.

There you have it in a nut-shell, you must doll up in buckles and knee breeches, or "beg to be graciously permitted" to wear your home mades, as at the white house.

We may laugh up our sleeve, but it is a serious problem to the state department. Our army and navy uniforms are accepted, and it has been proposed that congress pass a law making officers, with some sort of additional title, to our diplomats, so they will be able to dress in a way acceptable both to themselves and the country to which they are assigned by appointment of the president and consent and approval of the senate.

Ambassador Dawes shunned the breeches, and begged gracious permission to appear in the clothes accepted here; whether or not he has yielded to British customs does not yet seem clear. But as a rule the only men who feel fully at home over there, are those whose military or naval uniform permit him to be in clover. They tell of several amusing incidents where men wearing the "swallow-tail and high silk hat" were forced to appear in them at early morning functions of state, and where, as they later expressed it "they felt like fools." There is in Spain, a law that when an heir to the throne is about to be born, diplomats from foreign countries must await in the ante room, as witness of the event, all of which goes into the Spanish records.

Back a hundred or more years ago, our minister to Spain gave a graphic account of how he felt, loitering there, in broad daylight in his evening clothes, for the astonishing purpose of testifying as to the birth of an heir to the Spanish throne.

When Benjamin Franklin was minister to France, he took his fate in his own hands, and won out. But that was Franklin, not every man could make good in a brown sack suit, when all others were in breeches and buckles, but Franklin is said to have amused the queen and the court to such an extent that he "got by with it." At one time our ministers wore black coats trimmed with much gold braid on gala occasions; later a black suit with a gold star on each lapel of the coat won favor. It has been suggested that some medal or jeweled order be adopted, and to most people familiar with the need of a distinctive insignia, the suggestion seems good, but just how congress would regard it as being official cannot be foretold. But up to date, its breeches or buckles, or a gracious permission, that our folks face.

When President Wilson visited England, perhaps you recall that there was a great how-dy-do over the clothes he wore at Buckingham palace? The cable despatches made much of it at the time. It seems Mr. Wilson did not have knee breeches and buckles; he refused to procure them and so, on his request, the king graciously permitted the president of the United States to appear in American style under "a suspension of court rules" for that occasion. But the king also made the suspension include himself and all the men guests at the dinner. So the affair dropped from a state to a very informal affair. Then the question rose, and has never been settled in the minds of those deep in diplomatic and court customs: Did the king of England order that informality out of courtesy to Mr. Wilson, or as a rebuke, and so took from the occasion every semblance of a state ceremony?

It is related that James Buchanan absented himself from one of Queen Victoria's levees, because he could not decide what he could wear. He wouldn't wear knee breeches and remained at home. The failure of the American minister to attend the court function is said to have caused much "unfavorable comment" throughout all Great Britain. It was regarded as disrespectful to the country and the queen.

The trials of American diplomats abroad are not limited to breeches and silver buckles. "Where shall we live?" is the vexed question. In Washington, Great Britain, France, and practically every nation sees to it that its diplomatic representatives are housed in a manner that is suitable to their standing. France is about to erect an embassy that will be second to none; Great Britain has completed one that is as magnificent as any building in Washington and far outshines the white house, except to those of us who delight in the simplicity of the executive mansion. The French embassy has 50 or 60 rooms, so has the British embassy. The entrance hall of the French embassy will contain two fine statues that are to commemorate and link together the early days of this republic. They are Washington and Lafayette. And not only are all embassies and legations supplied by the foreign nations, but the salaries are large and the "allowances" liberal. Most of the buildings are up on Meridian Hill; they are among the finest in the city. They represent Great Britain, France, Spain, Italy, Poland, Cuba, Persia and many other countries, including Germany and Austria. All are notable, adequate and attractive. From their windows one catches glimpses of the beautiful Virginia hills, and the glistening Potomac.

But what happens to our diplomats abroad? They must go house hunting like an average unknown city dweller, and often must pay out of their private funds what is necessary to secure a home that conforms to the dignity of the United States and its representatives. The salary may sound liberal, but it is not; neither are the allowances. Uncle Sam is not generous with those who represent him abroad. Our ambassadors must feel a bit homesick when they ransack a city for a home, when they recall that in Washington diplomats from countries small enough to Uncle Sam to put in his pocket, are housed in splendor at the expense of their home governments.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 — Somewhere in recent files of the government is buried a story of the plight of three Russian youngsters which has its pathetic as well as its humorous side.

For this trio, the eldest in his teens, rambled back and forth across the Atlantic, seeking escape from their native land, only to find everybody's official door closed against them wherever they turned.

The last heard of them officially, so far as the Bystander knows, they were manning the oars of a ship's boat in the dark o' night somewhere off the African coast, headed for clandestine entry into that mysterious country.

Princess' Son

The young leader of the trio, as the Bystander hears the story, was the son of a Russian princess, herself a refugee from the political upheaval in that country.

She had friends in high places both here and in other countries, yet when her son and his young buddies managed to stow away on an American ship, New York bound from a Black Sea port, nobody could help her in any official way.

The lads were discovered presently and came on over the sea only to be transshipped hardly more than 20 miles off the Statute of Liberty.

A ship of the same line took them aboard at sea for the return trip to the port they had left. That is what usually happens to stowaways who get caught at sea. Back on Russian soil a grim fate perhaps awaited them.

The radio and cables burned with messages. Yet under American immigration laws, nothing could be done, at least officially.

Because of all the messages probably, the returning voyagers found opportunity to jump ship in Turkish waters when the ship touched on her way into the Black Sea. Word of their "escape" came over and many sighs of relief went up. The problem seemed to have solved itself.

But it had not. Modern Turkey has developed modern police efficiency. When the steamer got back to that Turkish port of call, returning to New York, the Turkish police were on the hand with the trio.

"Take 'em away again," they said. "You brought 'em; now take 'em away."

Start Back

So back for New York they started for the second time, doomed to be again transshipped before arrival. They were veritable lads without a country.

Off Gibraltar, however, as their ship steamed by in the night, something queer happened. A boat disappeared from its davits! The three young Russians also were gone. Strange, how this could happen on a ship whooping along full speed at sea, but it did.

And for once, at least, nobody in official Washington deplores so odd a lapse in ship discipline.

THE BOUQUET

It was like being subjected to a constant tropical sun. In time one develops a rhinocerous skin of protective tan.

People, including the bevy of twenty and four typists that he office-managered—wondered why Mr. Tom didn't marry. The reason was he saw so much of beauty and coquetry it left him cold.

So when Coletta came the other maidens placidly sensed no rival. Coletta was French, frankly plain. Dark hair swerved in undangerous curves over her wide white forehead.

But her plainness stood out as a loaf of wholesome brown bread does in a showcase of strawberry tortes. Mr. Tom was mildly interested—then enthusiastically interested. She was a girl who dared to be different.

For one thing, on her desk was a perpetual nosegay of redolent violets, carefully renewed daily. They brought to the office a promise of spring, a prediction of balmy summer. Coletta purchased them from the flower woman on the corner.

Now, Mr. Tom had the usual fatherly attitude of executives.

"Look here," said he, with authoritative suspicion that encompassed the bland modesty of the violets, "how much do you eat for lunch, anyway?"

"One great ham sandwich, Mr. Tom," with promptness.

He frowned masculinely. "Seems to me you ought to eat more than a measly little ham sandwich for lunch. I thought those flowers had something to do with it."

"Oh, yes, a leetle. Instead of a lunch I buy violets—and then I'm less hungry. I must have them—no matter." She shrugged warmly with a torrid finality.

"But, you foolish kid, "you'll collapse—get sick—die, without food. Listen," and Mr. Tom progressed to the brotherly stage. "I'll buy the violets for you—and you get yourself a decent lunch. Understand?"

"But certainly Mr. Tom. That is indeed very generous of you," as childishly grateful as if he had just fixed her broken doll.

Mr. Tom returned to his office wrapped in pleasant surprise of himself, of Coletta, of the whole suddenly glorious world. It was a fragrant burden, that, of assuming the violet purchasing. It was a delight to have the little dark head of Coletta round the corner of the door every morning and murmur: "Thank you, most greatly. They are very nice today—long stemmed and filled with scent, and the leaves are dewy!"

It was pleasant, too, to visualize the dark little head bending over a coffee percolator in a sunlit breakfast room—a comfort. The third stage was reached quickly.

So Tom had a second brilliant idea. It had to do with a national strain that would not be hushed, no matter what.

One morning the nosegay on Coletta's desk was large, brazen, hard-eyed. She dashed into his office, her hat slipping from her head, her cheeks overheated and pink. She cast the bouquet at him, stamped her feet, raged, wrung her hands and looked strangely attractive.

"How you dare fetch me violets that are not violets. Bah—made of cloth. Cloth, not even silk! Ugh, no scent. Big, horrid things. You dare—you dare!"

He took her hand helplessly. "For heaven's sake, Coletta, let's close the door. I—er—thought this bunch of artificial violets for only f-fifty cents—that is—that it is cheaper than a lot of quarter bunches every day."

"You dare—" she raged, but allowed her fingers to stay with his.

"Listen, Coletta, my dear," he liked the sound of it very much. He knew he would. "Coletta, my dear, I'm awfully fond of you. Allow me—allow me to explain—"

She never realized just how well he had done until at 5 o'clock the familiar, wrinkled grin of the old flower woman appeared over the edge of a basket of mostly scented violets. Their modest chins nestled into one another as the old woman laid them out in rows. There was another big basket, and another, and even the twisted aesthetics of the flower woman were satisfied when the hundredth bunch was placed.

"Enough," Coletta pleaded, enraptured, and the flower woman withdrew.

Mr. Tom was a homogenous study in contrition, triumph, ecstasy, admiration of himself and of Coletta.

"Marry me," he whispered to her.

"Now?" she blushed to order, holding a pale blossom close to her cheek.

"Now," he breathed, "while the flowers are fresh. Then we won't have to buy new ones."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Trees

Mr. Editor: October the 10th month, the month of gorgeous colors, and Indian summer, when all Nature is decked out in those wondrous colors; not a "Turner landscape," but just the beauteous colors that tell the story of the coming of nature's season of rest. We see the trees and all the shrubbery with all the prismatic colors. You see God's wondrous works that speak in no uncertain tones of the gradual dissolution of the life in the open. Here and there as you look toward the forest you can see the pines and the spruce still dressed in their suit of deepest green, while the scarlet of the maples blend in perfect harmony. This tells us of the passing on of summer and its many charms. Do you recall Alice Cary in Days of October?

Shorter and shorter now the twilight clips
The days as through the gates they crowd.
And summer from her golden collar slips
And stays through stubble-fields, and moans aloud.

Poets and scholars have written and sung about trees. There are many curious legends about trees, and 'tis said among the peasantry of Austria they have an idea or legend that a tree is animate, that it suffers pain just like a human being and they beg its pardon when they cut it down. Perhaps there may be some among those who read this who may be a native of that country, and they may verify this as a fact.

In the south we see the mistletoe hanging from the oak, and here, too, we find this thought that when Jack Frost and the wind had stripped the oak of its leaves the spirit of the oak took refuge in the mistletoe that appeared upon its branches at that season of the year. The mistletoe was brought into the house on Christmas time, with the belief that the spirit of the tree would enter the household, and bless those within. The oak has always been symbolical and typical of that which is rugged and strong. They live and flourish for many generations. Many poets have written of the trees and one writer says of the oak:

Then here's to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who stands in his pride alone.
And still flourishes he a hale, green tree,
When a hundred years are gone.

A tree is a thing of beauty and of life. And it is one of the many works of the Creator, and who shall say that He of whom it is said "He fails not to note the fall of a sparrow," does not take an interest in the life of a tree that contributes in so many ways toward the comfort and conveniences of mankind! Do you recall what John Burroughs the great naturalist said out in the dim lit forest where you have walked in secret converse with your friend? Pausing under the trees, drinking at the spring, a new charm is added for here beneath the trees the bonds of friendship are cemented in a stronger tie. Your friend is there forever. Search the writings of the foremost writers of the past or present and they will at times bring out the beauty of the landscape and its trees that accentuate and never detract.

A most beautiful tribute was paid by that brilliant young poet, Joyce Kilmer who gave up his life in one of the battles of the World war. He said that "only God could make a tree" and I wish to give it as he wrote it:

I think I shall never see.
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose lovely mouth is prest,
Against the earth's sweet flowering breast,
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray.
A tree that may in summer wear,
A nest of robins in her hair,
Upon whose bosom snow has lain.
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me
But only God can make a tree

What a beautiful thought, and how true, and what an inspiration for the lover of nature's world.

The natural situation of the Rose of New England, with its rugged hills as a background, and with trees that are upon them is impressive. Even now although I am away I can still create a dream picture, and see the surroundings almost as real as though I were there. Out through the outlying sections of Preston, up over the hills of Windham, here, there and everywhere we see the glories of the autumn days with the trees in their variegated colors.

There is a tangible something that draws us to the woods and fields, for here you see nature adorned in her most beauteous colors. You marvel you admire, and then adore, and you can but think that it is true, that only "God can make a tree."

Ivy Poisoning

By Robert T. Morris, M. D., F. A. C. S., New York, N. Y.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

I have used the term "Ivy Poisoning" because that is the one most familiar to people. In order to speak more accurately I should speak of "Rhus" poisoning, because it is in the Rhus family that poisonous plants to which I refer belong. They go by many local names. Poison oak, poison sumac, mercury, piery and thunderweed in common parlance.

Why should one individual be poisoned and another one not poisoned, when both are exposed in the same way? We are in all probability dealing with a question of what is called sensitization. Many people are familiar with that sort of thing in connection with ragweed pollen for example. One member of a family may have hay fever from ragweed sensitization and another member of the same family may not suffer any such effect.

The subject of sensitization is one that is very large and technical. Consequently I will say briefly that two factors appear to be important. One is a peculiar constitution which permits an individual to become sensitive to a poison; the other factor is peculiarity in method of exposure. Although the behavior of ivy poisoning suggests sensitization the way in which this occurs has yet to be discovered.

The right way to manage a poison ivy remedy is to have it handy in the house or first aid kit when one is first poisoned. Some of the remedies are good to have always right at hand in the house anyway because they are valuable for so many other troubles of the every-day sort. Furthermore the speedy curing of repeated ivy poisoning seems to have a natural tendency to finally make some people immune to the poisoning, according to principles of what we call desensitization.

A remedy that may be useful in one stage of the disease may be actually harmful in another stage of the disease, with four separate and distinct stages to be considered. In the first stage there is a more or less severe itching and burning sensation of the skin. Then, the formation of tiny or large vesicles accompanied by swelling. Next, rupture of vesicles by rubbing and the appearance of a moist exudate. Lastly, a leathery condition of the skin, sometimes persistent for weeks, called "Chronic Dermatitis" in doctor's parlance. In the first stage of the disease it is probable that more than fifteen remedies may be promptly curative, but this stage may not last for more than an hour or two with some people—with others individuals it may last for several days and never go to the second stage at all. In the second stage when poison is buried in the swollen skin there are three or four agents that will penetrate the tissues and get at it. This is unfortunately the state in which treatment is usually begun. The irritation may be greatly increased by applications that would be really curative in the first stage. The third stage introduces a wholly new chapter. Microbes enter the skin where vesicles have become ruptured. If the treatment is not antiseptic in its nature great harm may be done by applications that would be curative during the first or second stages. In the fourth stage itching and burning sensation is so much like that of other stages that remedies which increase the irritation may be applied for a month—three weeks after the poison has all gone. Some authorities hold that the poison is destroyed in less than a week by ordinary body physiology of defense. After that the treatment is to be for dermatitis and not for poison.

Death from ivy poisoning is seldom recorded. There is an occasional suicide from depression after a week without sleep. Sometimes a child has died in convulsions from the pain.

Our message to you is—learn to recognize the poison ivy plants and stay away from them.

NEW BOOKS

Dodo and Billy, By Neta J. Boardman. Cloth, 158 pages, illustrated. Published by V. Palmer company, New York. Price $2.

Neta J. Boardman of Hampton, Conn., is a great lover of children and animals. She has studied animals so closely that, in combination with her rare gift of understanding, she is able to tell what they are thinking about by watching them carefully and awakening their confidence and interest. She has proved by long experience what kindness will do for these dumb creatures and in her book the cat tells how he came to be one of the household pets and the chum of Billy, the tiny little ringed tail mischievous monkey.

In reading the story as Dodo tells it, one feels real acquaintanceship with this interesting cat and his opinions of other animals and people. The purpose of the book is to bring out what really transpires in the animal mind and how the external world appears to them.

The illustrations in the book are from photographs and drawings of the animals and the volume is one that cannot fail to have a special appeal to children.

Piper Spins a Yarn, By Hiram E. Piper. Cloth, 294 pages, illustrated. Published by Meador Publishing Co. Boston. Price $2.

The author was raised on a farm in the middle west and being of an absorbing nature, learned from the very first a few of nature's fundamentals. Shortly after leaving high school he had the misfortune of having a hip crushed by a horse and while in the hospital he experienced his first urge to write.

In this volume of 19 stories he hasn't forgotten the first requirement that a story must be entertaining. In presenting his characters he uses dialogue with a smoothness that causes the reader to visualize his own actors and there is eliminated long drawn out descriptions. Each story is illustrated with a drawing in black and white.

Maximum Wages the Foundation of Prosperity, By Charles S. Coom. Cloth, 226 pages. Published by Meador Publishing Co., Boston. Price $2.50.

The author has devoted 40 years as a professional economist, accountant and manufacturer. He has toiled among workers of all descriptions in order to gain first hand knowledge of the economic conditions confronting this nation and the world in general. He sets forth that gold is the only standard of wealth. Buildings, machinery, and lands, though valued in the wealth of a nation are valueless without the constant effort of labor in the distribution of the currency. The great wealth of agricultural production is a myth. They do not add one cent to the currency except through exportations; and these may be offset by importations. Prosperity is simply brought about through large employment and a maximum wage, enabling a continual circulation of the currency by the masses in the channels of trade. The fundamentals of the book are applicable worldwide.

Entrance to the diner was gained by ripping a padlock off the door. It is believed the theft was the work of boys.

WEDDINGS

Bernier—Thornes

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Frank A. Bernier, insurance salesman of Brooklyn, this state, and Miss Rose F. Thornes, of No. 21 Winchester street, were united in marriage by Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, pastor of the First Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the clergyman's home, No. 54 Peck street. The couple was unattended. The bride was attired in a traveling ensemble of dark brown and wore a corsage bouquet of russet roses. The couple left during the day for a wedding trip after which they will reside at Central Village. The bride received numerous beautiful and useful gifts from her many admiring friends.

Mr. Bernier is the son of Phillbert and Helen Cloutier Bernier and is employed by the Metropolitan Insurance Co. His bride is the daughter of Jackson and Elizabeth Blackburn Thornes and is employed as cashier at the local office of the Metropolitan Insurance Co. The couple have the best wishes of their many friends and acquaintances for a happy and prosperous married future life.

Chabot-Czubanski

Miss Mary Czubanski, daughter of Frank and Anna Czubanski of 21 Dunham street, and Dolor J. Chabot, son of Existe and Cordelia Chabot of 98 High street, were united in marriage at 8 o'clock Monday morning at St. Joseph's church. Rev. S. A. Iciek, the pastor, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of guests. Miss Rose Czubanski, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the Misses Stella Granzinski and Adele Broski acted as bridesmaids. Michael Golumb of Ansonia was best man and Edward Dridol of Hartford and Alec Miski of Norwich were the ushers.

The bride was beautiful in white satin and wore a veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations. Her maid of honor was attired in pink taffeta, Miss Broski wore green satin and Miss Granzinski had a gown of blue taffeta. All of the bride's attendants carried pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Chabot left by motor on their honeymoon trip, which will take them trough New York state and into Canada. They are to reside at 98 High street upon their return in about ten days. For traveling Mrs. Chabot wore a green and tan ensemble. The bridegroom is employed as an engineer by the Connecticut Engineering Co.

The bride was attended by Miss Sophia Kolege as maid of honor and the Misses Mary Stiger of Willimantic and Eleanor Purdiga of Norwich as bridesmaids. Henry Stiger of Willimantic attended the bridegroom as best man.

The bride was attractively gowned in cream colored crepe and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Kolege was dressed in lavender satin, Miss Stiger was clad in green satin and Miss Purdiga in pink satin. Pink roses were carried by the bride's attendants.

At the home of the bride's parents, a reception and wedding dinner was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Kozak departed on their wedding trip to New York city. Mrs. Kozak was attired in black satin for traveling. They will reside at Plainville upon their return in about ten days.

The many guests at the wedding included people from New Britain, Middletown, Hartford, Worcester, Willimantic, Ludlow, Mass., Meriden and other places.

OBITUARY

Hugh Blackledge

(Contributed)

The passing of Hugh Blackledge leaves the memory of a man, reverent, honorable, generous, loyal. His devotion to God and to his church through many years of active service and through the past year of his infirmity, has been and will continue to be an inspiration to all who knew him. His love for the Greeneville Congregational church was shared in his heart by memories of the Wesley chapel, so dear to him in his boyhood and young manhood in Accrington, England.

In his business relations and his life in the community, he was honorable and incorruptible, believing that the practice of fair dealing is more than any gain.

For many years a loyal citizen of the United States, he held always in his heart a tenderness and fine sentiment for England, the land of his birth. His family, his boyhood friends, and the friends of his maturer years he loved with a sincere and touching devotion. Rather shyly, with a bit of the characteristic reserve of the English, he would smile, his eyes lighting with deep pleasure at the greeting of a friend.

So though we shall no longer see him, we shall remember him—gentle, kindly, an honorable and a godly man.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS APPOINT NEW COUNTY HOME SUPERINTENDENT

The appointment of Eveline Dickinson, M. D., of New York to be superintendent of the county home has been made by the commissioners of New London county and at a dinner at noon Monday at the county home on Smith avenue the appointment was formally announced and Dr. Dickinson was introduced to the county home staff.

In attendance at the dinner were the two county commissioners, Fred A. Beckwith of Niantic and Charles H. Smith of Noank with Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of the board of management and Dr. Dickinson.

The new appointee succeeds Miss Jessie Gibson, who has been the county home superintendent for 35 years, but presented her resignation some time ago, desiring to be relieved from the duties of the position.

In announcing the appointment of Dr. Dickinson, Commissioner Beckwith gave expression to the deep appreciation which the county board feels for the services which have been rendered for so many years by Miss Gibson and to the great respect and esteem in which they hold her.

Dr. Dickinson's appointment is effective from the first of November and in securing her the county commissioners feel that they have filled the position with one unusually well qualified for its duties. She is a native of the middle west and is a graduate of the Woman's Medical Hospital of Pennsylvania. Following this she took a course in institutional management at New York School of Philanthropy and was then engaged in several different places in hospital re-organization work. Later she took her second degree at Leland Stanford university, California.

For some time Dr. Dickinson has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Haskell of No 6 Huntington place.

Miss Gibson is to spend some time visiting her sister, Mrs. Jones, in Providence.

COMMUNITY SYNAGOGUE TROOP HOLDS ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Seventeen boys gathered at the Community synagogue Monday night at 7:00 o'clock and played games and engaged in scoutcraft activities. Melvin Worth, scoutmaster, started the meeting with the game of steal the bacon. He was assisted by Louis Goldblatt, who had charge of activities and showed the boys how to play swat tag. Harry Schwartz, chairman of the troop committee, led the would-be scouts in a game of prisoner's base.

The boys were divided into patrols and chose their patrol names consisting of: Panther, Owl and Flying Eagle. Following some lusty yells, the patrols had knot tying in their patrol "dens." Louis Goldblatt conducted a quiz in knot tying and Mr. Worth gave the boys a fine talk on "What kind of a Boy Scout troop is the Community synagogue going to have?" Following a game of scientific rough house and scalps, a patrol leaders' meeting was held and the troop was dismissed with the repetition of the scout oath.

Scouts and boys attending the meeting were: Meyer Wolfman, Arthur Krieger, Geurson Silverberg, Julian Krieger, Morton Ziegler of the Owl patrol; Norman J. Antokol, Leo Abramson, Morris Schoenberg, Maurice Alexander and Nathan Becker of the Panther patrol; Harry Rothman, Norman Israelite, Henry Pasnik, Mischa Schwartz of the Flying Eagle patrol. Scout Lester Libby was appointed acting senior patrol leader and will arrange a meeting of the patrol leaders at the Wauregan hotel with Mr. Worth at 4:30 next Monday.

The sponsoring committee of the new troop is composed of Harry Schwartz, Dr. Solomon, Dr. Markoff, Mr. Sussler.

OBSERVED THEIR 55TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In observance of the 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Wilson there was a family dinner party of eight on Sunday at their home, 56 Elizabeth street. The marriage of the couple took place in Moosup, Oct. 26, 1875, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. W. Ellis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mrs. Wilson was Georgietta Fairman of Green Hollow.

Mr. Wilson has followed the trade of carpenter and pattern maker and they have resided in Norwich for all of their married life except for a few years in Central Village and North Brookfield, Mass. Their daughter, Miss Luella, was born in Central Village and their two sons, Ralph and Claude, were born in Norwich. They have one grandchild, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson.

The anniversary day was remembered by many of their friends with expressions of goodwill.

MIDDLETOWN MAN FINED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 27—Arthur J. Astle, Jr., of 40 Johnson street, Middletown was fined $100 and costs in the Columbia town court tonight when arraigned on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor. Judge H. P. Collins remitted $50 of the fine and a charge of evading responsibility was not pressed. Astle, who was arrested Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins, was taken into custody after complaints had been received that his car had collided with another operated by Stanley Jakiel, of 16 High street, Rockville, and caused two other cars to be ditched. The registry number of the Middletown machine was secured and the arrest followed.

Grand Juror Lucius Robinson prosecuted the case.

D. A. R. MONTHLY GUIDE TO MOTION PICTURES

The following is the list of motion pictures which have passed under the scrutiny of the national censorship board of the Daughters of the American Revolution this month:

"At the Bottom of the World"—Dr. Robert Cushman's trip to Antarctic regions. Excellent entertainment; educational. Family. Junior matinees.

"Abraham Lincoln"—D. W. Griffith's production gives us a very human Abraham Lincoln, a kindly, big-souled, lovable, courageous leader. Family.

"The Sea God"—Richard Arlen, Ivan Simpson and Eugene Pallette have the leading roles in this South Sea Island melodrama. Family. Junior matinees.

"Animal Crackers"—Lively entertainment by the four Marx brothers in this mad, senseless comedy will please their admirers. Junior matinees.

"Soup to Nuts"—Children may enjoy this eccentric farce which has many burlesque tricks presented in a rather patchwork pattern.

"Arctic Antics" — Short subject. Amusing and clever. Family. Junior matinees.

"Love that Kills"—Short subject. Family.

"The Shindig"—Short subject. A grotesque barn dance in the Mickey Mouse series; rather good. Family. Junior matinees.

"Dude Ranching"—Short subject. This Grantland Rice Sportlight presents very interesting views of girl campers roughing it in the mountains of Wyoming.

"Love in the Rough"—Light comedy featuring Robert Montgomery, Benny Ruben and Dorothy Jordan.

"What Men Want"—Even exceptionally fine sets of modern interiors, ravishing gowns, and a good cast cannot offset the unwholesome underlying theme of this story. Not recommended.

"The Sea Wolf"—Based on Jack London's story, this realistic drama of regeneration is so harrowing, so brutal, so filled with hatred that it is a physical strain for an adult and children should not be allowed to see it.

"A Devil with Women"—The dashing, swaggering Victor McLaglen in another soldier of fortune picture, with a South American setting. Not recommended.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY FILLS UNION HALL TO DOORS

Union hall in the Greeneville section had an overflow crowd with standing room only on Monday night for the democratic rally, at which the principal speaker was William C. Fox of New London, the party's candidate for congressman from this district. He was introduced by Jeremiah Fitzgerald, town committee chairman, who presided.

Mr. Fox stated that he will favor full protective tariff for American industry and declared that the present tariff, put in force by the republicans, did injury to exports and caused unemployment, with two billions decrease in exports yearly.

He quoted figures to show the value of the submarine base to New London and vicinity, which had been compiled by the disbursing officer. These showed that during the last year $1,873,187.77 was paid out. The disbursements were listed as follows: Civilian wages $261,921.32, military rolls $1,155,083.70, public vouchers $456,132.75. Supplies, equipage and spare parts for the submarine base submarines and the tenders which have made this place their home port are stored in the modern supply department building at the base. The material carried in this department is valued at $1,288,880. Issues for the last year amounted to $1,364,615. Adjacent army posts and coast guard vessels in addition to the navy craft are also furnished supplies. To carry on this activity required a force of four officers and 31 civil service employes and enlisted men of the navy. Mr. Fox claimed that his opponent, Congressman Freeman, was not on his job to let this get away without putting up a battle to try and hold it for New London. Mr. Fox said that he had written a letter to the navy department to which he received the following reply: Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of Oct. 10 relative to reduction of naval personnel at New London, the approved plan in regard to reduction of expense and reorganization of the active vessels of the navy is considered to be required by the public interest. The changes affecting New London involve the decommissioning of five S-class submarines and the Camden, having a total of about 570 men and 50 officers, and the transfer of seven S-class submarines and the Chewink, having about 310 men and 32 officers. The nine O-class or their equivalent of nine R-class submarines and Falcon, will remain at New London and the submarine school and base will continue to operate as heretofore without reduction of personnel. The navy department regrets the effect on local business conditions in New London. Very respectfully, C. F. Davis.

In talking about his opponent, Mr. Fox said that Freeman didn't vote on many bills but he did vote on increasing the Spanish war veterans' pensions, of which he himself was a veteran. He also voted for tariff bill.

William J. Fitzgerald, candidate for state senator on the democratic ticket was the next speaker. In speaking he stated that his opponent, Charles W. Cassidy, at a recent republican rally stated: "Let us keep the record straight, relating to the compensation act." The 1913 assembly was made up of house representatives, 130 republicans, 120 democrats and 8 progressives; senate made up of 21 democrats, 14 republicans. Simeon Baldwin was governor. A. L. Tingier was lieutenant governor. The following were bills on compensation: House bill No. 45, by J. C. Stremlaugh, a democrat; bill No. 94, Mr. Maltbie, republican; bill No. 147, Mr. Thomas, democrat; No. 26, Mr. Landis, democrat; substitute bill No. 83, Senator McDonough. All bills were referred to the joint committee on judiciary. Senate bill 83, which was drafted by the joint committee and was introduced by Senator McDonough, was passed by the senate on May 14 and by the house on May 20. The democrats were far the more aggressive in passing the law. He also talked on tubercular conditions and the high taxes that are being put on the shoulders of the taxpayers. Upon ending his speech, Mr. Fitzgerald received loud applause from the large attendance.

Other speakers were John F. Hennon of Jewett City, who spoke on the old age pension; A. W. Lillibridge, candidate for county sheriff, who said if elected that he would do his utmost to help to make it an honest administration; Raymond Girard, of Taftville, candidate for representative stated that if elected he would do all in his power to support and vote for anything that was good and gave a benefit or help to the working man; Attorney Edward Moran spoke forcibly in regard to the method of advertising the campaign by the opposite party.

AUTO TURNS OVER IN NORWICH TOWN CRASH

A Buick sedan driven northerly on Town street about 5:45 o'clock Monday afternoon by Stephen Armstrong, son of Frederick S. Armstrong of 303 Washington street, clipped a Massachusetts man's machine at the New London turnpike corner, turned sharp around and landed on its right side against a telegraph pole, headed in the opposite direction from which it had been coming.

The Massachusetts machine, a small sedan, was driven by Erie Mitchell of Auburn, Mass., and was coming out of the New London turnpike onto Town street. It was struck at the right front end by the Armstrong car, the evidence accumulated by Constable Lucius Fenton bringing him to the conclusion that young Armstrong tried to cut around in front of the other car but did not manage to clear it. The constable preferred a charge of reckless driving against Armstrong and summoned him to appear in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

The Armstrong car had two occupants, the driver and his younger brother, both of whom received slight cuts and scratches. There were no injuries to the several passengers in the Massachusetts machine, but the car had a bent right front fender and the axle of the right front wheel was sprung.

NORWICH MAN TAKES FISHERS ISLAND BRIDE

Miss Evelyn Melanson of Fishers Island was married Monday at the Lady of Grace church in Fishers Island to Anthony LeBlanc of Norwich.

Miss Melanson was given a shower Saturday night by Mrs. M. Chestnut. The house was prettily decorated in blue and white. Miss Melanson was the recipient of many beautiful gifts including silver, cut glass and linen. Vocal and piano selections were rendered by Mrs. Roy Eldridge, Anna Chestnut, Margaret Edwards, Margaret Melanson, Helen Best, Emma and Marion Pyle. Dance exhibitions were given by Mrs. Chestnut and Mrs. Goodwin after which dainty refreshments were served.

TRAINING SCHOOL BEGINS AT NOYES PARISH HOUSE

The Norwich Community Training school opened its sessions Monday evening in Noyes parish house of the Central Baptist church with registration of about 60 for the five nights of instruction this week. There is to be further opportunity for registration this (Tuesday) evening.

Those attending are church and church school workers and parents interested in Bible study and religious education, in which there are four courses with the following instructors: Story telling in religious education, Rev. Raymond J. Bates, Montville; The teaching work of the church, Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, Moosup; A study of the pupil, Rev. W. G. Fagan, Mystic; Dramatization and pageantry, Mrs. A. N. Foster, this city.

Rev. Percy A. Kilmister of the First Baptist church, this city, is dean of the faculty; Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen is registrar and Miss Signe Seaberg, librarian.

COMPLAINS THAT MAN KICKED IN HER DOOR

On a complaint by Josephine Hall of North High street that a door at her home had been kicked in by Homer Peckham, colored, of 183 West Main street, the latter was arrested Monday afternoon on an intoxication charge by Sergeant Myron Morgan, Officers Lamphere and P. Murphy. Peckham will appear in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

FLAT TIRE STALLS CAR AND ARREST FOLLOWS

When the automobile which he was driving halted on the trolley tracks at Norwich Town because of a flat tire, John F. Haley of Willimantic was arrested on Washington street Monday night about midnight by Constable Lucius Fenton, on the charge of driving under the influence of liquor. A companion with him was charged with intoxication. Before the arrest, which took place on Washington street, near the Smith greenhouses, the car Haley was driving had run into a parked machine on Washington street near the corner of Lafayette.

FUNERALS

Henry Cardin

Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock, the funeral of Henry Cardin was held at the home of his son, Philip Cardin in Baltic, and at 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Rev. George Duplise of Amesbury, Mass., a nephew of the deceased, was the celebrant and Miss Nellie B. Milner presided at the organ. The boys' choir sang Pie Jesu at the offertory.

The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and Rev. A. A. Jalbert and Rev. Fr. Duplise conducted the committal service. The bearers were Peter Cardin, George LeCroix, Arthur Roy, Charles Dione, Silvia Belle and Joseph Arpin. There was a large attendance at the service and there were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker G. G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Joseph Romano

With a large attendance of relatives and friends, the funeral of Joseph Romano of No. 1 McKinley court, was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Central Baptist church. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., conducted the funeral service at the church and the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Dimonico De Sciscillo, Sam Vasington, Donato Dasolito, Rosario Calderola, Onofrio Amedico, and Pasquale Girasolo. There were many beautiful floral tributes of esteem. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Matti Hytti

At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon the funeral of Matti Hytti was held at the home of his cousin, Caino Nurmi, No. 132 Dunham street, with relatives and friends present. John A. Parkkari of Niantic conducted the service and the burial was at Maplewood cemetery, Mr. Parkkari conducting the committal service. The bearers were Carl Pasann, Erik Thihtala, Oscar Nisula, Halmar Tamun, S. Rain and J. Salmi. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

GINGRAS-STOMSKI—In Dayville, Oct. 27, 1930, by Rev. Ignatius Kost, Joseph Gingras and Miss Anna Stomski.

Connecticut Boy is Rewarded

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as bad breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right out in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mrs. A. J. Therkelsen, 4001 Main Street, Hartford, Conn., says: "I gave Junior California Fig Syrup to keep his bowels open during a cold. It helped so much I knew what to give him when I saw by his bad breath and coated tongue that he was constipated.

"He has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. It made him a well, happy boy promptly. He never complains of any symptoms of constipation now."

ROCKNE CLAIMS WHO OPPOSE HIS NOTRE DAME SHIFT ARE CRY-BABIES

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(AP)—Knute Rockne can win football games without his famous shift just as he has done so often in the past but if the rule-makers ever should outlaw this movement entirely he will quit guaranteeing to fill stadiums from one end of the country to the other.

Riding the high tide with another superlative Notre Dame team, perhaps the greatest he or any other coach ever has developed, the Norwegian master of the ready wit is in a happy mood these days. He feels rather deeply about regulations that have brought the shift to a full stop with at least a second's halt, but the last laugh is not on him.

"Notre Dame can get along without the shift," he declared in a round-table discussion before the game at Pittsburgh. "We can stop ten minutes on every play if necessary—as a referee warned us we'd have to do once—but there won't be much color in that kind of a game. We can win without the shift but we won't draw the crowds. The color will be gone.

"Sure I could eliminate the shift. I could pass and pray from a punt formation for one thing or I could use great big fellows and bruise a way through. But I don't choose to do either.

"There's nothing unsportsmanlike about the shift. It merely gives little men of ability and speed the chance to handle big men. It adds speed and grace to football. It brings out pass development.

"That's why when light shifty teams began to beat the big fellows, coaches realized that a couple of 50 yard passes were better than 100 yards of driving. Some time the rules committee may realize this, too, and take the restrictions off running attacks."

Rockne likes football material with brains, heart and speed. If you can have size and power along with these, he says, then you have potential all-Americans. But there is no room in Knute's system for the slow-witted, powerful fellows who depend on might alone. Rockne nods a smiling assent to "Chick" Meehan's declaration that Notre Dame wants acrobats, not football players.

As for systems, Rockne likes his own best or he wouldn't be using it. The only difference between his own style of play and "Pop" Warner's, the other most-copied coach in the game, is his use of speed and deception where the Stanford veteran likes power and deception. The fullbacks, he thinks, typify the difference in the two styles of play.

"Did you ever see a Warner team without a great plunging fullback?" he asks to prove his point. "Mine can be small but they must be agile. Of course my boy Savoldi can go places."

Knute gets a bit peeved sometimes because the opposition to his shift is always "under cover." He can't seem to drag his opponents out in the open for a knockdown, drag-out argument on the subject.

"The coaches who decry the shift are just cry-babies," he insists. "They can't meet present conditions of the game themselves. They're like a lot of business men down in Wall street these days. They don't know the war is over."

Y SENIORS TO HOLD SECOND PRACTICE THIS WEEK

The Y Seniors basketball team will hold their second workout of the season this week when the 15 candidates who made their appearance at the opening drill last Thursday are expected to be present. Coach J. Howard Demarest, physical director at the Y, has a tough assignment confronting him this year in which he has only two regulars from last year's five and only four from the entire squad on hand.

Tommy Lynch and Les Pingree, backs, are the regulars available and Howard Ludlow, a back and Manager Zeke Leffingwell, forward, were also present at the opening drill. Others who are out include Red Armstrong, Henschel, Dierman, Nadelson, Tubbs and Pierson.

The Seniors are again entered in the Y state league this year. A different arrangement for deciding the championship has been worked out for the coming campaign. The state will be divided into two divisions, New Haven being the dividing line. Each team will play ten games, five at home and five away and the winner in each section will then clash in a series of games.

The Seniors will probably open their campaign in about three weeks, playing independent teams, although the league will not start until later.

YUDICKY LOST TO DARTMOUTH SQUAD

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 27—(AP)—Dartmouth's hopes for its first victory over Yale were rudely dented here today, when Trainer Harry Hillman announced that Stan Yudicky, the Green's star right end, would be unable to play against the Elis next Saturday.

Yudicky, who has not missed a game in two seasons, tore a ligament while blocking a Harvard opponent on the muddy stadium field last Saturday.

Several of the Dartmouth regulars were so bruised that they were unable to don uniforms today but Head Coach Jackson Cannell had them on the sidelines studying the Yale formations demonstrated by the scrub team, coached by Abe Cohen, Frank Brady and Clarence McDavitt, former Dartmouth stars who have scouted Albie Booth and company in all of the Elis' games to date.

Cannell put his second and third string reserves, few of whom saw any service against Harvard through a long scrimmage with the freshman third team.

It is likely that Forest Branch, until a week ago a fourth string guard, will be given an end assignment for the bowl clash. Branch relieved Yudicky when he was injured Saturday and his performance impressed Cannell and his aides.

PUTNAM TURNS TABLES ON BALTIC SOCCER CLUB

At Putnam Sunday afternoon the Putnam team won a free-scoring game, 5 to 4, from the Baltic Soccer team. A large crowd saw the Putnam team come through with a victory in one of the fastest and most hard-fought games of the league season. L. Mellor played a brilliant game at center halfback while Fenton also starred at center forward. The teamwork of the Putnam eleven was exceptionally fine, every man playing up to form.

BOOTH PRACTICES WITH TEAM IN SUPPLY DRILL

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27—(AP)—Some strange things happened at the Yale football practice today. They, of course, concerned that little fellow, Albie Booth.

He left his bed in the college infirmary at noon, was among the first at practice, and ran the team in a snappy signal drill with all his old time fire and speed.

And yet when it was all over, Dr. Leonard Sanford the team's physician, issued this statement:

"It is doubtful if Albie Booth will play in the Dartmouth game."

No amplification of this statement could be obtained either from the doctor or from Head Coach Mal Stevens. Among the laymen the general opinion is that the well known red herring is being brushed across Yale's trail.

Booth, who was messed up in the first play in which he appeared in the Army game Saturday, seemed to be in good physical condition as he ran through signals with Austen, Dunn and Crowley. The only trace of his injuries apparent to spectators was noted in his pale face.

The signal was short, lasting 15 minutes. It followed an hour's blackboard talk by Coaches Stevens, Walsh and Comerford.

While the first two teams were excused after signal drill, the varsity substitutes got a harder workout, being sent through a scrimmage.

Barres, end; Al Beane, halfback, and Uihlein, tackle, were given a complete rest today. Wilbur, captain of the 1929 freshman team, who started the Army game in the place of Hall, was in the first team lineup again and it seems that he will keep the job at left tackle.

HARVARD RESERVES IN ACTION AS REGULARS REST

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27—(AP)—An attempt to strengthen Harvard's weakened squad, was made today when Head Coach Arnold Horween ordered Bob Faxon, a first string tackle replacement, to consider himself a wingman for the remainder of the Crimson's now ruined football season.

Horween gave the regulars who played against Dartmouth a rest today and put his reserves through a long scrimmage with the second varsity and freshman teams, the varsity players scoring three touchdowns.

Charlie Devens, who suffered a broken leg against the Green, was definitely declared out for the rest of the season and the medical report stated that Richards, a regular tackle, was too bruised to be available for next Saturday's game with William and Mary.

PLAINFIELD WINS FROM TAFTVILLE AT SOCCER

The Plainfield soccer team moved into a tie for third place in the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league Sunday when they defeated the J. B. Martin team, 1 to 0, in a well played game at Plainfield. Plainfield and Taftville battled on even terms for the first half but Plainfield came back strong in the second period. After an exchange of kicks Plainfield's outside right forward headed the ball toward the Taftville goal and it bounded off a Taftville player into the net for the only score of the game. The offensive work of Lang and the defensive work of Allard were the features of the game.

Refuses Northwestern Request

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 27—(AP)—Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus of Indiana university, chairman of the western conference committee on athletics, announced today the Big Ten refused the request of Northwestern university to transfer its football game with Notre Dame November 22 from Dyche stadium at Evanston to Soldier field, Chicago.

The proposal had been advanced, and agreed upon by the two schools, because of the increased seating capacity of Soldier Field, with the plan to make the game a charity benefit.

Dr. Moenkhaus issued the following statement:

"I am not in position to express the considerations that led to the negative votes, but I am sure that there was no lack of appreciation of the merit of the cause to which the extra proceeds were to go. The faculty representatives were no doubt influenced not so much by the factors in the present problem as by the effect of the granting of this request might have upon the consideration of other proposals involving the waiving of other conference rules."

Northwestern's 32-0 defeat of Illinois was the worst the Illini suffered in over 30 years.

TWO TIE FOR HONORS IN NATIONAL FIELD TRIALS

CRAB ORCHARD, Ky., Oct. 27—(AP)—Headman, owned by G. P. Patton, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Ruling Chief, owned by the Golden Valley kennels, Forest City, N. C., tied for first place in the general averages for the first cast in the Chase futurity of the National Fox Hunters' association here today. Tracy Moore is master of the Golden Valley kennels.

Headman is by Ladkin, out of Bonnie Strides, Ruling Chief is by Little Danger, out of Susan Moore. The second and third casts in the futurity, which carries a purse of $1,000 and trophies, will be run tomorrow and Wednesday.

Three dogs tied for second place in today's trials. They were Morgan Casper, owned by Dr. M. Casper, Louisville; Warab's Merry Lass, owned by H. V. Conant, Dedham, Mass., and Danger's Fancy, owned by the Golden Valley stables.

Mis's Last Cricket, owned by Dr S. B. Ellis, Wakefield, Va., and Sunny Girl, owned by G. B. Morgan, Memphis, Tenn., tied for third.

The dogs were judged on speed and driving, hunting and trailing, and endurance. Of the field of 78 that started this morning, 17 were scratched, leaving 61 to enter the second cast tomorrow. The weather was dry today, and poor for hunting, but a light rain fell tonight which was believed to have decidedly improved conditions for tomorrow.

BRUEN RESIGNS RATHER THAN BREAK WITH MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 27—(AP)—The Miami Herald says that Frank J. Bruen resigned as manager and vice president of Madison Square Garden corporation today when William F. Carey, president of the Garden, decided definitely not to hold a major heavyweight fight program in Miami this winter.

The Garden, in the spring of 1929, entered into an agreement with the city of Miami for a major boxing card of contenders for the heavyweight throne each winter for a five-year period. The first of these fights was held last February when Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott headlined the card.

Bruen, according to the Herald, broke off with the Garden rather than be a party to breaking the agreement with Miami. Three weeks ago Bruen was in Miami and announced that the Garden again would have its winter fight program.

The Garden built an arena here seating 50,000 persons at a cost of $100,000 on property leased without cost from the city.

PLAINFIELD HAS EASY TIME BEATING PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 27.—Plainfield high had no trouble in turning back an old rival in Putnam high here this afternoon, 12 to 0. This game had been held over from Saturday due to stormy weather. Plainfield opened strong, forcing Putnam deep into their own territory. The first score came after several runs by Plainfield backs which placed the ball on Putnam's five-yard line from where Burby easily plunged over for a touchdown. The try for point failed.

The second touchdown was due to an intercepted pass by Burby, who ran 40 yards for his second score. Williams also intercepted a pass during the last minute of play, but was stopped on Putnam's one-yard line, where the game ended. The fine defensive work of the Plainfield line and of Lang in the backfield was too much for the Putnam boys. This is Plainfield's third game to date and boasts an uncrossed goal-line. They hold wins over Putnam and Killingly and played a scoreless tie with Fitch high of Groton.

JOE FABER GETS OFF WITH FINE OF $100

The current issue of The Sporting News says Joe Faber, local boy, is suspended from organized baseball, but if someone will come forth with $100 to pay the fine that Joe and three other members of the Omaha Packers of the eastern league incurred for playing in a tournament not under the supervision of organized ball everything will be all right.

The incident occurred about two weeks before the end of the Western league season and, because of the little time remaining, neither Owner Burch of Omaha or the players themselves were disposed to come forth with the cash to set things right again. According to Secretary J. H. Farrell of the National association, the matter still stands as it did when the fines were plastered on.

Also in The Sporting News is the following comment: "Lefty Dugas, ball-smashing outfielder, of the Wichita club, advanced to the Pirates where he showed the big leaguers how to hit that baseball and also how to play right field."

PICTURES OF ARMY-YALE GAME SHOW ARMY TOUCHDOWN WAS ILLEGAL

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27—(AP)—Motion pictures of Saturday's Yale-Army football game which resulted in a 7-7 tie today revealed that the touchdown scored for the cadets by Tom Kilday was not made strictly in accordance with the rules and regulations governing the game. Yale officials, however, expect to do nothing about it and said they would accept the official decision ruling it a touchdown.

The pictures, which were viewed by Head Coach Mal Stevens, Coach Adam Walsh, Tad Jones, Dean Clarence Mendell and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale A. A., also showed the details of the one and only play in which Albie Booth, star Eli quarterback, participated during the game before he was carried off the field on a stretcher and later to the university infirmary.

Violation of rule 10, section 1, article 1, which sets forth what aid a player may and may not receive while running with the ball was disclosed by the pictures. With fourth down and one yard to go for a touchdown, Kilday was given the ball and hurled himself against the Blue line. The pictures show that the cadet was thrown back before he reached the double stripe, but as he fell back, Stecker charged in, hit him square in the back and lifted him over the goal line for the touchdown which put the Army on even terms with the Elis.

The rule in question provides that "no player of the team in possession of the ball may help the runner except by interfering for him, and there shall be no interlocked interference." A supplementary note reads that "pushing the runner or lifting runner from ground by teammate is infraction of the rule." Infraction of the rule carries as a penalty loss of 15 yards.

The Yale A. A. issued the following statement concerning the touchdown:

"There will be no protest over the alleged illegal touchdown made by Army. The official decision is accepted."

The march which resulted in Kilday's touchdown came after Booth had been carried off the field with injuries to his head, mouth and back. Pictures of the play which ended Booth's activities for the day showed that the Blue back had been stopped after he had intercepted a long Army pass and that the referee had signalled the play at an end. Army players, picking up speed suddenly, then leaped into the mass on the ground in which Booth was entangled.

Booth, officials said, was knocked unconscious in the play, but not seriously injured. He was discharged today from the infirmary where he rested over the weekend and was expected to be ready for next Saturday's contest with Dartmouth.

Army Makes No Comment

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27—(AP)—Coaches and officials here refused tonight to discuss the motion pictures shown today at New Haven that indicated Army had scored an illegal touchdown to tie Yale in Saturday's pigskin conflict.

TYLER SAYS KILDAY TOOK BALL OVER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27—(AP)—A. C. Tyler, of Princeton, who was head linesman in the Yale-Army game last Saturday in which the legality of Army's touchdown has been questioned on the ground that Tom Kilday, Army back, was pushed over the line by a teammate, tonight said that there was no question but that the ball was over.

"I was standing on the line," said Tyler. "Kilday dove at the mass of players, halted in mid-air just short of the line, and then moved ahead far enough so the ball went over. I was not in position to tell whether he received any assistance or whether he went ahead by a drive from his own legs."

RUSSO AND CURCIO BATTLE FOR R. I. MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE AT SHYMA SHOW

The middleweight title of Rhode Island will be at stake in the main bout of the all star card of the Shyma Boxing club on Friday evening, Nov. 7, when Johnny Curcio of Providence, Rhode Island middleweight champion meets Joe Russo of Westerly, R. I. Curcio and Russo were scheduled to meet on the last card of the Shyma club but Russo was forced to cancel his engagement owing to illness. Whether the boxing commissions of Westerly and Connecticut will recognize this as a title bout is not known although the boys are willing to agree to it.

Russo is anxious to knock the crown from the brow of Curcio where it has rested for some time and is now working hard to be in the best of condition to meet the veteran of Providence. Curcio showed that he is a clever boxer and a mighty hard puncher in his bout with Younk Siki at Taftville last week.

For another of the star bouts of the evening Vic Darr will try conclusions again with Ero Peterson of Worcester. Darr has fought Peterson before with the result that the Worcester boy was given the decision by a point in a torrid encounter at Westerly. Darr, after his brilliant victory over Al Koziol, is anxious to take on Peterson again and is confident that he can take the Worcester lad. Darr showed wonderful improvement in his bout with Koziol last week and from his showing against the Laurel Hill mauler the local fans are backing Darr to win from Peterson.

Al Koziol of Norwich, will be seen in action in the third eight rounder. His opponent has not yet been selected but it is expected that Analdo Nochie of Worcester, will be the other boy in the ring. A match between these two boys would give the fans a very pleasant evening as both Koziol and Nochie are of the same type of boxers.

For one of the preliminaries Tony Caprio of Providence is being brought back to battle with Rene Peloquin of Danielson. Fans were favorably impressed with Caprico in his bout with Jimmy Quinn at the last show although Quinn's reluctance to fight made it a slow bout. Caprio is a boy who likes to swap punches with an opponent which will make it unanimous when he meets Peloquin, the little French windmill from Danielson.
